BIRTHS

IN MEMORIAM

KELLISHER — In loving memory of and a sweet memory of dear Kelleher, who was taken from us many years ago March 24, 1945.

Please God, forgive a silent tear.

Sad memories are all I have here. There are others, yes, I know. But none like mine, and I loved so.

Five years ago I had to part.

With one I loved so dear to my heart; Wound so deep it will not heal.

Only those who have lost know how I feel.

If I could speak with Jack today, Laugh with him the same old way, And hold his hand as oft times while Then life indeed would be worth

You will loved to be forgotten— Sadly missed by Mother, Dad and Alan. M24

BADGLEY — In loving memory of my dear mother, Emily Francis Badgley who died one year ago 24th of March, 1949.

Though her smile has gone forever And her heart no earnest touch Still we have so many memories Of the mother we love much.

Her memory is our keepsake

With her we'll meet again.

We have her in our hearts

Ever remembered by daughter Annie, son-in-law Nelson Burshaw.

BARLOW — In loving memory of Marsha, wife of James Barlow, who passed away March 24th, 1945.

Gone from us but lovingly remembered. Death can never take away

Memories that will always linger While upon this earth we stay.

Sadly missed by family. M24

BADGLEY — In loving memory of my mother, Sarah Jane Peter Badgley, who passed away March 24, 1949, one year ago today.

Deep in my heart lies a picture

More precious than gold

It is a picture of you, dear mother

A picture that will never grow old.

It is lonesome at home without you

And memory

Is a sad silent key dov through

For life is not the same to us

Since you were called to rest.

So dearly loved and sadly missed by husband and daughter Agnes. M24

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 24 (CP)—Western oils continued in moderate demand as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The remainder of the market moved in a narrow path at slightly lower prices. Volume for the first three hours was 613,000 shares.

Pacific Petroleum held the spotlight in western oils, climbing 25 cents to a new high at $5. Royalite Oil, strong feature of recent climbing western oil markets, was held in check.

Industrials slipped quietly. Papers, climbing leaders in recent sessions, led the downward trend. Steels bucked the trend for some moderate advances.

Base metals tended easier on losses ranging up of 15 cents. Consolidated Smelters and Noranda, leaders in the industry, held firm.

Senior gold fractions while junior producers showed balanced gains and losses. MacLeod-Cockshutt traded briskly, advancing to a new high in early trading but losing the advantage in midsession.

PRODUCE MARKET

Creamery prints: first grade 60 cents.

All stocks were moving well at the Toronto egg market this morning.

Receipts of Grade A large are liberal but other grades are in light supply. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free—Grade A large 39-40; A medium 38; A pullet 35; Grade B 35; Grade C 32. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 43; A medium 41; A pullet 39; Grade B 38; Grade C 35.

Butter solids: first grade solids 58; second grade solids unestablished.

New System Of Education Highly Praised

Presenting a comparison pictures of the theories and methods of education used up to the present time, Mr. G. Currie, principal of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School, spoke to the Y's Men's Club at their regular weekly dinner meeting at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

Introduced by Linton Read, the speaker, stressed the fact that democracy depends on an educated people. In the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School, this city has one of the finest and most complete, secondary schools in the province. At the present time 46 per cent of the students attending were from outside the city limits.

The speaker traced the different methods of education used during the past years ,and spoke very highly of the new system that is at present being introduced in Ontario schools. It would give students a chance to explore their own talents, and develop the latent fine that would fit them best to play their part in society. School should be more than just a center of leaning, it should also be a place where growing minds are developed along the lines that would best fit them best for the life they will lead. The new system will follow after leaving school. The speaker was thanked by Rob Fowler.

President Gerald Hyde presided at the meeting. Don Williams was sergeant-at-arms, Leslie Reid song leader, and Oscar Magar winner of the booster prize.

Plans were finalized for the annual ladies' night which will be held next Thursday evening at the Y.M.C.A.

SEEK MISSING GIRL

Windsor, Ont., March 24—(CP)—Police in Windsor and Ontario provincial police here today are conducting investigations for an 18-year-old girl missing from her Ottawa home since Feb. 22 and now reported in this area.

She is Elinor Halferdahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Halferdahl. Her father is a National Research Council scientist.

One report is that Mrs. Halferdahl now is en route to Windsor to aid the search.

Seretse Khama Shows Chagrin Over Exile Order

London, March 24. (AP)—Tribal Chief Seretse Khama left England for his native Bechuanaland in Africa today after accusing Britain of Hitler-like racial discrimination.

The 29-year-old hereditary head of the Bamangwatos, making no attempt to conceal his chagrin over the government's ruling he must go into exile for five years, left for Accra on a British overseas airline flying boat from Southampton.

He answered a reporter's inquiry about his attitude towards Britain with: "I have never been fed up with Britain."

But, in a letter published today by the London Times, he said the government had snatched away his tribal crown "for no crime, except that I have married an Englishwoman."

The government has modified a previous ban on his return home to permit him to rejoin his white wife in Bechuanaland and to remain there until after the birth of the child the couple expect in June.

Educated at Oxford University, Seretse created a sensation in 1948 by marrying a blonde working girl named Ruth Williams.

Britain, which as protector of Bechuanaland passes judgment on who shall succeed to the Bamangwato chiefainship, admitted in a white paper published Wednesday that it considered Seretse unfit to rule because of his marriage. He had neglected, it charged, his public duty and sown the seeds of tribal disunity.

In his letter to the Times Seretse retorted he had failed "to discover one single charge against me where I have done wrong." The real cause of the trouble, he said, was his marriage and the differences of opinion between those who support racial discrimination and those against it.

". . . This racial discrimination," he wrote, "which in the past has been an exclusive feature of Hitlerism, has again come to the forefront."

Beer Sentence Termed 'Absurd', Will be Appealed

Toronto, March 24. (CP)—Austin Ross, counsel for a man sentenced to one month because his 17-year-old daughter took a "sip" of beer, said today he would appeal the sentence while Toronto lawyers termed the sentence "ridiculous" and "absurd".

Walter Hoogey, 47, was jailed Thursday after his daughter, Ivy, testified she sipped the beer at a St. Patrick's Day party "to tease Daddy" after her father had ordered her not to drink.

Elmer W. Brandon, reeve of suburban Swansea and a lawyer, termed Magistrate Arthur L. Tinker's decision "ridiculous".

"There are many sections of the Liquor Control Act which need to be revamped in the light of such decisions," he added.

Ernest Bogart, K.C., said the decision placed much too heavy an onus on parents to see their children do not drink.

"In any event the legal age to which a parent has to support a child is 18 and this girl was 17 and responsible for her own support and maintenance," he said.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Tinker said the father was responsible because he had the beer in a place where his daughter could get it.

J. L. McLennan, another lawyer said the statute on serving liquor to minors was never intended to make parents the guarantors that their children would not drink from the family cellar. He said the decision placed "a terrible onus on parents".

SWEEPS' COUNTERFOILS SEIZED BY POLICE

Toronto, March 23 — (CP) — Some persons who bought sweepstake tickets for Saturday's running of the Grand National at Aintree, Eng., didn't even have a chance. For selling sweeps tickets, Alex Couvrette, 26, Welland, was fined $100 or one month. He was arrested March 6 with four books and the counterfoils of 30 he had sold. The counterfoils had to go to Ireland before the purchasers had a chance.

Gas Flares Burn Three Workers Near Edmonton

Edmonton, March 24 — (CP)— About 50 sweat-smeared oil workers today prepared to snuff out an oil well blaze with a nitroglycerine blast after working all night by the eerie light of the rampaging Pacific Petroleums' Excelsior No. 3 Driller, 12 miles north of here.

As the well spewed flaming natural gas 200 feet into the air, the fire fighters Thursday erected large tripods on either side of the well and struck a cable between them. The one-quart charge of nitro-glycerine will be slid along the cable until it is directly over the well head. Then the charge will be exploded.

It is hoped the blast will snuff out the blaze by choking off the oxygen supply. A quart of nitroglycerine is equal to a full case of dynamite.

The well became a gigantic blow torch about noon Thursday as a production test was being prepared. A "mysterious explosion" gave way in the Viking sand about 2,730 feet below the earth's surface. A tiny spark ignited escaping gas.

Heard Screeching Roar

The drilling crew of the seven men at the well head heard a screeching roar, saw water leap into the air and took to their heels.

Four of them couldn't run away fast enough and suffered severe burns.

In satisfactory condition in an Edmonton hospital are Allan Holt, 25, Egremont, Alta.; John Allen, 24, Bon Accord, Alta.; Norman Dease, 23, Leduc, Alta.; and Carl Schuler, Athens, Alta. All are expected to make a rapid recovery.

All day and all night the wild well, which had ignited gas but no oil, burned furiously with a roar that could be heard more than five miles away.

Before the fire is brought under control it will have burned up about 6,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas, is estimated daily potential gas reserves in the Viking sand zone. There still is a possibility the well will be completed as a gas producer after the fire is put out.

Next oil drilling crew was reported to have set off a gun-perforating charge in the well, preparing for a production test, when it roared into flame.

Distress Signals Being Probed By Search Planes

Edmonton, March 24 (CP) — An RCAF search plane was scheduled to take off at dawn today from Fort St. John B.C., to investigate a distress signal report to be heard there and at Dawson 20 miles to the south near the Peace River.

The distress signal spotted from the air Thursday by the crew of a United States Air Force plane, was considered a possible clue to the whereabouts of the American C-54 transport plane which vanished with 44 persons aboard last Jan. 26 on a flight from Anchorage Alaska, to Great Falls, Mont.

No other planes are missing in the north, the RCAF said.

Found tramped out in the snow and outlined by tree branches were the "I F". This is the air force code for "serious injuries, doctors required, food and water needed." Four engines and the airway route used by planes flying to and from the Arctic.

Fort St. John, in the northeast corner of British Columbia and near the jumping off points of the Alaska Highway which passes through it, is about 350 air miles northwest of Edmonton.

The search for the big four-motored transport was the greatest in Canadian aviation history. It lasted almost three weeks, employing scores of USAF and RCAF aircraft.

The CNR carried standard survival equipment and emergency rations for its crew of eight, 34 US military passengers and a 22-year-old expectant mother, Mrs Joyce Epps, and her two-year-old son.

Then almost endless succession of leads—distress radio signals, smoke, reports of explosions and low flying planes—were tracked down to no avail.

FLYING SAUCERS

The interest which observers of the "flying saucers" are creating appears to be spreading as one follows another in description of the strange objects they report having seen. The stories crop up here, there and everywhere and the latest batch of visions tell of streaks of fire flowing away from the shooting "saucers." Predictions are made that there is to be built in Europe a great saucer to sweep in all the little saucers.

Other planets than earth have been drawn into the arguments over the flying saucers.

Christian Science Monitor commenting on the "sights" refers to a report of a commander "who says he has seen a small saucer outflying a rocket, another little fellow loafing along at 60 miles a minute or a big 105-footer that streaked along at five miles a minute."

The editor then asks:

"It would be hard to doubt that Commander McLaughlin saw just what he says he saw. His theories, we will have to weigh, because one of the saucers seen by one — swerved upward with extraordinary suddenness and disappeared, he advances the possibility that it, and the others, came from "another planet" and were piloted by "intelligent, animate beings."

"He may have something there, at that. Perhaps the crew caught a glimpse of the A-bomb, the potato surplus, or the John L. Lewis scowl and just took off for Mars. What intelligent, animate beings wouldn't?"

NINE LIVES

Cats are creatures which depend a great deal upon themselves for their protection but they oftentimes have a hard life, they have to safeguard themselves by flight up a tree or pole to escape a neighborhood dog that ought to know better instead of pursuing her at topmost speed. Then she has to bide her time before she dares to come down. If she is walking along a street for any distance she keeps her ear atuned to all the sounds that she may hear which are inaudible to man, for she stops again and again and seems to take in all the points of the compass before she proceeds.

Now cats being small creatures have largely to fight for themselves and that they are fairly successful. Sometimes they are turned out to forage for themselves. It is a way they little deserve to be treated.

They are what nature made them, shrewd, and they seem to know that they are in what is to them at times a hostile world. Yet the cat has been the pet of man since before the dawn of history. Egyptians for some reason held cats sacred as any reader old enough will remember from a Henty story "The Cat of Bubastes." Some persons today are supposed to think the cat rather witchlike but that is perhaps because puss was unfairly pictured in other days as the companion of witches and wizards. The witches and wizards gone the cat remains and with the old tradition seems to stick to this creature although she has been associated with man since the early dawnings of civilization. The cat, possibly then will, came to be tamed by being coaxed into the habitation of man by the promise of bits of meat from the perhaps many kinds of meat of animal flesh. Anyway the cat became the associate of man and remains so and possibly will remain as long as this terrestrial ball whirls on.

There is an old saying that a cat has nine lives. A story tells of a young puss endowed with all kittenish innocence and love of comfort so true of the cat family, which curled herself up in the dual back wheel of a truck. Now the truck started on its journey of eighteen miles and for that distance the pussy cat was whirled about relentlessly within the wheel which being material could not understand a cat's feelings. The driver naturally did not know there was a passenger making the trip with him. But all went well for the cat to journey's end. There the little cat stepped out proudly like all cats and disappeared.

But the big story of the cat is about one locked up for 36 hours in a brick kiln. Workers got a shock when a cat stepped out of the drying kiln which had been firing bricks for a day and a half. Puss did look a little the worse for wear but the whole cat was there except a bit of charred nose that was gone, the skull withered a bit by the intense heat, and paw pads somewhat damaged. Afterwards a synthetic or calico cat was made and submitted to tests of the same heat in the kiln as the cat was thought to have been subject to and the verdict was that the cat tests proved that the cat had really been through that intense heat of the kiln.

Owners of cats must feel their pride mount as they hear such proven stories of their indestructible vitality.

WEATHER THOUGHT

Too late to care how March came in.
Since weather is contrary
My hope is April won't begin
With storms of January.

Since February's days were mild,
As one and all remember,
I pray May's gardens won't be piled
With snows due last December.

The world all lovers smile upon,
The wedding vows and ring time,
But none likes winter lingering on
The lovely lap of springtime.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

GIVE AND YE SHALL KEYHAVE

Several weeks after our house was burgled, the phone in my office rang.

"This is Johnny," said a voice. "Johnny who?"

"Just Johnny".

"Is this a gag?"

"I used to work at the Casino de Paree."

During '33-'34, I staged the girl shows at this Broadway theatre restaurant.

"What can I do for you?" I asked.

"Nothing," said the voice, "but you once did me a favor and may be I can do something for you. I think I know where your jewelry is."

"Who's got it?"

"A certain bookie who hangs out in the Queens. His name is - - - - - - - - - (For reasons known to the authorities, this name is deleted.)

"Where can I get in touch with him?"

"You might inquire around."

"Thanks," I said. "Incidentally, what favor did I do for you?"

"Skip it," said the voice, and the phone went click.

For a good ten minutes I sat there twiddling my memory and trying to recall whom I had helped back in the Casino de Paree days. Then it came to me.

Anniversary of the Casino opened, I struck up a kidding acquaintance with a Dallas beer baron who did odd jobs around the kitchen—an endearing little roughneck who had come across a diamond ring in the garbage.

"Finders keepers," I remember, he came up and said. "Congratulate me, it's my anniversary."

"Anniversary of what?"

"I got out of reform school a year ago."

One evening I noticed that the kid's face was a shade whiter than usual.

"My old lady's got cancer", he told me, "and the doc says she ought to have radium treatments."

"What would they cost?" I asked.

"The clinic wants a sawbuck a throw."

Well, I was making a lot more than I needed for living expenses, and so I handed him a hundred in person with a diseased heart may be canceled if the applicant's occupation is in a pressure job or has a history of fainting spells.

Most persons with normal hearts may notice short-winded-ness upon exertion at altitudes from five to eight thousand feet, the degree of distress varying, of course, with general physical condition and muscle tone of the individual.

All of this has no bearing upon modern, commercial flying. This is the day of the "pressurized" cabin, meaning that regardless of how high the plane may fly, the pressure of atmosphere within the cabin is maintained at a degree equal to that of an altitude of from five to eight thousand feet.

No one, who has not had the experience, can appreciate the distinct increase in the feeling of well-being that occurs at an altitude of from five to eight thousand feet, after taking off from ground level, where the heat and humidity is high. Persons who have diseased hearts, who suffer increased distress because of heat and humidity at ground level also feel better immediately in the cooler and drier atmosphere of the heights.

There can be no doubt that heat and high humidity at low altitude increases the work of the heart, as it must work harder in order to dissipate or radiate the unnecessary heat. When the body is cooled and the temperature reduced, breathing becomes easier and the load on the heart is lightened.

A passenger in a modern plane is subjected to no effort whatever. He doesn't even have to walk to and walk to the diner. His food is placed right in his lap. He doesn't even have to fan himself. The passenger is not conscious of speed. There is no sensation of movement other than occasional rocking of the plane in rough weather. True, a novice passenger may experience considerable nervousness at his first takeoff or two, and this may impose an added strain on a fluttering heart. But apprehension to travel is not limited to flying.

Flying is an open book—the plane is another matter. The pilot and passengers, if any, are subjected directly to the natural state of the atmosphere. If flying at an altitude of ten thousand feet or more is anticipated, equipment for the inhalation of oxygen must be provided. This, of course, has no bearing on commercial flying. During ascent and descent, some persons have a little difficulty in the process of air-pressure adjustment in their ears. This is particularly true if the eustachian tube which connects the middle ear with the interior of the nose, is inflamed or obstructed. Usually

AIR TRAVEL FOR WELL OR SICK

High altitude imposes an added burden upon the heart, and a diseased heart may be taxed beyond its ability in the rare atmosphere of the heights. Some difficulty in adjusting to the rarefied atmosphere is usually noticed at the altitude of about ten thousand feet, while the subject is at rest. A person with a diseased heart may be conscious of difficulty at a somewhat lower altitude.

Most persons with normal hearts may notice short-winded-ness upon exertion at altitudes from five to eight thousand feet, the degree of distress varying, of course, with general physical condition and muscle tone of the individual.

All of this has no bearing upon modern, commercial flying. This is the day of the "pressurized" cabin, meaning that regardless of how high the plane may fly, the pressure of atmosphere within the cabin is maintained at a degree equal to that of an altitude of from five to eight thousand feet.

No one, who has not had the experience, can appreciate the distinct increase in the feeling of well-being that occurs at an altitude of from five to eight thousand feet, after taking off from ground level, where the heat and humidity is high. Persons who have diseased hearts, who suffer increased distress because of heat and humidity at ground level also feel better immediately in the cooler and drier atmosphere of the heights.

There can be no doubt that heat and high humidity at low altitude increases the work of the heart, as it must work harder in order to dissipate or radiate the unnecessary heat. When the body is cooled and the temperature reduced, breathing becomes easier and the load on the heart is lightened.

A passenger in a modern plane is subjected to no effort whatever. He doesn't even have to walk to and walk to the diner. His food is placed right in his lap. He doesn't even have to fan himself. The passenger is not conscious of speed. There is no sensation of movement other than occasional rocking of the plane in rough weather. True, a novice passenger may experience considerable nervousness at his first takeoff or two, and this may impose an added strain on a fluttering heart. But apprehension to travel is not limited to flying.

Flying is an open book—the plane is another matter. The pilot and passengers, if any, are subjected directly to the natural state of the atmosphere. If flying at an altitude of ten thousand feet or more is anticipated, equipment for the inhalation of oxygen must be provided. This, of course, has no bearing on commercial flying.

During ascent and descent, some persons have a little difficulty in the process of air-pressure adjustment in their ears. This is particularly true if the eustachian tube which connects the middle ear with the interior of the nose, is inflamed or obstructed. Usually this is quickly relieved by swallowing several times. The notion that infection may be forced into the ear from the nose during this period of adjustment, may have some substance in fact as applied to open-air flying. It is a matter of little concern in commercial flying.

Toothache and other uncomfortable difficulties have been reported following high, open-air flying. This does not apply to commercial flying. As far as the physical factors are concerned, there is no difference whatever in flying at an altitude of five thousand feet, or higher. If the cabin pressure is maintained at a level comparable to that of five thousand feet altitude or sitting in a train while negotiating a five thousand foot pass in the mountains.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

He Likes Rice

Am just married and my husband likes rice. My mother tells me wash rice and my neighbor boils rice, my mother-in-law says she is a clean cook and always washes the rice. Now I would like to see the washing rice removes the vitamins. Have you made an article about this? . (M.D.)

Answer — Now you take me— I want my rice washed. But I don't write an article. I based on the subject. The people who did you washing rice say the vitamins are full of malarkey. I'm glad your husband likes rice too.

Weight Lifter

My son aged 18 is a weight lifter. Is there any danger for him to injure himself? (Mrs. V.W.)

Answer — Well, he's wasting a awful lot of time. Still, something less strenuous would be better. Sure he can injure himself.

Hardening of the Arteries

What are the symptoms of hardening of the arteries, what age does it usually start and best can you undergo to tell for sure?

(Mrs. A.L.P.)

Answer — That's a large order. Forget the symptoms. Just visit the doctor how you feel. Hardening of the arteries can start at any time in the adult. The doctor will use various tests in his examination. He will not tell you but could only confuse you by discussing them here.

Belgium Now Being Ruled by Council of State

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Bitter is the battle being waged in Belgium over whether King Leopold shall be recalled from exile in Switzerland and permitted to resume his throne.

The country still is without a cabinet. The coalition government of Socialists, Christians and Liberals under Premier Gaston Eyskens has become powerless because of its inability to cope with the crisis. Since then efforts to form a new government have failed.

The situation is so critical that the council of distinguished elder statesman, the 81-year-old Count Henry Carton De Wiart, has been called back from retirement to preside over a council of state. This is empowered to govern, its political personalities who will attempt to solve the problem.

The gravity of the situation is seen in the fact that this is the first time a council of state has met since the Germans invaded Belgium in 1914. Count Carton De Wiart also presided over that council.

Monarchies Fare Badly

One wonders whether the members of the council realize the dangers which surround the monarchial form of government in these parlous political days. It isn't a good time for any monarch to be away from his throne. One hastens to add that the form of government hasn't been at stake in Belgium. The question is whether Leopold should resume his throne, and the unhappy country is split wide open on this controversy.

The slender majority which the King received in the recent national plebiscite was too small to settle the issue. It may be necessary to hold a new general election before the problem is solved.

Cannot Resume Throne

The way things now stand, Leopold cannot resume his throne. Prince Baudouin, the heir apparent. He can abdicate in favor of his young son — 19-year-old Prince Baudouin. But the latter Belgians are calling for this. Another possibility also has been suggested, and this is that Leopold be called back to the throne with the understanding that he will abdicate in favor of the Crown Prince in due course.

These explosive points will come under the surgery of the council of state. It is interesting to note that Count Carton de Wiart himself is an ardent Royalist and personally favors Leopold's unconditional return to the throne.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHAT DO YOU OWN?

How much of what you possess is your possession? I recently sat in a famous auction room and listened to the sale of precious objects of art, many of which had been the collections of men of wealth and taste. But at the end of that sale new owners appeared.

During the reign of the "good Emperor," Marcus Aurellius, there was a serious famine in Italy. Nation became sorely pressed, and he asked permission of the Senate to sell imperial treasures in order to buy arms and provisions. Reflecting, he said: "Nothing we have is our own; even the house we live in belongs to you."

We all accumulate treasures that seem dear to us, for many a reason, but they are only temporary. They are but loaned to us for our pleasure, comfort and enrichment. The time will come when they will belong to others. My only hope, in parting with my possessions, is sometimes, is that a measure of the love they have stirred within me, may be received by those who later will own them. An etching is before me, a gift, that grace other art lovers once owned, so I believe that any beautiful takes on a sort of patina, like old metal, and I like to think of that patina as love.

People who boast of ownership always amuse me. They never know how close to losing that ownership they are. There is only ownership, in which we can take endless pride, in that which accrues from useful things performed, and from the satisfactions experienced by which we have enriched the lives of others. To possess the love and respect of others is a gain that mere money could never buy. That is a possession we can take to our graves with us!

I bought the home in which I live, but I know I am only a temporary tenant. Some day it will go to someone else. I have given away rare books and art that have cost me years of sacrifice and work, to institutions where I know that generation after generation others will gain the enjoyment I have had in them. I have done this not for glory, but for the inward satisfaction of knowing that many another will gain enrichment of mind and heart because of the gifts. It is great to know that you still own the things you give away!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IF HE WILL LEARN

Joseph Addison, the great English essayist, once wrote, "If you wish success in life, make perseverance your bosom friend, experience your wise counselor." As Addison suggests, perseverance and experience are two of the qualities which so regularly distinguish men and women who are truly successful.

These qualities almost invariably make the difference between ultimate triumph and ultimate defeat. For the difference is more than luck, or opportunity. Everyone falls sometimes; everyone has defeats and disappointments.

To the man without perseverance, a defeat of a failure is the finish. He is through. But in that persevering soul, it is a challenge; for not only must he try again, but he must try harder. And the man whose efforts are not stopped but instead redoubled by a set-back cannot be halted in the long run.

To the man who does not profit from experience, however, a failure is only a failure, leaving bitterness or perhaps tragedy, but nothing more. It is all loss, no gain. Yet experience is the greatest teacher there is, and the man who is taught by defeat has turned his loss into profit. This is what Charles Dickens meant when he said, more than a century after Addison, "Every failure teaches a man something, if he will learn."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The tricks of criminals are passed from city to city by the grapevine. One trick that is causing a lot of trouble recently is the "accident" staged at a busy intersection where there are non-English speaking drivers on duty. And when a car with a lone woman or an elderly man pulls up to the intersection, the driver waits until the yellow light turns on. Then, stepping quickly forward, he opens the door and instructs the victim, menacingly, to drive on.

Psychology is on the crook's side. Nearly everybody is in a panicky state of mind by the time the green light—and all the rest of traffic—commands go. The flustered victim usually goes. And there on, it is a straight job of bullying, as the crook induces the victim to drive to some quiet street where he can take possession of the car and order the victim out.

Here is the police grapevine for combating this trick. When a stranger opens your door, don't step in, simply reach down, turn off the ignition, and chuck your car keys out the door.

Or else step smartly out the door on your side and start yelling, regardless of the green light and the traffic behind you.

Few crooks will risk a tussle in the confined space of a motor car and with help at hand. I had one of these gentry swing smiling into my car the other day. When she reached for the keys, he seized her wrist, and growled at her to drive on. Obediently, she seized the gear shift and went into reverse. And at full pedal, backed into the car behind her. The crook escaped in the confusion, but not until several people got a good description of him.

The trick may, of course, be to keep your far door locked, if you are the timid type.

The Church Goes on Ahead

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the most significant facts brought out during the war was that the Christian church had gone up ahead.

Literally hundreds of times American aviators, shot down in the Pacific and drifting to some tiny island in search of safety, found themselves welcomed into villages that were well kept, happy and peaceful, in striking contrast to the villages with which they were surrounded. A little investigation always revealed the fact that some missionary had made the difference.

Long before the merchants or traders arrived the missionary put in his appearance with his Bible, his hymns, and his sympathetic ministry. And transformations always followed.

Responsible For Our Environment

A little congregation of Christians had come together in the imperial capital of Rome. No one knows who the preacher may have been under whom they were converted, nor who the genius may have been who instructed them in the faith. But by the middle of the first century they had become famous throughout the world for their integrity and the purity of their faith.

It was of the utmost importance that a strong Christian church should stand in the world's capital as evidence of what the Christian movement really was. The Roman government was highly suspicious of any enterprise that seemed to have Empire-wide ambitions, and the whole of Christianity had to rest its case with those Roman Christians. If they stood the test, then every church in the world was a little safer.

All that any community will ever know about Christianity will be that which it learns from the church in your city fall then the Church itself has failed.

Going Ahead is Dangerous Business

It is always dangerous to go on ahead of the crowd. It is so easy to become the target of all those who profit by conditions as they are.

The Sunday School Lesson for March 26, "The Church Is Born", Romans 1:1, 7-15; 10:22-29, 16; Acts 27-28; Philippians 1:12-30; 4:22.

Those who first argued for prison reform had to endure the persecution that falls on those who go ahead of the crowd. So also those who first argued the case against human slavery. Brave souls in England who arose from penitential altars to raise their voices against child labor found themselves labelled and libelled. Doing Something Practical

A preacher's son, about 18 years of age, was discussing with his father the subject of his life's work. "I know I do not want to preach," the youngster said, "I have listened to you cry out against the evils of this town so long that I can remember, and I can't see that you have accomplished anything. I want to do something practical."

The wise and busy young fellows like you want to do something practical," the clergyman replied, looking out of the window as he spoke.

"Why," said the boy, "I don't see how anyone could listen to you and not want to do something."

"Then I guess my ministry has been rather practical, for I have succeeded in getting a few men to do something about the evils I have cried out against." And the preacher went on looking out the window while his boy thought the matter over.

The Church in Rome

The Church in Rome faced a responsibility that the Church in Thessalonica knew little about. Of course the Thessalonian Church also had a responsibility . . .

If there is an area about any church out of which juvenile delinquents come, then the church in that area has a primary responsibility. A case of lawlessness is an indictment against the church as much as if the neighborhood were atheistic.

Minority churches — churches which work among minorities — are under a solemn charge that does not rest upon those which represent the majority, but churches face a responsibility from which the minority churches are free.

There is not a church in your community that does not labor under a special obligation to go on ahead into some area of need. (Copyright 1950 by the International Council of Religious Education on behalf of 40 Protestant denominations.)

FLOODS MAY PUT TOWN UNDER WATER

Sydney, Australia, March 23— (AP) — Dangerous floods have caused the evacuation of 2,000 persons from homes in the state of New South Wales, southeast Australia.

In Wagga, 322 miles southwest of Sydney, police said continued rise of the swollen Murrumbidgee River might put the whole town of 15,000 people under water by tonight.

Trenton (Special) — "The new styles for 1950 will stress comfort and glamor", said Kate Aitken, guest commentator at the RCAF Women's Auxiliary Fashion Show held in the Sports Arena of the Trenton Air Station Wednesday night.

Floral arrangements, soft organ music and a beautiful display of fashion modelling, converted the Sports Arena into the equivalent of a Paris fashion salon. Spotlights covered the points of interest on the stage and models wearing the exclusive creations of such famous designers as, Hagler, Nat Gordon, Marcel Lassa, Poslun, Berger, Hildebrande and Cole, displayed the coming fashions for 1950 before an audience of approximately 1,500 people.

Bathing suits, sports wear, afternoon and street dresses, evening gowns, suits and coats, shoes, hats, jewellery and furs, from every leading store were shown by the local merchants, made up the display.

Flowers in Demand

Kate Aitken said that almost every spring design included an artificial flower, worn either on the neckline or on the shoulder. Dressed in a white nylon net gown with matching jacket worn over a white satin underslip, Kate Aitken was the picture of charm as she described each creation and commented on the various styles for the coming year.

Stealing the show completely, the tiny fashion models on hand to model their bathing suits, sleepers, and play clothes.

Flying Officer Guerin was at the organ, playing music to suit each style as it was presented. The organ was loaned by Northern Electric in Belleville.

One door prize, the pair of silver candelabra, donated by Mayor Couch, was won by Mrs. A. Ray, 21 Francis St., in Trenton. The Elizabeth Arden overnight bag donated by Shurie's Drug Store was won by Mrs. W. Berry, 45 Kerr Crescent, and the electric kettle presented by Mr. Gerald Weaver, was won by Mrs. Tom Peister, 22 S. Charles St., Trenton. Mr. Ed. Simmons donated a Helena Rubinstein beauty kit and also perfume and cologne by Sabrouet. The beauty kit was won by Phylis Huffman, 291 Dufferin Ave., and Mrs. H. Anderson, 74 Wilkins St., Trenton, held the lucky ticket for the perfume.

Cheque Presented

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of a cheque for $1,940 to the chairman of the hospital board, Mr. Wm. Ireland. Mrs. F. J. Blair of the Mt. View Women's Auxiliary made the presentation. The money will be used to equip the nursery for the new hospital.

Mr. Deryk Upton presented a comic version of Mr. Canada of 1950. He was attired in mustard-colored slacks, a brown sports jacket, felt shoes with crepe soles and multi-colored accessories.

A very beautiful wedding scene was presented to finish the program for the night. The groom's mother was dressed in a French blue dress by Louis Berger with a silver straw hat. The mother of the bride wore a dainty rose dress with matching hat. The first pair of bridesmaids wore nylon net with lace trim in pink and mauve, the second pair were dressed in nylon net with lace trim in blue and pink. Kate the bride wore a white hooped bridal gown of Alencon lace. Flowers for the wedding scene and for the entire show were donated by the Claymar florists in Trenton.

Mrs. Dunlop president of the RCAF Women's Auxiliary thanked Kate Aitken for appearing on the show and also thanked the merchants of both Trenton and Belleville who donated freely to make the show possible.

STRUCK BY CAR

Trenton — Gordon Woodcock, ten years old, of 78 Ontario St., in Trenton, received severe shock and broken arm when he was struck by a local taxi driven by Harold Lemoine, 18 Byron St., Thursday night. The accident occurred on Dundas St. East on the top of Gilmore Hill. Dr. A. E. McQuade attended the young boy and ordered him removed to Belleville General Hospital.

PAPER DRIVE SATURDAY

The Boy Scouts of Trenton will hold a paper drive Saturday, March 25th. The drive will begin at 9.00 o'clock in the morning and the proceeds of the collection will be in further Boy Scouts activities in Trenton.

Attractive New Showroom, Offices Displayed by Chas. L. Hyde and Son

Following extensive alterations, lasting over a period of eight weeks, the long established plumbing and heating contracting firm of Charles L. Hyde and Son, Ltd., has opened a modernistic showroom at 292 Front St.

The building is the same but a complete transformation has been achieved; modern heating equipment and plumbing fixtures that would grace the best appointed home, are attractively displayed and new and old customers are cordially invited to visit the new showroom and inspect the varied equipment and fixtures.

Wood Panelling

Considerable planning has gone into the design of the new showroom which includes space for display, managerial office space and storage. The showroom is finished in eye pleasing natural fir plywood. Space has been saved by constructing mezzanine floor which is used as storage.

At the rear of the store are the offices, one for the foreman, Mr. Ross J. Bateman, with the firm for more than 20 years; and a second office, finished in fir etchwood, for the management.

Numerous cases and various items of heating equipment are attractively displayed. To the right is a group display of kitchen sinks built into a modern kitchen cabinet, each fitted with swing spout chrome sink taps. Further to the rear is a modern bathroom completely installed with hot and cold water lines and connected to waste pipes. The bath is complete with recess tub and shower. The walls and floor are tiled.

In Business 33 Years

President of the firm, Charles L. Hyde, has been associated with the business for over 33 years, Taking a keen interest in civic matters Mr. Hyde has been in public office—board of education and council—for 20 of the past 22 years. His son, Jerry Hyde, has been with the firm for four years. Like his father Jerry is active in community work and is serving on many board and executives of civic organizations. He was recently elected to his second term as president of the Y's Men's Club.

All members of the firm promise a cordial welcome to Belleville and district citizens who visit the new showroom during opening week which will last until April 1st. Each visitor to the store is entitled to a free draw on three valuable items of merchandise which are to be given away free to the lucky winners.

ACCIDENTS COSTLY

Let's try better breakfasts and find out

MOTHERS—read this plain message. Important facts are behind it. Something for the good of your family. How you can benefit.

Breakfast — Specially Important to You

Nutritionists say that skimped breakfasts can cause under-nourishment. Often children don't take the right variety of food at breakfast to carry them through the morning properly. Junior may be drowsy. His grade may be low at school. Jane may be nervous and inattentive.

Grape-Nuts — Your Special Breakfast Cereal

Better nourished, vital, energetic — it would be grand having your family feel and act better all day. One good way: make breakfast more nutritious, more enjoyable. Include appetizing Grape-Nuts for balanced nourishment. In only two tablespoons of this highly concentrated cereal there are fine food values — useful amounts of carbohydrates, minerals and proteins. Delicious with milk or cream. Matchless in flavor. Healthful — economical — order from your grocer.

Post's Grape-Nuts

Writes a Kitchener, Ontario mother — "I am much more satisfied after I am sure my Grape-Nuts as they seem such a solid breakfast food. I like the nutlike flavor. The children, too, like their instincts."

WEDDINGS

CURTISS—CLARKE

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday, March 20, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Cliff Clarke, 288 Ann Street, Belleville, when their daughter, Shirley Ellen, became the bride of Norman William Curtiss, of Curtis Barracks, Calgary, Alberta, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Curtiss, Tweed, Ont. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Donald C. Amos, pastor of the Bridge Street United Church, Belleville.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was becomingly gowned in a navy blue suit of English gabardine with navy accessories, and corsage of red roses. She wore a double strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Joan Belnap, of Rossmore, was the bride's only attendant, wearing an airforce blue suit of gabardine with navy accessories, and corsage of pale pink roses.

Mr. Charles Curtiss, of Tweed, and brother of the bridegroom, attended the groom.

At the reception held at the home of the bride's parents which was tastefully decorated with daffodils, tulips, snapdragons and spireas, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a gown of dusty rose figured crepe, corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who chose a navy and grey crepe, with corsage of pale pink carnations.

The bridegroom is on a short leave from Calgary, following his participation in the enterprise, "Sweetbrier", where he served as paratrooper.

Rena Kilpatrick Entertains at Birthday Party

Shannonville—Rena Kilpatrick entertained several of her young friends on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin MacKenzie, it being the occasion of Rena's ninth birthday.

An enjoyable evening was spent playing games, and enjoying a ping song. Gail Juby entertained the gathering with some excellent tap dancing.

At the conclusion of the evening Mrs. MacKenzie served delicious refreshments. A birthday cake, attractively decorated, graced the tea table.

Present at the party were: Betty Marlon, Gail Juby, Helen Houston, Shirley Groves, Linda Marlon, Ruth Angevine, Donna Bailey and Barbara Coldwell.

A taste of the revival fires that are breaking out in the United States and parts of Canada was felt in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Thursday night when the Rev. John Woodhouse of Batavia, N.Y., addressed a rally sponsored by the Christian Youth Fellowship.

Scores flocked to the altar in response to the evangelist's impassioned appeal. Repentant sinners accepted Christ as their Saviour and made confession openly of the fact. Christians knelt at the altar in prayer and rededicated their lives to God. It was a moving scene as tears and murmurs of supplication and revelled in the crowded auditorium.

"It is shocking to me," said Mr. Woodhouse during his address, "to realize that most of the human race are going to hell. I cannot answer the question why there are 24 million souls lost, but to stay in their lost condition. Many do not really intend to go to hell; they would like to be saved. But neglect seems to be the answer why so many men in Belleville and elsewhere are lost.

Put Off Salvation

"People know they should accept Christ, but they put it off. They want to taste the world's pleasures a bit longer. They intend to seek salvation some other time. But neglect deadens the conscience; procrastination hardens the heart and eventually the Gospel fails to make any impression at all."

The speaker cited several cases of young men and women who had felt convicted of sin but instead of accepting Christ had put it off for 'another time'. They never had another chance to accept salvation because accident and sudden illness had snuffed out their lives.

Mr. Woodhouse said he believed that Christ's return was near at hand. "The vial of God's wrath is in a tilting position," he stated. "His patience with a wicked and sin-cursed world is coming to an end. When Christ comes to claim His own, then the wrath of a righteous God will be poured forth upon those who rejected His Son.

"How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation In these last days God is speaking to us through His Son. In times past God spoke by the prophets, but Jesus is greater than they. He died on the cross to redeem us."

The speaker stated that one of the signs of the times in which we live is the decadence of children to their parents. "We need more of the old rod of correction these days," he said. "If children are not broken when they are young they will likely become delinquents. I have seen drunkards and dope fiends in jails, who were brought up in Christian homes. But their parents neglected to lead them to God. I believe there will be a lot of sinners in hell because we neglected to speak to them about Christ."

Names Worst Curse

Mr. Woodhouse stated that two of the worst curses in the world today are cigarettes and liquor. "Women today are outdoing men in sinful habits," he declared. "I like being chivalrous to a lady. It makes me feel good. But when I am in a bus and see a woman smoking like a man, dressed like a man, swearing like a man, living like a man, I sit back in my seat and pray to myself: if you can do all these things like a man, you can stand like a man.' People may think they are having a good time, but a life of sin can't turn out happy." He rapped the Hollywood stars and multitudes of modern women that liked to imitate their wicked ways.

Mr. Woodhouse, who is a versatile musician, sang two hymns, "The Meeting in the Air" and "My Heavenly Father Watches Over Me", playing his own accompaniment on the piano. He also played "The Holy City" as a piano solo. The C.Y.F. chorus sang "Jesus My Saviour" and "The Mystery of Grace", with Miss Dorothy Mitchell at the piano, and Mrs. Olive Kirkpatrick directing. Mr. Robert Brown, president of the youth group, was in charge of the service. Rev. J. S. A. Speerman introduced the guest speaker.

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 24 — (AP) — Olivia De Havilland, the lovely-eyed Victorian in "The Heiress" and Broderick Crawford, ruthless politico of "All the King's Men," won Hollywood's highest honor Thursday night — the Academy Award.

"All the King's Men" was named the best picture of 1949.

Radio actress Mercedes McCambridge was selected the best supporting actress for her work in "All the King's Men," her first movie. Miss McCambridge recently was married to Fletcher Markle, former CBC producer and writer in Toronto, now working for a Hollywood studio.

Dean Jagger, who played an army officer in "Twelve O'Clock High," snagged an Oscar as the best supporting actor.

Crawford, who once was consigned to the shelf because of class B pictures, leaped from his seat when he heard Queen Wynyard's name as the winner. He could say little more than, 'Thank God'

Miss De Havilland accepted the award from James Stewart with dignity becoming the fifth star in motion picture academy history to win the grand prize twice. Other double winners are Bette Davis, Spencer Tracy, Frederic March and Luise Rainer.

Other major awards: direction — John L. Mankiewicz for "A Letter to Three Wives"; screen play — Mankiewicz for the same film; story and screen play — Robert Pirosh for "Battleground"; best motion picture story — Douglas Morrow for "The Stratton Story;" original song — Frank Loesser for "Baby, It's Cold Outside."

Cecil B. De Mille was cited for his 37 years of creating film epics. Despite the fact that he has long been Hollywood's biggest money maker, De Mille's garish films never before have been honored by the Academy.'

Other special Oscars went to Italy's "Bicycle Thief" as the best foreign language film and to Bobby Driscoll as the best juvenile performer.

The ceremony marked a renewal of the Academy's old-time glamor. A dozen searchlights pierced the sky over the Pantages Theatre for Hollywood's biggest publicity stunt. A big crowd watched from behind the film favorites and the actresses seemed to vie for lowest-cut-gown honors.

Golden daffodils, colorful tulips and potted plants formed a picturesque background Wednesday afternoon at Bellaview Street United Church for a delightful tea and sale of home cooking, under the auspices of the Women's Association.

After being welcomed by the president, Mrs. A. C. Campbell, Mrs. C. A. Perkins and Mrs. M. Hicks, the convener, the guests were received into the friendly surroundings of the church parlor, made inviting with its profusion of flowers and soft lighting, by Mrs. Bateman, Mrs. Jas. Barnes, Mrs. L. Hopkins, Mrs. M. H. Weese, Mrs. T. Ketcheson, Mrs. W. Jones, Mrs. C. Ketcheson and Mrs S. Hagerman, where conversation, barbara-cued by quiet music played by Mrs. D. L. Swan at the organ was much enjoyed.

Inviting to the tea room were Mrs. A. Hitchon and Mrs. J. Robertson, the tea table which was attractively appointed with an ecru lace cloth, centered with a silver bowl of spring flowers, and flanked by silver candelabra with tall pastel tinted candles, presented a pleasing picture. Presiding at the silver services were Mrs. H. Andrews, Mrs. B. McMurray, Mrs. B. Moorman and Mrs. William Oliphant.

Many Servers

Serving at the small tables with their pretty white cloths, and floral centres, were Mesdames Mrs. J. Grills, Mrs. E. Fox, Mrs. L. Vandusen, Mrs. F. Harrison, Mrs. C. Holmes, Mrs. T. A. Tucker, Mrs. E. Ricketts, Mrs. O. Ostinglyles, Mrs. F. Taylor, Mrs. H. Quinsey and Mrs. W. Johns.

Those who presided were, Mrs. P. Boulton, Mrs. G. Moynes, Mrs. R. Jose, Mrs. F. Rayfield, Mrs. A. McMillan, Mrs. D. Mathews and Mrs. H. Ferguson, while Mrs. F. Wilson and Mrs. D. Fraser had charge of the tea room.

Those responsible for the attractive plates and delicious cups of tea were, Mrs. G. Dobbs, Mrs. R. Scott, Mrs. J. Cowen, Mrs. A. Bartlett, Mrs. G. Wagg, Mrs. F. Panter, Mrs. A. Lennox and Mrs. L. Adams.

Products Sell Quickly

The home cooking table with its white cloth, potted violets, and dainties held everyone's and a tasty confection which sold quickly.

This was in charge of Mrs. A. Downey, assisted by Mrs. F. Simpson, Mrs. A. Burrows, Mrs. H. Murphy, Mrs. D. White, Mrs. L. Reid and Mrs. P. White.

The candy table with its rose plant and pink and green accessories held many pretty baskets of various kinds of candy, was capably convened by Mrs. J. O'Neill, who was assisted by Mrs. C. Lowther, Mrs. H. Townsend, Mrs. W. Pearce and Mrs. C. Deline.

The treasurers for the afternoon were, Mrs. W. Symons and Mrs. W. McCoy.

Much appreciation is extended to Mrs. G. Dodds and Mrs. W. Oliphant who so beautifully decorated the rooms, and to all these who worked so faithfully to make the tea such a success.

Salads Perk Up Appetites

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 24. (CP)— Plenty of salads are needed to perk up the spirits this rainy mid-season weather, and fruit salads are ideal for the light luncheon dish.

Apple Cup Salad

Core the apples and scoop out the pulp to make apple cups. Fill a bowl with cold water and as each apple cup is made put the cup in the water. This prevents the flesh turning brown.

Dice enough celery to equal one-half of the apple pulp. Mix celery and apple pulp with one cup cottage or cream cheese. Blend with salad dressing.

Dry apple cups and fill with mixture. Serve on crisp bends of lettuce.

Vegetable Salad

Ingredients: 1 1-2 cups shredded cabbage; one cup celery; one-quarter cup chopped pimento; three-quarters cup small peas; three-quarters cup green beans; two tablespoons gelatine; one-half cup cold water; one-half cup mild vinegar; two tablespoons lemon juice; two teaspoons worcestershire sauce; two cups boiling water; one-half cup sugar; one teaspoon salt.

Soak gelatine in cold water about five minutes. Add vinegar, lemon juice, worcestershire sauce, boiling water, sugar and salt. Cool. When mixture begins to stiffen add remaining ingredients. Turn into wet mould and chill. When set turn out on bed of lettuce.

There's nothing like scrambled eggs with mushrooms for a good supper dish.

Ingredients: two cups sliced mushrooms; three tablespoons butter; eight eggs; two-thirds cup milk; salt and pepper to taste.

Saute mushrooms in butter until tender (two to three minutes). Beat eggs slightly. Add milk and seasonings. Pour pan with mushrooms. Cook slowly, stirring constantly until mixture coagulates. Serve on toast.

Spanish Eggs

Ingredients: six eggs; two strips bacon; one small onion (chopped); one tablespoon flour; two cups canned tomatoes; one green pepper (chopped); one cup chopped celery; salt and pepper.

Cook eggs until hard. Remove shells and cut in half. Cut bacon into small pieces and fry until crisp. Remove, bacon from fat. Cook onion in fat for a few minutes. Blend in flour. Add tomatoes, green pepper and celery. Simmer for 20 minutes. Add bacon and salt and pepper to taste. Pour sauce over eggs. Serves six.

Club Activities

BRIDGE ST. UNITED CHURCH Y.P.U.

An object lesson in Christian citizenship was the result of the Bridge Street United Church Young People's Union's much appreciated tour through the Bell Telephone Exchange on Monday night. All now know a little more fully what the operators at the switchboards have to contend with when tempers short circuit on the "home phone to exchange" portion of telephone conversations.

The convener for the evening, Neil Morley, took charge of the worship service back at the church.

To round out the Trinity of mind, spirit and body, refreshments were served.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

To date no smart woman's magazine has shown the invented by Dr. J. P. Anderson and recently put on display in Los Angeles. This article of feminine finery is the new one with which the inventor claims will boost milk production.

While the country still produces its fabulous ocean of milk, this is the fifth consecutive year that consumption of fluid milk has fallen off according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Nutritionally this means that you've not being kind to your molars and that your body is missing needed calcium.

Milk soups needn't be pallid and tasteless. Corn chowder, New England clam or fish chowder, oyster and lobster stews, are all milk dishes with a rich, rugged savor.

During Lent, fish chewders can appropriately be served as a main course. The amount of curry used in curried fish chowder is a matter of individual taste, although three should be at least one teaspoon to make it the principal flavoring ingredient.

Salt, in this soup, or any soup should always be added after the liquid has stopped simmering or the milk may curdle because of its acid and salt content.

Curried Fish Chowder—Serves 6

Melt 2 tablespoons fat in a soup pot. A 1-inch cube of salt pork may be chopped and melted in the pot instead, if desired. Remove crisp pieces of salt pork before adding other ingredients.

To the melted fat add 1-2 cup finely chopped onion, 1-2 cup finely chopped celery and 1-4 teaspoon oregano. Simmer slowly until onions turn yellow. Add 2 tablespoons flour, mixing well. Add 1 teaspoon curry powder or more to taste.

Add 4 cups of hot water. Stir well. Bring to a boil. Reduce flame so that liquid simmers.

Add 3-4 pound filet of sole cut into 1-2 inch cubes. Cook 10 minutes. Add 3 bouillon cubes. Simmer 10 minutes.

In a separate saucepan bring 2 cups of water to a boil. Add 1-4 cup rice and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Simmer 20 minutes. Drain rice. Add to soup.

Heat 2 cups of milk until bubbles appear around edge of saucepan. Add to soup. Add 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and salt and pepper to taste.

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 24 (CP) — Lord Beaverbrook might have pinched his business genius from newspaper publishing to the automobile field that the Rolls-Royce Company heeded his advice to go into mass production.

A disclosure that shortly after the First World War the Canadian financier briefly held control of the concern is made in "The Magic of a Name," the story of the stately car whose name is synonomous with wealth.

"The Beaver" argued the merits of Henry Ford's methods as against the painstaking ways of Rolls-Royce craftsmen. But he soon gave up the fight.

"The Magic of a Name" is by Harold Nockolds, motoring correspondent of The Times. It sketches the history of Rolls-Royce from 1904, when a wealthy newspaper boy, Henry Royce, built his first car.

This is how Nockolds tells of Lord Beaverbrook's brief connection with the firm:

"An incident which might have drastically changed the very nature of the concern has occurred behind the closed door of the board room at Conduit Street; no whisper of it leaked out.

Had Financial Control

"This was none other than the acquisition of the financial controls of the company for a short time by Lord Beaverbrook.

"Unlike Lord Nuffield, who acquired a similar British institution in The Times, and was content to let that newspaper remain unchanged in character, Lord Beaverbrook immediately urged the directors to abandon their hand-made methods of construction and employ the mass production he had seen used with such success in the United States by Henry Ford and others.

"This suggestion was firmly rejected by the board with such convincing arguments that "The Beaver" realized he was wasting his time trying to press the change, for he had the greatest respect for the business acumen of the directors.

"Before he gave up his control, he nevertheless did much to improve the internal organization of the company."

Nockolds discloses that in 1940, after the fall of France, a complete set of 20,000 drawing of the Rolls-Royce Merlin aircraft engine was sent across the Atlantic in a warship to ensure the design would not be lost were a German invasion of Britain successful.

As Minister of Aircraft Production, Lord Beaverbrook arranged for the Ford Motor Company to produce Merlin engines in Detroit. But the late Henry Ford backed out of the agreement and the contract was taken over by the Packard Company.

Discover Way To Stretch Span Of Life a Bit

By OVID A. MARTIN

Washington, March 24—(AP) —United States government scientists have made a discovery which may help stretch out your life span a bit.

They have developed a method for telling whether you are getting enough of the "building blocks" needed to make new tissues and replace old ones in your body.

The development opens the way for gauging the exact nutritional values of such protein foods as meats, milk, eggs, cereals, dry beans and soybeans.

Described by the agriculture department as a "noteworthy" research achievement, the discovery soon should make it possible for nutritionists and doctors to give better advice in the preparation of life-prolonging diets.

Specifically, the new discovery is a method for measuring the amino acid content of protein foods. Amino acids combine to form proteins, and the proteins combine to form living tissues.

Heretofore, there has been no satisfactory way of analyzing the amino acid content of the protein foods.

Hotel Desk Clerk Bound and Gagged

Toronto, March 24. (CP)—Three men, one of them armed, bound and gagged the desk clerk in the Warwick Hotel on Jarvis Street in Central Toronto early today and escaped with $223 from the till.

The clerk, Ronald Rose, 26, was found lying in the washroom of the hotel where the robbers had left him. The thieves had placed adhesive tape across his mouth to prevent him making any noise.

Hamilton, (CP) — A daring daylight hold-up, the first in several years in Hamilton took place today when three armed men trussed up and robbed the manager of the McArthur News Agency. They escaped with approximately $110 in cash and a diamond ring valued at $900.

ENGINEER INDICTED

Mineola, N. Y., March 24 (AP) — Jacob Kiefer, engineer of an eastbound train in the disastrous Rockville Centre railroad wreck Feb. 17, was indicted on a second degree manslaughter charge Thursday night. Kiefer was accused of running through a red stop signal and causing the death of 62 passengers in the head - on collision of two Long Island Railroad commuter trains.

150 VIOLATORS IN COURT A WEEK

Toronto, March 24. (CP)—The Department of Transport has announced that since 1950 radio licences will be issued April 1, they have stopped prosecuting owners without a 1949 permit.

Superintendent of radio, Samuel J. Ellis said so many summons had been issued "that we had to stop or the number of court cases would have carried us through to next April."

He said nearly 150 violators appeared in court every week.

Slum Clearance Bill for St. Johns Costs $3,000,000

(By The Canadian Press)

Premier Joseph Smallwood told the Newfoundland Legislature Thursday that he had "unutterable contempt" for the owners of slum dwellings in St. John's and said "we will not stand ceremony with them."

Speaking in debate on second reading at St. John's of a government bill providing a $3,000,000 slum clearance program for the provincial capital, Premier Smallwood added: "We will take the land—in some cases pay for it and in others get it for nothing—destroy all condemned houses and level the area."

The New Brunswick Legislature expects to receive the government's bill for a consumer tax next Wednesday and there have been unofficial reports it will provide for a four per cent tax on retail sales. The Fredericton Junior Chamber of Commerce and other organizations have announced they will stage a public protest meeting in front of the legislature buildings at Fredericton next Tuesday.

The Nova Scotia Legislature in Throne-Speech debate Thursday heard CCF leader Russell Cunningham declare that all political parties now are committed to more social services and the "welfare state." He urged Nova Scotia to take the lead by increasing old-age pensions and mothers' allowances and establishing higher minimum-wage levels.

The Prince Edward Island Legislature was on budget debate with Dougald MacKinnon (L-4th Queens) declaring fishermen in the island province should consider seriously the joint development of the scallop fishing industry.

Assures Local Control

Premier Duplessis told the Quebec Legislature that the bill to restrict activities of police and firemen's unions to their own localities was designed "to avoid disaster." It was intendes to assure local control over such municipal employees.

Liberal Leader George Marler opposed the measure, saying he felt police and firemen were loyal and that the bill would deprive them of strength in their efforts to negotiate working conditions.

The Ontario Legislature went through a heavy program in afternoon and night sittings, winding up with passage by 59-20 of second reading for the Sunday sports bill.

Public Works Minister Willis told the Manitoba Legislature that Manitoba expects to start construction of its portion of the Trans-Canada Highway this year. Liberal Critics!

The Saskatchewan House in budget debate heard Liberal Leader Walter Tucker assert that the CCF government had taken credit for some public debt reduction for which it was not responsible. He said the government claimed reduction of $73,000,000 since the CCF came to power in 1944, but that actually the reduction was $56,000,000.

The Alberta Legislature debated without reaching a decision a resolution by two government members to condemn any surrender of national sovereignty by a world government. The two sponsors, William Tomyn and Mrs. C. B. Wood, both Social Credit members, said that External Affairs Minister Pearson had been reported as saying the Federal government policy is to build an international community in which the member nations would voluntarily accept limits on their sovereignty.

New Regulations Will be Protested

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 24— (CP) — New customs regulations forecast for April 1, requiring all Canadians to sign triplicate papers before leaving the country will be protested by the International Bridge Association, A. E. Parsons, superintendent of the Whirlpool Rapids Bridge said today.

Mr. Parsons said that 2,574,292 persons crossed the bridge last year, and 700,000 were in automobiles. He said that heavy traffic jam would result from such an order, and it was discrimination against auto drivers. "It will be terrible," Parsons commented. "This thing will be almost impossible to handle from an administrative point of view."

EIGHT ARRESTED

Copenhagen, March 24— (AP) — Copenhagen police Thursday night arrested eight communists following anti-American demonstration in the Danish capital. The group was accused of staging demonstrations against Denmark's participation in the Atlantic Pact.

ORILLIA HAS HIGH RATE

Orillia, March 24 — (CP) — Increased educational costs accounted for nearly one-half of a 6.6 mills increase in the 1950 tax rate. A rate of 63.6 mills set Thursday is the highest in the town's history. Previous high was 58 mills in 1932.

Toronto's City Treasurer Ready For Donations

Toronto, March 24. (CP)—Toronto's city treasurer is prepared to handle donations to assist the parents of Sault Ste. Marie's Hargreaves quadruplets—but, so far, no money has come in.

The treasurer, G. A. Lascelles, Thursday was appointed official receiver of any gifts sent to civic authorities here on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Hargreaves. His appointment was announced after Mayor Hiram McCallum rejected a suggestion that this city should organize a fund.

The father of the 5 1-2-month-old babies said last week that financial difficulties over caring for the children had led him to considering offering the quads for adoption.

$700 Already Collected

A Toronto radio station (CKEY) which has organized a fund to assist the Hargreaves family announced today that it has raised $700. About $100 was donated Thursday night.

In Sault Ste. Marie, Mrs. Hargreaves, 26, told a reporter today that she would do her best to keep the babies.

"I love them too much to let them go," she said. "If the worst comes to the worst, we'll board them out, two by two, with friends here."

She said the family could be kept together—she has two children from a previous marriage—if public generosity helps provide a home and enough money to pay a housekeeper for two years. Her husband, working at a paper mill, earns $224 a month and pays $75 a month rent for the family's present dwelling.

Mrs. Charlotte Barclay of Stratford, who has raised 11 children, Thursday offered to take the quadruplets and care for them for two years. She told Mrs. Hargreaves in a telephone conversation that there still is room for more children in the Barclay's 11-roomed home.

GOES ON D. S. T.

London, March 24 — (Reuters) — Britain will go on daylight saving time April 16, it was announced today. Clocks will be advanced one hour ahead of Greenwich Mean Time. Daylight saving will end Oct. 22.

Course Will Acquaint Rural Ministers With Their Problems

Toronto, March 24—(CP) — A course to acquaint rural ministers with the problems of their congregations will be conducted by the Ontario Department of Agriculture this summer, it was announced today.

The course, open to clergymen of all denominations, will be given at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. The ministers will be briefed in the fundamentals of agriculture, including conservation, plant disease, livestock, markets and other allied subjects.

"Yes."

"All right. Now here is the eye piece, here the manual controls. In a matter of seconds, Mr. Gigardeau, a trained man can have the exact range on any target—battleship, building, anything—and release his bomb with complete ease and assurance. Almost automatically the correction is made for ship speed and wind. It is little short of phenomenal."

Andre looked impressed. "Priceless!"

We expect to give it every rigid test here in New Mexico where air currents are more variable and visibility different from the coastal zones. We will use smaller targets, greater heights. Any detail learned will be of infinite value in training our forces."

"I understand that the operator himself needn't know the exact construction of it. Sight is that correct?"

"It is. Notice that the device is in a sealed metal housing. Simply, its secret can be kept from the man who uses it."

"What of subversive activity, Colonel? Spies?"

"Oh bosh! Our Intelligence Department is not asleep. But, of course, every precaution is taken. For instance, we have two bomb sights with us here, and six men. We six will never let these planes out of our sight while these tests are under way. That's why Mr. Bailey built hangars so near his residence for us. We can even sleep in the planes."

"I see," Andre nodded. "Wise precaution."

He wondered just how much more comment he could make. He wanted to ask a great many more questions, and to study the way the bomb sight was attached to the ship. But he decided not to press his good luck too hard for the time being.

There in the Rainbow Canyon cliff dwelling. Ronnie Bailey stared off with a sense of mounting excitement. She bit her lower lip, turned slowly to look wide-eyed at the young professor beside her. She looked like a little girl on a high adventure of childhood.

"Gee-e-e-e- Wes!" she breathed.

"It is mysterious. They haven't reappeared as they must have concealed themselves behind a boulder."

"Wes, I don't believe it is simply a boy friend. They wouldn't pick a spot like this far away to meet, would they?"

"She is a Mexican girl. Perhaps he is a Mexican. Perhaps one who is not an American citizen and is unable to gain legal entry into the country, but has just slipped up this canyon to meet her."

"No," said Ronnie.

"Why not? I think it's a good guess."

"I know what you know about girls, I think. Rather, what you don't know. Wes, your binoculars are very strong. I could see that man's face and everything in detail, and I am certain love isn't the answer. For one thing he was much older than Lona."

"That's so."

"And a more—well, rougher type. No, there's something afoot, Wes. All I can say is that Lona picks strange places and times to meet her men."

Wes nodded. He could agree to that, for he had seen Andre Gigardeau leave Lona's apartment. Now here was Lona meeting yet another man under mysterious circumstances.

"Part of my faculty responsibility is to help guard the, uh, general welfare of the students," Wesley was saying, as if to himself, "but I confess that I don't know what course to—"

Ronnie interrupted. "They're coming out! There they are! She's going back toward her horse—And the man is going off down the canyon. Wes!"

They waited and watched for 10 minutes or so, alternating with the glasses.

"Wes, the man is dragging something; a brush, or limb of a tree."

Wes inspected the man closely. "It's too dark there now to see well, but I think I understand that. He's dragging a brush behind him to erase his tracks. A strong wind nearly always comes up this canyon; it would conceal the brush marks. Any canyon traveler would never suspect a thing.

"Where is Lona now?"

"On her horse again, riding back toward home."

Ronnie, still bright interest and excitement, suddenly grasped her companion's arm. "Wesley, let's go down there!"

"Where they—were?"

"Yes! I'm dying to see if anything's there!"

"Come on!"

Adventure spirit engulfed them They waited until a long ground rise concealed them from possible view of the cliff dwelling, then slid down the ladders, and the steep slope to the canyon floor again. In a moment more they were on their horses.

"They rode as quietly as they could even now there was no apparent need for silence, and presently came to the place where Lona had dismounted. They dismounted too, nursing a sense of danger, real or otherwise.

"Gee-e-e-e, Wes, I'm all tingly, but—but—oh!"

They passed the rock enclosure they had seen from afar, and neared the boulders where Lona and the strange man disappeared. No evidence of mankind was visible anywhere, no slight track or other sign that these two could see. But when Wes and Ronnie had crept past rocks higher than their heads, Wes—in the lead— abruptly stopped. Ronnie already was holding his big hand like a scared little girl.

"What is it?" she whispered.

"The dark crevice there—see? It's a cave!"

She squeezed her hand, sensing her alarm. Plainly she understood that their danger was genuine.

"Ronnie, are you—afraid?"

Wesley whispered that, looking down at the lovely girl. He gripped her arm too tightly because of his own excitement.

She nodded, then whispered back, "I—I guess I isn't it! But I'll go in if you will, Wes!"

"It appears to be just an ordinary cave, Like any of hundreds I can show you about these New Mexico mountains, some small and one—as you know— the great underground cavern at Carlsbad. I don't think this one will be very large."

"But it's late. Twilight is getting deeper, Ronnie. See?"

The sun had dropped behind a peak even before they left the high cliff dwelling to climb down ladders and rocks and then ride

80,000 People Have Not Claimed Money Due

Ottawa, March 23 (CP)— The government's No. 1 tax collector said today he has $2,000,000 to give away to 80,000 Canadians, who, however are slow to claim it.

Victor Scully, Deputy Minister for taxation in the revenue department, told the Senate Finance Committee there still are 80,000 people entitled to refunds on compulsory wartime savings who have not claimed the money although notices have been sent out to them.

The department had found that half of those entitled to refunds had changed their addresses. The refunds still were going out at the rate of 1,500 a month.

Mr. Scully, ranging over a broad field, said what Canadians do with four times as many income tax forms as they need is beyond the department. The department just couldn't figure out what became of most of 30,000,000 income tax forms issued last year.

Senator T. A. Crerar (L-Manitoba) suggested children like to collect them or adults take them because "they think they're getting something."

Mr. Scully, testifying as the committee studied departmental estimates, said the staff that handles federal taxes was cut from 11,941 to 10,668 between May 1949 and February 1950. This trend would continue.

Giant Timber Wolf Finally Shot by Hunter

Big River, Sask., March 24 — (CP) — Scraggly — furred "One-and-a-half Step's" reign of terror has ended.

The giant wolf, savage killer of farm animals, cunning eluder of hunters' wiles in the Big River and Bodmin districts 65 miles northwest of Prince Albert, was found shot Wednesday.

The final chapter in the life of the gaunt, grey timber wolf was as bloody as the ravages that put fear into the hearts of all who saw the three-pear marks of his give-away limp in the snow.

Late Tuesday night Allan Muir heard two dogs barking on his father's farm. Picking up his rifle he fired at a large animal in the barnyard.

The animal dropped, then rose, ran off.

Muir, with a friend, Leo Tardiff, followed the bloody trail next morning and found the body a half-mile away.

One-and-a-half Step was originally thought four-legged.

Examination proved he had four, but only one was good. His lame front leg, about two inches short, had been caught in a trap. One rear leg had been broken and had set. The other rear leg showed marks of injuries.

LOTS OF ROOM

Montreal — (CP) — Canada has lots of open spaces — at least more than the United States. A giant electric generator 14 feet, four inches high and nearly 12 feet wide, is being shipped from Massachusetts to Texas, via Canada. The reason is that there is more room along Canadian railway tracks.

Set of Conditions Outlined by Dr. Lindstrom

Hollywood, March 24. (AP)—A lawyer's conference, trying to settle the Ingrid Bergman-Peter Lindstrom marital troubles, broke up Thursday without agreement.

Both lawyers agreed they are hopeful of an out-of-court settlement in the interests of the Lindstrom's daughter. Earlier Dr. Lindstrom's set of conditions under which he would agree to a quiet divorce were handed to Greg Bautzer, Miss Bergman's lawyer.

His terms included:

1. That under no conditions will Pia, 12-year-old child of the surgeon's marriage to the Swedish actress, "ever have contact with (Roberto) Rossellini or in any way come under his domination."

2. That he, Lindstrom, will have custody of the girl and that she will remain with him at all times.

Blood Donors Wanted

London, Ont., March 23 — (CP) — An appeal for blood donors for Preston Marrison, 76-year-old Thedford fruit farmer who needs a pint of blood a week to stay alive, is being made by the Red Cross.

Arrangements have been made at Victoria Hospital for donors. Already a number of Londoners have volunteered.

Suffering a obscure type of chronic anemia, the farmer in the last 2½ years has received 181 pints of blood. Hospital authorities say they can find no apparent cause for his disease and that without the blood transfusions he would die.

Night Harness Meets Not Favored By Premier Frost

Toronto, March 24 —(CP)— Premier Frost told the Ontario Legislature Thursday night he questions whether night harness racing is in the public interest.

Mr. Frost said during debate on second reading of a bill to set up an Ontario racing commission that he suspected "certain interests" who wanted to promote night harness racing were "more interested in promoting mass gambling than the breeding of harness horses."

The Premier said Magistrate S. Tupper Bigelow of Toronto will be asked to head the commission which will consist of three or four members.

The Premier said that for more than a year he has been "standing a bit in the way" of night racing. He described some of the problems connected with racing which he said he was unable to cope with without a commission.

To be considered were the interests of the general public, breeders of thoroughbred and harness horses and owners of both types of track. The government's prime concern, however, was for the best interest of the public.

Race track gambling came under the authority of the Federal government, Betting at thoroughbred tracks was by pari-mutel machines only, but at harness tracks bookmaking was allowed Bookmaking caused "more trouble in administration than anything I know of," he said.

"I would attempt to say what should be done. I don't know."

The bill gives the commission authority to "govern, direct, control and regulate" horse racing in all forms. It can issue licences to race track owners, jockeys, grooms and other persons connected with the sport. It may include as many as seven members.

Says Farm Forums Serve Valuable Purpose

Brantford, March 24—(CP)—Farm Forums serve as a poll of rural opinion and their findings are highly valued by government policy makers, Clare Burt, Toronto, secretary of Forums for Ontario said Wednesday at a rally of Brant County Forums held at the Belleview Recreation Centre.

Mr. Burt said summaries of opinions expressed by Forums during their Monday night meetings were sent to the federal and provincial departments of agriculture and in some cases to representatives in parliament and the legislature.

"Many federal and provincial members take a keen interest in forums and depend on them for opinions relating to agriculture."

This year, 870 forums are active in the province, the provincial secretary declared. The average number of people participating in discussions every Monday night during the fall and inter season was between 12,000 and 15,000.

Seretse Khama On Short Visit To His Tribe

London, March 24. (CP)—African Chieftain Seretse Khama left London Thursday night for a short visit to his Kingdom before a five-year exile is imposed by the British government.

Seretse, who is fighting to keep his throne with his white queen, a former London typist, motored to a Southampton suburb on the first leg of his journey. He continues his trip today by flying boat.

Seretse was barred from the chieftainship of the Bamangwato tribe, in the British protectorate of Bechuanaland, on the ground his rule might cause unrest and dissension in his country.

The respite before his banishment was granted to permit Seretse to gather evidence for a lawsuit and to be with his wife, the former Ruth Williams, for the birth of the baby they expect next summer.

FREE PARKING FOR CUSTOMERS AT REAR OF STORE

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Don't look now, but there is a strong possibility Belleville may post an entry in the Central Ontario Baseball League, if so, it means the loop will be a seven team organization consisting of teams from Kingston, Napanee, Picton, Brockville, Smith's Falls and Batawa.

Hope does a lingering death. Up to last night, the prospects of a Belleville entry in the C.O.B.L. were dimmer than the tail-light of a dead fire-fly.

But, at a well-attended meeting in Memorial Arena, tentative plans were made and laid down, and if suggestions aired at the conclave materialize then "we're in".

There appeared to be plenty of enthusiasm at the get-together. Outfit "Butler" Lloyd, and Eddie Schreiber were the master-minds of the project. Summing the whole thing up, and as matters stand at the present, prospects look very bright for an entry from this village.

Actually it sums up to a matter of finances. And at the meeting last night, this bugbear seems to be well under control. Or at least it is hoped to be.

Several of those present volunteered to contact sources in the city for donations.

It was felt that at least $1,000 will be necessary to finance the team. Contacts already established it was stated, guaranteed a fair percentage of the amount required. Business and professional men, industry, will be asked to contribute to the general fund.

One well known business man of the city, it was revealed, will contribute a generous percentage of the cost of uniforms.

The player angle was discussed. The present Central Ontario Baseball League, a loop that glorified baseball to the Quinte district years ago in the days of "Chief" Williams, Joe Dainty, Al Heckman, "Peeny" Mills, Joe Daley, the late Ken Colling, and many others, is a revival of the league that produced champions, and that goes for the now-almost professionalized Western Ontario baseball organization.

Oshawa and Peterborough, ancient feudists of Belleville and Kingston in the days when 25 cents was the 'tops', the winding-up of the eight-day clock was considered to be a week's work for an alleged "limpit", and the grandstands were packed with vociferous fans, have deserted the fold, so to speak.

They have sought the less-expensive pastures of the Toronto Viaduct League. Be that as it may. Who cares!

The consensus last night was "Let's get crackin". It was felt that this village, while its native baseball stars are not of championship calibre, at least will give the other teams in the present COBL setup, a run for their money. It was felt also, that if another team, possibly Gananoque was entered, making the loop an eight team affair, a two-section league would be formed.

That is, Kingston, Brockville, Smith's Falls and Gananoque in the east, with Belleville, Napanee, Picton and Batawa in the west.

Per Jack Lake, the meeting felt, transportation costs would be considerably reduced. An interlocking schedule was surmised with teams from the two sections providing additional attraction in any case.

As was said before, the entry of a Belleville team in the current COBL hinges upon the financial support given by residents of the city. Business, industry and the professions, will be waited upon by representatives of the proposed club within the next few days. The deadline for entries has been extended, with a special privilege to Belleville, by President Nesbitt, Kingston, of the COBL. The next meeting, an important one, has been scheduled for Thursday next. It is do or die as far as Belleville is concerned. It is up to those who can afford a few bucks to decide if this city is to be represented in the COBL this year.

Commercial softball luminaries likewise had something to my last night. At a meeting held in Kiwanis Centre, six teams indicated entry into the loop this year. These included, Steve and Hagerman, Corby's, Feist Anne (which has switched its affections to softball this year), McFarlane Wrapping, Harness, Dyer Wire and C.N.R. Other teams are expected to enter at a meeting set for next Thursday night.

The potential Belleville entry in the COBL and the Commercial Softball League, should bear in mind, that strong executive governing bodies are imperative. Any sports organization is as strong as its executive. If the "hop master-minds" fall down, so goes their league, or team. And it is up to the sporting body, if it wishes to protect its interests, to see that the proper men are elected to the "seats of the mighty".

SO YOU WANT TO DANCE?

. . . If so, fellas and gals, to the Belleville Collegiate Institute tonight where Coach 'Red' Townsend's COSSA basketball Raiders are "throwing" a dance.

"Red's" red-hot hoop champs entertain high hopes for an Ontario title. They licked the be'abers out of the Niagara District champions, and for a brief of "farmers" they did right well, by cracky.

Well, "farmers". Per no "farmers", the BCI crew is worthy of the support of youse guys and gals who prefer bebop to Bach.

So, hit the pater for 35 cents, tell the girl-friend to do likewise, and betake yourselves to the BCI gym, where there will be "sounds of revelry by night!." The first trumpet tootles, we are told, at 8:30. Don't say you weren't warned.

FROZEN OMELETTE

Arelee, Sask. — (CP) — Here's a candidate for the year's best cold-weather story. A farmer, carrying a handful of eggs to his house, heard a loud crack. He looked down and found that the eggs had frozen and burst open.

NIGHT SCHOOL BUSY

Fort Frances — (CP) — Nighttime activities are beginning to rival day studies at the Fort Frances high school. About 250 adults take night classes in subjects ranging from bookkeeping to woodworking.

Montreal Canadiens Aren't Taking Their Second Place N.H.L. Standing For Granted

By ALBERT HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal Canadiens aren't taking their second-place standing in the National Hockey League too lightly.

Although a 2-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday may put them into the Stanley Cup semi-final round with the weakened New York Rangers, the Canadiens still have two tough games ahead—in Montreal Saturday night against Chicago Black Hawks and in Boston Sunday against the Bruins.

If the Habs can buck those two tail-end teams and clinch second place, then Toronto will be pitted against the rough-and-ready Detroit Red Wings, sitting mightily on top of the league.

This matching of teams would be almost a reversal of the 1948 hockey classic when Montreal lost to Detroit and Toronto downed the fourth-place Bruins, but Leafs then walked off with the Stanley Cup in the final series against Detroit.

But coach Dick Irvin has warned his Canadiens not to take Rangers for granted. With Chuck Rayner, Tony Leswick and Frankie Eddolls resting up, it appears the Blueshirts are getting into shape for playoff time.

"In fact we had better not take the next two games for granted," said Irvin. "The Hawks or Bruins might knock us back into third place."

Smythe Cracks Whip

At Toronto, managing director Conn Smythe cracked the whip over the Indian-file Maple Leafs and ordered two practices a day to prep them for the semi-finals starting next Tuesday.

Aiming for their fourth straight Stanley Cup, the Leafs hope to remedy past mistakes by a few doses of hard work — and a couple replacements. Fleming Mackell, up from Pittsburgh of the American League, will replace right-winger Howie Meeker, or Saturday when Leafs meet Bruins. And goalie Turk Broda may be given a rest with rookie Al Rollins of Pittsburgh subbing in the nets.

None of the eight rookies who performed for the Boston club against Chicago Wednesday night—when Hawks downed Bruins 7-5—will be used against Leafs because of the importance of the game to the Toronto club.

Boston, keeping a sharp lookout for good prospects signed two teen-agers from St. Catharines, Ont., to professional contracts Wednesday night the two are Jack (Moose) McCormick, 18-year-old left wing and Norman Corcoran, 18-year-old right wing. Both played for Boston Wednesday after top seasons with St. Catharines Juniors.

First Sunday Game Will be On May Seventh

Toronto, March 24 (CP) —If a bill now before the Ontario legislature becomes law and Toronto passes an enabling city by-law, permitting Sunday sport, one double-header between Jersey City Little Giants and Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League on May 7 will be the first of 11 Sunday dates in Toronto for the Leafs this summer.

George Jamieson, secretary of the Toronto ball club, said the dates have been arranged by the International League pending approval of Sunday commercial sport in cities that vote favorably in municipal plebiscites. Toronto and Hamilton have already held such votes.

The city parks committee Thursday recommended that the International League team be given permission to play Sunday baseball and the recommendation now goes before city council.

Nick Weslock Canada's No 1 Amateur Golfer

Toronto, March 24 (CP)—Nick Weslock of Windsor, low amateur in last year's Canadian Open and winner of the Ontario Open, Thursday night was announced as Canada's No. 1 amateur golfer.

The list of national rankings made by Hillis Pickens of Montreal, publisher of Canadian Sport magazine, was announced at a rally sponsored by the Ontario Golf Association attended by many leading figures in the golf world. Among others the rankings are accepted as official by The Canadian Professional Golfers Association. The Pickens trophy is the only award in connection with the list.

Weslock, a Detroit resident who plays most of his golf out of the Windsor Essex club, was chosen as Canada's top amateur because of fine showings in two tournaments.

He was low amateur in the Canadian Open at the St. George's Club in Toronto last year and won the 1949 Ontario Open against one of the strongest fields in the province's history.

Bill Mawhinney won low medal honors in the Ontario Willingdon Cup play and placed second in the listings. The Vancouver resident reached the quarter-finals of the Canadian amateur and bowed out at that late to Montreal's Tommy Riddell.

Riddell took third place with a splendid all-round game in Canada play in 1949. He was semi-finalist in the Canadian amateur at Saint John, N.B., deefeating champion Frank Stranahan at the 19th hole and Mawhinney on the 18th on successive days. The Montrealer was second low in Willingdon Cup play.

Reds and Capitals In Semi-Finals American Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Providence Reds and Indianapolis Capitals Thursday night moved into the semi-finals of the American Hockey League playoffs in straight games.

The Reds whipped Springfield Indians 6-4 while Indianapolis rallied in the third period to knock out St. Louis Flyers 3-1. In the opening games last Tuesday of the best-of-three "B" series, Caps beat Flyers 7-1 and Providence whipped the Indians 6-4.

Leaders of the league's eastern and western divisions — Buffalo Bisons and Cleveland Barons — are battling in the best-of-seven series "A". Cleveland holds a one-game edge in the semi-final event. The winner of series "A" meets the winner of the Providence-Indianapolis clashes.

The Providence - Indianapolis series will also be a best-of-three affair. Cleveland - Buffalo will meet Saturday night in the second game of "A" series.

Eddie Kullman led Providence Thursday night with two goals while the other rent to Roger Bedard, Pete Kapusta and Art Michaels.

Armand Lemieux and Doug McMurdy scored for Springfield. The Indianapolis team bounced into a 1-0 lead in the opening period when Henry Wall fired in another Indianapolis goal.

BAD YEAR FOR DEER

Fredericton — (CP) — New Brunswick deer had a bad year in 1949. The lands and mines department said 19,090 deer were bagged by hunters, to come close to the all-time record of 20,007 deer killed in 1932. Non-resident sportsmen accounted for 2,285 of last year's total.

Phillies Have Pitching Problem Says Sawyer

By JACK HAND

Clearwater, Fla., March 24 — (AP) — If the Philadelphia Phillies repeat their Sunday-School finish of 1949, it will be a pleasant surprise.

Even Manager Eddie Sawyer says: "We'll be lucky to finish as high as last year."

The Phils have a pitching problem, Sawyer, starting his second year as manager, has a thin mixture of flaming youth and over-experience in the box. As of now he has only three definite starters.

One of these — Russ Meyer — recently rushed to Baltimore with an elbow ailment. It turned out that it was an old fracture that didn't bother him too much last year when he piled up a 17-6 record.

Grey-thatched Ken Heintzelman, a 34-year-old lefty, is another starter. He finished up with a phenomenal 17-10 mark last year, his best in his 13-year major league career. He's the 25-year-old bonus pitcher with a 15-15 record last season and the other regular. He looks to be the ace of the staff.

Sawyer still seeks at least two more men capable of taking a regular turn. Among the better prospects is Emory (Bubba) Church, a right-hander still on the player list of the Toronto farm club. Jocko Thompson, another Toronto lad, has a chance.

The veteran Hank Borowy (12-12) will do if he has no more shoulder trouble.

May Wind up on Relief

Curt Simmons, still trying to live up to his $60,000 bonus, may wind up on relief to help Jim Konstanty, a 53-game performer last season.

The infield is set. Eddie Waitkus, making a fine comeback after the bizarre shooting accident last summer, is the first baseman.

Granville Hamner and Willie (Puddinhead) Jones are fixtures at short and third. Rookie Mike "Goliat, a .286 hitter at Toronto, appears to be the second baseman job sewed up. Dick Sisler, Ralph Caballero and Eddie Miller are the reserves.

Catching will be in the hands of Andy Seminick; young Stan Lopata, a youngster with great promise; and the veteran former Yankee, Sam Silvestri.

So far, rookie Eddie Sanicki has not hit hard enough to hold down the centre field job. Sawyer hoped on use Del Ennis, his one solid outfielder, in left with Sanicki in centre and Richie Ashburn in right.

Unless Sanicki starts to belt the ball as he did at Toronto last season, Ashburn probably will open in centre with right field a scramble among Bill Nicholson, Johnny Blatnik, Stan Hollmig and Dick Whitman.

NEW SALARY SCHEDULE

Toronto, March 24 — (CP) — A new salary schedule providing increases for the Ontario Provincial Police has been approved by the government, Attorney-General Porter announced Thursday night. Generally the increase is between $100 and $150 annually.

The new minimum and maximum salaries are as follows: probationary constable (minimum $1,940; constable, group one, $2,-240 to $2,540; constable, group two, $2,340 to $2,540; corporal, $2,640 to $2,840; sergeant $2,840 to $3,150; inspector, $3,150 to $3,-800...; inspector, Criminal Investigation Bureau, $3,150 to $4,000.

FROM SOUP TO NUTS

Montreal — (CP) — Once every week several hundred bargain-hunters flock to an unusual auction sale here. On the block are items ranging from soup to nuts (actually) and from refrigerators to sheet steel. They are all salvage railway freight which the consignee has abandoned because of damage or late arrival.

Yardmen Win C.N.R. Hockey League Title

It's all over and the Canadian National Railways as far as Belleville is concerned can go back to the comparative peaceful jobs of operating freight and passenger trains, maintaining rights-of-way and whatever hard-working technicians do when they are not all burned up over a hockey series.

For last night the Yardmen's team of the CNR Interdepartmental Hockey League defeated their arch-rivals the Car Dept., by a 5-2 score to win the sixth game of their titular series, the championship of the league for the second time in a row and the "Red" Townsend Trophy.

Prior to the game last night each team had a pair of victories to its credit with the fifth tussle resulting in a tie.

A large crowd of supporters of both teams saw the final battle of the series in Memorial Arena. Following the game the trophy was presented to the winners in their dressing room by President George Foster of the CNR Athletic Association, who congratulated the newly-crowned champions and expressed his pleasure at the fine series of games played.

The game was close at all times with the first period ending with no score. Yardmen flipped home three goals, two from Ehler and one from Enos early in the third, but Car Dept. rallied and fired in two markers from Nolan to make the period score 3-2.

Yardmen took over in the third period after a hard session and scored two from Ronson and Hull to win the game and title.

Yardmen—goal, Boyle; defence Hall, Rogers; centre, Ronsky; wings, Nolan, McDonald; subs, E. Ryan, H. Pope, C. Carson, Ehler, Little, Nolan, Ronson.

APPLICATION MADE

Toronto, March 24 — (CP) — Application has been made to the Canada Labor Relations Board by the American Newspaper Guild for certification as bargaining agent for editorial employees or Press News Limited, subsidiary of The Canadian Press.

Announcement of the application was made Thursday by Charles E. Crispy, international representative of the A. N. G.

The application followed decision of the Labor Board to take a vote of Canadian Press editorial employees as to whether they want the guild as bargaining agent.

CHICKS TAKE OVER

Ayr, Ont. — (CP) — Farmwife Mrs. J. W. Maus had 700 chickens for dinner the other day. They were day-old chicks which were put on the warm kitchen floor when their incubator broke down. Six hungry men in the Maus family had to go to a restaurant for their meals.

Locke Reinstated Effective April 15 By Golfers' Assoc.

(By The Canadian Press)

The Professional Golfers Association of America Thursday reinstated Bobby Locke, British open champion banned by the P.G.A. since dodging several American tournaments last July.

Locke now may compete in P.G.A. sponsored tournaments, effective April 15.

The return of the knickers-wearing sharp shooter from South Africa to United States competition was approved by a vote of the P.G.A.'s 12-man executive committee at Chicago.

The reinstatement was announced by the P.G.A. president, Joe Novak. He said the action followed receipt of a letter from Locke in which he applied for reinstatement and apologized for the dodging.

Canada's world amateur hockey champions, Sudbury Wolves Mercurys, Thursday night at London were given a reception at Canada House by A. A. Christenson's cup overflowed when Canada's Governor-General dropped in.

"Wasn't that nice, isn't it grand," said the Edmonton businessman who backs the club when Viscount Alexander came to the mezzanine floor to see their clean sweep of the tournament, and its championship the world title for Canada.

Viscount Alexander spoke briefly to each player and tentatively invited the club to Rideau Hall in Ottawa early next month.

The Mercurys sail from Liverpool March 29, if the Governor-General, on a private visit to Montreal, is home in time for the team to break their journey at Ottawa, he plans to receive them at his official residence April 5 or 6.

Horses from Seven Canadian provinces and seven American states have been named for the $15,000 Canadian cup and the $6,000 Maple Leaf cup in harness races to be run next summer at Toronto's new Thorncliffe raceway.

The entries are for the major stake races during the raceway's 42 nights of racing, scheduled to start July 3.

Nominating will not be complete for several days. Under the rules of horse-racing, the association must accept any entries postmarked before noon, March 22. As entries came in on the way here from points in Western Canada and the United States, the lists will remain open until all the letters have been examined.

A. F. Macdonald (L-Edmonton East) rose on a question of privilege as the House opening to pay tribute to the Mercuries, Western Canada Intermediate champions last year.

Amid applause he said the team had won the world hockey championship for Canada without suffering a single defeat.

Big Jim Thorpe returned Thursday to professional sports in another step of his "make a million" campaign.

The big Indian secretary Sac and Fox tribe Indian, who was named to the football athlete of the half century in an Associated Press poll of United States sports experts, signed a two year contract as manager and second for Sunny Wac Cloud, a 24-year-old Indian wrestler.

World champion Dick Button wasn't up to par Thursday, but he piled up a substantial lead at the midway mark in the United States figure-skating championships at Washington.

The 20-year-old Harvard sophomore scored 942.1 points out of a possible 1,000.7, on the compulsory school figures. Button, four times national champ and two-time world titlist, was 50 points under his expected showing.

However, the Englewood, N.J., star possessed a comfortable lead over the rest of the field after this first-half performance. Hayes Jenkins of Akron, Ohio, was second with 891.7.

Montreal YMHA blues Thursday night won the Eastern Canada basketball championship when they defeated Verdun Tri-Bells 59-58 at Montreal to take their second straight game in the best-of-three series.

Blues won their first game from the Tri-Bells Wednesday night 56-41.

The Montrealers now will meet the winners of the Western championship in Montreal April 3.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JOHN PATERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 24 (CP)—What the Canadian angler needs is bigger fish — and more of them — in the lakes he can get to easily.

Everybody hasn't a helicopter. So those frustrating tales of big fish in far-northern lakes are all the harder to take.

Some anglers think something should be done about bringing the big ones south a bit. Otherwise, the real whoppers are scarce.

And why not? Anyone who has fished knows the disappointment of catching lots of fish but little ones only.

The question has set Pete (Tobacco Tycoon) McGillen to pondering. Discussing the money spent by provincial governments on hatcheries, for production of fingerlings, he wonders if it wouldn't be better to bring big fish from the teeming lakes. Both fish and fishermen would have a better chance for development.

He mentions specifically a proposed bass hatchery in Ontario and says: "I think we need those Westport bass ponds about as much as a frog needs hip-pocketa."

They're Good, But . . .

Hatcheries do a good job, Pete hastens to say, in satisfying nature in areas that need assistance due to extreme fishing pressure, winter kill, pollution or the advisability of introducing a new species.

Unfortunately, he adds, many people believe that more hatcheries are the answer to all fishing problems. It is then that "this opiate of the people" becomes a millstone about the neck of the fisheries administration, for there is no money left for anything else.

"It seems evident that this transplanting of bass from one crowded lake to another large one which has a greater food supply is sound fisheries management, and is much more practical, economical and beneficial than the planting of hatchery-reared stock."

Markham Evens Series With Legion

Markham Millionaires defeated the Peterborough Legion club 4-2 in Oshawa last night to even their Senior 'B' playdown series three game each. The third game of the series is scheduled for Oshawa Saturday night with the winner outside of the four-of-seven series being held in Peterborough Monday night.

Grand National Chase Toughest Race in World

Aintree, England, March 24—(CP)—The vanguard of an expected 100,000-plus crowd had already gathered this morning to attend Saturday's renewal of the Grand National Steeplechase, toughest race in the world and expected to be tougher than ever this year.

Aintree's fearsome 30 fences that the field has to clear on the four mile and 856-yard run have been rebuilt. Even the world-famous, treacherous Becher's Brook is a stiffer jump than last year.

The rebuilt bridges already have taken their toll during the race meet here. Of 30 horses that started in two steeplechase events on the opening day of the four-day meeting, only five completed the course without a spill. At that rate only about nine of the field of approximately 60 which will face the horses Saturday can be expected to complete the course.

That makes picking a winner of the big race — on which the Irish Sweepstakes are based — decided—about as easy as predicting the winner of the next British election. But Sharrav W. Caldough a Toronto horse-breeder who arrived here Thursday is winning the race, says he has the answer.

Freebooter Favored

Soda 11, a gelded grey, currently is quoted at 40 to 1.

The favorite now is Freebooter, a 12-2 shot who twice a winner over Monaveen, and has cut the odds on Royal Steed to 100-9. Some bookmakers expected Monaveen to be a favorite by post time.

It's basically 50 years since the last Royal victory in the Grand National. Ambus II won in 1900 for the Prince of Wales, later to become King Edward VII.

Lord Mildmay, Britain's leading amateur steeplechase jockey, again will be aboard—his own horse, Cromwell, fourth last year and quoted at 100-8.

Another entry drawing a lot of popular support is Lord Bicester's Rolmond, second last year to Russian Hero in the classic. Lord Bicester, now 63, has been trying to win a Grand National for years. The odds on Rolmond are 25-1.

Last time a favorite won was in 1927 when spriz came home at 6-1.

Rain and a heavy track has been forecast.

SON SAVES FATHER IN STORMY BAY OF FUNDY

Charles Ferguson, of Lorneville, N.B., gets dad to shore despite sleet storm and five-foot waves

1. The two men had set out in a tender to reach their fishing motorboat, anchored about 75 yards off the rocky Bay of Fundy coast. It was a wild winter night and both men wore heavy clothing and hip-length rubber boots to protect them from the sleet and high wind.

3. Numbed and exhausted, Charles finally got his father in shallow water . . . rolled him over to remove the water-soaked coat and dragged him out of danger. For his courageous, almost super-human effort, we are indeed proud to present Charles Ferguson with THE DOW AWARD.

2. About 100 feet out the boat was swamped by the giant waves and both men were thrown into the icy water. The elder Ferguson could not swim and Charles, 24, had to swim with one arm, holding his father with the other. The young man was able to kick off his boots, but the heavy clothing and 6-foot waves made progress slow.

THE Dow AWARD

THE DOW AWARD is a citation presented for acts of outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers, selects Award winners from recommendations made by a nationally known news organization.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Jibitzer

Crazy about duplicate should be our bridge player whose only complaint is that he holds poor cards. In duplicate, all tables play the same hands. Yours are no worse than the cards of others.

In a recent championship came the deal you see here:

NORTH
♦J 9
♣K

WEST
♥J 10 2
♦K Q 5 2
♣9 7 5 2

EAST

♥K Q 9 5 3
♦8 7 6
♣A J 10 8 6

SOUTH
♠K J 7 5
♦A 10 8 4 3
♣Q 4 3

As dealer in north would you have opened one spade? Would the east hand coming in to show strength would your partner have helped you go higher than a game? And would you know where to stop?

There is no doubt that your opening bid in north should be one spade. An opening one bidder promises more than five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit. You have them.

You might worry a little because your ace-king is exposed like a sitting duck. But with all the ingredients called for in a bid, if you start fearing its ability you are a gone goose.

You don't think of opening with a bid of more than one because of your long suit. Perish the idea. If you start changing your signals in the middle of a deal, have mercy on your partner.

The east player has as good as an opening one bid. If you had not opened the bidding he could have started with a bid of one heart. But it is too late for him to open. You have already opened.

When a defender has as good as an opening one bid he does not bid a suit. He uses a special signal to tell his partner that his hand is as good as an opener. He does this by saying double.

The double in this case does not mean he can defeat your contract. Nor does it mean that his favorite suit is your own. Nor does he admit which suit he likes. He simply says he could have opened.

This is where south comes in with a bid. He has a biddable suit in diamonds to show. Also powerful support for your spades. Also high cards enough for a no-trump bid. Choose your weapons.

CATTLE STAND COLD

Edmonton — (CP)— Despite the extremely cold weather, cattle losses in Alberta have not been above normal, the agriculture department announced recently. Cattle losses in the southern and eastern sections had been slightly higher than in other districts but there had been no special appeals for cattle feed.

The new CinemaScope film was co-produced by Miss Trevor's husband, Milton H. Bren. It's now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 24 — (AP) —Ronald Reagan, hardy defender of the acting craft, today aimed a lefty jab at Alfred Hitchcock and a right cross at Senator Edwin Johnson.

Director Hitchcock became the target when he remarked Thursday that "Actors are really children," living partly in a make-believe world. Then, he declared, is why they get into headlined scrapes.

Reagan, president of the Screen Actors Guild and an extremely vocal guy, made this reply:

"I agree with Mr. Hitchcock But this is not a publicity we seek, and he would be happier without it.

Work a 'Drain'

"I agree that the nature of our work—dealing in simulated emotion—does have an effect on us. You can't come home after spending the day portraying grief, rage or insane fear and not be emotionally drained.

"I agree that we are such children that we have managed to create and run an organization (the S.A.G.) that is second to none in its contribution to the motion picture industry.

"I agree that we are such children that every year we gladly participate in government bond drives even though we are discriminated against in tax-wise as is no other group.

Hits Johnson

Regan's blows were not so gentle when aimed at the Democratic Senator from Colorado who has proposed federal licensing of films and actors to curb "immorality and lewdness" in the movies.

"Senator Johnson's immunity on the Senate floor does not grant him immunity from being a gentleman," said Regan. "I believe he put over a cheap political trick to get his name in the paper in an election year."

Hanger-On

He said Hollywood has "the same caste system as any house town. They are the fringe of cafe society, the ones who get their names in the headlines."

"But the senator will find that most of Hollywood gets up early works hard and goes to bed early."

AT BELLE — John Wayne stars as a cavalry captain and veteran Indian fighter in the John Ford presentation "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon," in Technicolor, which opens Sunday. Joanne Dru, Ben Johnson, Victor McLaglen and Harry Carey, Jr., also are featured. Based on the film fairy romance and adventure of the untamed west.

Thirty Airmen Dead, Missing In Four Crashes

(By The Canadian Press)

A series of widely separated military plane crashes Thursday left a total of 30 airmen dead or missing.

Five United States Air Force planes, one a huge B-50, crashed within a few hours of each other. The B-50 blew up in mid-air over the Arizona Desert, killing 12 of its crew. Two others bailed out.

At Rome, N.Y., a C-47 transport crashed and burst into flames during a driving snowstorm, killing a captain and injuring four others of the crew.

Six men died in the third fatal air crash in Britain in three days, when an R.A.F. twin-engined Anson trainer nose-dived into the earth in Buckinghamshire.

In South America, land, sea and air forces were searching for an Argentine navy plane which disappeared with 11 on board on a flight to the remote area of Tierra Del Fuego, near Cape Horn.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was opening his mail this morning, saying to ma, By gollies my dear, that mailman of ours must be named Bill.

Sure, pop, that's his name all rite, I said. I heard him talking to a frend of his, and that's what he called him Bill, I said, and pop said, I knew it, I'd of been willing to bet a dollar on it, and now I'd bet 10 dollars.

Now William, how could you know any such thing for land sakes? ma said, and pop said, simply by putting 2 and 2 together, or rather by putting 8 and 2 together because 8 out of every 10 pieces of mail he handles are bills.

Oh, sutch a rigmarol, ma said, and pop said, Not at all, it's pure logic with an undertone of intuition, and just to prove it was no mere flash in the pan, I'll tell you the names of the 2 big chaps that collect our ashes. Their names are Art and Moe. I suppose you're dying to hear how I know he said.

I think I can restrain my curiosity, ma said, and I said, I can restrain mine, pop.

Then, I'll enlighten you, and I'll be generous and enlighten your mother too, pop said. The big chap named Art has made a fine Art of strewing as many ashes on the sidewalk as he gets into the truck, and the big chap named Moe makes mutch Moe noise slamming the ash cans than necessary at 7 o'clock on ash day morning, he said, and I said, O pop, that's wonderful.

"I'm sure your mother thinks so too, pop said. Would you like to know why our milkman is named Percy? he said, and ma said, No.

That's good, I haven't quite worked that one out yet, pop said.

And he opened the rest of his letters

C.N.R. VIGOROUS

The C.N.'s 1949 gross operating revenue totalled a record $580,722,386 compared with $491,269,930 the previous year. Operating expenses took $478,501,690 of that —up $13,771,690 from 1948—leaving a net operating revenue of $52,221,726 compared with $26,529,980 two years ago.

The financial statement showed that the C.N. actually had a net operating surplus of $4,057,907 before making provision for close to $46,000,000 in obligations held by the public and the government.

It has been the railway's claim that these fixed annual charges are responsible for recurring annual deficits and it is now seeking capital reorganization to cut them down.

Drop in Traffic

The report said a five-per-cent drop in traffic during 1949, the less financial burden of the newly-acquired Newfoundland railway and the fact that rates still were not in balance with costs all had had an adverse financial effect during the year's operations.

Tabled with the C.N. report was the annual statement of Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships Limited. It also went into the red in 1949 but for a different reason.

Shortage of dollars in the West Indies cut freight trade 21 per cent and the company's revenue by $631,000—$6,585,007 compared with $7,964,710 in 1948. Operating expenses were $6,582,908 compared with $7,230,614 for 1948 operating profit of $12,399 compared with $644,103 in 1948. Payment of interest on bonds and government advances produced a deficit of $460,497 for the year compared with an over-all profit of $168,044 two years ago.

Reference to Case

The railway report made reference to the C.N. case for increased freight rates. It said benefit of rate and fare increases granted during 1949 had been offset by a 9.7 per cent decrease in passenger traffic and 6.44 per cent drop in freight traffic.

The finding of the royal commission for transportation, now considering the views and recommendations of the C.N.R. for financial reorganization, "will be of vital importance to the national system," said the report.

During the year there was an outlay of $47,040,441 in capital expenditure of which $28,332,025 was for new equipment. The report said "dieselization" of the line will continue and it is expected to add 39 more Diesel-electrics to the 148 the system now has in operation, mostly on freight hauls and in railway yards.

The C.N. system continued to be the nation's largest employer with 111,000 on its $311,000,000 annual payroll. Of every dollar the line made, payrolls took 56.5 cents of it.

SUNDAY SPORT

Straight Majority Vote

"People of large cities and urban districts have not the advantages others have," said Premier Frost. People of these cities were good people. They said 'let's have' we should be able to go to sports and games on Sundays.

The vote to decide whether or not a community wanted Sunday sport on the basis of municipal franchise. "There have been representations for a vote on a legislative (provincial) franchise," he continued. "This occasion is the large expense of another election and raises the question of a 60-40 vote in favor of adoption or repeal." The government's view was that the best method was a straight majority vote.

Mr. Jolliffe said it was "deplorable" that most people were interested in sport as spectators rather than participants. "I have no illusion where the principle backing for the affirmative vote in Toronto and Windsor came from," he said. "It came from sponsors of professional sports." There was no doubt however that a great many persons who had no financial interest in sport had voted in favor of Sunday sport.

Does Not Like System

The CCF leader said the principle that only those eligible to vote in municipal elections could vote for or against Sunday sport was "thoroughly bad." The people to whom this house is answerable are the people who vote in provincial elections."

Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver said the Lord's Day Act (a federal measure) allows wide latitude for engaging in sports on Sunday. There was, however, a clear line between sports for which admission is charged and those for which it is not. Since a vote, under the bill, could be called on petition of 10 percent of voters, Sunday sport could be voted in and out of a community "within a couple of months."

Under No Obligation

Harry Nixon (L-Brant) said the legislature was under no obligation to implement "straw votes" held by Toronto and Windsor without authorization of the government.

In a plebiscite held in Brantford voters approved the city's "going into the milk business," but the Legislature had no hesitation in throwing out a private bill to implement the plebiscite.

Debate was adjourned on a motion by Agnes MacPhail, (CCF-York East) asking the Federal government to eliminate the means test as a condition of old age pensions.

Premier Frost gave assurance the debate would be resumed before the Legislature rises, after Liberal Leader Oliver had moved an amendment that the province pay 25 percent of additional costs involved.

The amendment was ruled out of order because private members may not make motions requiring government expenditure. Premier Frost said such an amendment would involve perhaps $50,000,000 or $60,000,000, which the province was unable to bear.

FLOOR PRICES PUT

Canada, he said, always was securing the world for markets for farm products, but the best market was at home. Farmers now were receiving a better overall sales a better price than they could get anywhere, with the possible exception of the spate of cattle sales to the U.S.

There were few food upsteps. Cheese, for example, was 3 cents plus only to the extent of 18,000,000 pounds.

As for government-held butter, this country consumed 1,000,000 pounds a day and the stocks now held soon would disappear.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, suggested a system of fixed farm prices, made known in advance, which would tell the farmer what he was going to get for his produce one, two or three years hence. That was being done in the United Kingdom and the system was working well. It had stimulated production.

May Consider Barter

Canada, he said, was going to have to consider better arrangements for the disposal of her farm surpluses when the Marshall Aid plan ended for European markets were cut off.

T. A. Ross (PC — Souris) and Hazen Argue (CCF — Assiniboia, felt the Legislation should be similar to the formula for fixing floor prices. The Minister of Agriculture should not alone have the power to establish the floor prices.

Robert Fair (SC — Battle River) and Victor Quelch (SC — Acadia) wanted parity prices which would give farmers prices which would bear some relationship to the cost of things they themselves had to buy.

Mr. Quelch felt the farmer now had a "large credit" with the government as a result of "subsidizing" the consumers during the war through controlled prices.

Allied Labor Council Deplores T.L.C. Attempt

Belleville and District Allied Labor Council at its regular monthly meeting last night went on record as deploring the attempt of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress and a few of its affiliates here to set-up another Labor Council for this area.

The following letter has been sent to Percy Bengough, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada in Ottawa:

"The executive and affiliates of the Belleville and District Allied Labor Council view with alarm the attempts recently made by your representative Mr. Len. Lear, to disrupt the harmonious relationship between the various labor organizations in this area, that this council has established. We understand that he is trying to set up a Congress council for this area.

"We, through our organization, have been able to get together many of the Trade Union organizations, regardless of their International or National affiliations. We work entirely on an area basis, with either the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada or the Canadian Congress of Labor. Beside that we have members and affiliates who are not affiliated to either Congress.

"It is our opinion that no good will come to the labor movement here or elsewhere, if a fight for a council is to be brought forward. From what we have been able to gather, our present affiliates will stick to our council and fight for existence, if your Congress insists on an attempt for a divisionist movement, then it seems to us, that the onus for any inter-labor trouble will lie squarely on your organization, that working people will be the only sufferers and employers the gainers of such attempt.

"In view of the fact that after a long struggle in Belleville, organized labor is now becoming a factor in the life of the area, and that this change has been brought about by our collective endeavors in the Allied Labor Council, and because you yourself have repeatedly come out in favor of unity in all the Trade Union movement, we ask you to withdraw from this locality where we have a successful council working and devote your efforts and the efforts of your organization to other areas where there is no council at all.

"We would like to say that so far we have been behind your organization on all matters for the betterment of workers. We have from time to time petitioned on your behalf and backed up many of your public stands. We have done this also in matters on which the Canadian Congress of Labor has taken a good public stand. We hope that you will allow us to maintain this position."

Resolution Forwarded

The following resolution to be sent to Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent at Ottawa was unanimously endorsed:—

"This council supports the demands of the Trade Union Movement for legislative action at this session of Parliament for:—

"(a) Public works to assure jobs at union rates of pay for all workers needing same.

"(b) Immediate extension of Unemployment Insurance to provide for coverage of all wage, salary and agriculture workers and 50 percent increase in benefits and for duration of unemployment.

"(c) Pensions for all Canadians at 60 years of age in an amount at least equal to maximum unemployment insurance benefits and without means test.

"(d) National Health Insurance covering medical, surgical, dental and hospital care.

"(e) Enforcement by law of 40 hour week and 75 cents per hour minimum wage.

"(f) Tax exemption on incomes up to $2,500 with steeply graduated taxes on higher income brackets and corporation and industrial profits.

Goes to Welland

Neville Hamblin, district representative of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America announced that he had been transferred to the UE office in Welland effective April 3rd and that he would be succeeded here by Douglas Tyrer, at present UE representatives in Kingston.

A LOSING BATTLE

Tisdale, Sask. — (CP)— The school board met to discuss financing of new local schools. It learned the provincial government had approved a new bond issue of $10,000. Just then the fire sirens sounded. A $50,000 intermediate school burned to the ground — a total loss.

PENSIONS FOR AGED

Kelowna, B. C. — (CP)—Okanagan district Trades and Labor Council will ask the federal government for a "senior citizens' pension plan" on a contributory basis. The plan would take older citizens from the competitive labor market.

TEMPERS FRAYED DURING LONG NIGHT SITTINGS

Toronto, March 25. (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario, faced with a heavy list of pending legislation, and fearful that the current session of the Ontario legislature will run until the first week of April and might not finish until April 6, the day before Good Friday.

Lieutenant-Governor Ray Lawson Friday gave royal assent to the first batch of completed legislation, 68 bills. The legislature passed through committee stage measures to allow civil marriage in Ontario and to establish provincial racing commission.

Members of the 90-week legislature are beginning to show the strain since night sittings started last January. During the second night sitting on Thursday tempers became frayed and members at least six times were ordered to withdraw unparliamentary remarks. Premier Frost finally called another night sitting on Monday to discuss the progress of the conservation committee.

To speed up proceedings Premier Frost has agreed with opposition leaders on a method of dealing with opposition bills. Once bills are introduced, then debated briefly until the debate is adjourned. The opposition leaders have agreed that such bills will not be voted again but will be left on order paper when the session is prorogued. This eliminates time spent going through the motions of voting down the opposition bills.

To Debate Labor Code

Principal piece of government legislation still to be debated is the new Ontario labor code. Debate on second reading was adjourned and Premier Frost said will not be resumed until after the budget and the estimates have been approved.

'Stop Leopold' Strike Ended After One Day

Brussels, Mar. 25 (AP) — Belgium went back to work today after a one-day "Stop Leopold" strike that took nearly 400,000 workers from their jobs.

The country started its second week of "wait-and-see" government as the 81-year-old elder statesman, Count Henri Carton de Wiart, told Regent Prince Charles he could not find an answer to the crisis he faces when Premier Gaston Eyskens and his cabinet resigned last Saturday.

The regent was expected to ask a Socialist political personality, probably from Eyskens' Social Christian (Catholic) Party, to form a cabinet. Such a government probably would be made up entirely from the premier-designate's party, Refusal of Liberal party ministers to accept Eyskens's pro-Leopold's plans had caused his government's resignation.

Friday's strike aroused violence only in Brussels, where attempts to operate streetcars and streetcars provoked riots culminating in a saboteur's bomb wrecking a streetcar. Nine persons were reported injured in the series of disturbances in the capital.

Elsewhere the country remained quiet during the walkout, which was confined to the Brussels area and to the country's entire southern industrial section.

Throughout the strike area and in Brussels, the Socialists—who had called the walkout—held rallies protesting the proposed return of exiled King Leopold III to his throne.

Frankfurt, Germany, March 25 (AP)— The U.S. Air Force today announced about 53 of the 85 Czechs who landed in the U.S. zone of Germany Friday wanted to return to their communist-ruled homeland.

The Czechs landed at the Erding air base near Munich in three planes. Two of the planes, the air force, "landed voluntarily." The other put down "with the chief pilot at the point of a gun."

Brig. General of the Czech airline," the announcement continued, was the only "prominent or important" person in the group, most of whom had bought tickets for Prague and "evidently had no knowledge that they were to land in the U.S. zone of Germany."

The planes, the air force said, departed from Bratislava, Ostrava and Brno—"widely separated cities in Czechoslovakia"—and were cleared for Prague.

Express Desire

Preliminary investigations by USAFE (U.S. Air Force in Europe) authorities indicate approximately 50 persons have expressed a desire to return to their homeland," the communique continued.

The announcement did not say whether the landing was part of a mass, organized plot, what was meant by "landing voluntarily" and whether the Czech airline president — who was not otherwise identified — was one of those who wanted to stay or go back.

Big Game Hunter, Frank Buck, Dies; Had Roamed Earth

Houston, Mar. 25 (AP)—Frank Buck, the "bring 'em back alive" big game hunter, died in hospital here today.

Buck had been in the hospital about a month. Shortly before that time he came here from his San Angelo Tex. home for a physical at a hospital for cancer research.

Buck was 68 years old.

Death in bed overtook the man who had lived a life of hairbreadth escapes in the corners of the world.

From the time he was 18, Buck roamed the earth. In 1911 he made his first trip to Asia, according to South America—the first of a series in search of rare animals and reptiles that built his "bring 'em back alive" reputation.

Buck was born March 7, 1884, at Gainesville, Texas, where his father operated a wagon yard. In his autobiography, "Bring 'em Back Alive," published chiefly in animals and geography, he told of his school after the seventh grade to make those interests his life.

RENTAL CONTROLS TO BE ABOLISHED ON APRIL 30, 1951

Govt. Will Not Ask For Further Extension

Ottawa, March 25 — (CP) — Federal rent controls in the residential field will go out the legislative window April 30, 1951.

From then on, it will be up to the provinces to decide whether ceiling on private accommodation is going to be held. Commercial rentals already are free.

This new government policy was made clear in the Commons Friday by Finance Minister Abbott in a statement in which he said the government doesn't intend to ask for a further extension of its wartime powers to control rents or prices beyond April 30, next year.

But, he gave this assurance: Until that date present rentals are frozen, except for individual cases or minor amendments to the leasehold regulations that may be found necessary.

He made the announcement in moving legislation to extend for another 12 months, April 30, 1951,—the wartime powers which give the government authority to establish ceilings on rentals and prices.

At the moment, he said, no price controls are in effect. Nor does the government intend to reimpose them.

The government's action met a varied reception.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the government's method wasn't the right one. He wanted a bill which would "definitely" end the right of tenants and landlords. This was the same legislation he sought last year when the government asked for a similar extension of rent-control powers.

C.C.F. To Support Bill

The C.C.F. party, through Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre), said it would vote for the bill because it would keep in effect the ceiling which was left. But it was skeptical of the government's assurance that there would be no further changes in rental ceilings.

Fire Destroys Grimsby Arena

Grimsby, March 25 — (CP) — Early today fire completely destroyed the Grimsby arena and threatened a neighboring cold storage plant before being brought under control by firemen.

The old wooden rink, once used by Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League for their pre-season training, was used by nearly all hockey teams in the Grimsby area and just a few hours before the blaze was the scene of a game starting earlier in half-starved and that a physician the Lord also was summoned.

She has appeared in several motion pictures at a fee of $100 a day.

The child ran away from the Michel home yesterday after she complained she was hungry and had been punished when Michel ate she changed her story after talking with Juvenile Judge A. A. Scott and said that Michel had treated her well. Afterward she testified against her foster mother in her trial.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 25 — (CP) — Synopsis: Wet snow and rain fell over Southern Ontario Friday night. The disturbance that caused the precipitation centered rapidly as it moved along the lower lakes and consequently did not affect a larger area of Southern Ontario. The cloud over Southern Ontario are clearing this morning and mostly sunny skies are expected throughout the province today. Maximum temperatures this afternoon should reach the 40 degree mark in all except our far north regions.

A low pressure system developing over Colorado will take a course toward the Great Lakes region. Rising temperatures will occur Sunday in advance of this system and rain will likely spread into western sections of Ontario later in the day.

Drew Challenges Govt. to Make Good Promises on Old-Age Pensions Without Means Test

Ottawa, March 25 (CP) — A challenge was issued in the Commons Friday night for the government to make good promises to start an old-age pensions scheme without the much criticized means test.

It was made by Progressive Conservative Leader Drew who said the government, as far back as 1945, had said it was willing to inaugurate a contributory old-age pensions scheme. Instead it was suggesting with a plan to establish a parliamentary committee.

Removal of the means test and expansion of the government's old-age pensions scheme had been matters of public statements by various government ministers in the last few years, Mr. Drew said.

The only thing left for the government to do was to reconvene the 1945 Dominion-Provincial conference, get provincial approval of its plans and bring the legislation into the Commons.

Mr. Drew said the government has stated the reason it did not proceed with its proposals was because it did not achieve agreement with the provinces five years ago.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Drew added, the government did propose those social security measures which the government proposed.

Health Minister Martin said that statement was factual.

Mr. Drew knew, as did others in the House, that health proposals which might have been put forward at the conference were lower priority in the hierarchy of needs than the money with which to abolish the means test.

Foster-Mother Of Child Actress Freed of Charge

Beverley Hills, Calif., March 25 (AP)—Lora Lee Michel's foster mother was free today of a charge of unlawfully administering the nine-year-old child actress.

A jury of eight women and four men returned a verdict of innocent shortly after more than seven hours' deliberation.

Mrs. Lorraine Michel, 53, shed a few tears when she heard the verdict.

The prosecutor charged that the child actress was beaten and starved and her health was jeopardized by an insufficient diet to keep her from outgrowing juvenile roles.

Mrs. Ruth Wargin, the child's drama coach, testified Mrs. Michel ordered the girl spanked Lora Lee with a hair brush last Dec. 15 because the child had stolen candy. Other prosecution witnesses said they saw bruises on the child's body.

Mrs. Michel denied she used a hair brush and said she spanked Lora Lee only with her hand for telling falsehoods. She testified the child was starving when she was half-starved and that a physician

Two are Killed When Dynamite Load Explodes

By CLIFTON FAISLEY

Nashville, Tenn., March 25. (AP)—A truck loaded with ten tons of dynamite caught fire and exploded in the heart of northwest of here Friday night. Two persons were killed and the explosion was rocked for 50 miles around.

The spectacular blast dug a 15-foot crater through the highway and tossed huge slabs of concrete lines and threw most of the sparsely-settled mid-Tennessee area into darkness.

Police did identify the other man were not immediately succeeded.

Police did identify the other man were not immediately succeeded.

The truck driver, listed as Lloyd L. Brantley, 39, of McCalla, Ala., was driving a truck loaded ed with 400 cases of explosive to a big strip mining project near

"I saw his truck smoking and flashed my lights," Brantley said. Engineer men. "The driver stopped in his cab and when he got out it started flaming up.

"He (Brantley) shouted out, 'the fire is spreading to the dynamite. Let's get out of here.'

"I turned my car in the road and I went south, stopping cars and telling them to turn around. I'd heard a fourth of a mile down the road when it exploded with a big white-and-red light."

The explosion was felt and heard in all parts of Nashville and flooded newspaper offices with inquiring phone calls. Persons who flocked to the scene from both directions on the highway were knocked down. None of the injured was reported in critical condition.

Modena, Italy, March 25.—(Reuters)—Two Modena barbers, Ilio Collegari and Armando Laio, left off shaving customers and started a duel with their latter brushes after an argument.

EXPORT PICTURE FOR FEBRUARY NOT SO BRIGHT

Canada's Hold on U.K., India's Markets Weaker

Ottawa, March 25 (CP)— Canadians wrested a larger share of the dollar-rich United States market last month, but her hold on the markets in the United Kingdom and India weakened.

For the fourth straight month Canadian traders increased exports to the U.S. as they sold $128,838,000 worth of goods in February, up almost 21 percent from the $106,709,000 sold across the line in February, 1949.

"Price changes reflecting the premium on United States exchange have contributed to this increase," the bureau of statistics reported Friday. "But its size indicates a substantial rise also in the volume of exports."

Canada's export figure for February was not so bright.

Large declines in exports to the United Kingdom shoved the total exports to all countries during February down to $183,000,000 compared with $205,000,000 in February, 1949, a year ago. Coupled with a similar drop in January, it sent exports for the two months of 1950 to $371,400,000 below $442,000,000 sold in the same months last year.

Animals Face Increase

Sale of animals and animal products paced the increase in exports to the U.S. together with wood and products, non-ferrous metals and products.

All main groups except non-metallic minerals —one of the smallest in value — registered declines in shipments to the U.K. down sharply to $30,374,000 from $84,134,000 in the same month last year. The two-month total showed a drop from $99,927,000 to $78,981,000.

The largest declines were in agriculture and vegetable products non-ferrous metals and metal and paper groups.

Sales to the other Commonwealth countries as a whole were off during February to $30,300,000 from $17,500,000 in February 1949 with the drop almost entirely due to a sharp reduction on exports to India.

Chrysler Offer Raises Hopes Of Strike End

Detroit, March 25 — (AP) — The way today seemed open to end the Chrysler strike, as hope the stoppage entered its third month.

A company offer to put $30,000,000 into a pension trust fund —and the United Automobile Workers Union (C.I.O.) accepting the offer as a conciliation —gave promise of breaking the deadlock.

Idling both sides comprising, a basis for settlement appeared at hand for 140,000 automobile workers to the job-less ranks during recent months in recent months until Sunday afternoon. Mediators arranged it that way, hoping that negotiators for the two industries would come up with proposals before after a day to "think it over."

The 89,000 strikers meanwhile went through their 60th day of idleness. Another 50,000 persons have been idled indirectly by the walkout.

Pomona, Calif., March 25. (AP) —Two elephants, frightened by a passing train, broke away from their circus keepers Friday night, ran amok for 1 1-2 hours and critically injured an attendant who tried to load them back on their train.

Leroy Spelman, 29, circus attendant, was trampled when a four-ton female elephant picked him up in her trunk, threw him to the ground and then rolled on him. He was taken to Pomona hospital with multiple abrasions and internal injuries.

Police said the huge animals were being led back to the circus train after a performance of the Clyde Beatty circus here.

A bull elephant broke from the herd when a passing train threw them into panic.

The pair tore loose from their handlers and set out on a rampage through the Los Angeles suburb that caused uncounted damage.

Frightened residents deluged the police station switchboard with hysterical stories of monsters roaming through their backyards and crashing through fences.

Police and circus attendants finally cornered the elephants in a vacant lot, quited them and led them back to the circus train. The train departed soon afterward for San Fernando, Calif.

Freebooter Wins Grand National Chase at Aintree

Race Run in Bright Sunshine With Royal Family Present

Freebooter, a 10 to 1 shot, was tried up in the field of 40 starters all the way. He pulled level with pace-making Clonmarky with two fences to go.

Clonmarky tumbled at the next to last obstacle in the 30-jump course over four miles and 856 yards.

Freebooter, closing magnificently, simply ran away from what was left of the field.

Wot No Sun, at 100 to 7, was second, 12 lengths behind, and Aethon Major, 33-1, third.

Raked His Legs

Hopes of a Royal victory were dashed when Monarchy, who left after the first hair mile, raked one of his legs going over the 14th jump. His rider, Tony Grantham, nearly fell out of the saddle. Monarchy recovered from the fire and gradually faded, finishing fifth. Queen's Camelias was sixth.

Monaveen was purchased last year by the Queen and Princess Elizabeth. They own the colors, silks of the Princess.

Freebooter, who won a year ago Coupled with a similar drop in $2,500 each, Tony Grantham, a Irish Hospital Sweepstakes prizes in the running of the Grand National at Aintree.

The 33-year-old woman and a hotel employee at Ottawa got prizes of $21,000 each. They held tickets on No. 7, Wot No Sun, which placed second. Another Ottawa man won $1,000 with a ticket on Aethon Major, which came third.

Mrs. Cantelon is known to hold an Irish Sweeps ticket on the winner, Freebooter. A ticket on the winning horse cost $2,000.

The known winners:

Mrs. J. G. Cantelon, 33-year-old Toronto secretary, whose husband is in hotel business—$21,000.

Montreal—(CP)—Rene Crevier of Chicoutimi, Que., won the $36,000 first prize in the annual sweepstake of Les Amis de Canada, Quebec unit, sweepstakes on the Grand National race at 8 p.m. Friday.

Second prize money—$23,000—was won by J. J. Levie, Quebec City and the third place award of $15,000 goes to C. W. Dena of New York.

Rolling School Brings More Than Three R's to Children of Hinterland

Fort Frances, March 25—(CP) —The school on wheels brings far more than the bare three R's to the children of isolated parts of the Rainy River district.

The school, one of seven converted railway cars that trundle over the railway lines through the back areas of Ontario, serves the itinerant child population.

Children of lumbermen, trappers, section gangs, fishermen and park rangers are moved around too much to attend a permanent school.

Instead the rolling classroom visits them for five to seven days every six weeks. The teacher hears and corrects their lessons and leaves a new batch of homework with them against the next "class".

Despite the fact that the kids have to live beside the track—sometimes in shacks in 40-below-zero weather—during the protracted visit, they receive a higher asset attendance record of any in the province.

Car No. 4 which proves the 150-mile route from Port Arthur to Fort Frances, posts a 95-per-cent record.

The parents also like the system. In the classroom portion of the car they gather avantages bar cards, political discussion, chess and music — welcome breaks in the monotony of isolated life.

Mrs. James Chalmers, wife of the teacher on No. 4, has this to say:

"While we hope to have succeeded in bringing something into the lives of both children and parents, the advantages bar cards far from one-sided.

"We have learned much . . . of the ways and customs of many nationalities."

Hospital Board Will Ask Provincial Chest Clinic To Vacate Present Quarters

Due to the lack of space and the need for the accomodation to be used for other purposes, the Provincial chest clinic now operating in the Belleville General Hospital, will be asked to vacate its present quarters.

This was decided by members of the hospital Board of Governors at their regular meeting Friday night. The action was decided it would be to the financial advantage of the hospital to use the latter purposes the space now occupied by the clinic. In lieu of the present accommodation it was voted to offer the health clinic quarters in the hospital-owned private residence immediately east of the institution.

It was stipulated in the recommendation, however, that the hospital Board would not spend any money in renovating the premises for occupation of the clinic.

Laundry Ready in Six Weeks

Chairman of the property committee Mr. J. H. Legge, reported it would be approximately six weeks before the new hospital laundry would be ready for occupation. To a question by Mayor H. J. Allin as to how the plans were keeping within its estimates with respect to the new laundry and equipment, Mr. Legge replied that this would be the case. The building is of wood and brick construction on the neighborhood of $25,000, he stated.

Dr. J. Marshall presented a tentative financial statement for February and March, advising that there was no cause for worry regarding the financial condition of the hospital.

He said that accounts owing by the hospital on February, 1949, had been considerably reduced as compared with the same period last year.

Mayor Suggests System

Mayor Allin suggested that a bookkeeping system be set up whereby commitments of the hospital could be determined at all times.

Hastings county Warden Clarke Rollins wanted a complete list of the hospital staff and the payroll for the past five years. He was told this was not possible but records kept since the city took over the hospital showed a staff of 285 in 1948 with a payroll of $270,000, while in 1949 there was a staff of 296 with a payroll of $320,000. Pay increases granted from the staff list as approved by the board, it was stated.

"Cost of the various hospital departments will fluctuate according to need," Mr. H. Wakefield, hospital administrator said. For instance the maintenance staff had been temporarily increased to take care of the heavy maintenance program started necessary. All major maintenance and other projects had the approval of the board before they were started.

Tentative Plan Outlined

Dr. Marshall told of what had been accomplished last year by way of maintenance and in the purchase of needed equipment and also laid out a tentative plan for the current and following years.

Among these items was the replacement of enamelware by stainless steel which it was estimated would cost $3,000 on a gradual basis. Badly chipped hospital enamelware was shown by way of indicating the need of replacement.

Another item was the purchase of hospital linens, furnishings for the conversion of-private rooms into semi-private. Present demand was for increased conversion of semi-private rooms and Dr. Marshall stated that with such conversion would net the hospital an additional $2,500 per room each year. Private rooms would be reconverted according to need.

Approve New Schedule

Board members approved of a new schedule of laboratory fees under which there would be no laboratory tests for patients unless ordered by the doctor. At present there is considerable complaint from patients who object to payment of the flat $3.00 laboratory charge with each admission to hospital. Under the new schedule each laboratory test would be charged separately.

Mayor Allin noted that members of council desired to know more of hospital operation details after they were receiving much criticism when they voted the increased tax rate. He suggested that a committee meet together with the board some evening for a round table discussion.

"I don't object to the meeting," replied board chairman P. C. McGuire, "but we don't like members of council sitting on the board should as the latter are the ones the information asked by council."

Mr. McGuire pointed out that board members were already spending a great deal of time in looking after hospital business and would not appreciate additional meetings with council.

Should Be Told Facts Clash

"If councillors think that board members are just playing around they should be told the facts," he said.

Dr. Jack Marshall said that items in the budget for the new hospitalization should have been broken down by council when the 1950 budget was presented. This included indigent accounts, welfare and mental patient charges for which the hospital was not responsible, he said.

Alderman Latimer said that out of necessity a greatest concerns was what was being done regarding accounts receivable. He was told that this matter was under consideration by the board.

He also requested regarding a list of estimated expenditures and receipts for the current year. This he was told would be in the city hall, he was told. The alderman also still regarded a monthly financial statement requested from the board. Dr. Marshall said that this also was in preparation.

Committee Set up

A stores and pharmacy committee was set up with Alderman Latimer as convener, a committee man to have authority to name committee members. In suggesting that such a committee be set up Alderman Latimer said this would relieve some of the present duties of the administrator and would give the latter more more to do thus creating a greater interest.

A new pathologist, J. Forbes Booth, graduate of Queen's, Belfast, has been retained by the hospital. Mr. Forbes specialized in pathology while at Queen's and will act as full time director of laboratories for the Belleville General Hospital. He reported for duty this week.

Chamber Endorses Proposed Drive Of Kinsmen Club

Directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce at their regular meeting this week gave their unanimous endorsation to the proposed campaign of the local Kinsmen Club to raise funds for the community swimming pool to be constructed on Dundas street.

The month of May will be proclaimed by Mayor Allin as "Community Swimming Pool Month" when the local service club will conduct a strenuous campaign to raise money for the construction of the proposed swimming pool. It is the plan of service club members to approach all citizens, manufacturers and business men seeking contributions to swell the fund.

Meet With Committee

Directors of the Chamber will meet with the civic committee to discuss the possibility of increasing the scope locally of the Community Chest campaign. It was pointed out that contributions of Belleville people to the community chest are but 93 cents per capita while the average for Canada to community chest programs is $2.02 per capita. It was felt if contributions in this city could be raised to near the national average there would be sufficient money to provide for many more worthwhile organizations.

May Eliminate Tag Days

Object of increasing the scope of the community chest would be to eliminate many of the spirited tag days staged by organizations in the city.

Mr. Bill Doyle reported on the program outlined by the retail merchants' committee. Considerable interest was being shown in plans to improve local parking situation, it was stated. It was suggested that an educational campaign might be undertaken to encourage Belleville citizens to shop during the week and not on Saturdays for rural customers.

A. M. Haig said the traffic problem in Belleville was serious and that consideration should be given to employing a trained traffic engineer to make a survey and report.

Letter Arrives 40 Years Late

Burrs, Mar. 25 (Special) — It took forty years for a letter to be delivered from the village of Bloomfield to this mid-Prince Edward County community, a distance of some seven or eight miles.

Mrs. Fred Portelly, residing here, expressed her eyes in amazement the other day when the mail brought her a letter written by a sister, Mrs. Lizzie Bowen, in Calgorne, 40 years ago.

The letter, with other pieces of undelivered mail, was found by workmen during recent renovations to the Bloomfield post office.

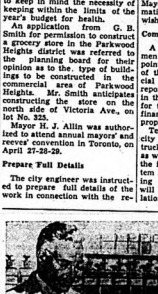
Council Considers Appointment Of Full Time Medical Officer

The local board of health will be requested to investigate the possibility of employing a full time medical officer of health for the city of Belleville it was recommended by members of the council at their committee meeting Thursday evening.



In considering the feasibility of employing a full-time health officer, the board was requested to keep in mind the necessity of employing a full time officer for this year's budget for health.

An application from G. B. Smith for permission to construct a grocery store in the Parkwood Heights district was referred to the planning board for their opinion as to the type of buildings to be constructed in the commercial area of Parkwood Heights. Mr. Smith is planning constructing the store on the north side of Victoria Ave., on lot No. 325.

Mayor H. J. Allin was authorized to attend annual mayor and reeves' convention in Toronto, on April 27-28-29.

Prepare Full Details

The city engineer was instructed to prepare full details of the work in connection with the resurfacing of certain streets in the city this year. Approval of the work for the customary Department of Highways grant will be requested.

Council concurred with a request from the local Kinsmen Club for the month of May to be designated as "Community Swimming Pool Month" for the purpose of conducting a campaign to raise $50,000 for their proposed swimming pool. Mayor Allin will make a proclamation in accordance with the wish of the service club.

Committee Reports

A special committee of Alderman Clarke, Hyde and Argue, appointed to look after the interest of the Library Board for financial assistance to pay insurance, reported that council had never in the past paid any insurance for the library. This had been financed out of the library appropriation.

Tenders will be called by the city for a new three ton dump truck, and for a street flusher, as well as materials to be used in the construction of a turning system at the board of works building on Church Street. Tenders will also be called for the installation of the equipment.

IN MEMORIAM

HAMILTON — Mr. C. Hamilton left this world March 25th, 1949.
The passing years can never take the memory of a dear husband.
Mason and Murphy families. M25

SHARPE — In memory of our dear husband and father, Rev. L. M. Sharpe, who passed away March 26, 1949.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
And those who live within our hearts at the end of life's journey.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days
Sincere and true in heart and mind
Beautiful memories he left behind.
Gone but missed and ever remembered
The family. M25

HASTINGS IN ERIN

By LAVONIA STOCKELBACH

It is said that you find on your travels only what you are prepared to find. And it takes many years sometimes of such preparation. First the story of its past, then some interest in its hills and rivers, and a definite knowledge of the birds and flowers that give one the very needed rest after hours of travel even under super-best conditions.

Not least of my wishes was to view what had been done with stone in Ireland One goes to Denmark for the study of the exquisite brickwork in churches, cathedrals and houses. But, with all due respect to Mr. Churchill, anyone can learn to be a brick-layer by one book. It is another thing to be a stone-mason.

As one sat sketching these old abbey walls, or admiring the stone bridges, one could see in imagination the ancient workman looking at the stone that was to be fitted, and honestly fitted, into a certain wall. Every stone he handled required a separate effort of judgment. And as brain work is ever more painful than work that entered only the brawn and strength one can not but have the deepest respect for the man who combines the two — brain and brawn.

For thousands of years these Irish have used both in their building. The bee-hive stone dwellings must have taken considerable skill, flesh that chambers are the oldest specimens of stone-built-work in the British Isles.

Some of the old walls are built of boulders and surface stones, the interstices packed with spawls and grindings. Flat stones carefully laid together, were fitted and no mortar used. They certainly required much skill. The round towers of the 6th century always had me worshipping at their base, and the history of the great advance in the art of masonry before the 12th century is decidedly more interesting than the history of bloody wars.

It was at first puzzling to see such a number of little churches huddled together as in Wicklow until one learned that is was easier to build seven churches about the same size than to master the technical difficulties of one large church.

Some one ought to write an article on what an ruins of Ireland have to teach, the preparation and firing of stone, the making of mortars and cements. It would be of great interest to the people of the county of Hastings where the beautiful rocks are still quite waiting to be of service to us — for houses, schools and churches; churches to awaken emotions of joy and content in the minds of those too poor to travel and see fine churches; schools: whose simple beauty will call back the happy free days of childhood; houses: that can protect one long enough to see the growth of that greatest of blessings — a home. The rocks of Hastings are waiting their masters.

A few days after arriving in London there was an invitation from a friend to lunch with him at a club in Hanover Square, the members of which were chiefly men who had had posts in India. He promised me the best curry in London though such a delightful inducement was not needed. The important thing was that he could do that, because at last — curie could be had in England. Such trifles came as a little shock and made one realize their hardships in having to do without such a commonplace thing as rice.

As you enter the dining room you see on the right hand wall a life-size portrait of an unusually attractive man in uniform. On stopping to read the name it proved to be Viscount Gerard Lake, with whose name another of our townships is associated.

What curious chances help one!

My host asked me why there was such an especial interest in that one portrait, there were numbers of them in the room, so he had to listen to the story of the townships of Hastings and the reason for the route chosen for my tour in Ireland. It needed explaining. Over our sherry we got back to Lake at Vinegar Hill where I had been a few weeks before, and where Lake had been on the British force which suppressed the rebellion in Ireland in 1798.

My host liked his battles straight so we went over the lay of the land but touched lightly on the horrors of that particular engagement. It is not easy to sift such contrary evidence as has come down to us but it is impossible for me to believe that the man with such a sympathetic face could have been guilty of any of the horrors at the time of the defeat of the Irish insurgents. The story of the part of Lake's life is the story of the Rebellion and of the politics of those years.

He (Lake) was born in 1744 and it was not until the beginning of the next century that he went to India where he won his greatest renown. For years in London he had led the life of a guardsman and a courtier at a corrupt court. Everything, you would think, had combined to soften his character and render him useless. His physical strength his great charm of manner amounting almost to magnetism might easily have spoiled him.

But underneath his charm and graciousness was a man of energy, a man of quick decisions. When he decided on a course of action nothing could turn him from it. It is not without a glow of pride that one reads the details of his campaigns in India. Just as one reads and re-reads the story of the sinking of the Bismarck, the story of any of the battles that have won us our present freedom, so one reads the stories of past conquests.

How many times since the Battle of Hastings had the Briton needed to arm to protect himself from the French! Now the French were being fought in India and the great Mogul was to be delivered from their power. Lake's personal bravery won the love and respect of every man under him so that he was enabled to perform feats that would never have been done without that loyalty and liking: he could cover great distances in an incredibly short time. He seemed not to know fear, in almost every battle he had had a horse shot under him, only to mount another and continue the fight.

His swiftness and surprise attacks, the quick following up of a victory bore down all the opposition of the French who were not always as loyal to each other as they might have been. The breath of his career was reached at Laswaree, a campaign that lasted only a few days.

He left India in 1807, was given the title of Viscount and a pension of £2,000 and a century and a half ago that was a real money. The next year he died leaving three sons and five daughters but the title became extinct a hundred years ago.

His was a small part of the story of the British fights in India against the French and the Portuguese. We can understand the present state of India only by knowing what led to the British conquests. How little could Englishmen dream that the East India Co., at first consisting of only a few enterprising merchants, would eventually establish themselves as the controllers of an immense empire.

They were granted this and that privilege merely to stimulate the business enterprise of individuals, adventurers, if you like, and history tells us of the great power they gained and now each daily paper tells us of the sequel.

Another of the happen-stances that travel was to a cloister of Lincoln Cathedral, England. Strolling along the cloister is gorgeous bit of color caught my eye. A row or coats-of-arms had been placed beneath the window and the one I looked at had the name of Sir Edward Lake. I am not at all know whether he was the same Lake family we have been talking about but one day will find out. The motto was:

Un Dieu, un Roy, un Coeur.
One God, one King, one Heart.

Also, on reading over these pages it comes to me that you might be interested to know what that chicken curry was like. It was definitely good though the first mouthful made one think an A-bomb had come down a smack on my nose, though of course, I should not be here to tell it if that were the case. It seems to be the fashion to find fault with English food, but it seems to me I had some memorably good meals there.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED G. WILSON

FRIENDLY SOUL

What a joy to know that our migratory birds are returning. The earliest of the transients is the phoebe: possibly because it did not have as far to travel as the rest, never wintering beyond Mexico. First comes the male, in pussy willow season, soon followed by his wife, that is his counterpart. Oddly enough this friendly soul is difficult to identify, being one of several very similar species. In order to make no mistake, we are to take into consideration just where the bird is seen, its behavior, call, and minute details of plumage.

There is always at least one good reason why a particular location should be chosen by any bird. A phoebe's nest is perfect for a nest is on some beam or other flat surface underneath an old bridge crossing a stream. Mud will then be ready for the nesting foundation; moisture brings insects around, which means plenty of food; a post or railing makes a satisfactory look-out perch from which to dart after prey. However, some projecting ledge under a verandah roof or barn may be the desirable spot because of the protection from hawks or owls. Before civilization overran this continent the phoebe made its nest in a niche of a shelving cliff, but one will be glad to have man's company.

Although we are delighted to have this bird around because of itself and its mate, the best way to rids a neighborhood of various kinds of flies, mosquitoes, ants, beetles, grasshoppers, we are not so fond of the phoebe's bulky nest. This is built of mud and moss which invariably seem to gather there. But a spray with ordinary insect powder usually stops that nuisance, and does no harm to our little feathered friends.

The phoebe is no singer, its call is the distinct, energetic repetition of its own name, "phoe-be, phoe-be." The wood pewee, seldom heard very near habitations, has a three-syllabled, long drawn out call, and its voice is less vigorous and more mournful.

In order to differentiate between the seven-inch phoebe and other flycatchers, we must note that its head is a little darker than its greenish grey body, the wings have no bars, and the legs and feet are rather heavily made. Also the sideways twitching of a long tail and the yellow under its black bill just before it dives after a passing fly are quite characteristic.

PROBING AT SECRET OF DISEASE

East from Western Canada a week or so ago in the interests of science, will serve the cause of progress.

It is hoped by scientists to discover from examination of the carcass something of the nature of the disease which claimed this animal and a good many young lambs of the flock owned by the farmer in the West.

Modern study of the ills that befall man and beast is thorough. It has achieved what in other ages would have been called miracles or wonders. Every new fact adds to the sumtotal of knowledge of the science which looks to the welfare of the animals which play a very important part in man's economy and progress.

LOOKING FORWARD

Forecasts or prophetic utterances will always have a following. It is not that people are altogether discontented with what they have and with the conditions in which they live and that they would like to live in a world vastly different, but that life in all its phases and forms is so intensely interesting and that man cannot help liking to hear some one say just what is to be, even if he hears knows that in all probability the future will be quite different from what is forecast.

Rather an interesting picture of the world as it may be built a century hence is that portrayed by Dr. Gerald Wendt, who was the science director for the New York World Fair. The other day, in speaking of life in the year 2,000 A.D., he said some things that people of today may be ready to accept. One was that men will be riding around in cars which are powered with rear engines as small as a typewriter. Wonders just as great as that have been achieved. The first automobile was a greater wonder, just as the first plane was a great one or the first A-bomb. Thes. Inventions and even those jo come have their basis laid in discoveries as old as the first man with a scientific mind.

The doctor's next prediction was that plane travel will be no more costly than bus travel is today. Most people have seen enough of progress to think that altogether likely. What they would like to know however is what a plane of the year 2,000 will look like and many other details about it. The doctor's guess does stir the human fancy.

Some will not be so sure of the next prediction: that interplanetary-rocket travel will be available at the end of the century. Many persons today would be adverse to any attempts with them as passengers to reach Mars or Venus and wonder if there be some Columbuses of the air and space make these journeys — now in the imagination — and then come back safe with tales of wonder, that would tempt the average man of the year 2,000 to agree to leave this old earth, even on the guarantee that he would be returned safely to this planet, earth.

Next prediction is one that does shir imagination: it is that factories will turn out products without the touch of a hand. Of course many products today are produced in just that way and there cannot but be continued progress along that line to lighten the burden of labor which rests on the shoulders and fails to the hands of man.

Dr. Wendt looks for electronic thinking by machines working for humans on a wide front of activities. Much of that is being done today and more may be expected. But as to "thinking" it is doubtful if people would quite like that for the human prefers to think. All the progress this globe and man has made in the past thirty or forty centuries has made the world what it is today.

It takes no extraordinary guess to say that everybody in the year 2,000 will have more time for sports, recreation, religion and culture.

It seems a foregone conclusion today as it has seemed for a long time since the coming of machines that the time would come when there would be time for cultural activities. That has been already achieved in a large degree and one cannot see any reason why such developments should not be just as predicted.

JUST FOLKS

TWO YEARS OLD

Two years old! That seems to me
Much too soon so smart to be,
Now indelible appears
All he's learned in two brief years.
Wisdom fills our Terry's head,
He knows everything that's said.

Think of it! Though only

He has learned both "don't" and "do."
"Mustn't touch!" he under-stands,
Is to stay his eager hands,
Mention "dandy" and he shows
Just what dandy is he knows.

Without words he cannot say
What he wants is plain as day
By a method all his own
What he's after he makes known
Two, and with that smiling face
Lord and master of the place!

Two! I wonder what he'll

At the older age of three?
Tyrants now we all obey;
When this year has flown away,
Slaves to every mood and whim
We'll be bowing down to him

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed

"I honestly don't know what the boss thought of your cooking when he came to dinner last week — but he hasn't been in the office since."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

LOOKING BACKWARDS

20 YEARS AGO

March 25th, 1930

Members of the Kiwanis Club took the old people from the House of Refuge in their cars this afternoon to the Belle Theatre where they were the guests of Manager Geo. Forbes and the Kiwanis Club. This is the second time the old folks have been entertained in this manner.

Mr. Owen T. Staples, well-known Ontario artist, addressed the members of the Rotary Club yesterday.

Six thousand motor car licenses have been issued here so far this year according to Mr. H. F. Ketcheson from whose office the licenses are obtained for this district.

March 25th, 1920.

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Association, which was held at the Y.M.C.A., the president, D. V. Sinclair, presided, and B. F. Jennings acted as secretary. It was decided to postpone the election of officers to a later date. Mr. Beal, Provincial Organizer for the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association, addressed the meeting and informed the members that it would be in order for the local association to become a section of the local Chamber of Commerce, but must retain its own identity and have its own secretary. On motion of F. C. Smith, seconded by Ald. Charles Hanna, it was decided that the association would associate itself with the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

40 YEARS AGO

March 25th, 1910.

This has been, so far, the driest month of March experienced in many years.

The frogs were singing last night — spring is certainly here.

Something should be done with the footbridge, with a crowd upon it the venerable structure swings in a manner which greatly frightens timid ladies.

Mr. Ernest Twining of Toronto, an old Belleville boy, is spending a few days in town.

Mr. H. J. Clarke is attending the teachers' convention in Toronto.

Mr. William Holley was home from Toronto to spend Easter.

Mr. T. McQuaig of Cornwall is visiting his parents here.

50 YEARS AGO

March 25th, 1900.

Friends in this city have received interesting letters from Glencoe Hulme, Walter Mills and Jack McMullen, who are now serving with the Canadian forces in the war in South Africa.

It is a little early yet, but how about providing a public bath in this city? Don't all speak at once, gentlemen of the city council.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Powell of Watertown, N.Y., are visiting relatives here.

Mr. W. J. McConnie is spending a few days in Toronto.

Police Magistrate J. J. B. Flint and Crown Attorney P. J. M. Anderson are attending court in Trenton today.

Mr. C. Bull has purchased from Mr. Phil Harte the famous St. Bernard dog, St. Pienlimmon the Third.

Old Era Reflected In Dawson

Dawson City is unique among small towns. It was built for, and it once nurtured 25,000 people or more. Even although it is still an incorporated city, its population has shrunk to less than 800 Pierre Button writes in London Calling.

It is a city full of memories and nostalgia, but unlike most towns the memories are still fresh and new in Dawson after 50 years, because the gay old dance-halls and the crooked saloons and gambling houses, and the little log cabins and the low, rambling, frame houses were built by men who were hungry for gold and came back in the days of '98. All these old buildings still stand beside the wooden sidewalks and lawn sets and along the gravel roadways.

Return of Native

I must say that when I drove in from the airport, which is built of Archie Fairgler's farm, about 20 miles up the Klondike River, and crossed the Klondike on the dike Bluff and saw once again the buildings of my old home town, I felt a shock.

Some of the old buildings had gone, of course. Many have been razed more oeen. There had been another fire in 1951 and the old Yukon Hotel had burned down. It used to be the old M. & F. In the old days its owner Silent Dan Bonnesfield the gambler, had lost all his money at the card table and in a single night, The old Green Tree Hotel, a block away, where the Dawson Daily News was once Mitchell had been shot to death. The Eureka Hotel, also had the old Fair View, where the shade of the Countess Chabonneau, who owned the hotel, and who ran it for many years decided enough of Miss Day was bubbles to release the shot for transmission.

A BBC official said later that he thought Miss Day "a bit of a naked beneath the bubbles.

"She looked hurried," said is, of course, what Miss Day told me."

Personal Health Talks

THE STUPIDITY OF FORTY MILLION NORTH AMERICANS

It would advance the level of hygiene and health in this country immeasurably, to say nothing of 99 per cent of the bath tubs in so-called private homes and hotels were junked for showers, or shower stalls, and several million dollars was thus saved annually in public eating places which now have only primitive facilities or none at all for washing the hands.

I have quoted the foregoing paragraph almost verbatim from a pamphlet titled "Is Stupid a Habit?" put out by Parke Davis. The pamphlet is available to any reader who asks for it by postcard—not otherwise — and incloses stamped self-addressed envelope.

What bathtub, shower stalls or washbasins have to do with hemorrhoids (piles) is difficult to explain in a newspaper —indeed it is difficult for anybody to about such an unpleasant subject here, but that's why I go to the expense and trouble of publishing this and many other pamphlets without cost, as a personal health service.

In the pamphlet I do urge that people should wash more and wash instead of mail order catalogues, corn cobs, flour sacks, newspaper or even special kinds of toilet paper.

We talk cleanliness in this country. We have rooms in public places and few toilets, lavatories or washrooms in private homes are equipped with bidets or sitz baths for real cleanliness.

Simple cleanliness is essential to prevent the implication of stupidity. On the other hand, people of higher-than-average intelligence are as quick to acknowledge their stupidity as others. I've learn what the term "piles" really means. And I've learned to say good many of them acknowledge it in the past tense —they say "you were right, I'm not going to suffer so many years from piles."

It is only good common sense for any one subject to what to me is the shameful indignity of hemorrhoids), either external or "blind" (internal) piles, to have examined, have a proper examination by a physician, that is, examination with the proctoscope or speculum, an instrument for visual inspection. Only so can the doctor diagnose the trouble accurately Without such examination the nature of the trouble that purports to be 'piles' is left to guesswork and because guesswork is dangerous, proper examination or quacks fail to make a proper examination

London—A bubble bath on television posed a special problem in Corporation chiefs Thursday night.

The lights brightened. The bubbles began to fade.

But before viewers saw the scene, BBC television controller Norman Collins had a first look. Monitoring a special behind-the-scenes television set, he decided

BY GREGORY CLARK

When a leopard escaped from a zoo recently, the trick that caught him was drugged meat. A semi-conscious leopard was easily tracked next day by the watchers for the lions to find. And guides in Kenya have learned that leopards signalled the sportsmen to come in and shoot, after the lions were driven off. There are all various ways of being a man's man.

The Bible says that the Israelitemals is now outlawed nearly everywhere on this continent. Until a few years ago, the use of strychnine against wolves was permitted. Wolves were like to rid their territory of wolves not only for the bounty, but because the wolves destroy a lot of fur in the traps.

On a flight into a strange section of northern Canada, one of our party was a very skilful trapper and woodsman. The first day of camp, this man went for a tramp on snowshoes and came back to camp.

"This territory has been poisoned lately," he said. "I track of any kind to be found.

Subsequent enquiry proved that the trapper was a lawless trapper had used poison thereabouts.

The Bible says that every carcase left by wolves, or also deliberately shot by him, for bait. Whether wolf or bear, it or one other creatures do, large and small. The Bible says bring back rich pelts, mink, lynx, martin, fisher, if they do not eat the original bait, find and eat those animals who have. Death and destruction, on the wings of poison, is the order of mice, travelling fox or mink, spreads death and wide over miles of territory it likes nature a long time to repopulate a poisoned area. A good woodsman will detect a poison area by the tracklees learned.

A MISERABLE BUSINESS

During the past war it was customary to refer to enemies to change road signs in order that the invader or the pursuer might be thrown off the track.

How many have thought how many people there are today who are engaged in the miserable enterprise of changing road signs? The communists, for instance, are changing road signs, and a lot of sentimental and sometimes bitter and disappointed people are plunging down that mistaken highway. Skepticism is another road which many people are travelling. And the reason they are travelling that road is because the school and college they encountered a type of teacher who had taught them that old traditions were superstitions and all truth was relative. Many of them was bunk. These teachers switched the road signs, and a lot of the young men are in the hills of bewilderment and bad habits as a result.

The highway which is natural for decent, right-thinking people to follow is more clearly marked than most of us are willing to admit. The wholesome customs of mankind, the teachings of the Bible, the sanctifying influence of the church, have succeeded in marking out that highway with sufficient clearness that we must miss it unless he wants to.

THE PRESS GANG

Actually, Newfoundland and Magdalen sealers massacre more seals than the Pribilof sealers, and in a good year number their victims in tens of thousands. Although the seal-covered ice pans swing in towns of Newfoundlanders up of this province, New Brunswickers, for some reason, have never joined the fray.

Blood-thirsty as it may seem, this hunt is considered great sport by many men of Newfoundland and the Magdalens, who earn from $500 to $1,000 each during a good season.

The industry — if it can be so described — is worth from $500,000 to $1,000,000 annually.

But there is an indirect benefit to fish, for seals are prodigious eaters of codfish. The "hoods" and "harps" probably consume more cod than are caught by fishermen. Then, too, seals are the natural foe of the worm which infest cod. These worms, while they grow into the flesh of the fish, can only reproduce in the warm-blooded seals which feed on the fish. Thus, according to scientists of the Fisheries Board of Canada, removal of the codworm boils down to the conclusion that seal hunting proves a costly nuisance. Because of it, all cod packed in certain sections have to be examined against a strong light.

Seek "Hoods And "Harps In Hunt

(From the Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

As they do each March, sealing fleets have put out from Newfoundland and the Magdalen Islands to slaughter "hoods" and "harps" in the grinding ice floes off the coast of the province.

It's a grim dangerous sort of business. And it isn't one for men with weak stomachs, as may be gathered from the traditional toast of the sealers — "Here's to Bloody Decks."

The Pribilof sealers, who hunt off the Alaskan coast, are far better known to the public than those of Eastern Canada. The Pribilof sealers bring back rich cargoes of expensive fur. But Eastern Canada sealers, Newfoundlanders and Magdalen Islanders risk their lives to get any mail-order value for their oil, which pelts being coarse-haired and valueless.

Males Savage

"Hoods," or hooded seals are large. The males have a flap of flesh over their heads which they inflate with air when they are attacked. They are ferocious, and are more dangerous than "hoods," which lack the protective flap, on the ice floes. Females, as can both male and female "harps," are considered easier prey. "Hoods" and "harps" start from different parts of the north and ride south on the ice pans. They get mixed up on the way down the Labrador coast. At times, sometimes with as many as 60,000 animals, tour together. Their young are born on the ice in February and early March.

Sealers have to have to guess where they would encounter the seals. Then they would charter ships from Newfoundland and schooners from the Magdalens would often have to cruise around for days before locating them. In recent years, the seals have been spotted by airplanes, and the sealers then been directed to them by wireless.

SHANNONVILLE

Home and School Assoc. Appoints Nom. Committee

Shannonville — The Home and School Association held their monthly meeting on Monday evening last in the senior room of the local school.

The president, Mrs. A. Kilburn presided. In the absence of Mrs. Herbert Brant, Mrs. G. M. Fraser was at the piano.

The secretary, Mrs. Helen Louis, read the minutes of the last Sewing Club meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. Herbert Brant. Due to the stormy weather, there was a small attendance. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs Stanley MacDonald, on April 4th and all ladies interested in making the coming "Sewing Sale" a success are asked to be present.

A meeting of the executive was recently held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dafoe. At this meeting Mrs. H. Brant tendered her resignation on the executive due to resuming her work at the hospital. It was decided to leave the vacancy for the remainder of the term. Mr. Jerry Dafoe was elected vice-president.

Plans were discussed for a box social to be held in conjunction with the last regular meeting. It was decided to ask the junior boys to bring 25 cents for their boxes and the senior room and adults' boxes to be auctioned. Ballots are to be distributed in the near future to compile the new slate of officers. Nominating committee is to be: Mrs. C. Phillips, Mrs. Stanley MacDonald and Mrs. Garrison.

Mr. Walter Brant reported that movies from the National Film Board are to be shown in the school on Thursday evening. Everyone welcome.

Mrs. Hill, membership convener, reported four new members had joined the Association.

Mrs. Garrison spoke on the subject of costumes for the junior room pupils for the music festival on May 4th. It was decided to purchase all the material and then determine the cost of each costume. Mrs. Juby was appointed to make the first costume to ascertain quantity required. It was suggested the sewing club might make these costumes if the parents could purchase the material.

Gifts Presented

The president officially presented to Mrs. Phillips, the principal, the gifts the association had given in the school in the past year. The larger items being a piano, folding couch, and settees. Mrs. Phillips graciously thanked the Association and in turn presented them to Mr. C. Hagerman, one of the School trustees.

Mr. Hagerman suggested that these articles remain with the local school. He also expressed his surprise on learning how active this local Association was. On learning there would be another Field Day held this spring, he expressed the thought that the school board would be right behind it. Mr. White, the local trustee, was also present at the meeting.

Mrs. Phillips led in an enjoyable sing-song while the judges, Mrs. Stanley MacDonald and Mrs. C. Hill, were judging the boxes. This was indeed a difficult task as the boxes were many and varied. The winners were as follow: Junior room, Shirley Green; Senior room, Norma Sager; Adults, Mrs. Garrison.

Mr. Walter Brant acted in the capacity of auctioneer, and did a fine job in selling the number of boxes. Tea and soft drinks were provided by the Association. The proceeds of the sale of boxes are to be applied to the expenses for the recent sleigh ride held for the school children.

Bobby Fair, Bazaar Sponsored By Queen Mary Home, School Association Enjoyable Affair

Once more the halls and corridors, and room: of Queen Mary School resounded to the merry chatter of many voices as the teachers, parents, friends and pupils last evening viewed with interest various handicrafts and hobbies on exhibition from the different grades at the Hobby Fair, sponsored by the Home and School Association.

The tea room on the left of the entrance was an Easter symphony with, in pastel tints of mauve, green, yellow and white carried out by tiny window valances and narrow streamers simulating curtains which criss-crossed each other from side to side. Around the room were entwined sprays of green leaves, and from corner to corner of the ceiling hung graceful garlands of turquoise blue and palest yellow. In one corner, a tall polished, well dressed lily in purple, with corners trimmed in aurelia yellow, surrounded by a ground work of green fodils. Little quartet tables lined the walls and paraded down the centre of the room, each bearing out the Easter motif with servettes in mauve, pink, green and yellow.

Exhibit Grouped

In the large assembly room the exhibits were grouped by grades around the walls, and overflowed into the two long tables down the centre. Grade 1 showed what little willing hands might do when guided aright; here were wall plaques designed as clocks; midnight blue cardboard, gold and silver stars in a midnight-blue sky, and boxes with lighted windows, achieved with colored paper. There were samples of printing, which latter, as the grades advanced, gave place to writing; here on picture cards, were birds, trees, and chickens, being the first art or color work shown; potted pets, and elephant with a potato body, a carrot trunk and begonia ears, and a lady bug; a porcupine with toothpicks for quills. Another table showed a rabbit with bead-hunter from a carrot with bead nose and eyes, and a cat with protruding teeth. Bobby Christmas had some especially fine modelling in plasticine, a fish, a rabbit, a bird, and a squirrel descending a tree trunk. Other exhibitthews exhibited a realistic plasticine elephant, and a delightful little lovely pink-edged runner with flowers done in pink and blue crayons, and was shown by Carolyn Harwood.

Samples of Writing

Blue birds embellished the samples of writing and plaques in grade II. Pots of daffodils appliqued on cardboard, accompanied paintings depicting kite-flying and engineering ability in mechano construction, were shown by those done. Grade III demonstrated decorated paper, with attractive blue hexagon shapes; woven mats in contrasting colors, and quite unusually well done pussy willow sketches; a whole garden of artistic flowers in the form of a plaque, mauve, pink, rose, yellow and white, and lovely basket plaques made from paper doilies filled with tiny tulips and fir branches. Mrs. Gilmore's Grade IV showed crayon scenes of farm life in Arcadia, and Grade V the best exhibit of spatter work pictures showed by any grade, and surprisingly.

Some depicted animals, one worthy of mention was that of cat despoiling a bird's nest with another fighting birds, equally about. Crayon work in this grade was more elaborate, and included Indian scenes and the Magdalen crossing the equator. A silhouette by Edith Campbell, showed a boy fishing, and delicately executed, as was the rodeo scene by Ronnie Poste, of the bucking broncho, and deer by Helen Meyers.

Grade VI demonstrated the beginning of color shading in crayon medium in a well done drawing of maple leaves and an evening sunset. Some pencil drawings of comic characters, "Orphan Annie" and "Winnie Winkle," deserve mention, also the maps, and indian heads. Grade VII was noted for its fine story books, which included post card scenes; fishing scenes; cartoons, entitled, "Mother's Afternoon Out" and "The Old Farmhouse," by Graham Bateman, and Joyce Vine. A farm in miniature depicting the house, the barn buildings complete with fence with horses and cattle, and sheep; a log cabin with fence and grazing horses, minus the driver, a pig pen, and in another field, a surrounding fence. A fine piece of trouble. All was very realistic, and reminded one of the toy models of years ago for those "days that are no more."

Advancement Marked

In the last grade, that of VIII, the advancement in writing, drawing-composition was strongly marked. One outstanding example of handwork was the ship modelled by Jean Draycott, after the well known "Jean Bleu," of Henry VIII. It needed only the pirates' flag and all the parts were known. Bed ornaments of crepe paper dolls were well done, and the sewing class had something very worthy of note, showing care in detail. Pictures "Spring in the Month of Spring" and "Three Girls." The book cover designs were well carried, a Dutch scene of the white roses on a blue background and another of Indian in autumn tinted branch of Sumac showed rich coloring, and was beautifully executed. The blue aprons with red apples on white aprons with green apples, fine fingers and much patience could accomplish.

Among the many fine examples of artistic work, was that of a landscape, painted in water colors on a bracket fangus, by Bob Bateman, who showed a splendid ability in design, form, both in his painting and in the wall bracket as well. Pencil sketches also in finish, and in choice of design, one being in harp frst work, and the other in scroll effect. A wall plaque in black centred by a basket of flowers, and other tiny flowers, done in shells, was particularly lovely.

Fine Drawings

Eleanor Clarke showed a fine drawing of a girl's head in pencil woman. This was done in pencil and coloured with crayon, with fine expression. A fine table lamp in the form of a pump was done by Ronnie Poste, of Grade IV, white bathroom mats completed the display of Grade VIII. On the centre tables were some exhibits of engineering skill as demonstrated by the mechano sets, Dutch windmills, derricks, and other interesting models, and cutout nursery rhyme, "Tom, Tom, the Tinker's Son Stole a Pig and Away He Ran," well and neatly done. There was also nice specimens of paper weaving in pretty, pretty, and little table ornaments. Crochet doilies, and fancy aprons which showed that needlework was not neglected.

The parents' hobbies were in a room by themselves, and a long loom showed samples of the work done by the ladies, together with tinted borders of blue and pink, with fringed ends; a fine, hooked rug in wool was shown in shades of rich browns and yellow and orange, green and blue done by Mrs. L. Blue, in geometrical design. A fluffy mauve organdy apron, with an old fashioned beauty, complete with tam, was done by Mrs. W. Phillips; a hand painted tray done by an expupil, Betty Moore, in soft green enamel, and having a bunch of spring flowers in the centre, was quite pretty; a glass picture frame in a wooden base; a Mexican wall plaque; and dressed dolls in Mexican, Dutch and Canadian dress in the parents' exhibit, as well as an ocean-wave Afghan, in shades of brown and orange; and the charm of a steam radio and tender, done by P. C. Gilstorpe, and a P. C. Gilstorpe, and a P. C. Gilstorpe, and a

TWEED

Mrs. Lottie Creighton Revisits Old Home After 25 Years

Tweed. (Special.)—Mrs. Lottie Creighton, San Francisco, Calif., arrived in Tweed a few days ago to visit her sister, Mrs. John McEwan, after an absence of 25 years.

The two sisters are now the only surviving members of their family, since the death of James Lowery farm, now occupied by happy reunion and they still have much to talk about. Born on the Lowery farm, now occupied by Wm. Rush, at the east end of Stoco Lake, the sisters are both over 80 years of age, and are still quite active.

Mrs. Creighton and her husband, who passed away five years ago, have been associated with the Salvation Army all of their married life. At the time of Mr. Creighton's death he was a major. During her work she has lived in Brandon, Man., Calgary, Alta., Vancouver, B.C., Newfoundland, London, Ont., Oakland, Calif., and latterly in San Francisco.

It was while she was attending an army conference in Chicago, that she decided to make the trip to Canada. Her daughter, Major Muriel, editor of the "War Cry", for an area covering five States, Hawaii and Alaska, is also editor of an Army Youth magazine, which is her pride and joy.

During the past week Mrs. Creighton has met many of her old Tweed friends. She says Tweed has changed for the better since she was last here. She will begin her return trip to California on the weekend.

Many Ladies Attend Pro. Conservative Tea In Hotel La Salle

Nearly 100 ladies from Belleville and district attended the meeting and tea sponsored by the Progressive Conservative Women's Advisory Committee of eastern Ontario, held in the Hotel La Salle, Kingston, Monday last.

Interesting addresses were given by Mrs. C. McKenzie, president, and Mrs. R. B. Dowing, organizer.

Major-General Pearkes, V.C., highlighted the afternoon with his stirring address.

A lovely arranged tea and social hour brought a successful meeting to a close.

Stories from The Bible

King Solomon

Now the days of David drew nigh that he should die; and he slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David. Then sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and his kingdom was established greatly.

In Gibeon the Lord appeared to Solomon in a dream by night: and God said, Ask what I shall give thee. And Solomon said, Thou hast shewed unto Thy servant David my father great mercy, according as he walked before Thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with Thee; and Thou has kept for him this great kindness that Thou has given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. And now, O Lord, my God, I am but a little child: I know not how to go out or come in. Give therefore Thy servant an understanding heart to judge Thy people, that I may discern between good and bad: for who is able to judge this Thy so great a people? And the speech pleased the Lord.

And God said, Behold, I have done according to thy words: I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart; so that there was none like thee before, neither after shall any arise like thee. I have also given which thou hast not asked, both riches, and honour: so that there shall not be any among the kings like unto thee all thy days. And if thou will walk in My ways, to keep My statutes and My commandments, as I will lengthen thy days. And Solomon awoke, and came to Jerusalem, and stood before the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and offered up burnt offerings, and offered peace offerings, and made a feast to all his servants.

Then came there two women unto the king, and stood before him. And one woman said, O my lord, I am this woman that dwell in one house; and I was delivered of a child with her in the house. And the third day after I was delivered, this woman was delivered also; and we were together; and there was no stranger with us in the house, save we two in the house. And this woman's child died in the night; and she arose at midnight, and took my son from beside me, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom. And when I rose in the morning to give my child suck, behold, it was dead: but when I considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son. And the other woman said, The living is my son, and the dead is thy son.

Then said the king. The one saith, This is my son that liveth, and the other saith, Nay; thy son is thy dead, and my son is the living.

And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword. And the king said, Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other.

Then spoke the woman whose the living child was unto the king, for her bowels yearned upon her son, O my lord, give her the living child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it.

Then the king answered and said, Give her the living child, and in no wise slay it: she is the mother thereof. And all Israel heard of the judgment which the king had judged; and they feared the king: for they saw that the wisdom of God was in him, to do judgment.

ROSSMORE

Recreation Dance Held at Tobe's County Gardens

Rossmore—The Rossmore recreation dance held at Tobe's County Gardens on Monday night was well attended. The music was furnished for both round and square dancing by "The Melodies" and Decalter's orchestra was loud. All joined in merry making and a gala evening was enjoyed by an enthusiastic crowd of all ages.

Prizes were awarded for the most recent bride and groom; lucky spot dance; lemon dance; birthday dance and many others. Number 13 won the $5 door prize.

The executive of the Rossmore recreation club wish to thank all those who helped to promote this delightful social evening. Many, thanks to Mr. Phil Flagler, master of ceremonies, who so efficiently fills his position, and made the dance a success; and to the merchants and business people who so graciously donated prizes, and to the members and dance committee for their splendid cooperation.

Women's Progressive Conservative Assoc. Holds Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Progressive Conservative Association was recently held in their club croome, Front Street with the president, Mrs. L. L. Hyde, presiding.

A short period of community singing, with Mrs. Perry at the piano and led by Mrs. Harry Rollins, was next enjoyed.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

Financial reports were read by Mrs. A. B. Young, treasurer; Miss L. Wilson, Fine Arts convener and Mrs. J. Cormier, card secretary.

The program consisted of two splendid vocal solos by Miss Hopkins, accompanied by Mrs. Harry Rollins. A humorous reading by Mrs. Norman Montgomery was enjoyed by all. Miss Phyllis May and Miss Phyllis Kane then gave two piano duets.

A talk on "What do you know about the Progressive Conservative party" brought many interesting questions before the audience. Mrs. Rose Bateman conducted a quiz contest on "Flowers" and words beginning with "Par-ha."

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by the ladies of Samson Ward.

Club Activities

LADIES AUX. C. LEGION

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary Canadian Legion, Branch 99, Belleville, was held on Tuesday night in the Saco club rooms. The meeting opened in the usual manner with president Mrs. Young in the chair. Two minutes silence for fallen comrades was observed. Minutes of the last meeting were read also letters from overseas boxes and sick members, were read. Five new names were drawn for overseas boxes. Two new members were initiated, Mrs. William Ballard and Mrs. Moon.

The rally to be held in Brockville on April 27 was discussed, and it was decided to go by bus, leaving early in the morning so as to give the members a good time to shop around before attending the meeting at 8 o'clock in the afternoon. The Brockville ladies have gone to a lot of work preparing to give the ladies from the different branches a wonderful time. It is hoped as many members as can, will try and go.

There will be a social evening with the men's Legion later in March. Tickets are now being sold. A good crowd and a good time is hoped for.

A box of chocolates was drawn for and won by Mrs. Ritch.

The chairmen of the different committees read their reports: Mrs. Milet substituting for Miss Cuthill read the report from overseas boxes; Mrs. Ritch, the report from sick committee; and Mrs. Helm, the report on bingos. Mrs. Tracey the report on euchres.

SOME POPULAR PERENNIALS

Many hone owners have achieved splendid results in comparatively small areas by selecting plants of which give colour masses and interesting variety. It is best in the small garden to limit the number of plant varieties and to get acquainted with the plants, their soil preferences, hardiness and general cultural requirements.

A well planned perennial border affords an opportunity to acquire skill and experience. Start out with the more familiar kinds and later the garden can add novelties and rare plants. Above are indicated eight outstanding perennial plants to which should be added Delphinium, Hardy Phlox, Foxgloves, Anchusa, Hardy Asters and Shasta Daisies. Simple cultural directions for the flowers illustrated are as follows:

A—Garfield Day Lilies or Hemerocalis. Plant in Spring or Fall in any good garden soil. No special care is required.

B—Bleeding Heart. Plant in a semi-shady position. Foliage dies off after blooming in May or June.

C—Oriental Poppies: Provide adequate drainage and do not get the crowns more than two inches below the surface.

D—Bearded Iris: Plant in full sun on a raised bed. Water sparingly and divide every three years.

E—Hardy Mums: Full sun, good drainage, mulch in winter and divide each spring keeping small side sprouts and discarding old centres.

F—Columbine: These are adapted to partially shaded areas. Plant in rich, sandy loam. Transplant the seedlings when large enough to handle.

G—Peonies: Plant in groups. Use a deep planting pocket 2" below the surface. Water heavily at flowering time and divide every five years.

H—Coreopsis: A grand flower for cutting with a long blooming period. Allow 18" between plants.

It is a pleasure to look over the nursery catalogues and to study the many interesting varieties of these popular perennials.

Women's Institute

IVANHOE W.I.

Ivanhoe — The regular meeting of the Ivanhoe Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Morley Haggerty.

The meeting opened in the usual manner with the president, Mrs. C. Wright, in the chair. "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Peggy O'Neil" were sung. Roll call was answered by 21 members, and two visitors, giving "first aid for home accident." The minutes were read and approved.

Owing to the stormy weather, the February meeting was not held. All quilt blocks should have been handed in at this meeting. The president requested the balance of blocks be brought to the April meeting.

Correspondence was read and business dealt with. It was decided to send $10 to each of the following: "March of Dimes", "Red Cross" and "United Nations Appeal for Children."

The motto was, "Always laugh when you can, it's cheap medicine," was given by Mrs. H. Cooke. A panel discussion on Health led by Mrs. Earl McMaster, was beneficial to all present.

Several items of current events were given by Mrs. H. Thompson, Margaret Haggerty sang a pleasing solo.

After the meeting closed with a sing-song of Irish songs, delicious refreshments were served and a social hait hour enjoyed.

Miss McGreary, nurse-in-charge, submitted her report to the board, which was an interesting one. It is continually apparent that more people are making use of the fine service offered by the Belleville Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses in their time of need.

Up to date this year, 940 visits have been made by the nurses. Of this number 531 visits were made to bed patients; other visits were made in interest of mothers with babies under one month old. When one realizes that these visits were all made to private homes, it is then possible to visualize the wonderful service being offered by the V.O.N.

The president, Mr. Ruston, closed the meeting and asked the members for their attendance.

V.O.N. NEWS

The regular monthly meeting of the V.O.N. was held at the Y.M.C.A. last Monday, with Mr. D. D. Ruston presiding. There was a good attendance of the board members and an interesting meeting was conducted.

The various committee representatives made their reports and plans were formulated regarding the V.O.N. annual tea which will be held in April.

It was reported that a V.O.N. regional conference would be held at Peterborough this month. Several members of the local branch plan to attend.

The board was pleased to have Miss Reed, district supervisor, from national office of the V.O.N., present at the meeting. Miss Reed is making an official visit to Belleville and will be working with the local branch

Farming Basically the Same In Next Fifty Years Says Number One Canadian Farmer

By H. DENT HODGSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 25—(CP)—Canadian farmers, who for years have been taking the fertility out of their soil by exporting it abroad, will be putting it back in by the year 2,000.

That is the opinion of "Canada's No. 1 Farmer," a title often bestowed on Dr. E. S. Archibald, chief of the Dominion Experimental Farms Service, who manages 29 farms and 33,350 acres.

Apart from that major change in Canadian agriculture in the next 50 years, he says that farming will be basically the same.

"No matter how much farming is mechanized," Dr. Archibald said in an interview, "it's still going to be risky and it's still going to be hard work."

He's not worried about the hard-work part of it, although he believes life on the farm will become more interesting, just as it has during the last 50 years.

But Canadians will find that the hard work of the next half century will have to be devoted more and more to a "freedom gambling" of fertility of the land.

"Soil," says Dr. Archibald, "is nothing but a bank account. If you draw out more from a bank than you deposit, you're in trouble with your banker. If you draw more from the soil than you put back, you get into trouble just as surely."

Use Up Fertility

Ever since Canadians began tilling the soil, they have been using up its fertility, concentrating their fertilizers on cash crops and winter feeds. By exporting feed grain and other crops to Europe, they have simply exported fertility.

Proof of this is apparent, Dr. Archibald says, in thousands of deserted farms in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, now leased or sold for taxes, even with weeds.

It can be seen in the range lands of the west, abused by overgrazing, and millions of acres on the prairies "not producing a quarter or one-half of what they should."

He foresees development of a progress, he says, which will support a rural population larger than at present, but which he expects will be greatly-increased over-all population.

Use Sprinkler System

By the year 2000, large areas of the Prairies will be covered with a grid of sprinkler systems or ditches of irrigation water. The 130,000,000 acres of farm land now in use in the west will be cut by reducing at a much greater rate. By then another 40,000,000 to 60,000,000 acres of land will be added to this figure from central Alberta and British Columbia, and in the MacKenzie Basin of the North-West Territories.

Farmers will turn more to animal husbandry, Dr. Archibald predicts the term animal husbandry to mixed farming, and hopes that by 2000 A.D. the latter expression will have dropped out of use.

In general, farming will apply science "as we don't dream of it at present" but the experimental farms chief declined to predict new forms of mechanization.

"Fifty years ago; nobody could have thought of gasoline tractors. Nobody could have predicted spraying of crops and sowing fertilizers and seeding by airplane."

C of C Guest Speaker

Secretary manager of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, V. S. Milburn, will be the guest speaker at a Chamber of Commerce sponsored agricultural meeting to be held Tuesday evening in the auditorium of Queen Alexandra public school. The school is at the corner of Dundas and Sidney Street, across from the Deacon Shirt Factory.

Born on a farm in Peterborough county, Mr. Milburn became interested in farm organization work while quite young and later was engaged in field work for the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' League, being president of the league in 1935-36.

He was five years with the Board of United Co-Operatives of Ontario and has been active in organizing many of the existing farm organizations. Prior to his appointment to his present position he was secretary of the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

All rural residents of the Belleville area are invited to attend the meeting and hear Mr. Milburn talk on the "Agricultural Outlook for 1950." Lucky number prizes will be drawn for and light refreshments will be served.

Fewer Farms

There will be a tendency towards fewer farms, but this will be counteracted by prairie irrigation and the development of uncleared land, both of which will tend to result in smaller farms. The irrigated areas and the newly-developed areas will probably tend towards mixed animal husbandry.

Improvements in engineering, Dr. Archibald believes, will make possible sprinkler systems of irrigation, more efficient than ditch systems once their costs can be brought down. The sprinklers will mean "a sort of artificial water-logging" and will eliminate the high cost of levelling land necessitated by ditch systems.

Only 23 PC Farmers

Fifty years ago, 60 per cent of Canadians lived on the land. Today only 33 per cent are farmers. This trend, Dr. Archibald believes will continue in the future. Fifty years from now he expects there will be more farmers, but only because he expects a larger over-all population. The percentage on the farms will continue to decrease.

The co-operation tendency may grow as farmers and marketing agencies are forced to co-operate to get more efficient production and marketing. There will be fewer and better machines, operated co-operatively. But natural love of the land will probably mean many farmers will still want to own their own farms.

Possibilities in the development of the vast Tundra area of the northland are more remote than 2000 A.D. as far as agriculture is concerned, although the area could support more reindeer and muskox.

But the future of farming doesn't lie in undeveloped areas. It lies in the areas already developed. And in the next 50 years Canadians will learn—and must learn—to make better use of what they have.

On that basis, Dr. Archibald advises, there's a future on the farm for young Canadians.

SENATOR DAVIES HOME

Halifax, March 23. (CP)—Senator W. Rupert Davies of Kingston, returning from a London Council meeting of the Empire Press Union, arrived Wednesday night aboard the liner Empress of Canada.

Senator Urges Govt. to Get out of Air Line Business

Ottawa, March 25 — (CP) — Senator John T. Haig today in the Senate urged the government to get out of the commercial air lines business.

The Progressive Conservative leader, criticizing government expenditures, noted that the government's supplementary estimates for 1949 includes an appropriation to cover a Trans-Canada Air Lines deficit of more than $4,000,000.

Government-owned, the T.C.A. was a "nice thing" to have, said Senator Haig. T.C.A. planes were nice to ride in, but he wasn't so sure the people of Canada could afford "that kind of travel."

"What do you want us to do, interjected Senator J. W. de B. Farris (L—British Columbia, "Go back to the buns and bugs days?"

"Like the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways," replied Senator Haig.

Montreal, March 25 — (CP) — Most Rev. Paul-Emile Leger, 46-year-old rector of the Pontifical Canadian College in Rome, today was named fifth Canadian Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal.

As head of the largest mundane ecclesiastical province of his faith in Canada, he succeeds Archbishop Joseph Charbonneau who left Montreal in 1940 to enter a nursing home in Victoria, B.C. Church authorities announced that Archbishop Charbonneau had resigned "because of the condition of his health."

Except for brief periods when he returned to Canada to preach closed retreats, the archbishop-elect has been in Rome since his appointment to the Canadian College in 1947. As such, the former Valleyfield, Que., priest welcomed Canadian pilgrims to the Vatican and presented them to the Pope.

Now he will head the 64-year-old archdiocese which counts more than 1,000,000 Roman Catholics.

When he takes up his new post he will end the temporary administration under which the archdiocese has functioned since Feb. 12.

The appointment was announced in Ottawa at midnight by Most Rev. Ildebranda Antoniutti, apostolic delegate to Canada.

It was Msgr. Antoniutti who announced six weeks ago that Msgr. J. C. Chaumont, auxiliary bishop of Montreal, had been appointed apostolic administrator of the archdiocese due to Archbishop Charbonneau's resignation.

At that time there was widespread rumor and speculation. Some quarters outside the church attributed the resignation to reasons other than ill health. It was said that disagreement with certain civil authorities had forced Archbishop Charbonneau's resignation. But churchmen refrained from public comment.

It was recalled that he has been one of the prelates who sanctioned church-door collections for relief of miners' families during last year's long and bitter asbestos strike, a strike denounced by provincial authorities as "illegal." He had also sided with striking Montreal Roman Catholic teachers whose action was criticized by Premier Duplessis.

Ottawa, (CP)—The Apostolic delegate to Canada, Msgr. Ildebrando Antoniutti, today announced the appointment of Archbishop Joseph Charbonneau, former archbishop of Montreal, as assistant to the pontifical throne and Roman court.

The announcement followed appointment of Rt. Rev. Paul Emile Leger, rector of the Pontifical Canadian College in Rome, to succeed Archbishop Charbonneau, whose resignation was announced some weeks ago.

The brief announcement from the Apostolic delegate added:

"This distinction has been granted by His Holiness the Pope as a token of his paternal benevolence towards the former archbishop of Montreal."

'The Consul' is Magnificent And Heart-Searing Tragedy

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 25. (CP)—Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Consul" is a magnificent and heart-searing tragedy. He has fashioned the musical drama around the efforts of freedom-loving individuals to escape from Europe's modern police-states.

The action takes place "Somewhere in Europe". John Sorel, pursued by by country's secret police for his underground political activities, is forced to flee Soniska, leaving his wife, their ailing child and his elderly mother.

His wife, Magda, endeavors to obtain a visa to a "free" country where she hopes to join her husband. She haunts the country's consulates, begging for visas that says her papers. Meanwhile her undernourished child and the mother, broken in spirit by the constant hounding of the police, both die.

John, who has heard through underground channels of their deaths, returns to his homeland to find out what is delaying his visa. He is arrested. Realizing unaware of this but knowing he plans to escape, commits suicide in a vain effort to prevent his return and thus save his life.

Menotti's music intensifies the mood of anguish and dread created in this drama, newly arrived at the Ethel Barrymore theatre. The 36-year-old Italian born composer also wrote the words and staged the production.

Brilliantly Cast

The role of Magda is superbly sung and acted by Patricia Neway and Marie Powers is splendid as the compassionate mother. They are backed by excellent performances by Cornell MacNeil as John Sorel; Gloria Lane as a consular secretary, Andrew McKinley as Nika Magadoff, a secret police chief, Maria as a foreign woman, both also strivng to leave the country.

Star Pians

Louis Calhern, stage and film actor, will be seen in Broadway next season in "King Lear" if producer Robert Joseph has his way . . . Rex Harrison is reported to be in talks to play the psychiatrist in the London version of T. S. Eliot's "The Cocktail Party", which is to open there in May . . . Claire Luce will head the cast of "With a Silk Thread", a play by Elsa Shelley due in Manhattan April 12.

Ottawa, March 25 — (CP) — A record number of new homes were built in Canada in 1949 to help ease the hungry demand in all parts of the country.

The Bureau of Statistics Friday reported that 90,955 units—housekeeping and single—were constructed during the year compared to 81,243 in 1948.

The report said the increase of 9,718 homes was "entirely due to the marked upswing in new construction, which resulted in the completion of 87,533 units compared with 76,097. Old buildings converted into homes totalled only 3,422 last year compared with 5,146 the previous year.

Motion Protests Grant System For Education

Toronto, March 25. (CP)—A resolution protesting added burdens thrown on municipalities by the new provincial educational grant system was passed Friday by the Urban School Trustees Association.

Educational representatives from principal Ontario cities described the grant system as inadequate for their needs, arbitrary in action and ill-advised.

The resolution urged that no school board receive less money than it did in 1949.

Principal losses under the new system were in grants to vocational schools, the trustees said. Toronto said it would lose $250,000 under the new schedule of payments. Hamilton, Ont., estimated a loss of between $50,000 and $55,000 and North Bay a loss of $22,000.

Akoolap Oxpert says he changes his bidding according to what his opponents do. This is an admission of his lack of confidence in his own system. A sound method from no opposition bids.

Opponents are trying to defeat him. Their information to him is not reliable. Partner is the one to believe. If he has anything to fear it is misinformation in his own pair.

If you are using the right system, the values you count are there. You and your partner tell each other of these values. With such values there is no worry of what opponents tell each other.

There are, of course, adverse conditions that may defeat the values you hold. But these are not necessary because of what the opponents bid. They would exist whether they bid or not.

North opens with a spade and east doubles for takeout. If you are sitting south what action do you take in this spot? Takeout to diamonds? Assist spades? Bid notrump? Or act scared?

Takeout to the best suit is first in the choice of bids. Lacking...another for a jump bid two diamonds. Support for spades can be shown on the next round, if possible. Such is your routine.

So far as these bids are concerned, pay no attention to what east says. All he has done is given you another choice of call. This choice is included in your routine method.

The additional choice here is a redouble of the east double. In this case the redouble would not be as wise as the takeout to diamonds. There is more to be gained by ignoring the redouble here.

The redouble would force west to guess at your distribution. With a game or more in your grasp, why present opponents with this gift or gab? Be your age.

Mrs. Mary E. Broatch Hale and Hearty at 90

Trenton (Special) — Mrs Mary Elizabeth Broatch of 56 Division St., celebrated her 90th birthday here Thursday. Mrs. Broatch has lived all her life in Trenton and district. She was born in 1860 at the old homestead on the Carrying Place Road.

Mrs. George Sherman who is Mrs. Broatch's niece says that although her aunt is slightly hard of hearing, she never has worn glasses and that her eyesight is exceptionally good enabling her to read the daily newspapers and keep in constant contact with world affairs.

On Thursday Mrs. Broatch opened her house to about twenty guests who presented her with gifts and flowers. Commenting on the celebration, Mrs. Brotch said "I have never received so many flowers in all my life. My it was wonderful.

Mrs. Broatch is in very good health and does all her own housework.

Boy is Knocked Off Bike by Hit-Run Driver

Charles Burley, age 14 of 2 Lewis Street, in Trenton, was struck by a hit-and-run truck Friday on Marmora St., in front of the high school. The boy was riding his bicycle when a small pick-up truck swerved out to pass him and the rear of the truck struck the bicycle knocking the boy to the road.

He suffered several scrapes on his forehead, hands and knees, also a slight concussion. He was attended by Dr. J. V. Byrne.

John Willicks, 19 of 23 Edward St., and Dan Gauthier 15, of 34 Ailfred St., who witnessed the accident said the truck was a small pick-up with a red cab and yellow rack.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The famous Merkle "bonehead" play has hit the headlines again. Bill Stem the "Old Arbitrator" who admits he "never called one wrong" comes up with a startling statement in an interview with a New York sportswriter regarding the famous incident of the game between the Giants and Cubs in September, 1908. It cost Merkle's team the game, it provoked a playoff, the Giants lost the playoff and then they lost the pennant of that year to the Cubs.

On that memorable day the Giants and Cubs were tied one-all, with two out in the last of the ninth. Merkle was parked on first base with McCormick on third. Bridwell was at bat. He drove a clean single to centre and McCormick scored. Merkle started for second and seeing what he thought was the winning run cross the plate changed direction and trotted happily to the clubhouse. Every of the Cubs got the ball in some manner, and touched second claiming Merkle was forced at that base and was therefore out. It seems the rules say that no run can be scored if the batter is forced at first for the third out, or forces a runner ahead of him for the third out.

Says the Old Arbiter: "Fred Merkle never pulled a boonehead play. He wasn't out in that game. He wasn't and never was out that day. The run counted. The Giants won it, and it couldn't have been anything else then, just as it can't be anything else today. On a clear hit ball to the outfield when that man crossed home plate with two out in the last of the ninth inning, that was the winning run and the game was automatically over.

"Merkle never had to touch second base and he should not have been called out by plate umpire O'Day.

"Emslie was the base umpire that day and he refused to allow a protest. That was the proper decision. But O'Day made the ruling on a play that wasn't his in the first place."

"There was no real force on that play," Klem continues. "It was a clean hit to the outfield. Meinke scored and across the plate before the ball was returned to the infield. That should have ended it. The Cubs should have won the game and the pennant with the Cubs finishing second."

But here is Johnny Evers' story of the play:—"McCormick ran home, and almost everybody thought the game was over and that the Giants had won. It was.

"The crowd began jumping onto the field and the Giants started for the clubhouse.

"Then one player looked at second. I noticed that Merkle, having run about 30 feet toward second, and seeing that McCormick had scored, was heading for the clubhouse for second. He just trotted off the baseline and headed for the clubhouse, then in right field.

"Johnny McGinnity, who was coaching for the Giants on first and who realized Merkle's blunder, started running toward the ball which rolled around the feet of the new boy fuddled crowd which didn't know what it was all about.

"McGinnity reached down and grabbed the ball. Tinker grabbed McGinnity, planted his arms, and tried to take away the ball. McGinnity snapped the ball with his wrist and it rolled about into the crowd around the shortstop position.

"A spectator picked up the ball. Floyd Kroh, one of the pitchers who had run onto the field, asked the fan to turn it over. The spectator, mistaking the ball as a souvenir, refused. Kroh took a punch at him, aiming at the jaw. But the wallop was high. It merely crushed the fan's derby hat. Kroh was about to make another try when the frightened spectator handed the ball.

"Kroh then walked over to where I was parked on second base and handed the ball to me. That completed the forceout of Merkle and retired the Giants.

"Bob Emslie was the base umpire, but I couldn't find him in the crowd. So I yelled at Hank O'Day, who had been handling the plate.

"'O'Day advanced as close to second as possible. He could not make the complete trip because the crowd was packed around the bag like sardines.

"O'Day then approached I lifted up my hand and showed I had the ball.

"'Are you on the bag?' demanded Hank, who couldn't see my feet.

"'Yes, right on it,' I answered.

"'All right,' he replied, and walked away. He said nothing else.

"O'Day that night reported to the League president that Merkle had been forced out, that the McCormick run had not counted and the game was a tie."

A stern battle is scheduled for Memorial Arena tonight when Cannagone and Bowmanville tangle in the fifth and final game of their Intermediate "A" semi-finals series. Cannagone took the first two tilts but the Lakeshore team roared back into the picture with a pair of wins. The fifth and deciding game was ordered on Belleville's neutral ice and tonight sees the squads both fighting elimination in what should be a tidy tilt. The game gets under way at 9 o'clock. It is likely a large crowd from both towns will be on hand to view the struggle as well as a large representation of local fandom.

MANAGER ANNOUNCED

Galt, March 25. (CP)—The Galt Athletic Club, sponsors of Galt Terriers in the Ontario Senior Intercounty Baseball League, announced Friday night that Gus Murray will be the ball club's manager again this season.

Murray, just back from Florida and visits to big-league springtraining camps, set the first practice session for April 22. The Terriers open their exhibition schedule April 29.

White Sox May Suprise Many Other Squads

By GAYLE TALBOT

Pasadena, Calif., March 25 — (AP)— It seems only yesterday when circuit Attorney Leagyn managers would relax and quit beating their children at the news that Chicago White Sox were coming to town.

Last year the Sox climbed to a vigorous sixth place from the cellar the previous season and had developed one of the most respected pitching staffs in baseball.

Now Jack Onslow, driving his young team hard through another training grind, thinks he might just possibly climb past a couple more clubs in the coming race.

Without much doubt, the Sox have strengthened during the winter. In spite of more long-ball batting punch, third baseman Hank Majeski was released from the Athletics, Hank was beaned last year and slumped, but once scouted he belted .310 and knocked across 120 runs for the A's.

Alfonso (Chico) Carrasquel is the sweetest looking young shortstop to come along in years. Chico, a Venezuelan, speaks no English, but he hit .315 at Fort Worth last season.

Certain to Start

The hardiest perennial of them all, Luke Appling, is certain to start his 20th campaign at short. But Luke, at 41, finally has slowed a mite and it will not be surprising if Carrasquel sees more and more action as the season advances. With him in there, and with the brilliant Cass Michaels on second, the Sox will present about as fine a young keystone combination as the American League affords. Michaels hit .308 last year and drove in 83 runs.

If the Sox have a built-in outfielder Gus Zernial must hit with the guts he did early last season. He was the year's rookie sensation, leading the league in hitting, when he broke his collarbone. He came back toward the end and wound up with a .318 mark in 73 games.

The club's three top pitchers will again be veteran southpaw standout, Bill Wight, Bob Kuzava, and the veteran right-hander, Randy Gumpert. Among them, they won 36 games last season. Mickey Haefner, veteran knuckleballer and Walt Pierce, an extremely fast but erratic young lefthander, more or less round out the front line.

Beyond that the staff is a fair unknown quantity. Onslow thinks he might have several hot young prospects, but there is nothing in their records to give him any great hopes.

Predators and the Nesting Season; House Cats Devour Millions of Birds

By JOHN ARDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

With spring and the fishing season pretty well upon us, I wonder how many or us give a thought to the shooting season next fall. Most folks, I'm afraid, are apt to take things for granted.

We know that our upland birds are in the covers each fall, ready for us to show up with dog and gun. What most of us do not know, however, is the magnitude of the losses required to insure that those birds will be there each fall.

Some time ago I wrote a couple of books on the upland birds. One was called Woodcock, the other Ruffed Grouse. Of course I had shot these birds year after year since I was a boy, but I thought I knew something about them.

Should Know All the Facts

To do a book about a single bird, a complete bird, one should know the bird intimately for twelve months of the year. Prior to the collection of data for those two manuscripts, I had known only the shooting season and the shooting seasons.

So I talked to the bird men, the biologists whose year-round job keeps them constantly in touch with grouse and woodcock. I read what had been published, including many obscure papers and pamphlets that the general public never hears about, much less sees.

The more I studied, the more I realized how little I knew. The research and study and writing of those two books required a little more than five years of continuous effort.

Perhaps the one thing that stood out in by various findings was the matter of edible mortality. A newly hatched chick, be it bobwhite or grouse, pheasant or some bird, has something less than a fifty-fifty chance of survival.

Disease, or course, plays its part in chick mortality. Adverse weather conditions do great damage. However, the outstanding reducing factor is predation. Baby birds are very tasty bit for the meat eaters of the wild.

House Cat the Worst

There are many predators and all of them take their share of some of the annual harvest, but the number-one predator, because it is particularly around the more settled areas, is the domestic house cat.

This is not merely a random personal opinion. It is a simple statement of proven fact that you can substantiate by taking any ornithologist you wish. Crows, hawks and owls do enough damage, goodness knows, but the house cat tops them all

Five years ago we purchased a six-acre tract of land adjoining the golf course on the outskirts of town. At that time there was a liberal supply of wildlife on this property. We had had it there for many years and it offered ample food and safe cover for rabbits, pheasants, dove, quail and woodcock.

During five years several houses have been built in the neighborhood and with these have come house cats. We have lived in our new house about six weeks in which time we have on our first sign of wildlife save one little field mouse who has decided to spend the winter in our laundry.

The reason? Three big house cats who hunt this land systematically.

Not Enviable Record

The record of the house cat is not an enviable one. Years ago I talked to one of the men who was active in trying to save the health of Mackinac's Vineyard. At that time there were seventeen of these birds still alive.

He predicted then that if the feral house cats, left on the island by careless summer residents, were not completely controlled, the heath hen was doomed.

You know the story. Those cats, deserted by their owners, had to eat in order to live. There is no cleverer hunter in the wild than the house cat, any house cat. Now the heath hen is extinct.

An ornithologist who is in a position to know whereof he speaks once told me that house cats alone account annually for not less than ten million song birds throughout the nation. He added that the estimate was a conservative one and that the actual figures probably were double that number.

Invites Criticism

As I write this I know full well that I am inviting the wrath of the cat lovers of the nation. Many of the individuals that vermin control by cats more than offsets the good they do. This, in some instances, no doubt is true.

At least during the nesting season, however, I think it would be wise for the sportsmen of the nation to look well upon the house cat. What action, if any, they will care to take is entirely up to them. I do feel, however, that it is to the best interests of us to know about such things, to bring the true state of affairs to their attention.

Rocky Marciano Beats La Starza At the Gardens

New York, March 25 —(AP)— Rocky Marciano, who has become the sensation of the heavyweight division after less than two years of pro fighting, may get a crack at the championship before long.

An awkward boxer with a powerful kick in both fists, the unbeaten, 27-pound-a slugger moved right into the top ranks of the big boy division right by smashing his way to a split, 10-round decision over previously uncompquered Roland la Starza at Madison Square Garden.

Al Weill, matchmaker for the International Boxing Club, said, "We may put him in with Ezzard Charles (the N.B.A. titleholder) this summer, if Charles is champion, or even with Joe Louis if Joe intends to come back. This kid hits like that stove there and he's liable to knock out anybody."

The victory over La Starza was Rocky's 27th consecutive triumph, including 24 knockouts, since he started swinging for cash in July 1947. It was Marciano's most telling scrap on the strength of his powerful right in the fourth round when he floored the handsome 23-year-old New Yorker for eight.

La Starza had the edge in weight, 197 to 183½, and in the purse. He received approximately $13,000 while Marciano got about $8,000. The crowd of 13,658 paid $55,723.

YOURS TO PROTECT

The FUCKER is one of the first signs of spring. He's the large, brown woodpecker with golden-shafted wings and a white rump. He's the only woodpecker that normally feeds on the ground as well as in trees. Protect him—he's a valuable insect destroyer.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Racing Chairman Knows Little About Race Game

Toronto, March 25 (CP)— Ontario's new racing commission chairman knows his horses and his bookmakers—most of his innocence in race track matters was one of the reasons he got the job.

Premier Frost said Thursday night in announcing the appointment of Magistrate S. Tupper Bigelow, 47, that he was choosing a man with an independent outlook—one not interested in any particular branch of racing.

The new commissioner told interviewers he's been to the races only on two occasions. He has learned all about bookies from his dealings with the law. Two-to courts, and still remembers what his old riding instructor at Royal Military College said about telling a wither from a fetlock.

The tall, grey-haired magistrate still isn't too sure what new job entails. He had only 24 hours to think it over before the appointment was announced. He'll head a commission that Premier Frost said could include seven men, though likely will number only about four. One of its jobs, he knows, will be to clamp down on bookies. The commission will control both thoroughbred and harness racing.

Although a native of Truro, N.S., most of his early background lies in the west. He was educated in Regina and was a member of the Saskatchewan and Alberta bars, practising law in Regina and Edmonton. He became a county magistrate in Edmonton in 1930, moving to Toronto in 1937 to resume law practice.

Windsor Spits Lose Fifth Game To Guelph 6-2

(By The Canadian Press)

Are the Windsor Spitfires tired?

By dropping a 6-3 decision to Guelph, Biltmores last night the pre-series favorites came one game closer to repeating their unexpected 1948 and 1949 downfalls when they bowed to lightly-regarded opposition in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals.

Last night's win at Windsor gave the victorious Biltmores a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series and brought the sixth game to Guelph, home of their first two wins.

At Ottawa, South Porcupine Combines came up with a 7-2 victory over Inkerman Rockets in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Eastern Ontario Junior "A" hockey championship. The N.O.H.A. champions were sparked by Jerry LaBelle with three goals as they surged into a 6-1 lead by the end of the second period.

Meet Win Two in Row

For the team that breezed through Toronto Marlboros' first-in regular competition — in five games, it left them in the unenviable position of having to win two in a row or adding a third disappointment to their supporters' woes.

The clubs played it close to the line in the first period and split a pair of goals. Then 8,000 fans cheered themselves hoarse when Earl Rethel potted the opening goal but Jerry Theberge evened it up for Guelph.

The middle stanza was all for the visitors, Vic DiMarco made it 2-1 at 8:27 and a little more than three minutes later Herb Dickenson rammed in the third Biltmore marker.

Windsor showed flashes of brilliance in the first eight minutes of the final period and tied the score on markers by Erwin Grosse and Eddie Stankiewicz. The deadlock was short-lived, however, as Andy Bathgate, Don Bellringer and Ron Plumb tallied for Guelph.

Toronto Marlboros, O.H.A. Senior "A" champions, swing back into action this afternoon at Maple Leaf Gardens when they tackle Sault Ste. Marie Red Wings in the first of a best-of-three series in defence of their all-Ontario title.

Arrive in Toronto

The leg-weary Wings—they've played seven playoff games in the last 10 days — arrived in Toronto yesterday from North Bay where they wrested the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A title from North Bay Black Hawks.

Unable to find league-competition, the Sault champs engaged in exhibition games through the regular season and beat Owen Sound Mercurys of the O.H.A. twice. Fans remember that Marlboros often had trouble with the Mercurys — only O.H.A. team to hit out the playoffs.

National Hockey League fans would be able to pick at least one title out of the Red Wing line-up. Don Grosso, their player coach, is a former Detroit Red Wing ace and now plays defence with the Northern tillists. Shep Mayer, also with the Wings, was formerly an O.H.A. Junior "A" star and once had a try out with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Sault will start a first line of husky Hodgson, Ronnie Lay and Ted Roney with Shep Mayer, Terry Bicchi and Zep Zago alternating. Joe Krimpotich, Walter Zuke and Clare McMinn give Grosse a third front line of snipers. The Count himself and Lud Bailey are the first-string defence combination with Ted Zuke and Jim Kutcher spelling off.

Allan Cup Survivors

(By The Canadian Press)

Fourteen teams are still on the Allan Cup trail leading to Canadian Senior Amateur Hockey supremacy—eight in the east and six in the west. The survivors:

East

Halifax St. Mary's, Sydney Millionaires, Sherbrooke Saints, Quebec Aces, Hull Volants, Cornwall Calumets, Toronto Marlboros, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

West

Fort Frances Canadians, Emerson, Edmonton Flyers, Calgary Stampeders, Trail Smoke Eaters, Kamloops Elks.

Two Youngsters Sign Contracts With the Bruins

Boston, March 25. (AP)—Two youngsters from St. Catharines who showed well in a one-game tryout have been signed to professional contracts with the National Hockey League's Boston Bruins.

They will report to the Bruins' pre-season camp as Hershey, Pa., next fall and be assigned either to Hershey in the American League or Tulsa in the United States League.

Rinky Monaghan Giving Up Title Due to Health

By The Canadian Press

At Belfast, Northern Ireland, Rinty Monaghan, world's flyweight boxing champion, announced Friday that he is giving up his title because of health.

"Bronchial trouble has demanded that I hang up my gloves," said the clever little boxer who came out of the heart of Belfast's dockland two years ago to take the crown from Jackie Paterson of Glasgow.

Rinty is 29. Recently he was ordered by the European Boxing Union to defend his title against Honore Pratesi, the French champion.

Monaghan started roadwork in preparation for the Pratesi bout but he abandoned it this week because he said he had difficulty in breathing after running a short distance.

Sydney Millionaires took a big step toward retaining their Maritime Senior hockey title Friday night as they defeated Halifax St. Mary's 7-3 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven final series. Fifth, and possibly deciding game of the series, will be played here tonight.

Toronto Oakwoods defeated Verdun-High School 38-21 Friday night at Toronto in the first game of a two-game total-point series for the Canadian Juvenile Girls basketball championship. It's the first such series ever played and Oakwoods carry a 17-point advantage into the final game here today.

University of Saskatchewan Huskiettes will represent the province in the Canadian Women's Senior Basketball playoffs Huskiettes, who defeated Regina Shoolers to win the provincial crown, have been granted financial aid by the Students' Representative Council to continue in interprovincial play.

At Lethbridge, Alta., Magrath Rockets Friday night squeaked through with a 7-6 victory over Vancouver Clovers Leafs to square the Western Canada Men's Senior Basketball semi-final at one game apiece. Deciding contest will be played here today.

Leafs, defending Canadian champions, captured the first game Thursday night by an 83-76 count.

Earl's Court Rangers Friday night held the world champion Edmonton Mercurys to 3-3 draw, gaining partial revenge for a previous 8-3 drubbing at the hands of the Canadian outfit.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By BRUCE FINDLAY
(Canadian Press Staff Taylor)

"At least one man has been so definite he declared the other day that Voyles has been signed. . . ."

There is a possibility that Merle Hapes, 1949 playing coach of Hamilton Wildcats, or Frank Goup, who led the Tigers last season, may yet direct the combined club.

Sport Tax Beef

Cec (Peterborough Examiner) Perdue, doesn't look kindly on the Ontario government's decision to tax all sports in which players are paid.

Cec is willing to admit he is "perhaps one of the many who are born tax dodgers where the government is concerned," but the new levy strikes him as "strictly a nuisance tax."

"This same government spends a lot of money every year encouraging athletics as part of a physical fitness program. A tax on amateur athletics—even where they aren't as amateur as they might be—will work against the government policy. It will create further deception also, which we hardly be considered in the best interests of sportsmanship."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, March 25. (AP)—Robert (Red) Haire, who coaches the once-great Rhode Island State Basketball team, claims to be the only basketball coach around town who didn't have a "great" bunch of freshmen this year . . . "We have nothing much coming up but a tough schedule," Red mourns. . . . Statistical note from the National Collegiate Athletic Association Basketball Tournament; . . . Holy Cross and North Carolina State were allotted some 5,000 tickets each for the eastern tourney in the garden and begged for more. Ohio State, a better team than either, didn't sell all its 1,000 tickets.

Grunt and Groan

Pro wrestling promoters are interested in Frank Rogel, rugged Penn State fullback, but Frank isn't interested in them—for one good reason. Frank tied wrestling once in college. . . . He took on George Jones of Temple in 1948 and won in the last second by brute strength, rather than skill . . . as Bob Higgins describes it: "The referee leads Rogel off the mat, the winner but poor Rogel is gasping for breath and walking on rubber legs. He never was so exhausted in his life."

Stories Before Your Eyes

Frank Summers, the V.M.I. baseball coach who is experiencing a shortage of hitters, could be forgiven if he cusses a little when he looks at Washington and Lee, practically next door. His son, Frank Jr., is the hottest hitting prospect to reach W and L in several years.

Weekend Notes

Joe Dimaggio will start a new radio show (transcribed, of course), on April 15. It'll be a Saturday night affair, featuring dramatizations and interviews with sports celebs.

NO SINGERS HERE

Toronto — (CP) — The singing telegram of birthday greetings is returning in the "fifties States but it won't be heard in Canada. That's the word of a Toronto telegraph official. He said most of the telegram delivery boys would sound "like a coyote with laryngitis."

AT THE CAPITOL — Lovely Lois Collier has the title role in "Miss Mink of 1949", the laugh-riot hit produced by Sol M. Wurtzel and being released by 20th Century-Fox, opening Monday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program the murder mystery film, "Backfire", starring Virginia Mayo, Gordon MacRae, Dane Clark and Edmond O'Brien, both his are first city showings.

AT THE CAPITOL — Ruthless is the word for Dane Clark as he appears in Warner Bros. "Backfire," due Monday at the Capitol Theatre. Virginia Mayo and Gordon MacRae co-star in the romantic drama. On the same program is the comedy smash hit, "Miss Mink of 1949". Both hits are first city showings.

AT THE McCarthy — Person-to-person. Lovely Janet Leigh and Wendell Corey are relegated to the background as young Gordon Gebert reviews a domestic state of affairs for Robert Mitchum, in RKO Radio's sparkling comedy romance presentation "Holiday Affair," opening Monday at the McCarthy Theatre. Mitchum, Miss Leigh and Corey co-star in the Don Hartman production, which introduces seven-year-old Gordon.

Hollywood, March 23, (AP)— The current revival of the Charleston dance will flourish and fade just as it did in the '20's, says Bandman Harry James. But he thinks the jitterbug is here to stay.

Today's parents are amazed to see their children dancing to the Charleston, which swept the continent in another post-war era. "Just a temporary craze," remarked Trumpeter James. "It won't last any longer than any of the other fads, like the Black Bottom or the Big Apple".

Besides, only the children and the youngsters are doing the dance, he added. "Between-tweens, for whom I play, haven't picked it up," he said.

Jitterbug Flexible

James believes that the jitterbug will outlast any other dances.

"The steps are flexible," he explained. "The kids can make up steps to fit the music; you can even jitterbug to a rhumba. But dances like the Charleston have fixed steps and can be done only to certain types of tunes."

James contended that the current rage for Dixieland music will also blow over. The dixieland request will always be the dancable ballad, he said.

Standbys Favorite

Despite fads in music and dancing, the top James requests are still such old standbys as "Trumpet Blues", "Flight of the Bumble Bee", "Two O'clock Jump" and "You Made Me Love You".

James and band are currently appearing before the cameras in "I'll Get By". It is the last commitment of a long term contract and Harry has no film plans for the future.

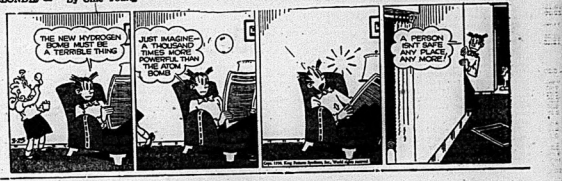
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop is away at the insurance men's convention, and I wrote him a letter today, writing, Dear Pop, there's nothing much new around here, except I thawt I was catching a cold last nite. I kept sneezing myself awake and going back to sleep and then sneezing myself awake again, till I found out there was a rip in my pillow and feathers were leeking out rite under my nose. So I decided it wasn't a cold after all, and this morning I didnt even waste time asking me if she thawt I better stay home from school.

Some man dropped a dime in frunt of our house this afternoon and could not find it again even with me and Puds Simkins and Shorty Judge and Sid Hunt all helping him. So maybe it rolled down our cellar window, and it it did we have a small silver mine in our coal bin, but so far me is not intristed in letting me do any digging.

Lucky Leroy Shooster had a toothake in school today, and Miss Kitty excused him to go to the dentist's, but the toothake stopped before he got all a ways there, so Lucky Leroy stopped too. It will probably be just his good luck not to feel any more panes in his tooth till sometime when he's in school again.



We started to eat left over meals as soon as you went away, so I guess you are saving me a lot of money by not being here, but just a same I bet she'd rather have you than the money, so dont be bashful about coming home soon.

Another reason for you to come back soon is because I'm libel not to wash my hands and face so careful in the morning if you're not standing over by the mirror shaving yourself at the same time. So hurry up home before you unconsciously get me into bad habits. Your loving son Benny.

RENTAL CONTROLS

Mr. Abbott said the government feels that rental increases now in effect, plus increased home construction, will have permitted "enough adjustment to take place so that any problem which may remain can be dealt with adequately—and with closer regard to local conditions and needs—on a provincial basis."

It was, he agreed, unusual for a government to give this much notice of its legislative intentions, but the administration had decided to do it so any provision which may consider it desirable to assume some measure of rent control "may have ample time to take such steps as may be deemed appropriate."

He made it clear that the government does not intend to invoke the limited powers granted by the enabling legislation to reimpose controls which already have been lifted. The practical effect of the bill was only to continue the rent control.

Recalling that the federal offer two years ago to surrender the rental-control field to any provinces which wishes to assume responsibility, he said this still held true.

Time to Return

The government would be willing to withdraw the regulations in any province on a date to be fixed by the provinces and, with parliamentary approval, to pay the cost of provincial rental control for one year.

Mr. Drew said it was time to return to the peace-time practice of introducing law to which anyone could point and said "this is my right." There was not assurance now that the rent controls would not be changed before the legislation expired.

J. W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South) protested against the government's "callous indifference and utter disregard" of the problems which hundreds of thousands of Canadians had been forced to meet because of recent increases in rentals.

Joseph Ettis (CCF—Cape Breton South) felt it was "unreasonable" for the government to ask the provinces to take over rent control. There should be a basic federal yardstick, and the provinces handling the administration. This would provide uniform legislation across the country.

CLOAK OF SECRECY

The statement said 67 men, 16 women, one child and one infant were aboard the planes. It identified the aircraft as "Czech commercial planes of the DC-type."

An airforce spokesman declined to amplify the statement or clarify the situation.

Flood or Rumors

The successful landing of the three planes coincided with a flood of rumors in Prague, the Czech capital, of assassinations, palace revolutions and major developments in the Red-led government there.

The spectacular escape already had been widely rumored there, although the government-controlled press as yet had made no announcement of the flight.

This report, combined with a flurry of unconfirmed reports more political than the usual run of stories persisting in such rigidly-governed countries, added to the feeling even in Prague that "something big has happened."

The most persistent of these was that Deputy Premier Zdenek Fierlinger either had been assassinated by the anti-communist underground or had committed suicide. A Czech government spokesman said these rumors were greeted in official circles "with roars of laughter."

Published in England

The story of Fierlinger's death, first published in the London Evening News Friday, also said that Communist party secretary Rudolf Slansky was wounded in the underground attack.

The former Czech minister to Canada, Frantisec Nemec, now in exile in Ottawa, was quoted by the Ottawa Evening Citizen as saying he had "definite word" of the assassination of Fierlinger and the wounding of Slansky.

The only concrete story out of Prague was the official report that Justice Minister Alexei Cepicka had resigned Friday as general secretary of the action committee of the Communist-dominated national front.

TEMPERS FRAYED

There was little debate on the marriage and racing commission bills Friday. Attorney-General Porter deleted from the marriage act a provision providing fines of up to $100 for persons who perform the marriage ceremony before the three-day waiting period expires. The amendment however did not remove the three-day period. Elsewhere in the act similar fines are provided for anyone violating the act. Premier Frost said the section was unnecessary and might appear to be directed against the clergy of churches and magistrates.

Harry Nixon (L-Brant) said it was too great a responsibility to impose on persons performing marriages to ask them to decide whether the persons to be married were mentally defective.

Mr. Nixon described the form of marriage set out in the act as "absurd." There was no reference to "until death do us part."

Provincial Secretary Welsh said judges and magistrates could be trusted to perform the ceremonies in a dignified way. The form mentioned in the act was only a minimum requirement.

Office Proper Place

W. J. Stummell (CCF-Cochrane South) asked whether travelling magistrates could perform marriages in towns they visit or only in the place they make their headquarters.

Mr. Welsh said any office used regularly by a magistrate would be a proper place to perform a marriage.

Mr. Grummett said it was undignified for judges to have to collect the $10 fee required by the province. It was like pronouncing a couple man and wife and adding "that will be $10 please."

Mr. Nixon said the province already was collecting $4 of the $5 licence fee and there was need to collect an additional fee.

Prefer Church Marriages

Mr. Welsh said the $10 fee was imposed because the government preferred church marriages and did not want to put anything in the act that would make it easier to undergo a civil marriage.

The racing commission will have control of all forms of racing, running horse and harness, and will have authority to issue licences to owners, jockeys, trainers, grooms and other persons connected with racing.

It was previously announced that Judge E. Tupper Bigelow of Toronto will be chairman of the commission, expected to number three or four members at the outset.

C. H. Millard (CCF-York West) suggested a member of the legislature might be appointed vice-chairman to assist Mr. Bigelow and to be responsible to the House.

W. L. Houck (Lib.-Niagara Falls) suggested W. A. Hewitt of Toronto, a presiding racing steward should be appointed to the committee.

Prospective Thurlow Builders

PLEASE NOTE

Any person erecting, altering, re-constructing, removing, repairing or wrecking any building, must first secure a building permit, and must lodge plans and particulars with the Building Inspector before any work is commenced.

All houses must front on a Public Highway.

Every building must have a suitable foundation. The type of foundation will vary with location, type of land, size of foundation, etc.

Every house shall cover a ground area of 600 sq. ft minimum, and no room shall be of less than 100 sq. ft. floor area. Ceiling height shall be 8 feet minimum, and all rooms shall have an outside window. A clothes closet, pantry and bathroom may be less than 100 sq. ft. floor area.

Lot area shall be not less than 8,000 square feet, and must have 40 feet frontage. No building shall be less than 3 feet from the lot side line.

A garage shall not be attached to a house unless protected by an approved fire-wall, and all garage openings shall lead to the outside air.

A builder may use temporary living quarters such as a trailer or garage while constructing a house, provided it is approved by the Sanitary Department.

No trailer may be used as housing quarters except from April 15th. to November 15th., and any property owner must first secure a trailer parking licence from the Township Council before allowing such trailer to park.

All lumber used for building purposes must be sound and of good grade. Where re-claimed lumber is used, it must first be passed by the Building Inspector.

All chimneys shall be of Masonry construction, and shall have a wall thickness of not less than 4½ inches. No chimney shall be less than 4 feet above the top of a flat roof and not less than 18 inches above the ridge of a pitched roof. See the Building Inspector about location, foundation, and type of chimney.

Any further information required will be available at any time. May we suggest that you contact the Building Inspector before you start to build and thus avoid difficulties later.

M. G. WRIGHT,
Building Inspector, Township of Thurlow.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW
LOCAL IMPROVEMENT

Take Notice that Council of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow intends to construct a local improvement on the gravelled and twenty-five water services from the Township Water-main to the property line, said work being located in Local Improvement Area No. 1 of the said Township of Thurlow and known as Bleecker Avenue Extension, and to assess the cost thereof specially on the work.

The estimated cost of the work is $7,000.00. The cost of each water service pipe will be assessed and levied upon the particular lot for or in connection with which it is constructed or laid by an equal annual rate sufficient to pay the same with interest in 10 years. The Special Assessment is to be payable in ten annual instalments.

Application will be made by the Corporation to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval of the work and the taking of the said work and assessment by the Council without the passing of the first publication of this notice file with the Board his objection to the said work being undertaken or taken.

4. The said Board may approve of the said work being undertaken or taken as aforesaid, or may appoint a time and place when any objection to the said work will be considered.

Dated this 4th day of March, 1950.

E. M. DAFOE, Clerk,
Township of Thurlow.

Unh-h-h!" Ronnie shuddered and have another match. I feel safer about quite involuntarily, then now that no one else is actually forced a little laugh. "Golly, here."

Wes!" The twisted grass took flame "I forgot to light the torch," and in a moment made sufficient said he, inadequately. "Here I light so that they could step forward. They glanced back once, then at each other, reading each other's thoughts.

"No danger of being lost," said he calmly. "Only this room, apparently. No—no mase, or any such thing, like one reads about."

"Oh, no," Ronnie agreed, too readily. The place was creepy to her; wanted to see and weird to contemplate the expected almost anything to happen. Wes was late reading and staring.

"Well," said he at last, "this is it. And we still don't know any-thing. I feel as a matter of duty and—"

Ronnie was more direct. "Let's look in the boxes, hunh?"

"All right."

They were not locked. Wes lifted the lid of the one nearest then held the torch down close. Ten peaches, so labelled; a dozen cans of tomatoes, another dozen of kidney beans, a metal container of salt and three of hard candies, to-

"Emergency food such as any wilderness cache might hold," Wes Stated. "Let's be careful not to move anything, lest we leave signs of our call. This could be just a cowboy catche, a sort of ranch field hospital."

"You said there were no ranches near here."

"So I did. That's why I don't think this—"

He left his sentence hanging, carefully lifted another box lid. This box of light metal, had been clamped shut and was larger than the first. He reached to touch fabrics and in there.

"Clothing," said he. "Man's clothing. Rather good quality, too. American. Size . . . Seems to be three or four suits, shirts, hats even."

"There are other boxes like that, Wes."

They opened in each in turn, careful to disturb nothing. Two more had clothing, and on one pair of trousers was a cartridge belt. Next box had a metal band around it, but was not locked.

"I'll bet I know what's in that already," said Wes.

"What?" Ronnie spoke in awed whisper again, stooping low and shading her eyes the better to see.

He didn't answer. He merely lifted a lid. There in perfect order were three rifles, short but of powerful calibre; also 36 automatic pistols which Wesley said were of foreign make. Holsters encased each.

And in a second compartment were heavy little boxes of ammunition packed in metal cartridges usually come but in metal clips for quick loading and reloading of the weapons.

"What on earth would Lona Montoya think about this?" Ronnie Bailey was murmuring as if to herself. Wes heard. Wesley, "Especially away out here in a wilderness canyon."

"Hold your torch to the flame." Wes directed. "Mine is burning low, And I'm sure she did it."

"Then who did?"

"Don't ask me, tell me. But I do know this, Ronnie—this find is significant some way."

She didn't answer. She was very busy manoeuvring her light now. It cast dancing black devils on the cave ceiling and walls, and the smoke was beginning to choke her slightly, to, They spoke in hushed tones.

"Wesley, let's hurry!"

"All right. But—"

"I'm not afraid, but I think the smoke might leave telltale signs of our being here."

From his knees before a box he suddenly looked up admiringly at her. "You'd make a good outdoorsman, Ronnie. You think of practical things. But there's a ventilating draft. Cracks in the rocks back of us must wind outlets. I tested that as we came in."

"Can we look in the biggest box now? It's like a trunk, really."

He opened this largest box with heightened interest because of the guns and ammunition already found. Then this he expected explosives? Dynamite and caps, maybe, such as miners use. But no this cache could hardly be for use by prospectors.

He lifted the lid and at once they saw a peculiar set of instruments—wires, tubes, electric switches, coils, small black boxes, batteries.

"It's a radio set!" Wesley said, studying it carefully. "Transmitter and receiver both!"

"Goodness, Wes!"

"Rather powerful set, too, I think. I don't know too much about them but this equipment looks elaborate to me."

"It is elaborate. I have a set in my plane, remember. I know "I think we'd better get out of here, Ronnie!"

They looked quickly behind the stack of boxes. Several pairs of men's shoes were there. Also neat rolls of blankets and several two quart canteens. A push at the canteens showed them full doubtless of water.

"You lead out slowly, Ronnie, and I'll pick up any charred grass or other sign we may have left. Tracks won't show on the rock floor."

"What about tracks outside?"

"We can do what Lona's boy friend did—drag a leafless brush behind us. Especially behind the horses. It's almost impossible to see our own trail because we have walked on rocks part of the way. The horses' tracks are on the flat sandy floor of the canyon where the wind whips at night. Wind erases tracks and such. But we'll take care."

Still speaking in undertones as if they might be overheard, they doused the torch of the cache. Then Wesley, near the exit, extinguished their light, catching any ash fall in his hat.

"Gee-mi-nee, Wesley!" Ronica breathed it nervously.

"Don't be afraid, Night has settled outside but in a moment our eyes will adjust again. Let me hold your arm—here is the opening."

"I'm scared silly. I expect something to yell "boo" any moment and if it does I'll just explode."

"It is a very real experience" said he. "More important than we realize, probably. But have no fear."

"I'm all right. You talk like a professor even when adventuring Wes. But I like it."

He halted, turned close to her in the darkness. "I beg pardon?" "I—I somehow feel that you and I are friends!"

Ronica turned in her saddle to look gently up at Wesley York. His tone more than his words had somehow gripped her attention in a new way. He looked strong there beside her, riding gracefully and erect.

"Then you have been lonely, Wes. I felt it. Of course I want to be your friend, and want you to be mine. Didn't I say back there you'd make a swell big brother?"

"Good!" she stage-wispered. "Keep the secret. Until—?"

"Until I can conduct some private investigation. Listen Ronnie, I haven't told you, but there are some other things happening this fall that need explaining, and this adds to them."

"Such as?"

"Well, I wouldn't want to talk too much until I felt more sure. But you can trust me . . . Ronnie I—I somehow feel that you and I are friends!"

Ronica turned in her saddle to look gently up at Wesley York. His tone more than his words had somehow gripped her attention in a new way. He looked strong there beside her, riding gracefully and erect.

"Then you have been lonely, Wes. I felt it. Of course I want to be your friend, and want you to be mine. Didn't I say back there you'd make a swell big brother?"

Employers May Be Compelled to Check off Dues

Toronto, March 25. (CP)—The Globe and Mail said in a newspage story today that the Ontario government is reported considering an amendment to the New Ontario Labor Bill, to compel employers to check off Union dues where 51 per cent of employees in a plant request the deduction from their pay cheques.

Check-off of Union dues has been one of the major issues raised by the Canadian Congress of Labor Unions since the introduction of the present bill in the legislature.

Labor Minister Daley, during debate on the measure in the legislature said that an employee should comply with the check-off if a majority of employees indicated their desire for it in writing. He expressed opposition to writing this requirement into the bill. The measure is up for debate on second reading next week.

ATTLEE MAY CALL SNAP ELECTION WITHIN 6 MONTHS

May Come Shortly After Budget Given

London, March 27—(Reuters)—Prime Minister Attlee and his Labor party lieutenants may decide on a snap general election any time in the next six months political sources predicted today.

Some observers believed a new contest might come as early as June—six weeks after the budget is presented April 18.

This is the last thing the Conservative opposition wants and the government knows it.

Conservatives would like to see the government remain in office long enough to take the rap for what they call the "inevitable" economic mismanagement in the last five years."

They would use their strength in parliament to see that the government was continuously harrassed to the brink of the prestige though not quite over the edge.

Some government supporters believe that Labor has the trump cards in its hand and can score decisively if it plays them properly.

They predict that the weeks immediately ahead will show improvement in Britain's overall economic position, discrediting suggestions that there would be a crisis this year.

Progress Shown

Britain's gold and dollar reserve figures for the first quarter of 1950—showing whether or not the dollar gap"—will be published in two weeks. They are expected to reflect a substantial recuperation.

Cost of living here is reckoned to have risen since devaluation by ten to fifteen per cent, roughly allowing for withdrawal of agricultural subsidies.

Exports are at about 160 per cent of pre-war volume, while imports have been reduced to 90 per cent of that level.

Even as Labor supporters think the government should put the facts of economic progress before the country as quickly as possible and demand a stronger mandate to get on with the job. They think its present precarious majority of four is a dangerous one for efficient administrative action.

Blinding Dust Storms Strike Kansas, Texas

Kansas City, March 27. (AP)—Blinding dust storms, whipped by gale-force winds, swirled over wide areas of the plains States Sunday.

So thick was the dust ball that eight highway fatalities were blamed on the choking clouds. Approximately 50 persons were injured in the automobile accidents in Kansas and Texas alone.

Rich top soil, over thousands of acres was blown away.

The winds also caused some damage to buildings and fanned prairie fires.

High winds swept over Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, Missouri, New Mexico and Nebraska. But it was Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas that took the brunt of the storms.

Kansas highway patrol officers closed off many routes because of the dust hazard.

Officers said they considered five miles an hour a safe driving speed in the worst spots.

Can't Estimate Damage

The winds averaged about 40 miles an hour, but gusts of up to 80 miles an hour were reported.

A Kansas State University agronomist said the extent of crop damage could not be estimated until June. He said little damage to wheat was expected but farmers with spring oats may suffer considerable loss.

The weather bureau reported the worst dust storm was centered of the black blizzards of 1935 when thousands of acres of rich cropland were destroyed and countless farmers were ruined.

Frank Tiffany, Associated Press farm editor, reported through Sunday's dust storm in Kansas, said:

"In eddied out of gullies and swept off plowed fields in choking clouds. Visibility in some spots cut visibility to not more than a car's length.

"It gets in your eyes, and ears and pockets—sifting through closed car windows."

ST. LAURENT, FROST SIGN WATER RIGHTS PACT

Ontario, U.S. to Share Niagara Power Project

Toronto, March 27 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent and Premier Frost of Ontario today signed a formal agreement handing over to Ontario the Canadian water rights in the Niagara River.

It was the first time in history that a Canadian Prime Minister had paid an outlandish visit to the provincial parliament buildings at Queen's Park.

The agreement is an outgrowth of an international treaty between Canada and the United States signed in Washington Feb. 27. It brings a step closer the expanded development of the power potential of the Niagara River.

Still to be Ratified

The agreement still has to be ratified by parliament and by the United States Senate.

Mr. St. Laurent said during the ceremony in the Ontario cabinet council room that strict adherence to treaties would be required that the agreement between Ontario and the Federal government be signed in Ottawa.

"But I happened to be here today and, since this is an important matter, the practical thing to do is here," he said. "I believe that whatever is practical should be done today."

Premier Frost said Mr. St Laurent's visit to Toronto was "a historic occasion."

"I assure you that it is a great delight for me to participate in this demonstration," Mr. St. Laurent said. The new development would result in saving the way the natural beauty of the falls. "It would create new wealth for Canada.

"Of course, the falls happen to be in Ontario but that's Canada," the Prime Minister added with a smile.

CARGO OF 27,000 SEALSKINS

St. Johns, Nfld., March 27 — (CP)— The sealer Algerine, first of three Canadian vessels to reach floes arrived here today with a bumper load of 27,000 seal skins.

The Algerine reached here after a voyage in 20 days — a modern record for a seal hunt. She was followed gailly as the ship tied up at this old port and was greeted by hundreds of townsfolk.

PET SNAKES FOUND IN HOUSE

Galt, March 27 (CP)— Two pet snakes used in sales talks by Medicine Show Man William Brown will find a home at Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto.

A Blue Racer was found in the "Colonel's" bag when he died in Brantford, last week. Police found a six foot yellow snake at large in his house.

Canada's Dual Nationality Key To World Security

- - St. Laurent

Says Two Races Living In Peace Example to World

Toronto, March 27 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said today that the free world may find in Canada's dual nationality the key for ultimate victory in the cold war.

"Lasting peace and harmony between nations can only come about through the development between the two great races here in Canada," said Mr. St. Laurent in an address before the Toronto Canadian Club.

Outlining the implications for this country of the cold war between Communism and the free countries of the world, the Prime Minister warned that the signing of the Atlantic pact was only a "promising start on what is going to be a long and hard road towards ultimate security."

"We cannot have real and lasting peace until there is some degree of mutual confidence and trust between nations. Events have demonstrated that confidence will not grow without a sincere and radical change in the attitude of Soviet Russia to the rest of the world.

"Such a change is not going to come overnight. We must be realistic in our lifetime."

The Prime Minister also had this to say about the cold war:

1. The peace loving nations must build up their military defences because of the menace of Soviet Communism.

2. Canada's aim is to prevent "hot" war and to contribute to all possible towards ending the cold war itself.

3. The cold war is a "total war" of a different kind which demands the use of all our resources.

4. Canada could spend the whole of her national income on defence and still not be sure of completely immunity from attack.

5. The free countries must strike the best possible balance between the preparation of immediate armed strength and of lasting political strength—military, industrial and economic.

TWO KILLED IN APARTMENT FIRE

Milwaukee, March 27. (AP)—A two-alarm fire swept through a 43-family apartment building Sunday, resulted in death for two persons, injuries for 10 and homelessness for all but 15 others. Firemen fought their way through flames and smoke to rescue occupants trapped by the fire that gutted the old four-storey brick structure in the Negro district.

YUGOSLAVS ROLL UP HEAVY VOTE BACKING TITO

Belgrade, March 27. (AP)—Ballot boxes filled with pink rubber balls today gave Marshal Tito heavy backing in his fight with the Russian-led Cominform.

First returns from Sunday's parliamentary election—in which Tito and his party were unopposed—showed more than 85 per cent of the vote going to the communist people's front Tito heads.

Nearly 100 per cent of Yugoslavia's 10,000,000 eligible voters used the country's traditional ballot—a small rubber pellet dropped into one of two election boxes. One box was for Tito; the other registered negative opposition.

The first complete returns, from Mostar in the Central Yugoslav Republic of Hercegovina, listed 17,875 pink "yeas" for the people's front and only 88 in the opposition "blind" box. Tito was a candidate for parliament in all seven of the Yugoslav Republics.

Election officials expected to complete tallying the results by Wednesday. The election was to name 620 members of the Federal House of Parliament and 215 members of the Upper Chamber.

Like voters throughout Yugoslavia, Tito dropped a small pink rubber ball about the size of a marble in his hand, then dropped the flat disc into each of two boxes for the Lower House candidates. Next he repeated the procedure for the Upper House ticket, extending his open hand each time to show it had left the pellet in one of the boxes.

President Petar Stambolic of Serbia accompanied Tito when he voted and provided the occasion's comedy when his ballot slipped from his hand into the opposition box. The president of the voting council permitted him to retrieve the ball, but Tito, with a grim, said:

"Petar, you are finished. You cannot change your vote to the box with no list."

BRISBANE DOCK STRIKE OVER

Brisbane, March 27 (Reuters) —All Brisbane dockers went back to work today. Their communist union leader called off a strike which threatened to bring the port to a complete standstill. Australia's entire fleet of overseas and coastal services will face prison sentences of up to a year, if they desert their ships and deportation, if they are foreign-born seamen. The strike was resolved by the government last week.

TWO DROWNED AND TWO MISSING IN ONT. FLOODS

Toronto, March 27—(CP)—Two persons were drowned and two were missing as flood waters in Ontario continued to rise during the weekend.

The body of a five-year-old Indian boy, Franklin George, was recovered from a swift-flowing creek on the Oneida Indian Reserve near London, 150 feet from the point where he fell in. Yvonne Wood of Chatham, 11 miles south of Chatham, fell from a dike into five feet of water and was drowned. The dike holds back Lake Erie from reclaimed onion land.

Bands of weary searchers directed by provincial police have combed the Ajax area just east of Toronto since Saturday looking for nine-year-old Kenneth Foster who disappeared in a bog formed by flooding Puckrin's Creek.

Police and firemen also searched around Highland Creek, also east of Toronto, for Edward Einarson, 9, his tricycle was found in the water.

The upper reaches of the Etobicoke River rose 10 feet Saturday night and flooded the business section of Brampton, 15 miles northwest of Toronto. The river level had dropped five feet by Sunday morning after ice jams were blasted.

Six persons were reported rescued from floods, some requiring medical attention from shock and exposure.

Rescued from River

Mrs. Pearl Cominsky, 65, of suburban Humber Valley, was rescued from the Don River by a passerby after she slipped and fell in. Walter Fowlie, 10, was marooned briefly in Oshawa Creek when flood waters tore away the pile of ice from which he was fishing.

Firemen took Gordon Latimer, 12, to a small island where he was washed up after being swept off a small bridge over the Etobicoke Creek at Islington. A branch and carried 60 yards downstream, he managed to reach the same island by boat ended in failure for Michael Nalawanec. He was swept downstream and had difficulty in getting back to shore.

Two youths, Harold Brown, 20, and Robert Montgomery, 19, both of Toronto, were marooned 12 hours on Pottery Island in the Credit River, 15 miles southwest of Toronto. They did not notice the rising waters until they tried to turn to mainland and discovered the ford under several feet of water and ice.

CARRYING DYNAMITE, SHIP AFIRE RACES TO PORT

Baltoa, Canar Zone, March 27 (AP)—An American cargo ship, the Santa Rita, carrying 4,000 cases of dynamite, raced toward Balboa today with a fire in her No. 1 hold.

The 8,297 ton ship radioed that she was about 220 miles off Balboa and hoped to make port by tonight. The Grace Line ship is a cargo-passenger liner, but agents said she carried no passengers.

Queen Mary's Needle-Point Rug Most Popular Exhibit

Ottawa, March 27 (CP) — An elaborate needle - point carpet made by Royal hands is proving one of the most popular exhibits in Canada's National Gallery has ever known.

More than 3,000 persons crowded up Sunday for a glimpse of Queen Mary's carpet at its first showing in Canada and gallery officials said they expected overflow crowds again today and tomorrow.

Top government officials and their wives, members of the diplomatic corps, shog girls and laborers, all gaped with amazement as Prime Minister St. Laurent unveiled the elaborate masterpiece of needlework that took the Queen Mother 1,000,000 stitches and nine years to complete.

Mr. St. Laurent said Queen Mary's magnificent gesture in giving the carpet she had started as a family heirloom to her country would be an inspiration to all.

The carpet originally intended to hang on the walls of Windsor Castle, is Queen Mary's contribution to the United Kingdom's dollar needs.

It will be shown in centres throughout Canada and the United States and then be sold to the highest bidder from either country with the only provision being it must go to some public institution.

Bids for the carpet are to be sent to the governor of the Bank of England, London, or may be handed to Col. Angus McDonnell, organizer of the North American Exhibitions who is accompanying the carpet on the tour.

The carpet was viewed by 30,000 while on display in New York for four days last week.

Escapes Train But Bumps Car Which Hits Another

Jacksonville, Fla., March 27—(AP)—And caught in a line of traffic on a railroad track. Mrs. Jayne saw a passenger train come roaring toward her car. She stepped on the gas.

Her car hit the one in front of her. It hit another and that one yet another. But the train with reckless driving.

missed the rear of Mrs. Edwards' car as it rushed by.

Bolt of Lightning Misses Children, Hits Home, Church

Bala, Ont., March 27—(CP)—A bolt of lightning which narrowly missed two sleeping children when it struck the United Church manse early today, wrecked the upper portion of the house, blew out a hydro transformer and burned out electrical connections throughout the village officials said.

Rev. Harry Martin said the lightning shattered a door frame and part of a wall and broke all the windows in the rear of the house. Bala is about 110 miles north of Toronto.

London Shopkeepers Would Like To See 'Petticoat Lane' Closed

London, March 27. (Reuters)— district.

Shopkeepers in London's East End are pressing local authorities to abolish "Petticoat Lane."

Contrary to its name, Petticoat Lane—a narrow quarter-mile street officially called Middlesex Street—is one of the most rowdy and raucous market places in the world.

The story is told of the man who had his watch stolen as he entered one end of the lane, then had it sold back to him before he could get out the other end.

Milling thousands of bargain hunters throng the market-place every Sunday morning. Pushing and shoving, they jostle each other about the lone lines of stalls and barrows.

Dealers in the Lane handle everything from puppies to pot-holders, from farming to hat-racks and from jeeps to jewels. One section is devoted entirely to animals and pets, another to fish and smoked eels—a delicacy of the surrounding working-class

Established shopkeepers in the area—badly blitzed during the war—have long sought to have the market condemned or cleaned up. Lately, as rebuilt sections of the area have risen from the ruins, they have doubled their efforts.

Chief complaint against the market is that it "brings down" values a dumping ground for stolen or shoddy goods.

Secondary complaint of the shopkeepers is that the market will "lower the tone" of the rebuilt area.

People who live in the district —mainly garment workers—laugh at this possibility. No amount of rebuilding they say, can ever make the lane "posh". They recall that it was once called "Hong Lane", the setting for some of the more squalid scenes in "Forever Amber".

Later it became known as Petticoat Lane because of the number of women in the district who sewed petticoats and taverns in their petticoats.

Attlee's Over-All Majority Is Reduced to Three By Yorkshire M.P.'s Death

London, March 27 — (Reuters) —The Labor party's over-all majority in the House of Commons was reduced to three today with the death of F. A. Cobb, 49, member of a Yorkshire constituency.

In the Feb. 23 general election Cobb had a majority of 2,210 over the National-Liberal candidate in a straight fight.

Cobb, a radio engineer, cancelled an engagement to speak in his constituency Saturday and flew to London. A doctor was called and ordered Cobb to be taken to hospital.

Cause of death was not announced.

This is the second seat which the government has lost through death within a month of its assuming office. The first was that of A. S. McKinlay, member for West Dumbartonshire, who died a fortnight ago.

The other is at Neepsend, Sheffield, where Minister-General Sir Frank Soskice is standing as a government candidate. The retiring member, Col. H. Morris, captured the seat in February with a majority of more than 19,000, but resigned to make a place for Sir Frank.

The other candidates nominated for the April 6 by-election are Conservative-Liberal, and E. Mogre, Communist. Orthodox Liberals decided not to contest the seat, polling in April 5.

Labor has had fights ahead in the by-elections caused by death. McKinlay had a majority of only 613 in a seat that is split by Dumbartonshire in a contest with Conservative and Nationalist opponents. This time Labor will have Communist, Scottish Communist and Scottish Nationalist rivals.

A. Bridghouse, Cobb registered a vote of 25,588 against his opponent's 23,456.

James Fosbraey Goes on Trial On Tuesday

Napanee, Ont., March 27 (CP) — James Fosbraey, 24-year-old R.A.F. veteran, is scheduled to go on trial Tuesday for the murder of his attractive, red-haired Canadian wife.

Mrs. June Fosbraey, 25-year-old mother of a four-year-old girl, died last November 28 in a blood-spattered snowbank 100 yards from her home. She had been stabbed in the heart with a hunting knife.

She and Fosbraey had been separated for several months. Mrs. Fosbraey lived with her parents, such as:

'Strictly Personal' Ads in Los Angeles Paper Rate High in Human Interest

Los Angeles, March 27. (AP)— The Mirror, Los Angeles' 16-year-old tabloid-size newspaper has found a way to attack those who misuse injury laws.

For as little as $2.04, the paper will introduce you to 1,000 readers through a boxed personal and prospective spouses to fill a matrimonial want ad. Or it will send you to place your personally-worded invitation in the Mirror's classified "Strictly Personal" columns.

Robert M. Kozek, classified advertising manager, tells about a widow who wrote a three-line advertisement for a husband. It casually mentioned that she was wealthy and had a Cadillac.

The ad ran two days. The third day the widow dashed into Kozek's office to say she had received replies from 650 mail-order matrimonial agencies, but not any more.

Kozek has a locker full of some 2,000 additional answers to the one ad.

"They have tremendous pulling power," explains Kozek, "because there are a lot of lonely people in a big city."

"Strictly Personal" is Kozek's idea. Since he came here from Ohio 13 years ago, he has been impressed with the lack of meeting places for the many newcomers.

The little ads— the paper runs 75 to 80 a day— are widely read, not only because of their human interest, but also because some of them are refreshingly racy, or at

"Man with lavender shirt that's a dilly would like to meet lady who digs beer and beans. Object lavender blue dilly dilly."

"Lonely widow, good appearance," this one and implied that it and some other were dreamed up by Mirror editorial men. The publication irked the paper, which has maintained that never, since the ads started nearly a year ago, has anyone from editorial had anything to do with them.

Promotion Chief Rex Barley investigated that particular charge. Found that the dilly item was written (and paid for) by a Hollywood gag writer.

"I did it," the writer confessed, "to get some laughs. I got a million of 'em," he said he had noteworthy full or partial responses to that one and such a gem as:

"Girl wanted to run barefoot through the hay, 10 cents per hour, plus travelling expenses. Must be experienced. Send reel to apply."

But the great majority are from people seeking sweethearts and mates. A typical example:

"If you are in your 40's or 50's, tall, write, presentable, distinctive, intelligent, considerate, mature, truly sophisticated, fond of home, dancing, quite sports and really a gentleman, I want an ad of that and really a lady, might like to know you."

The writer didn't explain how she could be both gentleman and lady.

There's no limit to the type of ad. A male Pekingese advertised for a mate—"object puppies".

City and District News

FIRST PRIZE WINNERS IN COMPETITION

Belleville and district residents won first prizes for the beautification of small holdings developments, by the Kingston Horticultural Society and Veterans Land Act Department at a meeting held in the former in Kingston Friday night.

Local winners were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Stratton and Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Dulmage whose homes is on the city outskirts. Other first prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Wilson, R.R. 7, Kingston; Kirk Coward, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Duff, R.R. 2 Napanee and Mr. and Mrs. R. H White, Campbellford. Plaques and medals were presented to the winners.

KIWANIS CURLERS AT PETERBOROUGH

Two curling rinks representing the Belleville Kiwanis Club were in Peterborough today where they competed with the Peterborough Kiwanis Club Bonspiel. The first rink is composed of F. Creegan, (skip), Claude D. Tice, John Thornbury and Don Stanton. The second rink, Norm. Edwards, (skip), James Cowan, Alf. Symons and Ray Robins.

The bonspiel consists of three draws with the losing Weekend the Calvert Cup and accompanying prize. The Belleville rinks draw action in the 11 o'clock draw.

PRIZE WINNERS DRAWN

Linked with a very successful opening of the "Big Spring Weekend Contest" sponsored by the Earl Dirrah store crowd considerable interest and resulted in three residents of the city and community winning valuable prizes in the drawing lucky tickets. The winners were: Ross Marshall of Belleville R.R. 5; Mrs. Leslie Lough, of Point Anne and Mrs. Elgin Crean of 247 MacDonald Ave, city.

ROBINS, BLACKBIRDS MAKE APPEARANCE

Mrs. W. Burrowes of Dufferin Avenue, reports an abundance of robins in the vicinity of her home. She first noticed the new arrivals on Friday and by Saturday she said there were all kinds of them around the place.

Today according to Mrs. Burrowes a number of the redbreasted harbingers of spring were chirping away having a bath in an ice rimmed puddle at the side of her house.

Another resident reports seeing red-wing blackbirds in the Rossmore vicinity.

Frank Wells Ducks In Moira River To Win $5 Bet

Five dollars in five minutes might seem to be a pretty good rate of pay but Frank Wells, delivery truck driver for the College Food Market, still doesn't know whether it was worth it.

The reason is that he had to take a five-minute ducking in the Moira River to earn the money. Wells doesn't claim to have established any record for early bathing but he figures that not too many have gone swimming voluntarily as early as he has.

It all came about as result of a bet between Wells and a friend. So Friday afternoon he donned his bathing suit and with the occasional cake of ice floating down with the current dunked himself in the water. At 40 second tors were on hand to witness the event.

"Brrrr, it was cold," exclaimed the shivering lad after he climbed out and ducked for cover.

Irate Hockey Fan Ends Night in Cell

Hockey fans from Bowmanville and Gananoque take their sport seriously as was indicated Saturday night in the Belleville rink which attended the Intermediate A playoff between teams from the above centres.

One hockey fan from Bowmanville took a serious view of the defeat of his team and immediately after the game started in on matters by personal combat with an opposing fan. Officers of the law soon visited the unfortunate and the instigator being marched to the police station to cool off.

Rolls Down Stairs

Another fan, Ralph Campbell, R.R. 4, Bowmanville, missed his footing on the west arena steps and rolled to the bottom and passed completely through the doorway. Others picked him up and took him to hospital for repairs to his injuries. He suffered a couple of teeth and lacerations to his face as result of the fall.

Thief Breaks Into Automobile To Steal Violin

The role of a thief may be of a low standard, but at least one of the fraternity has a little appreciation for the finer things of life.

Today Raymond Ervine, 15 East Moira Street, Belleville police report that his auto had been broken into during the night, the thief stealing a violin, the violin which had been left in the car.

16 Lambs Born To Five Ewes

Whether or not there is a shortage of mutton and wool, ewes in the flock of Mr. R. J. Gerrard, R.R. 4, Belleville, are doing what they can to increase the sheep population in the Bay of Quinte area.

Farmers say that ordinarily a ewe will give birth to but two lambs, but those in the flock of Mr. Gerrard apparently are not concerned with matters as trivial as normality.

One of Mr. Garbutt's ewes has given birth to four lambs, while four others became mothers of three lambs each. Normally the number of lambs for the five ewes would not exceed ten. Mr. Garbutt's have come up with sixteen.

Spring Freshets Raise River Level

The volume of water running in the Moira River was considerably increased over the weekend as melted snow in the lowlands north of city made its way into the main river channel.

Since Saturday the water level in the river at the lower bridge has risen well over a foot and the stronger current has pushed the ice field so that open water is visible to a point below the Canadian Pacific Railways bridge.

Saturday afternoon's warm sun saw the snow in the Bay of Quinte area disappear as if by magic and low-lying fields were flooded by the sudden rush of water. Today's rain will also do its part in assisting to melt the remaining snow.

Work Begun On Police Station Alterations

Employees of W. A. Graham, local contractor, this morning went to work on the city police station preparatory for alterations and remodelling which has been in the planned stage for several months.

Plans for the remodelled police station call for enlarged offices for Chief Walter Probert and Inspector Hayes. The present cell area will also be re-arranged and accommodation for police cars in the building will be done away with. The contract also calls for remodelling of a upstairs which holds the city court room. Contract price for the alterations is $7,600.

O.S.D. Pupils Display Exceptional Talent at Annual School Concert

Presentation of the annual school concert by the pupils of the Ontario School for the Deaf in the assembly hall of the school on Saturday night delighted first nighters who left the auditorium with a new insight of the great effort and patience needed to instruct mute children. The concert will be staged again tonight and tomorrow night completing a three-night series.

Under the guidance of the director S. Alec Gordon, two successful productions "Jack and the Beanstalk" a fairy tale in three scenes, and "Cinderella," an arrangement in three acts, of the old fairy tale, indicated the exceptional talent possibilities to be developed in the face of almost insurmountable odds. The rhythm band rendition of "The Easter Parade" and the Overture taken from the picture "Tales of Hoffman the Golden Slipper," supported the fine acting ability of the different children.

Harmonious Skit

A skit in one scene "Wash Day Blues" injected pleasingly between the two productions, provided the humorous diversion in the program. The skit topped off an enjoyable show.

Two examples of what tireless training and great perseverance can produce stood out in the presentation of Jack in "Jack and the Beanstalk," by Robert Reid, and later, Michael Dodd as the "Herald in Cinderella" Both delivered dialogue in a clear and definite manner.

Sets for the "Jack and the Beanstalk" production deserved special mention as the same scene was applied to show Jack climbing up the stalk in the first scene. The resemblance impressed the audience.

A vocal solo "I Am So Sad and Lonely" rendered by Mrs. Doris Bonnyman, a vocal duet "Let Me Love Me" featuring Mrs. Bur-goyne and Mr. Robert Aspinall, provided more enjoyment during the Cinderella presentation.

Other musical numbers which spoke for the time and creative ingenuity spent by various members of the teaching staff, to the numerous pupils who helped in making the concert a success were parties, and to Mrs. Mary Quinn, Miss Leona Riggs and Norman Edwards for the loan of certain properties. In addition to special thanks were due to Mrs. Burgoyne and Mr. Robert Aspinall for their efforts in helping with the presentations. At the outset of the program, school superintendent W. J. Mowbray, M.A., B. Paed., welcomed the audience. Later he thanked the cast and the concert-goers while praising the staff for attaining approved by results. He announced that the sum of $90 had been counted from the donation box at the entrance to the assembly hall.

The receipts of the three nights will go to the Pupils' Benefit Fund to be used for the benefit of pupils who, due to illness of parents or for other causes, are not sufficiently provided for.

In telling of the work of the institution, Mr. Morrison reported that pupils at the age of 21 years at the O.S.D. and three years after have now accepted f j r instruction

Fed Peanuts, Elephant Whips Trunk About Boy, Kills Him

Sarasota, Fla., March 27—(AP)—A little boy was trampled to death by circus elephants was killed Sunday when one of them suddenly whipped her trunk around him, dashed him to the ground and stepped on his body.

By the time attendants could make the 2-year-old Dolly more than five-year-old Roger Schooley was dead.

He had been snatched from the side of his horror-stricken parents, Professor and Mrs. Fred Schooley of Las Vegas, N.M.

The Schooleys had taken Roger and his brother, David, 6, to the winter quarters of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circus for a look at the animals.

The two youngsters were tossing peanuts to the chained elephants when one of the gentlest, 22-year-old Dolly, bade the little dart with her trunk.

J. D. Newcomb, a circus watchman was attracted by screams. Dolly made no attempt to harm him as he used her strong, pointed-toed hoof from the child's body.

Arthur Concello, Ringling manager of the circus, said he was told the boy stole some candy from a guard rope to pick up some peanuts he had dropped. Apparently the elephant became excited "like a dog when someone takes a bone away from it," he speculated.

The manager said Dolly would not be taken on the road with the rest of the circus. She has been chained apart from the rest of the herd.

New Auditorium Will be Opened By Minister

Brampton, March 27 — (CP)— Agriculture Minister Kennedy will officially open a $35,000 auditorium and recreation building as the result of 10 months' hard labor by Peel county Junior Farmers.

The large, gusset-type structure, erected with little "outside" help, has been financed by grants from federal, provincial and local governmental agricultural societies and the Peel Women's Institute. The Ontario government has pledged $10,000 and the federal government $9,000.

The auditorium measures 50 by 70 feet and seats more than 400 persons. The hall also doubles as a dance floor. There are enough separate rooms to accommodate three agricultural meetings at one time. There are tiled washrooms and a fully-equipped kitchen.

Peel County Agricultural Society donated the site in the fair grounds to the Junior Farmers in exchange for 10 days' free use of the hall each year. Work was shared out to 300 members of the Junior Farmers' Association commencing sevgn clubs in the county. Girl members will be responsible for catering to various dinner meetings scheduled.

'White Rajah' Seeks To be Allowed Return to Borneo

London, March 27 (AP)— The would-be "White Rajah of Sarawak" wants the British government to give him the same treatment it gave African chieftain Seretse Khama.

Anthony Brooke, nephew of Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, last Rajah of Sarawak, asked the government by letter to allow him to return to the British territory on the basis that Khama was protected with a law suit he began in 1947 before he was banned from Sarawak.

"His Majesty's Government," the letter said, "have recently given permission to Mr. Seretse Khama who has been banned from the Bechuanaland protectorate to proceed there on certain conditions for the purpose of

NORMAN LAUCHLAND

Madoc (Special) — Word was received in Madoc this morning of the passing of Mr. Norman Lauchland at his home in Vancouver, B.C. Mr. Lauchland will be remembered by the older residents of Madoc as he came to Madoc when the Dominion Bank branch was opened in this village. Along with late Mr. Lloyd Ferguson, manager and Mr. Lauchland as accountant. He retired from the bank business some time ago. He is survived by his wife who was formerly Miss Sue Dale of Madoc, and a married daughter, Pauline residing in Vancouver.

LATE D. H. RODGERS

Tweed (Special) — Funeral services were held on Saturday afternoon for the late Douglas Harold Rodgers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rodgers, Tweed, from his late residence, South Victoria Street, to Tweed United Church. Services at the church and the graveside were conducted by his pastor, Rev. A. L. Black.

High school students formed a guard of honor at the church, on entering and leaving the church. One section of the church was filled with students.

Fifteen years of age "Dougie" as he was known, was born in Tweed and lived here all his life. He attended Tweed Consolidated School, and the time of his death was in the second form at Tweed High School. He was a regular attendant at church and Sunday School. He was a member of Tweed Teen-Age Club. He is survived by his sorrowing parents and one brother, Harry. Members of his family have the sympathy of the community in the sudden passing of a beloved son and brother.

"I have a scholar, an outstanding athlete, and a likeable youth, loved by all," said Mrs. Smith.

"Give me the bracelets then," Tsuchiya answered with an ax.

The man did. The bracelets were handcuffs. The man was a detective.

Tsuchiya is in jail.

GEORGE ARNOLD BROWN

Funeral of George Arnold Brown, one-day-old infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford C. Brown, 30 Ridley Street, will be held from the Grant Funeral Home, Tuesday, March 28th.

Service will be conducted by the Reverend F. B. Harlack, of Tabernacle United Church. Interment will be made in the Belleville cemetery.

Surviving besides his parents are three sisters at home, Beverley, Linda and Marilyn.

Homeless Shiro's Woes End in Lockup

Tokyo, March 27 (AP)— Read from the police blotter this sad tale of Shiro Tsuchiya, 26, homeless and penniless.

Tsuchiya tried to hang himself. The rope was too long. His feet hit the floor when he jumped off a box.

He next swallowed what he thought was an overdose of sleeping pills. It only made him sleep.

Tsuchiya then bought two quarts of low-quality, high-octane sweet potato whisky, drank it all. Instead of release he got on a tremendous jag.

In this condition, he stumbled into a middle-aged man in a railroad station. "Hand over your money," he demanded.

"I have no money," the man said, "but I have some bracelets."

Your loved ones will never forget.
Lovingly remembered by his wife and family.

GO TO CHURCH ON TRACTORS

Wallaceburg, Ont., March 27—(CP) — Time was when a horse and wagon got through when nothing else could on a muddy road. But district farmers report that spring breakup and rains have put some sideroads in such shape that rubber-tired tractors are the only transportation possible. Several farmers drove tractors to church Sunday, with the family perched on them at all angles.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 27 — (CP) — Prices settled into a narrow rut as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. A handful of market leaders pushed into the plus column early in the session and managed to retain their gains. Volume for the first three hours was 593,000 shares.

Canadian Vickers gained 1½ at 101 in steels. Consolidated Paper featured papers for a gain of ½ at 29 5/8.

Senior gold producers dipped fractions while a few key juniors brightened. MacLeod - Cockshutt featured the junior board, adding 10 cents at $3.70 in brisk dealings.

Consolidated Smelters pulled ahead from recent declines in base metals for a gain of 1 1-8 at 93 1-4. East Sullivan was also in good demand, adding 15 cents at $5.75.

Western oils opened firm but slipped under pressure of profit-taking on last week's gains.

Country shippers' quoted graded eggs, cases free: grade A large, 39; A medium 38; A pullet 35; grade B 35; grade C 32. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 43; A medium 41; A pullet 38; grade B 38, grade C 35.

Butter sales: first grade solids, 58; second grade solids, nominal 54-55.

HOG PRICES

Toronto, March 27 — (CP)— Grade A truck hogs were $27.50 at Stratford today.

Other markets were unreported.

WINS AGAIN IN SWEEPS

Sarnia, March 27 (CP) —Six years ago William Lee of Sarnia won $1,300 on a horse in the Irish Grand National Sweepstake. In the latest Irish Sweepstake his luck was good again. He was informed by letter during the weekend that he has won $1,000 as a consolation prize in the Grand National race run Saturday.

He didn't have a horse in the race, but his ticket was one of a number drawn to receive one of the consolation prizes.

Turbulent Air Mass Blows Up From Midwest US

Toronto, March 27 — (CP) — Rain drenched southern Ontario today as part of topsy-turvy weather associated with an outsize whirlpool of air sprawling across half a continent.

However, the rain ended by noon in most sections, including the Toronto district. Weathermen say that cooler, drier air will arrive by tonight and bring sunny skies to southern Ontario tomorrow.

Warm air that Sunday burst blossoms in Indiana boosted today's temperatures in southwestern Ontario into the 50s. In Windsor, this morning the temperature rose 10 degrees in two hours.

King-Size Weather Breeder

Conditions were so unusual that the public weather office at nearby Malton issued a special news release in which it described the turbulent air mass as "a king-size weather breeder" that blew up from the midwestern states.

The low pressure area reaching from the Gulf of Mexico to Saskatchewan, including dust storms swirling in Texas, Kansas and Nebraska, Iowa Indiana and southern Ohio 80-degree temperatures but sent freezing rain to Minnesota and Northern Michigan and snowfalls of 13 inches to the Dakotas and other northern states.

The storm lost most of its punch before it reached Canada. At the lakehead, however, strong winds blew today and snow fell. Port Arthur reported 4 inches as reported, while Montreal had flurries.

The central United States bore the brunt of the storm Sunday. Tornadoes hit wild night with blowing snow, freezing rain, ice pellets and gales of 60 miles an hour with gusts as high as 80.

Cold air in the wake of the storm sent temperatures tumbling drop with dramatic swiftness. In San Antonio, Texas, the mercury plunged from Sunday's 97 degrees to 36 degrees at dawn. Laredo, Texas, roasting at 105 degrees Sunday, shivered at 62 degrees this morning.

Seek to Identify Body of Man Found in Creek

Caledonia, March 27 — (CP) Police today continued efforts to identify a man's body found Saturday in a creek near here and to determine whether it is the same "body" seen nine miles away a month ago.

Otto H. King, Simcoe newspaper man, spotted the "body" in a ditch four weeks ago. When he called police to the ditch, the "body" had disappeared.

Truck drivers Nelson Skye and Ed Pearl saw the body Saturday in the creek, two miles north of here. It was wedged in tree roots and had been frozen. There were no external marks of violence.

King described the body as that of a man between 50 and 60 years old, weighing 200 pounds and with greying brown hair.

One theory is that the body was taken by automobile from the ditch to the creek.

ATTLEE ATTENDS ROYAL FUNERAL

London, March 27 — (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee and nine other members of the Cabinet today attended funeral services for Harold Laski, former chairman of the Labor party.

Laski died Friday at the age of 56. The urn in the tiny chapel was so great that many members of Parliament and some government ministers were forced to stand outside.

Mickey McDonald Killed 18 Mos. Ago Says Official

Toronto, March 27 — (CP) — Donald McDonald, notorious Canadian gunman and bank rogger, was slain by gangsters in Detroit 18 months ago, a senior Toronto police official said today.

The police official was commenting on reports from Ottawa that Canada's public enemy No. 1 was alive and peddling narcotics in a large U.S. city—either in New York State or California.

"Both the police in the United States and in Canada believe that Mickey was rubbed out by his own gunmen associates," the police official said.

"We have conclusive information that McDonald is dead and buried in the United States," he added.

McDonald, along with Nicholas (Nick) Minille, convicted armed robber, and Ulysse Lauzon, notorious Windsor gunman and bank robber, broke out of Kingston penitentiary in August, 1947.

A year later Minille was arrested during an attempted bank store robbery in Los Angeles and returned to Canada where three years were tacked on to his 12 year term.

Two months later Lauzon, who vowed he would live a life of luxury on his $300,000 cache, was found dead in a Mississippi swamp, victim of a gangland slaying.

8. The maintenance of enterprise, of prosperity, of a high level of employment and an expanding standard of human welfare are essential to the proper weapons in the cold war.

Maintain Free Community

One contribution Canada could make to ultimate success in the cold war was to maintain "right here in Canada a strong and healthy free community by which the state remains our servant and does not become our master."

He said he believed it was the duty of governments — federal, provincial and municipal—to do their utmost to improve human welfare and to maintain conditions favorable to successful enterprise and thereby to high levels of employment and prosperity.

"We all want high levels of employment and prosperity but we have always said the bulk of employment must be provided by private enterprise. I do not think we should be very far wrong if agreement to kill the geese that we are counting on to lay the golden eggs."

Mr. St. Laurent said "I believe that our long and happy experience has bred tolerance in our people by instinct and that Canadians are exceptional capacity to understand and co-operate with other nations.

The prime Minister added:

"Today we (Canada) stand united before a world in need of help. And the striking thing is that this world faces a problem on a far greater scale but essentially similar to the problem we faced in the early days of our nationhood.

"We stand thus before a world in need of political harmony such

Disillusionment Among German Youth Helped by Unemployment

Frankfurt, March 27. (AP)—German youth is wavering between democracy and nationalism. The political climate of the early post-war years is wearing off and young Germans are asking:

"What next for us—and for Germany?"

They haven't found the answer yet. Right now, American and German youth experts say, they are sitting squarely astride the fence—watching, waiting, evaluating the political currents that swirl in West Germany today.

Which way they jump will determine the Germany of tomorrow.

Most young Germans thumb their noses at communism. They are not yet prepared to go all out for democracy. They shy away from Nationalist Extremists.

Those attitudes underscore the past failure—and the future opportunities—for the Allies among German youth. They show that 4 1-2 years of Allied occupation have not sold democracy to young Germans.

Need Low Outlook

What is the outlook?

Austin J. Welch, chief of youth activities for the United States High Commissioner, says:

"Disillusionment is great among German youth. It is up to us to bring them to new ideas. We are very much concerned over the effects of growing unemployment on German youth. It can cause a loss of faith in democracy. The same thing happened after the First World War when German youth became disgusted and disgrace with democracy—and embraced Nazism."

The same warning comes from a German official in close touch with youth problems. This official, who asked not to be named, says Germany's economic sickness is the one big obstacle to converting youth to democracy.

"If our democratic government can produce jobs and hope for these young people, they will support democracy," this German says. "If it cannot do these things well—anything can happen."

Unemployment is the curse of German youth today. About 500,000 youths are out of school and unemployed. Another 500,000 are homeless refugees.

"Many of these refuge youths live in the open country, roaming around in search of odd jobs," Welch says. "If they find a job they can't get a place to live because of the acute housing shortage. Some spend four hours a day commuting to temporary jobs.

Now the West German government finally is coming to grips with unemployment. After much prodding from the Allies and opposition parties, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has trotted out a recreation program designed to lick joblessness. But informed American officials regard it as largely inadequate.

Encouraging Factors

On the encouraging side, membership in youth organizations has jumped 100 percent since 1947. This is important.

Twenty-five to 30 percent of German youth belongs to groups of 10 and 25 now belong to youth groups.

The youth program in the American zone is focused chiefly on reconstituting youth morality and socially.

After the war, the only youth leaders in Germany were Nazi trained. New leaders had to be trained.

How effective is this training in Democracy? American officials say it is difficult to estimate. But one fact stands out:

The "Hitler Deutsche Jugend" — Germany's Communist youth organization — has all the trappings of the Hitler youth group—has attracted less than one percent of all youth in organized groups.

Unlimited Funds For U.K. Travel

Ottawa, March 27 (CP)—There is no limit on the amount of money Canadians can take into sterling area countries, such as the United Kingdom, for genuine travel purposes. But many Canadians are under the opposite impression.

So the Foreign Exchange control Board has finally taken what one official facetiously called a preventive sailing also were submitted to the board, leading to the impression that there was a limit. Actually, as the board said, there was and is no limit.

SYRUP OUTLOOK IN WESTERN ONTARIO

Brantford, March 27 (CP) — Farmers say maple syrup will sell at $5 to $6 a gallon when it makes its appearance on the market, probably next week. They blame the storm which demaged trees this winter for a small supply and high price.

ALL THE SIGNS

All the evidence that spring is here were present Saturday when the sun bursting out in its warmth and glow melted ice and snow rapidly, in some places too fast for the drainage to carry away the excess water suddenly released. Roads became bare and in one district the water ran over the road. But the fairly long day came to an end and a great deal of water ran off. Sunday not reaching the high temperature of Saturday and there not being much snow and ice left for the sun to play upon, fears of more streets being flooded were not realized, though on Catherine St. this week the water did cover the road and sidewalk on the north side.

Nature's new life is beginning. Plants which have lain buried for the winter months have made their appearance against the background of foundations which reflect the heat absorbed by the sun's rays. Robins, wrens and bluebirds, young chickens have come and on the farm the young animals have appeared to prove that nature has come to that turn of the year when life begins afresh.

Spring has to make headway before the coming of the birds from their migrations deep in the south and in the north of the continent of South America. These harbingers will be due shortly to join the home-staying birds that keep the north guarded while the migratory groups make their way to the tempting lands of the south.

THE SCHOOL THAT TRAVELS

Children of the northland who attend school in the train which comes to their district for five or seven days every six weeks show readiness to attend. They set a record of attendance.

Education has found a way to meet the children of the trappers, fishing men and others who otherwise would not have had all the advantages of schooling that children require to fit them for life today.

The very novelty of their schooling in a train must be an inspiring fact that impresses them with its uniqueness.

SABLE ISLAND ARISTOCRATS

About a hundred and seventy miles east of Halifax and from the lights of cities and the sounds of engines, it is a world calling back echoes that mock the youth of the mainland. There are lighthouses, some cows, some chickens, some men — sent there by the government just to keep things in order — but none of these signify other than a momentary cackle. The aristocrats of this windy twenty-five mile dune (it was over 200 miles long when Cabot made his voyage in 1497) are the ponies that rove in little bands; who have been there for centuries, living off its wild grasses, eating more water in the blasting winds of winter, and only helping out humans with their chores as a special favor.

Now civilization is stretching out a fat hand to ship them over to Canada's mainland and tame them for more practical use. Their fate for years, handsome little chestnut survivors of an obscure breed on the "graveyard of the Atlantic" as mariners called it. Not many of them, yet so long have they lived there that no one is sure of their origin.

In this outpost of sand the wild ponies have made their terms with Nature. In bands of a dozen or eight each with a leader, they take up their own little localities and respect the territories of the other bands, even as winds bring in rumors of another struggle, that of men against the sea. Four hundred years ago a Portuguese galleon shuddered on the bars that reach out from the island; Sir Humphrey Gilbert's flagship was lost. Ship followed ship to doom. Years later, in 1774, the government of Nova Scotia sent boat-guards out who lured vessels on to the island, killed and plundered for seven years — living in a bizarre form of luxury.

The ponies survived these ugly episodes, sensed the wild outpost island as their home, understood the tongue of ocean and wind and the wild grasses more deeply than man, who could only know that some day Sable Island itself would be taken by the restless, grey power of the sea. —Hamilton Spectator.

KEYS TO THE CAR

Each age, as every oldster knows,
Has its distinctive cares and woes
That rich or poor may never be
From small vexations wholly free.

Back in the horse and buggy days,
A fuss my father used to raise
Because when starting on a trip
He found that he had lost the whip.

At other times, harsh words he'd say
To find the horse had run away.

Grown tired of waiting at the store,
He'd gallop to the stable door.

But time has changed such woes as these,
Instead of whips, we're losing keys,
And very strange the places are
Where slip the keys to start the car.

No age without its share of woe,
No one a care-free life to know,
No whip to lose; no horse to stray,
It's car keys that we lose today.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

MIND OVER MENU

Sauerbraten, I'd like to explain for the benefit of the gastronomically unhep, is the East Side equivalent of ambrosia. I've often served properly this meat dish is usually smothered in a gloppy brown gravy, flanked by potato pancakes—those heavenly derivatives of the lowly spud.

Well, the other Thursday, tortured by a craving for Sauerbraten, I loaded my pockets with bicarbonate and trekked down to a certain restaurant on the East Side which, with the possible exception of Luchow's, serves the only sauerbraten in New York worth a second drool.

My inner rush was over by the time I arrived, and a waiter with a face like pulled-up leather plopped a bottle of seltzer in front of me, an enormous hard bread and one dieties of pig-iron cutlery wrapped in a napkin. Then, without asking me what I'd have, he disappeared into the kitchen. Ten minutes later he returned and set a steaming platter of sauerbraten in front of me.

I was about to dig in when it occurred to me that I hadn't ordered anything to drink. It was that, obsessed by my craving, I had muttered "sauerbraten" while I was waiting the table! Had I doodled the word on the cloth?

"Say, waiter," I said with the coffee, I said, "How did you know what I wanted?"

"I been workin' here twenty-five years."

"But how could you tell?"

"By looking at you."

"I didn't think it showed," I said, blushing. "I don't know. You don't want no dessert so here's your check."

The incident bothered me all week, and so last night I decided to use the telepathic waiter another try. As per usual, I had no plans for eating, but to confuse him I concentrated on roast duck.

This time, however, instead of hot-footing it to the kitchen the stay-at-home gave me the slow up-and-down. "Make up please the menu," I said. "Roast duck or sauerbraten yes?"

"Sauerbraten yes," I said meekly. "Let me in on the secret," I said when the meal was over. "How do you do it?"

"Hard to put a finger on it precise," he said. "Mainly it's a matter of little small things. When you're in the business long enough, comes a time you know what it means when a customer's nose shivers or, say he drowns a couple drops like he's thinking about something juicy. Or take when a regular customer he looks kinda disinterested in food to begin with, and you get an idea by the way he corner of his mouth lifts whether he's thinking of sour cream."

"Don't you ever make mistakes and get in trouble?" I said.

"Mistakes I don't make, but trouble I once got into. Last year two of our customers got married—the lady a vegetarian and the groom a carnivorous type. When they came in for a meat after the honeymoon, I naturally went to the kitchen and brought out blintzes with sour cream for the wife and a big mutton chop for the husband. When the wife saw the steak, right away she began to cry."

"You lied to me," she said, "I married you with the definite understanding no more meat.'

"The waiter made some terrible blunder," said her husband. I was thinking about blintzes and got mixed up."

"My mind musta been someplace elsewhere; I excused myself to the groom. I took back the mussish steak while the husband's eyes followed like a hungry dog, and then I brought him on a plate a whole cabbage, quartered, and told him, 'enjoy'."

His story finished, the waiter scooped up his tip, then polished off the neon sign in the window "It's time now I should have a little bite something myself," he said.

I studied his face and tried to figure out by the droop of his mustache, by the wrinkles in his cheeks, but his face wasn't talking—at least to me. "What you gonna have?" I finally asked.

"I don't know," said the waiter. "I can't make up my mind."

WHAT HORMONES DO TO CANCER

A hormone is a chemical substance produced by an organ of the body which, when transported to other organs or tissues, produces certain effects upon them. The body functions in response to the formation and action of these hormones. When certain hormones decrease in volume or disappear from the body or when, for some reason, they develop in excessive quantities, bodily disease develops.

When the hormones produced by the thyroid gland is excessive a condition known as "hyperthyroidism" develops which is characterized by emotional instability, rapid pulse, loss of weight, profuse sweating and other symptoms. When the thyroid hormone is deficient in infancy, cretinism — arrested physical and mental development, results. If the hormone is deficient in adult years, in the adult, lethargy and other symptoms appear.

The organs or glands which manufacture hormones are controlled by or influenced by the influence of hormones from other glands. The pituitary gland which lies at the base of the brain is regarded as the "master gland" of the hormone system. What really happens is that one hormone is injected into a female, stimulating interstitial tissue of the ovaries to produce a sex hormone. One type of male sex hormone is injected into a female, immobilizing interstitial tissue as the appearance of a beard may result.

Dr. Charles Huggins, of Chicago was the first to discover some surgical relief of cancer by hormone. He established that if the hormones peculiar to the male were removed or greatly diminished, cancer of the prostrate gland in a given patient would tend to disappear. While this action seemed perhaps permanent in some cases, he found that after a lapse of years or at least many months, the cancer again commenced to "grow" and spread."

Somewhat comparable results were obtained by administering the male sex hormone by the injection of certain female hormones. This research opened new vistas in cancer and hormone research and undoubtedly stimulated by the research incentive and effort produced Dr. Kendall's cortisone, a miraculous hormone substance which is the most exciting news in medicine today.

Some peculiar and paradoxical findings have been made in the use of cortisone. It has been established, for instance, that the male sex hormone is more effective in female with cancer had an effect on slowing the growth of cancer. If the female sex organs were removed, a comparable action resulted. It was thus established that sex hormones stimulated the development of cancer, already existing, whether it is in the sex organs and that these hormones depressed the development of cancer existing, whether in the same sex organs.

However, this action seems to depend on the age of the patient to a large extent. Elderly persons have shown improvement under the use of sex hormones which seem to stimulate cancer in younger persons. The reason of this is unknown at the present time.

Some victims of cancer, learning of the action of hormones, have refused operation and have insisted upon treatment with hormones alone. This is very unwise. As stated, used today, surgery and radiation are the most effective methods against cancer. Hormones are properly used in nonoperable cases, or in cases following operation to guard against the metastasizing (spreading) of the cancer. Many persons now living will die of cancer if they try to "hold off" until the ultimate possibility of hormone treatment is determined. While the future holds great hope for this, we must live for the present and avail ourselves of the best views of present day methods while waiting for improvements. This opinion is not put forward as the opinion of the experienced reader who has never slept — in the war on cancer.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Offaein Onazin

I have lost weight several times in my life, and I am now trying to gain again. Can you help me and say that way? (Mrs. B. C. H.)

Answer — By following as your regular living habit a maintenance diet which is a basic health diet. If you have the notions of "fattening" and "nonfattening" foods, you are a problem to yourself. Also you never sleep — in the war on cancer.

Varicose Veins

I have varicose veins in my leg. Is there any help? On the contrary, bowling or any other moderate exercise, including a few miles of brisk walking every day (not strolling or idle saunter) is beneficial.

Embalmed Food

Are you of the opinion that embalming fluid used in preserving food is harmful? (P.A.)

Answer—Yes.

New Phase of Aid Planned by U.S. To Halt Reds

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The United States is about to embark on a new phase of aid to Southeast Asia in an effort to halt communist expansion in that strategic area.

The Red success in China has given the Communists a tremendous fat base from which to operate against neighboring countries. Burma and Indo-China have such grave danger that they are expected to be the first in line which help will be rushed. Indo-China is a pivotal point in the struggle.

What are the prospects? Well, John M. Hightower, Associated Press diplomatic expert in Washington, says officials in the capital feel that there is at least a 50-50 chance of holding the communist offensive. However, they say the possibilities are great.

A Long Build-Up

The Far Eastern problems facing the western countries are these. In some quarters the grave powers are about as popular as the plague, because of the frightened reaction to the generations of western colonialism — exploitation, they call it. One of the west's toughest tasks is going to be to shake loose from the machlet is intended.

The Armageddon which is developing in Asia is partly military, partly political and partly economic. It isn't enough for democracy to provide arms and the necessary know-how for realistic countries. They must be convinced of the superiority of democracy's way of life.

Apropos of this thought, Dewitt Mackenzie, Associated Press Morrison of Britain said in a recent speech that democracy's authority in world affairs has been strengthened by the defeat of the Conservatives in the February general election. He said this is the right of this that was quickly see that it doesn't apply. The Asiatic countries are not politically sophisticate. For that matter most of them are not free from the chains of the past.

Therefore these Asiatic countries not only must be given material aid to withstand force, but they must be convinced that democracy provides the better way of life.

Prelates Approve Five Holy Year Canonizations

Vatican City, March 27—(AP)—Cardinals, Bishops and Archbishops gathered in Consistorial Hall with Pope Pius today to give their votes of approval for five Holy Year canonizations.

Replying to the invitation of the Pontiff that they express their opinion, each Prelate, beginning with the youngest and ending with the oldest, rose and pronounced the word "placet"—latin for "it pleases me," and the equivalent of an affirmative vote.

The vote for all five blessed of the church was unanimous. Attending the semi-secret meeting were 14 Cardinals, all except Norman Thomas Gilroy, visiting Archbishop of Sydney; members of the Roman curia and 70 Archbishops and Bishops who live within a 100-mile radius of Rome. For the 5th canonization, that of the church whose Canonization was approved today, the Cardinals in their consistorial, are:

April 23—Marie Rodat, French Sister who founded the Sisters of the Sacred Family.

May 5—Gemma Maria Claret, Spanish Bishop and founder of the Missionary Sons of the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

June 11 — Vincenzo Maria Strambi, Italian Bishop who was a member of the Passionist Order.

June 25—Maria Goretti, Italian girl whom the Catholic Church considers as having suffered martyrdom in attempting to defend her honor.

July 9—Anna Maria Paredes, who died at Quito, Ecuador in 1644.

Tribesmen Kill Two Professors As Sacrifice

Manila, March 27 — (AP) — Six Igorot tribesmen who confessed to slaying two American professors with spears and knives in a sacrificial ceremony last summer have been sentenced to life imprisonment. The professors were Dr. Robert F. Fonklin of Springfield, Mass., and Marvin Pittman of Chicago, both archaeological researchers at University of the Philippines.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In New York, the inside or kerb aisle of traffic is strictly for those cars intending to turn right at the intersection. When a stop light changes, and a second line pushes into that right hand aisle in the hope of beating the field straight through the light turns green, woe betide him if a policeman spots him. The law makes him turn right, whether he intended to or not.

Some Canadian cities across the country, if you are intelligent enough to have one at the west section for right-hand-turners. If you haven't got that a second car creeps into the space and then tries to beat you and everybody you pass, the result is a wild and often reckless spurt to cut in on you from behind.

Some Canadian cities are better than others in their traffic discipline but they are all in the running for the title of worst. It may be due to something inherent in the Canadian character.

Our national game is hockey.

Could hockey be teaching us to be such drivers as we are? Hockey is a game encouraging first of all, speed. In the second place, it inspires in its players highest individual opportunism. Maybe there is some element of team play in hockey. Now and again, three forwards are obliged to proceed together toward a common goal. But for the most part, a hockey team consists of a group of individuals each of whose worth is proven by the cunning with which he outmaneuvers From coast to coast of Canada, in every province, in every town, every city, and for six months of the year, hockey is burning in the hearts of young men. Generations from little banty boys up to grizzled old men in the ringside seats — —

When anybody is rude to you in traffic, you reflect that maybe his education consisted largely of hockey. Oh is there! Puke check. Body check! Git that puck!

IN FACE OF GRAVE DANGER

Fifteen per cent of all the people in the country are eighty-five per cent of all the accidents. These are the people who drive too fast, drink too much, stay up too late at night, and have scant regard for the rights of others.

Likewise, the criminal population exceeds only a very small percentage of our population — fortunately so. But so malicious and powerful is this group that if police surveillance were let up for twenty-four hours, crimes of unprecedended horror and in unprecedented number would take place.

Some years ago when the police force of Boston went on strike, the hotels refused to let their guests step out of the buil-it.

Democracy is the rule of the majority, yet nowhere does a democracy operate. What really operates in both is the minority rule. It was to get rid of minorities that democracy was instituted; nevertheless the sinister minorities manage by hook or crook to get control regardless of what form of government operates.

Why can't we get together and make democracy work? The overwhelming majority of us feel the same on most public questions and are devoted to the same public ideals.

Democracy has never really had a chance. Before the minority pressure groups devour us, let's get busy and do something about it.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BRAVE PEOPLE

In this space I recently gave praise to that wonderful organization, the A.A. (Alcoholics Anonymous) and I received many of the widespread good that this organization is doing in rebuilding and regenerating thousands of human lives.

I have been receiving many letters from members of this organization, and each one has increased my admiration for the work that is being done to bring back health and happiness to those who have had the will and courage to say, as did that Prodigal Son of old, "I will arise and go to my father," only in a different language. Perhaps this one: "I will arise and be my manly and womanly self again."

One reader has written me that there are those who look upon a member of this organization as "degrading." I cannot agree. It is degrading for any afflicted not to belong! Only one who has suffered can understand the sufferings of another. The cure of resolve—though it may leave us for a spell—seldom unites with that of others, becomes a boon, precious to all alike.

Here is a remarkable little book "The Power Within Us," by Haniel Long, whose verses this item: "To understand what it means to have nothing, one must have nothing." Only those who understand what it is to be one, so that only God exists, can know what that condition can know what it means to be assimilated with those who understand, and who seek anew for sobriety, peace of mind, and a new hold on happiness in life.

There is another wonderful line in that little book, from which I have quoted. Said the writer: "The power of love increases only in others lives within each of us, and from each of us does it re-

News of Trenton

James A. Kerr Well-KnownHotel Proprietor Dies

Trenton (Special) — Widely-known in Trenton and district, James A. Kerr, proprietor of the Gilbert Hotel, died suddenly early this morning in his apartment at the hotel following a heart seizure. Mr. Kerr, although never ailing, took treatment for a heart condition for many years.

He operated a hotel at Campbellford before taking over the establishment in Trenton. He was a great boating enthusiast and piloted his own cabin cruiser on many inland water trips each summer.

His only son James Kerr, Jr., an RCAF Squadron Leader with seven planes to his credit, was reported missing in action shortly after the "D" Day invasion.

Two of his daughters Helen and Sara both graduated as nurses from Hotel Dieu, Kingston. Both were in the Army Nursing Corps.

The other daughter Mary, has always worked with her father in the hotel.

Mr. Kerr's wife survives also.

Junior Farmers Finish Second At Seed Fair

The Hastings County Junior Farmer judging team coached by Agricultural Representative A. O. Dalrymple of Stirling placed second in the judging competition held in connection with the Quinte District Seed Fair held a week ago at Lindsay.

The Durham county team coached by E. A. Summers of Bowmanville placed first in the contest with 2,341 points, while Stirling totalled 2,303 points. Northumberland County was fourth with 2,207 Prince Edward and Peterborough seventh with 2,163 points and Lennox and Addington County 8th with 2,101.

Top junior farmer contestant in the competition was Harold Hammond of Bowmanville with 787 points, while John Geen of Stirling was close second with 782 points. Merle Moore of Springbrook was 7th with 762 points; John McComb, Belleville 11th with 758.

Ten prizes of two bushels lots of oats were presented to the winning boys in each class, while the first 20 boys in the competition received cash prizes.

The high team of Harold Hammond, Earl Brown and Donald Taylor from Durham county, also won two bushel lots of oats and also cash prizes of two dollars each, while the second team of John Geen, Merle Moore and John McComb from Hastings won cash prizes.

Eldorado Wins Madoc District Hockey Title

Eldorado—A hard-fought final series of the Madoc District Hockey League was climaxed at Cooper Arena Wednesday night when after ten minutes of overtime Eldorado emerged the victors and was presented with the Ian Jenffings trophy by Reeve Fred Moorcrest.

Eldorado won three games to retain the cup with Cooper winning one. On Wednesday night of last week Eldorado won 5-1; Friday night Cooper took a game 4-3 and on Monday and Wednesday night, Eldorado won 3-1 and 6-1, successfully defending the championship.

The district league has survived a successful hockey season and it is to be hoped all teams will be in action when next hockey season rolls around.

Concert Proceeds For Hospital

Trenton (Special) — A special Sunday evening variety concert was held last night in St. Peter's auditorium. The after church service consisted of special singing and choruses presented by local talent.

The entire proceeds of the concert will go to the Trenton Memorial Hospital Fund.

Television in Theatre

A new feature of the Trent Theatre will be a television set in the lobby. Mr. Gib Martin manager of the theatre said that he was installing television as an added attraction for the patrons of his theatre. The antenna was erected on the roof of the theatre Saturday afternoon.

New Flower Shop

The Kerr Greenhouse of Brighton opened their new flower shop Saturday, March 25th at 37 Dundas St. E., in Trenton. The new store which will feature flowers, gifts, English china, birds, cages, goldfish, etc., will occupy the office recently vacated by Jack Dean, recreation director for Trenton.

Car Damaged

A slight accident on Front St., Saturday resulted in the crumpling of the rear fender of a car owned by Wm. A. Gannon of 73 Dundas St. W. Attempting to back out of the parking space, Helen Lewis of 17 Bay St., hit the rear right fender of Gannon's car.

Farm Forum Of Foxboro

The Foxboro Farm Forum met on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Harry. The broadcast dealt with the topic "Organization in a Community." Mr. George Cooper led the discussion.

The questions for discussion were, "Do any of the organizations in your community overlap in their activities". Also is there overlapping among the leaders? Is this case what do you think should be done?

It was agreed that there is some overlapping both in the organizations and among the leaders as there are many people who are unwilling to take the responsibility of leadership and as a result the willing worker carries the load. Even when the activities don't actually overlap there are so many that many people can't possibly attend them all.

The Forum feels there should be organization of community activities but do not know just how this could be handled. This would at least, promote better attendance of Forum meetings as a way of making events of the coming week known.

An attempt should be made to develop more leaders among the young people so that this work would be more evenly divided.

After the recreation period, the hostess served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

The next meeting will take the form of a pot luck supper to be held in the Marsh Hill schoolhouse on March 27.

SLOW COOKING BRINGS FIREMEN TO SCENE

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 27 (AP) — Edmund's restaurant looked smoky inside Sunday.

Firemen sped to the scene.

In the kitchen, they found an overdone roast. It was so overdone, in fact, that it had burned to a crisp.

The restaurant is not open Sundays. A chef said the roast had been left Saturday to cook slowly for today's menu.

Thoughts In Fast-Moving Crisis of Life

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Did you ever check back to determine the most fateful moment of your life, and what you were thinking in that fleeting instant?

I often have wondered what has passed through the mind of some individual whom I have seen encounter a fast-moving crisis.

There was for instance the poor devil I saw go to the electric chair. The sight haunted me for days, and I kept wondering what—if anything—dominated his thoughts during the last minute when he was approaching the chair and being strapped in.

Was it fear? (I didn't think so.) Regrets His sins? The hereafter? Some loved one?

Several years ago when my wife and our young son and daughter were in England, Mrs. Mac got trapped in a burning passenger train and for a bit there seemed no escape. She says her dominant thought was whether the children could get along without her.

War naturally produces many personal crises and my experience in two world conflicts was no exception.

One day William Phillip Simms (then of The United Press) and I, war correspondent during the First World War, climbed to the top of famous Vimy Ridge, north of Arras. From the name—top of this ridge one could look for miles across the plain on which a host of Germans was entrenched.

Phil and I got into a small shell-hole on the crest and proceeded to look the field over with binoculars. We must have been careless about the reflection of the sun on our glasses, because the Germans spotted us.

Nasty Explosive

A 5.9 shell landed and exploded with terrific force just to our right. A moment later another shell blew an equal distance to our left. The German gunners were bracketing us, that is, placing a shell on either side of their target before putting a third in the middle.

"That next one will be in this shell hole," I said to Phil.

I had hardly spoken when we heard the devil screaming towards us. As we flung ourselves flat on our faces in the hole the big shell landed right beside us and threw dirt over us. I don't know what Phil was thinking, but in the split second as that shell landed I wondered vaguely what it was going to be like to be blown to pieces. It was purely an academic appraisal.

This was followed instantaneously by realization that the shell hadn't exploded on contact as it was supposed to do. We jumped out of the shell hole onto the skyline and ran for the back of the hill.

Sentenced to Six Months For Dangerous Driving

Cobourg, March 27 — (CP) — For dangerous driving, Harvey Lingard of nearby Bewdley Friday was sentenced to six months in jail.

He was acquitted of manslaughter.

Lingard was charged as a result of the death of Nancy Davis, 9, of Bewdley, a passenger in his automobile when it was involved in an accident last Oct. 16.

Mr. Justice Dalton Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court said in passing sentence.

ST. GEORGE'S GUILD

The weekly meeting of St. George's Guild met on Tuesday with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner followed by a short business period.

The Rev. J. Grant Sparling gave an interesting address on the "History of the Church of England Hymn Book".

Mrs. F. Welch, president of the Guild, on behalf of the members presented a farewell gift to Mrs. J. Ferris, a valued member, who will be greatly missed by all.

Mrs. Ferris graciously thanked the members for their kind thoughts and the gift.

Dainty refreshments were served during a social half hour.

WEDDINGS

MANTIUS—TAYLOR

A wedding of considerable interest took place on Friday, March 17th, in the Episcopal Church in Boulder, Colorado, when Judith Crane Taylor, daughter of Mrs. Hazel Taylor, formerly of Belleville, and Mr. D. Crane Taylor, of Chicago, became the bride of Harold Karcher Mantius, of Englewood, New Jersey.

The bride wore a charming gown of antique satin, with her mother's Venetian lace veil, and carried her great grandmother's ivory-bound prayer book.

Mrs. Taylor was her daughter's matron of honor, while Mr. Phillip K. Mantius of Glendale, Arizona, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

The ushers were fellow university students of the bride and bridegroom.

Following a week's honeymoon at the Broadmoor Hotel, in Colorado Springs, the young couple will reside in Boulder, and continue their studies at the university there until 1951 when Mr. Mantius receives his degree in mechanical engineering.

Mr. Mantius served for five years in the United States Naval Air Arm as pilot. At present, he is attached to the reserve group at Buckley Field, Colorado, as a lieutenant commander.

The bride's grandfather, Mr. Henry Taylor, was a well-known resident of Belleville for many years, until his death in 1926.

Couple Wedded 62 Years See Present Age Pleasure-Bent; Farms in Past Very Productive

"We'd welcome the opportunity of living our lives over again —but not in the present generation."

Such is the feeling of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Weese, of Redeemerville, in Prince Edward County, who on Tuesday, March 28th, will quietly celebrate their 62nd wedding anniversary.

"The present generation lives only for pleasure," chorus this fine old couple. "Life is too easy today."

Born on the Weese homestead only a few miles west of the home where they have lived for the past 15 years, Mr. Weese has lived his entire life in Prince Edward county. He farmed during his more active years and proudly asserts it is an occupation of which no one should be ashamed. Mr. Weese will be 88 in October, while Mrs. Weese, the former Matilda Stewart, will be 79.

But a more active couple would be difficult to find. Both Mr. and Mrs. Weese wear glasses only for reading. The Rich-sentimer stem and their retirement from the farm the couple have worked in a friendly manner together. They expect to do so again.

Although fully appreciative of the advantages of modern machinery, of good roads and automobiles, Mr. Weese says these advantages have not increased the productiveness of Prince Edward County farm lands.

Productivity of Other Days

"Why," he says, "I can remember when this district of Rednersville shipped more grain than is raised today in the entire township." He was referring to the days well over half a century ago when farmers raised barley as a cash crop and sold it for shipment by sailing vessel to the United States. At that time the Weese farm raised 2,000 bushels of barley alone, as well as other grain.

It would be a very small farm which then did not ship as much as 200 bushels of rye, according to Mr. Weese. Wheat and rye was also grown as a cash crop.

Mr. Weese easily recalls when all the grain on his father's farm was cut with a cradle, and can also remember when the first reaper was used in their locality. Their first grain binder was purchased when he was 18 years of age.

Mrs. Weese is a native of Rawdon township. Her family moved to Prince Edward when she was a girl. With a twinkle in her eye she admitted she met her future husband through both singing in the choir at Albury church. She did not remember whether "Jim" saw her home following choir practice.

Building of First Home

Following their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Weese went "on their own" and purchased a farm on the second concession of Ameliasburg in what is known as "The Gore". There they built their first home, a handsome eight room frame structure which cost all of $650.

The house still stands and Mr. Weese says a house like it could not be built today. "For one thing you couldn't buy the material," he said.

Nothing but the very best of clear pine went into its construction. The pine was bought for $5 per thousand and two carpenters, one getting $1 and the other $1.15 per day, put up the house. "Of course we had to board the men," Mrs. Weese pointed out.

Mr. Weese has been running a car since 1916 and laughingly re-

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

The corner meat market seems to be disappearing.

Between 1939 and 1949 the number of meat and seafood stores dropped from 39 thousand to 22 thousand, a decline of 44 per cent according to figures of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

While many people may mourn the red-cheeked butch with his white gown and straw hat, housewives apparently prefer to buy their meat where they also buy their groceries, butter, eggs, cheese, and baby food.

Particularly advantageous are the refrigerated displays of ready cut meats from which you can pick chops as thick or cutlets as thin, as you want them.

Ham steaks, slices from the centre of smoked hams, are ideal for placing on the meateria line. You needn't argue with the butcher about the size or quantity of fat on a ham steak when you have two or three dozen from which you can make your selection.

Ham Steak with Cranberries. 6 Servings

Select a centre slice of ham weighing about 1 1-2 pounds cut from a tenderized ham. Cover with a mixture of half water and half milk and soak for 2 hours.

Remove from liquid. Cut off any fat in excess of 1-4 inch from side of ham steak. Cut several small gashes on edge of ham to keep it from curling.

Place ham in a greased baking pan, insert 4 to 6 whole cloves in ham fat.

Put 1 cup of washed fresh cranberries through food chopper. Add to the cranberries 1 tablespoon grated orange rind and 1-2 cup honey or 1-2 cup brown sugar. Mix well.

Spread cranberry mixture over ham.

Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees for 1 hour, more or until tender. Pour liquid in pan over ham steak frequently.

In place or raw cranberries, 1 cup canned cranberry sauce mixed with 1 tablespoon orange rind (omitting honey) may be used.

Comrade Club Observes 25th Anniversary

With upwards of 70 in attendance including husbands and other guests, members of the Comrade Club, women's organization of Tabernacle United Church, celebrated their 25th anniversary at a banquet held in the church Sunday School rooms, Friday night.

Highlighting the silver natal day celebration, was a handsome candle-bedecked birthday cake which occupied a prominent place on the head table.

Mrs. Wallace D. Embury, club president, was in the chair, and after formally welcoming members and guests outlined the aims and objects of the club. Membership, she said, was kept to a minimum as the club could meet in private homes every two weeks.

Following grace offered by the Rev. Frank Harback, Tabernacle United Church minister, Mrs. William Wonnacott proposed the toast to the guests. Mr. Cecil J. Lent, Toronto, and former member of the Tabernacle church, made the response. Mr. Lent was only life member of the club sponsoring the girls' organization with the group.

Miss Beverley Buck, talented young vocalist, offered two numbers one of which was her prize-winning effort in the recent Kingston Music Festival. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. M. F. Duff.

First president of the club, Mrs. Nora Gullivan Tweddle, outlined a history of the organization from its inception, pointing out that from an original membership of seven in May, 1925, it now has 27 members with honorary and associate members. The club's many activities, she said, has enabled it to make a contribution of some $17,000 to the church during that period of time.

Tribute to the fine work done by the Comrade Club was paid by Mr. Harback, who added his wish was for another success.

To Mrs. Frances Nicholson, valued member of the church and choir until her removal to Napanee a few years ago, fell the honor of cutting the birthday cake. Assisting were Mrs. Joss and Mrs. Andrews.

Dr. Berl Howard, principal of Albert College, guest speaker, gave a highly interesting address on "The World in which We Live". He was introduced by Mr. Harry Moorman. Appreciation of the club for the address was offered by Ernie Greenleaf.

The dinner prepared by the Comrade Club, was served by a sister organization of the church, The Good Companions Club.

calls when in 1918 they motored to Toronto to attend the exhibition. "It took us all day to get there," he said. "That was before the day of paved roads such as we now enjoy."

Mr. and Mrs. Weese attend church regularly at Rednersville United Church where Mrs. Weese is active in women's work.

They have three sons, Clayton of Smithfield; Norman of Frankford, and Lloyd of LaSalle, Mich., and two daughters, Mrs. Everett (Flossie) Brickman, and Mrs. Thos. (Beryl) Leslie of London. There are 13 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

W.M.S. Annual Meeting Will Be at Napanee

The 25th annual meeting of Belleville Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada will be held in Trinity Church, Napanee, March 30th.

"Measuring Advance" is the theme of the conference. Guest speakers will be Miss Helen Day, Editor of the Missionary Monthly, and Miss B. Courtice of Japan; two outstanding workers of this world-wide society.

The executive and nominating committees will meet Wednesday a: 2:30 p.m.

The Presbyterial session will open at 8:45 a.m. Thursday and continue through until evening

Mrs. A. Empey will preside at all sessions.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

An appealing gesture of bride's father

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
My mother died several years ago, and since then my father and I (an only child) have lived together in our house. We love each other dearly, and my father also loves my fiance. I am to be married in June, an informal afternoon wedding in the Presbyterian church. I have always attended. Once, about two years ago, I went to a wedding of a similar type and I shall never forget how deeply touched I was when the bride's father, as he and the bride arrived at the head of the aisle, kissed her before he stepped to the left and as the groom stepped to her right. My father would like to do this. If it is correct, he, too, has seen this done. Mrs. Beeckman, is it considered proper? Since "We Three" will live together in our house, and since the bond between us will, I hope, be so strong, I would like to consider this gesture as a sign of this bond. What is your advice about this?

Beatrice F.

A beautiful letter . . . thank you for it.

Yes, dear bride-to-be, I have seen this done several times, and it is indeed a tenderly appealing gesture. (Usually makes the wedding guests quite misty-eyed.)

It would be particularly touching and significant if lovely sentiment in the special circumstances of your marriage and wedding. Please may I urge you to talk over this plan with your minister, to be sure that you have his complete approval.

(Suggestion: Sometimes, instead of the bride's father kissing the bride just as they arrive at the head of the aisle, he kisses her just before he gives her in marriage.)

Letter of thanks for business introduction

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
"Through an introduction of mine I was introduced to a man who very kindly wrote for a letter of introduction to a business friend of his in an effort to help me obtain work. The letter proved beneficial and I was given the job. Although I scarcely know the man who wrote the letter of introduction, don't you think that I should write him a letter of thanks? If you advise this, would you please give me some suggestions as to the form of this letter? Thank you, if you will.

Grateful Reader

Please do, please do, write a letter of thanks to the man who so kindly wrote the letter of introduction for you. This generous deed is such a very special courtesy that indeed it should be very specially thanked for . . . and the fact that you "scarcely know the man" makes this bow-of-thanks even more necessary. Your letter might read something like this:

My dear Mr. Goodly,
I want to tell you how deeply grateful I am to you for your special generosity to me in writing your letter of introduction to Mr. George Davidson, of the ——— Company. Such a very kind and generous to be so understanding and quick to take such an interest in my problem. Because of your letter I was given an interview, and last week I was given the position.

I assure you, sir, that I shall try in every way to merit your faith in me and your great courtesy in me.

My best wishes, Mr. Goodly, and again my appreciation.

Very sincerely yours,

Honor to guest of honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
When there is a guest of honor at a very large affair, is it absolutely necessary that everyone be introduced to the guest of honor? Very often this isn't very convenient, and very often, as a matter of fact, some guests do not make any effort to meet the guest of honor, and those arranging the affair do not know that these introductions have not been made.

M. T. K.

Yes . . . when there is a guest of honor it is most important that every guest greets the guest of honor. To omit this bow-of-honor to the guest-of-honor is discourteous to the guest of honor and to the guest. If there is a receiving-line, every guest must go down the line, greeting the guest of honor who will be standing next to the hostess at the beginning of the line. A guest arriving after the receiving-line has been disbanded should ask some member of the arrangements-committee or other person in authority," to be introduced to the guest of honor.

Not necessary but more gracious

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This is a question that always bothers me, and since it has arisen again today I decided to write you before I again postpone writing for your advice. When I receive a gift on any occasion, and the enclosed card reads, for example, "To Anne, from Sally and Polly", is it necessary for me to write a thank-you note to each one, or should I write one note to both?

Anne L.

This question . . . like so many questions concerning the writing of thank-you notes . . . points up the difference between that earth-bound word "necessary" and the charming and high-hearted word "gracious"! Since the gift was given jointly by Sally and Polly, it is correct to write a thank-you note to Sally and Polly, in other words, it is not necessary to write an individual note to each giver . . . but it is more gracious to do this. Don't you agree?

FRONTIER MARRIAGE?

Attractive Freda Coolings, 36-year-old English stenographer, is shown here as she arrived in Halifax, ending the first leg of a 6,000-mile journey to the Yukon. She will renew a wartime romance with John Lowsey, 30, of Vancouver, now running a trading post at remote Beaver Creek, near the Alaska Highway. The couple met during the war at a sailors' club dance in Liverpool where Lieseey was serving as a ship's radio officer. Asked whether wedding bells are in the offing, she replied: "Just wait and see. It's hard to say." — (CP Photo.)

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

When the hair starts to fall.

There are times when a woman may wish that she had been born a man. She should ponder on that subject. She has one advantage. Few women are bald headed. Your reporter asked a hair specialist why women suffer a reasonable explanation of this phenomenon. He explained that after he believed it is because women take better care of their hair than do men. The way the male of the species shampoos his locks is a disgrace. Lots of soap rubbed in; a casual rinsing under the shower. Hair, shafts and scalp often carry soap scum that causes dryness and an unhealthy condition in general.

Baldness rarely means ill health. If it did more attention would be paid to it. Possibly the circulation is not able to provide the proper kind or amount of nourishment. If you find fallen hair in your hair-brush more than usual, because each day some hair shall fall—make it a practice to massage your scalp every night of your life.

Illustrated by Greg Powers Syndicate

Baldness rarely means ill health.

Precede the friction with a rousing brushing. Every part that the bristles remove is as dead as Cleopatra so don't fancy you are pulling them out. The sooner one is out, the sooner a silky little underdaddy will appear to carry on. Brush the hair strand by strand, holding each one away from the head. Slap the bristles on your scalp, sweep through the tress with a rolling motion.

A brush that is narrow, with bristles set in groups, will do a better, quicker, more thorough job than a wide one with massed bristles. Also, it can be kept clean more easily; and cleanliness is necessary to scalp health.

Applications of hot mineral oil the night before the shampoo, seem to act as a tonic, especially if the growth is dry. It helps to loosen dandruff. Dandruff may do no damage to the hair, but it forms a perfect breeding ground for germs that may cause an infection.

After the oil has been distributed and well rubbed in, wring around the head a heavy towel that has been wrung out of steaming hot water. The flow of blood will be stimulated by the moist heat and this in turn will activate dormant cells.

As with all beauty griefs, the general health plays a part. Physicians say that the hair may fall when nutrition falls below par or when there is a defect in metabolism. Even dental decay, failure to replace teeth, is mentioned as a possible cause of a depleted mop.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Another side of the same story

A few weeks ago in this column I discussed a letter written me by a woman who had bitter complaints against her daughter-in-law.

In the course of the letter she told me a number of things about her son's wife which seemed to indicate that the girl was mentally unbalanced.

My feeling was that this girl was in serious need of medical treatment, and I suggested that either the mother-in-law or the husband consult a social welfare agency about the problem.

Now I have a letter from a young woman who says she is the wife in the case, and she wants to tell her side of the story.

According to her, it is the mother-in-law, not herself, who is the one in need of a doctor. She says that she was the victim of her marriage to this woman's son, who had to live with his people, and that his mother's behavior and attitude were extremely abnormal from the beginning. "When her husband used to get sick," she writes "she would let him fall on the floor and then would kick him and tell him to die. She wouldn't even give him a glass of water. After that, I had no respect at all for her."

To her mother-in-law's charge that his mother, she replies that, on the contrary, the son constantly put his mother ahead of his wife, even to the extent of buying a house for his mother on his GI loan. The mother-in-law sold the house at a profit, she says, and kept the money, although the son, his wife and their two small children were living in a basement room with no heat because they could not afford to pay more rent anywhere else.

On one occasion, according to her story, her mother-in-law came into the house and tried to stab her with a knife. On another, when the girl and her husband had given her flowers on his father's grave, the mother put a note on the tombstone ordering them to keep away and saying that "she was going to go to church and curse us to death." She also destroyed the flowers, trampling them into the earth.

"As for my not allowing my children to call her grandma," she continues, "why should I when she goes all over town saying they are not my husband's children and that that is why we have all the trouble? Even my three-year-old daughter realizes the situation, because she always says: 'The lady upstairs makes my mommy and daddy fight.' Everyone in the neighborhood thinks she is out of her head."

The husband himself is apparently only one more problem, if all the facts are as the girl states them, since he is a heavy drinker and has often abused her brutally. She has left him a number of times, but each time returned when he pleaded with her and promised to do better.

"The only reason I have tried to keep that marriage together is because of the children," she says. "They love him so much . . . I'll leave judge me now, and let me know if you still think I need a doctor," she concludes her long letter.

In such a dreadful family tri-angle, it seems to me that all three of these people—the mother-in-law, her son, and the son's wife—need straightening out. Which of the two women is most in need of a doctor it would be hard to say, since there is no way of knowing whose story presents the facts most realistically.

In any event, I still think this whole problem should be taken to a social welfare agency so that some one experienced in helping to work out family problems can get a complete picture of each of the three involved and see if there is anything that would improve matters. I will be glad to supply the name and address of such an agency if we each of them will send me a self-addressed stamped envelope.

This is their chance to show whether or not they sincerely want to find a way to live in peace and harmony with each other.

She's turning her problem into an Endurance Contest

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband has always been a good man. He worked and never has no bad habits.

Around Christmastime, however I found him and my girl friend together in my living room. They were sholding hands and talking together. I don't know if anything else happened, but that was enough for me. I had it out with him and he said it was nothing and that he loved me very much. I also had a talk with her, and she said she did not care for him.

Every time we came over after that, however, she just sat there and looked at him all night. And it was written all over her face that she has a crush on him. He is 41, and she is 19. I am 35 and have two lovely children. She is getting a divorce after being married one year.

My feeling for him has not been the same since that night I found them together, but still I do not want to break up my home on account of the children, as they love him very much. Last week I found a handkerchief of his with lipstick on it. He knows I have the handkerchief and that I suspect something, and he is trying to be very nice to me so as to cover up. I would like to talk it out with him, but why should I start it first? I think it is his place to find out just what I am thinking.

Mrs. M.

Dear Mrs. M.:

No problems are ever solved by the kind of stubbornness that makes one person think the other should speak out first. All that sort of thing ever accomplishes is to make the situation grow constantly more strained and uncomfortable.

If a man makes the decision to keep silent about a thing of this kind in the hope that, by so doing, it may blow over instead of becoming a serious crisis between them, that is one thing, and frequently the wisest course she can follow. But if, as seems evident in your case, your only purpose in keeping silent is to force your husband to speak first, it is unlikely that any good can come of it.

In the state of mind you are obviously in, you are turning your situation into an endurance contest and simply waiting for the chance to explode. Because of this, you are inevitably heading for a bitter quarrel sooner or later, unless someone can help you to approach the matter in the kind of boy friend you should have. And any girl who has reached the age of 17 shouldn't need any one to tell her that.

I suggest that you go and talk with some welfare agency used to helping solve family problems. If you wish to do this, and will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will be glad to tell you just where to go.

She should know enough to let this boy alone

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the last two years I have been going with a boy who drank, but not too much at first. I asked him to stop, and one time he did for as long as two months. Then he started again, and ever since he has been drinking heavily. He has stood me up a couple of times to get drunk, and a couple of other times he went riding with his friends instead of meeting me.

Do you think he would rather go with the boys and get drunk than go out with me? We are both 17.

U.

Dear U.:

It seems to me this boy has shown you very plainly what he would rather do than go out with you. If I were you, I would show him just as plainly that it is all right with you if he stay away from you for good. Any boy who is drinking heavily at the age of 17 is headed for the kind of boy friend you should have. And any girl who has reached the age of 17 shouldn't need any one to tell her that.

T.C.A. LANDED IN FINANCIAL RED DURING 1949

Ottawa, March 27 — (CP) — Trans-Canada Air Lines ended in the financial red in 1949 but hopes to do better this year with the help of an extensive "travel-by-air" campaign.

The annual report of the 18,000-mile nationalized airline, whose services extend over almost half the world, was tabled in the Commons Friday by Trade Minister Howe.

It showed the system's 47-plane fleet flew more than 20,000,000 miles last year, carried more than 685,000 passengers and earned a profit of $36,000,000 but still wound up with a $4,000,000 overall deficit. It had a highest-ever revenue of $39,000,000 on domestic services but overseas routes showed a straight operating loss of $1,000,000.

T.C.A. president G. R. McGregor, who signed the report, wrote that seasonal traffic fluctuations, increased costs, loss of trans-Atlantic immigrant transport services, and customs duty and sales tax the company had to pay on import of U.S. materials, all played a part in the deficit picture.

But he was hopeful for the future and said in 1950 T.C.A. would "continue the active stimulation of air travel and transportation."

The airline's report said increased operational costs had been due in part to use for the first time over a full year of its 20-plane fleet of four-engined Canadian-built North Stars. But the planes had performed excellently and their record in achieving the best schedule performance in the airline's history spoke for itself.

Revenues Down

The balance sheet showed revenues of $36,523,969 compared with $39,086,936 in 1948 for the parent company, Trans-Canada Air Lines, on North American operations. Expenses totaled $24,-953,201 compared with $19,949,970 two years ago.

The North American company's overall deficit after providing for interest on capital and depreciation was $1,419,443 compared with $1,153,003 in 1948.

It was the subsidiary company, Trans-Canada Air Lines (Atlantic) Limited, which lost most heavily. It earned $10,222,326 compared with $10,861,110 the year before and operational expenses amounted to $11,603,253 compared with $11,126,437 in 1948 for a deficit of $1,270,999.

After all debit provisions had been made the overseas operations deficit was $2,898,149 against $1,790,518 in 1948, thus bringing the combined domestic-overseas deficit to $4,317,592 compared with $2,933,240 two years ago.

Office Beats Bowery To Enter Finals In Northern League

The Office team of the Northern Electric Interdepartmental Hockey League won the right to meet the Wire Water Street squad in the league finals Sat. morning when they defeated the Bowery Boys 4-3 in the third game of their semi-finals bracket.

Water Street and Office will play a three-game series for the championship with the first game scheduled for Monday night following the Marmora-Lakefield game.

Little and James paced the Office to victory each scoring three goals. Yorke added a pair for the losers with Laplante getting the third.

Play was close in the first period with both teams scoring twice. Office went into the lead in the second period with two goals by Little while holding the Bowery Boys scoreless. Laplante made it 4-3 early in the second period but Little and James slung home the clincher goals near period-end to take home the bacon.

The Teams:

Two Workers Die By Electrocution In Separate Accidents

Montreal, March 27 — (CP) — Two workmen, an electrician and a dockworker, were electrocuted Friday in separate industrial accidents. Aurel Beauchamp, 32-year-old employee of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company, died instantly when he touched a pofer line at nearby Pointe Calumet while changing telegraph wires. Jacques Senecal, 28, died en route to hospital after he received a fatal shock while operating a crane at the east-end dock. Police said the crane apparently touched a live wire.

Report Mickey Dope Peddler In U.S. City

Ottawa, March 27. (CP)—Donald (Mickey) McDonald, who tried everything from beer running and brutal assault to hijacking, bank robbery and jailbreak in a long criminal career, has a new occupation.

An informed official source said Sunday night it has been learned the 42-year-old escaped convict has turned to dope peddling in a large United States city.

McDonald, once known as the mad dog of Toronto Jarvis St., a throwback to the 1930's when his beer-running gang regularly beat up hotelmen and any one else who got in his way, is believed to have been holing up in the United States since shortly after he broke out of Portsmouth Penitentiary, near Kingston, in August, 1947.

Last Unaccounted For

Today he remains the last man unaccounted for of the three long-term criminals who sawed their way out of the penitentiary in what was described as Portsmouth's biggest break in a quarter of a century.

Nicholas (Nick) Minille of Ottawa, 32-year-old convicted armed robber, and Ulysse Lauzon, Windsor, Ont., gunman, took part in the successful break.

A year after the three agreed their way out of the pen, Minille was arrested during an attempted drug store robbery in Los Angeles and returned to Canada where three years were added to the 17-year armed robbery term he was serving at the time of his escape.

Found Dead in Swamp

While Minille was awaiting return to Canada, Lauzon, who vowed he would live a life of luxury on his pirate's cache of $200,000, was found dead in a Mississippi swamp, the victim of gangland accomplices.

Just where McDonald is in the United States is not known. Sparse information on his operations, filtered through to police from underworld sources, indicates that he is either in New York or California.

The informant said it is unlikely that McDonald is a dope addict himself. However, with illicit drugs currently selling for more than $1,000 an ounce, he would be doing well at his latest criminal occupation.

It was learned that Canadian police officials don't expect McDonald will be brought back to Canada alive.

Given 15 Years

He was sentenced to 15 years for hi-jacking a $35,000 load of liquor in 1944 and would be liable for as much as seven additional years in penitentiary for jailbreak. In addition he might be called to face charges in connection with a $40,000 bank robbery at Windsor shortly after the 1947 escape.

Mickey now is 42, and he would be an old man before getting out of jail legally. In the past Mickey has always given up to police without a fight when caught .But police expect a battle if they ever get him again.

OPERATION IS SUCCESS

New York, March 25. (CP)—Doreen Stoutenberg's operation was a success—she can see again.

Doctors Friday removed the bandages from the eyes of the 19-year-old London, Ont., girl. She was already up when her mother arrived at the hospital.

"I can see, mom!" said Doreen happily when she met her mother.

Mrs. Stoutenberg then phoned the good news to her husband in London. He had spent the last nine days anxiously awaiting the outcome while his wife went to New York with their daughter.

Junior N.C.O's Complete Course With Exams.

The junior N.C.O.'s course for members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment ended yesterday with examinations before a board with Major J. D. Hall of Picton presiding.

The course started on February 5th., attracting reserve army personnel from Trenton, Picton, Madoc, Tweed, Bancroft, Frankford and Belleville. A total of 21 participants for the junior N.C.O honors were on parade yesterday for the tests.

A sample of the enthusiasm shown by the army men writing the exams came to light, when Cpl. W. Steenburg of Trenton arrived for parade following an accident in the morning, when he suffered considerable loss of blood from a severed artery. Cpl. Steenburg proceeded to the Armouries here for his tests directly from the doctor's office where he was treated.

Yesterday's exams concerned part "A" of the junior N.C.O's qualifying course in Reserve army instruction. The practical part "B" of the course is taught at summer camp.

The prospective N.C.O. was schooled in map using, weapon training, military law, drill tactics, technical instruction, man management and N.C.O. duties.

Under a new system junior leaders are taught to teach men to be teachers while emphasis is placed on getting the best out of men individually. The keynote of the course accentuates leadership throughout.

The examining board comprised: president Major J. D. Hall; members, Capt. D. R. Gallese, Capt. R. Cole, Capt. J. W. P. Bryan, Capt. A. Macintosh, W.O. II R. J. Addis and W.O. II C.C. D. Cheshire.

DEADLINE FOR FILING SUITS OVER NORONIC FIRE

Cleveland, O., March 27—(AP) Federal Judge Paul Jones has extended from April 3 to June 20 the deadline for filing suits in the burning of the steamer Noronic at Toronto last Sept. 17. The majority of the 119 fatalities were Americans from the Cleveland and Detroit areas.

New Agreement Ratified by Electrical Union

Toronto, March 27. (CP)—A new agreement between the Canadian General Electric Company and the United Electrical Workers Union, affecting 5,500 workers in Peterborough and Toronto plants, was ratified Sunday by the Union membership.

C. S. Jackson, Canadian director of the Union, said the work week is reduced from 45 to 42 hours at Peterborough, and from 44 to 42 hours at Toronto. Workers in Peterborough will have the option of putting in another hour a week to maintain their weekly pay.

According to the union the agreement raised the hiring rate for men from 86 to 96 cents an hour with new employees reaching a minimum rate of $1.02 for men and 88 cents for women after two months.

The agreement on hours of works and maintenance of take-home pay is in line with recommendations of a conciliation report which the company had offered to implement. The union, however, won an extension in the period for back pay and some other concessions. The basis of settlement was reached with assistance of Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario Labor Department, after the parties had reached a deadlock.

Fatality Toll During Weekend Numbers Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

The drowning of two Ontario children, one in flood-swollen creek waters, was among seven fatalities reported in Eastern Canada this weekend.

A Canadian Press survey showed Ontario mishaps claiming five of the victims while two persons were killed in Quebec. An accidental shooting, a suicide, one fall and two traffic accidents were responsible for the deaths.

Franklin George, a five-year-old Indian boy and resident of the Oneida Indian reserve about 20 miles southwest of London, drowned in the raging waters of a creek near the reserve. The lad reached over the banks to scoop some foam, fell in, and was carried away by the swift current. The body was recovered after it caught on a clump of bushes.

Yvonne Wood, 3, was the other drowning victim. The child fell over a dyke near Chatham while playing in the yard of her home with several people. The dyke is one of several in the district that holds back the waters of Lake Errden, reclaimed onion marshland.

Two Missing

Two other Ontario children are missing and believed drowned.

Norman Elliott, 64, of Niagara Falls, was the victim of what is believed to have been an accidental shotgun blast. The body was found in his chicken coop, the 12-gauge gun at his feet.

At Port Colborne, James W. Howard, 37, in jail on an illegal liquor possession charge, hanged himself with his shoelace. Guards found him dead in his cell.

At Toronto, Alexander McLaren, 70, was a fall victim. The elderly roomer mistook a stairway for the door leading to another room.

At Derion, 25 miles west of Toronto, Roland Legault, 25-year-old trucker, was killed when his heavy tractor-trailer collided with another truck.

In Montreal, Allaney Meard, 59 died of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile.

TAX RATE UP

Toronto, March 27 (CP) — A civic tax rate of 33.3 mills, which is 2.8 mills higher than 1949, likely will be presented to city council at its special budget meeting next Thursday.

Mayor Hiram McCallum and Finance Commissioner G. A. Lascelles Sunday night refused to make formal announcement of the rate until board of control meet today.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Whatever may be the faults, if any, of the populations of Gananoque and Bowmanville, it cannot be said they do not support their hockey teams, if Saturday night's affair in Memorial Arena is a criterion. Nearly 1400 supporters of both squads saw a blistering, boisterous battle with the fate, the fortunes of victory swaying first one way, then the other. A convoy of buses and cars brought the Bowmanville contingent. The Gananoque support team came in limousines and jalopies of every vintage. It was somebody's night to howl — and both factions were out their tonsils until the fates decided that the down-easters had the last roar.

From the first floor eyrie of the press box which, for the evening was nearly the center of a crowd of howling Gananoqueans (that's a word for the book), we heard more exhortations, appeals, advice, coaching and hockey whatnot than these ears have contacted in years. Across the way, and in the "bull-ring" at the south end of the rink, the Bowmanville "experts" held forth. In fact the versatile contingent in the bull-ring which may have been the local high school cheering section, (they had leaders, and all) put many of their verbal efforts to music. It even beat all) put many of their verbal efforts to music. It even beat the National Anthem to the punch, by at least a minute.

Across the way, one of the leaders of the strong Bowmanville section, who by the end of game time had gone through more jumping jacks (with a couple of kicks on F. T. instructors of the old army school, eventually developed a Gypsy Rose Lee complex, and started to disrobe himself of his clothing. This was in the third period when his team tied the score at two-all. He flung his hat away, then his overcoat, followed the jacket and vest, and then his cravat which he used in a pennant fashion. The blue shirt was partially untucked when the Gananoque team scored its third goal. The Bowmanville contingent partially silenced by the eleventh hour turn in fortune settled in their seats. One hour later he had his shirt buttoned when the fourth goal trickled in the Bowmanville net. That started a hurried dressing affair on his part, and by the time the final whistle tooted he was back in proper garb. We shudder to think what would have happened had the fortunes of victory veered the other way. The crowd would probably have witnessed the Bowmanville Bluebird, doing a Lady Godiva astride the brawny shoulders of his pal, or a voodoo dance in his birthday suit.

Opposite, just behind the press box, to be exact, a staunch Gananoque fan aided and abetted by a few slugs of Dutch courage, took over a private coaching job. With 'hie'-spritzled exhortations, he chanted in a sixty-minute chore, (with time out for re-fueling) and it wasn't his fault, his team didn't win by a dozen markers.

To get back to the game proper, it was a terrific battle with both teams travelling at a blistering speed throughout. Until that fateful goal with 3.40 to go in the third period, it was anybody's game, with both Farrish, Gananoque goalie, and Bowmanville's Eddie Jackson in the limelight in sensational performances. Farrish, if anything, had an edge on his opponent especially in the second period when defending Bowmanville's frosh lines at will. In fact the teams, evenly matched, gave all they had, and the tide of victory could have gone either way. It was "one of those things" that frequently occur in hockey games that finally turned the tide of victory to Gananoque. Bowmanville, fast, tricky and well-balanced, was by no means outclassed, and on their performance Saturday night would have carried the Eastern-Central Ontario Intermediate "A" banner down the rocky playdown trail in as capable a manner as will the Gananoque crew.

Trent Valley League champions, the Marmora Intermediate "B" hockey squad, faces elimination in Memorial Arena tonight when they face the potent Lakefield team in the third game of their two-of-three playdown series. Lakefield aided the Hastings County crew here by a 10-3 score in the first game and took the second tilt 9-6 in Peterborough last Friday. So it will be do or die tonight for Marmora. A large contingent of fans from the mid-Hastings village is expected to be on hand to root their team to victory.

Gananoque Beats Bowmanville In Rugged Battle With Issue In Doubt Until Dying Minutes

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

In a bruising rugged battle that was not decided until 62 seconds remained in the game, Gananoque defeated Bowmanville by a 4-2 score in Memorial Arena Saturday night to take the fifth and deciding game of their OHA Intermediate "A" playdown round.

Nearly 1,400 fans, the majority composed of factions of rival supporters, shook the rafters of the arena with a sustained wave of cheering, jeering and advice as the two teams maintained a blistering speed throughout the entire sixty minutes.

It was battling close-checking from the start, both teams giving no quarter nor asking any, albeit the game was clean with only five penalties being handed out by Referees Holiway and Payne, three of them going to Keyes, Gananoque defencemen.

The "back-room boys" of both teams who figure in backing up their opinions of victory with the coin of the realm, could have died a "hundred deaths" before the issue was decided.

Gananoque fans stood as one and shook the girders when Tindall of Bowmanville slipped home the first goal of the game with under four minutes to go in the first period, on a shot that was fired from four feet inside the Bowmanville blue line.

No Score in Second

The second period was scoreless with both teams racing rink-length at a savage pace, setting forays to be met with stubborn defensive tactics and sensational work on the part of the goalies.

The game started in the delighted roars of the Bowmanville contingent, when Gilhooley, one of their brightest and best stars, threw the rubber into the Gananoque net after 62 seconds of the third period had elapsed.

The tempo later climaxing heavy Gananoque pressure Keyes grabbed a loose puck near the Bowmanville blueline and, with lightning fast strides and let go. The puck, screened by players of both teams swished into the net behind a surprised Bowmanville goalie.

But the Gananoque elation was short lived. Still maintaining the blistering pace both teams sped rink-length in desperate rushes. Bowmanville finally tied the count at the six-minute mark when Depew took a pass from Jackson to beat Farrish and once more tie up the pastime.

Both Goalies Standouts

The game tempo, if anything speeded up as both squads rushed to the attack. Checking was hard but clean and both teams used their bodies to good effect. Rival forwards swept in close to the goal and both Farrish and Burkhart had narrow escapes with the Gananoque goalie's work at the times bordering on the sensational. For twelve minutes the battle raged rink length. Then came the break. At 18.58 Harper, Gananoque junior, playing in senior company, grabbed the puck and let-drive a hard shot from centre ice that found the mark, and gave his team a 3-2 lead.

Full Goalie

With 41 seconds to go the Bowmanville manager pulled his goalie and sent out six forwards in a last-second desperate effort. But the strategy failed. From a faceoff near the Bowmanville net at 19.53, Tindall, starry coach of the locals raced through the puck goalward and it trickled in the Bowmanville net for the clincher and his second goal of the game. It was all over.

Excited Gananoque fans rushed on the ice where the teams intermingled in congratulatory fraternization. It was one of the hardest-fought games seen in Memorial Arena this season.

Farrish, Gananoque goalie headed his line mates with Tindall, Jackson, Harper and the veteran Bill Hastie turning in outstanding efforts. Keyes marred a fine performance with three penalties.

Gilhooley, Bowmanville centre player and Burkhart in the nets shared top flight honors for the western squad. Yourth and Bird with Depew also stood out for the losers.

The teams:

Gananoque—Goal, Farrish; defence, Jackson, Keyes; centre, Anderson; wings, Hastie, Fair; subs, Tindall, McCarney, Earle, Brown, Wood, Small, Redmond Harper.

Bowmanville — Goal, Burkhart; defence, Lowe, Cowle; centre, Gilhooley; wings Yourth, Bird; subs Krentz, Mayhe, Depew, Linter, Furey, Bagnell, Hicks, Piper, Rose.

Summary

First Period

Gananoque—Tindall (Jackson) 18.38

Two Miss Train But See Team Win the Trophy

On Saturday two members of the Belleville Army, Navy and Air Force Club will find sound not take no for an answer.

They both missed the last train headed for Hamilton and carrying their team-mates to the battle of the flights with the Steel City throwers.

The only other alternative was to catch the train at a stop en route.

So set his sights on Brighton. He got there but minutes late. He raced on to Port Hope but met with the same disappointment on pulling in to the dividing.

Not to be daunted this member of "the dart team, who had planned not to trip since the first of the year, grabbed the next bus through, arriving in Hamilton at 9.00 o'clock just in time to see his "buddies" rop the championship from the flights.

The second unfortunate was "sent down" from Port Hope but Port Hope ahead of the flyer, which he boarded on arrival. On the way back he got off at the Radium town station and returned home by the car he had parked there on the way up.

The whole story indicates the "esprit de corps" among the members of the Belleville A. N. and A. F. V. dart teams.

Legion Defeats Markham 3-2 In Third Game

Oshawa, March 27 — Peterborough Legion came here behind with two goals in the last three minutes of the third period to nose out Markham Millionaires 3-2 here Saturday night and take a one-game lead in the 3rd game of their OHA Senior "B" playoff series.

The fourth game of the series is booked for the Liftlock city ice on Monday night and if a fifth game is necessary, it will also be played in Peterborough

Playoff Change Adopted by College Union

(By the Canadian Press)

The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union Saturday at Toronto shelved proposals to increase the size of college football teams.

Each squad's numerical strength now is 24. Suggestions that the players limit be boosted to 27 or 30 were referred to collegiate athletic bodies for consideration at the next annual meeting of the union.

A change in intercollegiate football playoff regulations was adopted. Until now, if two teams tied for second place, there has been a playoff for second position and the right to meet the leader for the title—providing one of them has been the top team during the season.

From now on, a second-place team which has beaten the winner during the regular season will automatically receive the title of second-tenth final game. If, however, both second-place teams have beaten the winner—they will have a sudden-death game of their own for second position, as heretofore.

McMaster University, Hamilton, applied for entry to senior basketball. The union defended McMaster, but should play exhibition games with Queen's, Toronto and Western Universities during the 1950-51 season.

Cumming, professional at the Toronto Golf Club since he came to Canada from Scotland, in 1912, has been in ill health for the last few years. Born at Kirkcaldy, Scotland, he started his golf career when he was only 10 years old, as a caddie.

After serving with a club-making firm in Glasgow he became a professional at the Dumfries and Galloway Club and from there came to the Toronto Club. Known as one of the game's best teachers, he was author of a golf book for which a Canadian was eligible as well as a member of the first graduates of his pro shop rise to the top ranks of the Dominion's golfers.

At Greensboro, N.C., Sammy Snead put the skids on his challengers with a morning 66, then came back with a closing 67 to win $12,000 first money in the Greensboro Golf Tournament Sunday by 10 strokes with a record 269 total.

Ch. Robin of the Rouge, a bull mastiff owned by J. H. Daniell-Jenkins of Pickering, Ont., won the best-in-class award at the opening of the International Kennel Club's all-bred dog show at Chicago Saturday. Tops among the Newfoundland dogs was Canada's Captain Cook, owned by Mrs. Leroy G. Page, Hamilton, Ont.

Jack Crawford, Boston Bruins defencetman who has been named the most valuable player in the American Hockey League, next season, Saturday was presented a watch in appreciation of "12 years of loyal service."

Crawford, a native of Dublin, Ont., who lives now at Wellesley, Mass., rais he hopes to play in a few games as well as coach at Hershey.

At Washington, Yvonne Sherman, a lovely, lithe 19-year-old from New York City, had a comparatively easy time Saturday night defending her United States figure-skating title.

Ahead by only four points when the free skating opened, Yvonne showed the grace and skill needed when the chips were down.

Canadiens Clinch Second Spot As Weekend Games Decide Final N.H.L. Playoff Placing

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It took the last scheduled games to do it, but the Stanley Cup line-up now is official—it's Detroit Red Wings against Toronto Maple Leafs, and Montreal Canadiens against New York Rangers.

The Stanley Cup semi-finals, each a best-of-seven series, open with Toronto at Detroit Tuesday night and Montreal at New York Wednesday.

Until the last night of the long 70-game schedule Toronto had a mathematical possibility of overtaking Montreal for second place and thereby drawing Rangers instead of the Champion Wings in the two preliminaries. On Saturday night Toronto whitewashed Boston Bruins 8-0 while Montreal blanked Chicago Black Hawks 4-0.

But on Sunday the Canadiens coasted to a 3-3 tie with Boston, assuring themselves of second place, and Toronto lost 5-3 at New York. The Wings, who clinched the league title two weeks ago, took it easy and were beaten 5-4 by Chicago Sunday.

Had Easy Time

In Saturday's victory over Chicago, Canadiens had an easy task. Floyd Curry scored twice, and Leo Gravelle and Maurice Richard, got the others. The Montreal Forum crowd of 14,028 saw the unusual instance of goalie Bill Durnan getting an assist on Richard's goal; the big defenceman fired the puck way up the ice to start a scoring play. Canadiens have appointed Frank (King) Clancy, former N.H.L. referee now coaching Cincinnati in the A.H.L., as an aide to coach Dick Irvin for the Cup grind.

Leafs also had a picnic Saturday night, collecting 20 scoring points as they gave rookie goalie Al Rollins, up from Pittsburgh, his first shut-out in the N.H.L. Regular goalie Turk Broda was given a one-night rest. Harry Watson scored two goals, the others going to Gus Mortson, Max Bentley, Gerth Bossch, Sid Smith, Bill Barilko and Ted Kennedy.

Canadiens Wake Up

Sunday at Boston the Bruins took a 2-0 lead on goals by Johnny Peirson and Topper Toppazzini, but the crowd of 9,461 saw the Habitants wake up and tie the score quickly with goals by Ken Reardon and Rookie Bert Hirschfeld. Right after the face-off starting the last period Maurice Richard banged home his 43rd goal of the season and the Montreal lead lasted until 16:43 when Ed Harrison scored on a 45-foot screened shot.

Howie Meeker scored two of the Toronto counters, Sid Smith getting the other. A general melee flared in the middle period and Kluzay and Lawrier drew major penalties among the nine awarded in the period.

At Detroit Sunday Roy Conacher scored two for the Hawks, with Bep Guidolin, Gaye Stewart and Vic. Stasiuk, Rookie Wingman, getting the others. Jerry Couture scored two for Detroit, Max McNab and Red Kelly getting singles.

Sports Shorts From Britain

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP) — Jack Doyle, the Throne of Old Erin, is back in the ring — as a wrestler. He left his boxing gloves home.

The latest local effort to revive the grunt-groan-grab-grimace grappling game saw the hectometal hero from County Kerry matched against a coarse character, name of Bueth, who calls himself "The Human Gorilla" and says he comes from Kenilla, Estonia.

The production, staged at Harringay Arena, was high-class stuff. Spotlights flashed, trumpets blew, and in swaggered himself, clad tastefully in white-and-green trunks and a fine coat of bottled sun tan.

The crowd of 9,500 — which had paid up to three guineas (?75) — booed politely.

Then Doyle and Bueth went into the time-proven melodrama with sub-plots involving intense pain, vicious anger, superlative effort, infinite courage and excruciating agony. There was one last uncouth attempt by the villain to wrench the hero apart, and finally the good old one — two of the evil features of the alien miscreant and the hero's right held aloft.

Irish pipers skirled around the ring while Jacko acknowledged what he evidently assumed was an ovation, bowing gravely to the gallery, a distinguished touch of silver at the temples of his curly head.

Doyle was piped back to his dressing room £2,000 ($6,200) richer for 10 minutes' heavy histrionics. That's a lot more than he managed to save of the purse money from his numerous pre-war fistic fiascos.

Commented Bueth, in remarkably good English for one so swarthy-jowld, albeit with a Cockney accent:

"I hurt my thumb."

When comedian Sid Field died, members of the sporting as well as the theatrical fraternity went into mourning.

A strong supporter of Chelsea's soccer team, a good amateur golfer and snooker player — and a demon poker player — Sid was also one of London's most enthusiastic boxing fans.

He always had a ringside seat on big fight nights.

Promoter Jack Solomons has announced that for future shows one ringside seat will be labelled "Sid Field" and auctioned. The money will go to endow a memorial bed in one of London's hospitals.

WEEKEND STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Chicago's Vic Stasiuk whose third-period goal gave the Bruins a 3-4 victory over Detroit Red Wings Sunday.

Ed Harrison, Boston, who netted the tieing marker Sunday as the Bruins fought to a 3-3 deadlock with Montreal Canadiens.

Montreal's Floyd Curry whose two goals sparking the Canadiens to a 4-0 win over Chicago Black Hawks Saturday.

Harry Watson who bagged two counters Saturday when Toronto Maple Leafs whitewashed Boston Bruins 8-0.

Belleville Unit Of AN&AF Wins Darts Trophy

The Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans dart team brought a championship home to Belleville Sunday night.

By the score of 5 to 2 the locals defeated Hamilton club 153 on Saturday night winning the Provincial trophy emblematic of the dart championship for Ontario in the A.N. & A.F.V. Association. The cup had formerly been held by the Kitchener club before the Steel city artists took it away from them.

On Saturday in a special relay car 30 members of the local association's dart team entrained for Hamilton. With them was two members of the Belleville pipe band, Jamie Clark and Doug Burns. They piped to the victory of the hometowners and put on a display of bagpipe music never before experienced by the members of the Hamilton dart team.

It was Belleville best against Hamilton's best with the boys from the eastern city taking the trophy. Last night president Bill Ford stepped off the train at the station proudly carrying the foot high prize. It will remain here three months anyway since opposing teams next visit there months before they qualify to challenge for it again.

Much Praise Given

There was much praise going out to the members of the Hamilton dart club. In the history of the Belleville club never have so many enjoyed themselves so much as they did on Saturday and part of yesterday claimed a member of the local executive. The arrangements included a professional floor show and prodigious luncheon at the end of the darts bout festivities. "The Hamilton boys couldn't seem to do enough for us," stated a happy shooter of the winning aggregation.

The championship was decided on both single and double competition.

Memories were recalled by Tommy Sneddon of the Belleville representation and Alex Leslie Hamilton dart player and president of the Steel city club. It was 22 years ago that both faced each other in a football struggle at Hamilton. Sneddon was performing for Montreal C.N.R.'s while Leslie lined up with Hamilton Thistles. It was the first time they had seen each other since.

Speaking of the success of the competition and get together a member of the local executive remarked that the visit was not only a playoff into the Provincial honors but a inter-club fraternal meeting unequalled for the goodwill it developed between club members of both cities.

The Hamilton dart team presented the Belleville boys with a player membership card holder and utility purse as a token of their appreciation of good sportsmanship displayed.

Training Camp Briefs

(By The Associated Press)

Vero Beach, Fla., March 27—(AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers have a knack of whipping New York Yankees—when it doesn't count. The Brooks have lost three World Series to the Yankees, but in the exhibition circuit, it's another story.

The Dodgers whipped the New Yorkers, 11-8, again Sunday. It marked the sixth straight time Brooklyn has defeated the world champions in Grapefruit League play over a span of two years.

Oakland, Calif., March 27 (AP) — New York Giants can obtain Pittsburgh's diminutive left-hander, Vic Lombardi, for infielder Jack Lohrke, say.

Roy Hamey, general manager of Pirates, said Sunday he's anxious to swap.

Lohrke, utility infielder, never lived up to expectations with the New Yorkers. He hit .267 in 55 games last season.

Clearwater, Fla. March 27 (AP) —Many theories have been advanced on the fate of Dick Sisler after the return of Eddie Waitkus to the regular first base job at Philadelphia Phillies.

Now Sisler, who covered first for the Phils after Waitkus was shot last spring, looks as though he's headed for left field.

Since taking over that position last Wednesday Sisler has clubbed out 12 hits in 24 tries, including three home runs and two doubles.

He continued his stickwork in the Phils' 13-4 win over Toronto Maple Leafs with three hits in five appearances at the plate, getting his third homer of the training season.

San Bernardino, Calif., March 27 (AP)— Lou Boudreau, Cleveland Indians' manager, still says the race for right field is wide open—but knows insiders just nod toward Luke Easter and wink, "he's in."

The big question was whether the big Negro newcomer could hit major league pitching. Luke dispelled a lot of doubts in Sunday's 11-5 exhibition over Chicago's Cubs when he smacked a double and a 440-foot homer.

In 12 exhibitions, Lincoln Luke has collected 16 hits in 48 times at bat with a .333 average.

Los Angeles, March 27 (AP)— After two decades as Chicago White Sox shortstop, Luke Appling may be holding down first base when the season opens.

Manager Jack Onslow said today that the ageless Appling has ordered a first baseman's mitt and that he would experiment with Luke at that spot.

Onslow has expressed dissatisfaction with the work of three first seekers. Shifting Appling to first base would keep Luke's .300 hitting in the line-up with Chicao Carrasquel moving to shortstop.

CANADA PRODUCES SOME OF THE WORLD'S FINEST CODFISH

The meaty, tasty codfish you enjoy so much most likely came to your table from Canada. For Canada's rugged fishing fleets supply numerous varieties of appetizing deep sea fish to the peoples of many lands.

Why Seagram's sells Canada first

This advertisement is an adaptation of one of a series created by The House of Seagram to tell the peoples of other lands about Canada and her various products. For the past two years this campaign has been appearing in newspapers and magazines printed in many languages and circulated throughout the world.

Our prosperity is based on our ability to sell our products to other countries. Every Canadian has a personal stake in foreign trade, for one out of every three dollars of Canada's national income results from our trade abroad. The more that the peoples of other countries know of the quality, variety and prestige of our products, the more likely they are to buy from us.

Guelph Biltmores Defeat Windsor To Win Title

By The Canadian Press

It was a long time coming to Guelph Biltmores Thursday night but 3-2 overtime win over Windsor Spitfires gave the sports loving city its first Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' championship in 25 years of competition.

The Biltmores did it the hard way. Hardly anyone gave the fighting band of unknown names an even chance to cop the honors but they did it in six games—one less than the maximum—over a highly-favored and powerful Windsor team that was packed three lines deep with junior stars.

For coach Alfie Pike of Guelph it was a personal triumph. The former forward with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, piloted Guelph last year as a junior coach with the win. On the other side of the fence, it meant that Jim Skinner had to swallow the bitter pill of defeat for the third consecutive season.

In the 1948 and 1949 finals, his Spitfires were favored to take all the marbles right down to the memorial cup only to drop out in favor of underrated competition.

In the first game of the all-Ontario best-of-three senior finals, the result was as expected. Toronto Marlboros swamped a leg-weary band of Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, 10-4. The next game headed for Sault Ste. Marie tonight, the fourth game in six days for the Greyhounds.

Gerry Theberge's goal at 4:02 of the first overtime period was the marker that gave Guelph their title.

Classy Ed Stankiewicz had given the Spitfires a 1-0 lead in the first frame but Frank Bathgate deadlocked it with the only counter of the second.

Separated by Three Minutes

Three minutes separated the third frame's two goals. The Spitfires fought like wildcats and it payed off at 3:57 when Stankiewicz smacked home his second goal just before the eight-minute mark Don Bellringer combined with Ron Plumb to tie the count for the second time.

Just a little over four minutes had elapsed in the first overtime stanza when Frank Bathgate shook Theberge loose and the little French Canadian rattled in the winning goal. Bedlam broke loose in the packed Guelph Memorial Gardens.

Marlboros skated the visiting Greyhounds dizzy in running up a 5-1 first-frame lead and increasing it to 9-2 by the start of the third period.

Bobby Hassard returned to form and in his best game of the last several weeks racked up three goals and an assist. Scotty Muir, second highest O.H.A. Senior 'A' scorer in the regular season, connected for a pair while Flash Hollett, Al Buchanan, Frank Sullivan, Danny Lewicki and Gord Hannigan all got singles.

Shep Mayer Stars

Shep Mayer starred for the losers and clicked for one goal Others were, notched by Terry Blocchi, Don Gromo and Clare McMinn.

Guelph are idle now until the completion of the Inkerman Rockets-Porcupine Combines series. They meet the winner in the all-Ontario junior "A" final.

At Ottawa, the N.O.H.A. Junior A champion Porcupine Combines went two up in their best-of-five final on a 3-2 win over Inkerman Rockets.

Left-winger Bill Needham was the payoff man for the Combines breaking a 2-2 deadlock with less than a minute remaining in the game. John Mestan and Darrel McLaughlin were the other Combine marksmen. For the losers, Bill Godin and Levy MacDonald were the snipers.

12 Canadians Win $309,000 In Sweepstakes

(By The Canadian Press)

Twelve Canadians wdh a total of $309,000 in sweepstakes on the Grand National Steeplechase run Saturday in Aintree.

Ten claimed prizes in the Irish Sweepstakes, and two others won big money in the Quebec Army, Navy and Air Forces Veterans draw, Scores of others won consolation prizes.

No Canadian held an Irish Sweep ticket on the winner, Freshcooler, which was worth $77,500. But six Canadians each won $31,000 on the second-place Wot No Sun — three in Toronto, one in Clarkson, Ont., one in Ottawa and another in Sudbury.

Four other Canadians drew down $15,500 each as holders of Irish Sweep tickets on the third horse, Aithon Major. They were scattered between Toronto, Ancaster, Ont., Sudbury and Ottawa.

In the Army-Navy draw, Rene Crevier of Chicoutimi, Que., collected $20,000 on the strength of Freecooler's victory; J. J. Levie of Quebec won $3,000. Third prize of $15,000 went to C. W. Denis of New York.

The known Irish Sweep winners:

Mrs. T. G. Manley, Toronto, $31,000; Mrs. Josephine Polito, Toronto, $31,000 .. Roland Bolduc, Ottawa, $31,000; Floyd Cleary, Sudbury, $31,000; Harold Kinzer, Dunbarton, $31,000 .. E. Allen, Toronto, $31,000 .. Ralph E. Clasp, Ancaster, Ont., $15,500; Walter Hilller, Toronto, $15,500; Mrs. Nilo Bistimaki, Sudbury, $15,500; Romeo Barbier, Ottawa, $15,500.

FRANKFORD

Bowling League League Tightens; Hatters Lead

Frankford—Frankford Bowling League saw action Thursday night in Trenton, with third and fourth place still the contended positions. It appears that third, fourth, fifth and possibly sixth place will be decided on the final night of the schedule, April 6. In spite of dropping seven points to the Greenhorns, the Uniques captured second place in the league standing, as two other contenders for that position lost one game, thus eliminating any mathematical possibility of the Uniques losing second. The Top Hatters took five points from the last place Head Pins, but not without a fight. Murphy saved the day for the Top Hatters in the third game, with a 317 game. Head Pins are a decidedly improved team since the early part of the year, and should give any of the playoff teams Mercy Macs held on to a third place tie by taking five from the Happy Gang, while the Aristocrats copped five from the Skyliners.

Standing
Team	W	L
Top Hatters	51	27
Uniques	47	31
Aristocrats	41	37
Merry Macs	41	37
Happy Gang	39	39
Greenhorns	38	40
Skyliners	30	48
Head Pins	26	52

Should anyone hear what appears to be an invasion coming up No. 33 Highway about 2:15 Thursday nights, it is simply the Frankford Bowling League songsters brigade on the bus.

Arrange Playoffs

As far as is known at present, the playoffs for the Frankford Bowling League will be as follows:

1st and 3rd teams, 2nd and 4th, fifth and 7th, 6th and 8th will compete in six game series, two points per game, one point for high total for the six games. Games will be April 13th and 20th.

In the second round, with four teams competing, six games will be played on Monday, April 24, and Thursday, April 27.

The third round, with two teams competing, will be played on May 1st and 4th.

The banquet and dance will be held in the Community-Memorial Hall in Frankford on May 11, as far as is known at present. Each bowler is allowed to bring one guest.

Plans are already being laid for the bowling league another year. The alleys have been reserved for Thursday nights, which seems to be the most satisfactory night for all.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 27 (AP) — New York Rangers were happy to see Montreal Canadiens end second place in the National Hockey League race. The Canucks beat out Toronto Maple Leafs by tying Boston Sunday night while the Leafs dropped their game with the Rangers. That means the New Yorkers will tangle with Montreal in the stanley Cup semi-final playoffs. Both Montreal and Toronto ended their regular season series, but the Broadway Blues notched five games against the Canadiens while winning only four from the Leafs ... Did you ever notice that Don Newcombe, the Dodger flinger, keeps the ball in his glove while he takes -his full windup and stretch and then transfers it to his pitching hand when he raises his arm to begin the pitch? We didn't, but Ed Barrow called attention to this quirk and added that the only other pitcher he's seen who does the same thing is the Yanks' Allie Reynolds.

The Indiana University freshmen footballers were drilling against the Varsity the other evening when Pete Russo, from Jacks from Ambridge, Pa. (and a whale of a prospect) managed to run through a play without touching any opposing player . . . Line coach Steve Sinko took out after him demanding: Just who do you block on that play." . . . Russo put on an innocent look and replied: "Oh, I just pick up the arrays."

Johnny Sain Is Big "if" of Boston Braves

By JACK HAND

Bradenton, Fla., March 27 (AP) — Johnny Sain is the big "if" of the rejuvenated Boston Braves. If the Arkansas hurler can regain his 1948 form, the Braves could take it all.

Sain, a bitter disappointment last season, the year of revolution in Boston, has been impressive so far. He looks more like the wizard who won 24 for the pennant club of two years ago than the 10 victories-17 losses of 1949.

Pitching, of course, is the major problem for Manager Billy Southworth. Lefty Warren Spahn is his ace. Vern Bickford, an underrated righthander, and Sain are his other sure starters. They need another badly.

Falling in a trade, Southworth must uncover a starting pitcher and/or Johnny Antonelli, the $65,000 bonus kid.' Bob Hall, Norm Roy or Dick Donovan. That may not be easy. Antonelli and Hall were so-so last year.

Fine Outfield

Boston has his pitching' problems, he can look to his outfield with pride. The deal that brought outfielders Sid Gordon and Willard Marshall and shortstop Buddy Kerr to Boston for shortstop Alvin Dark and second baseman Eddie Stanky is working out fine.

Gordon is a sure shot for le(t) and Marshall for right. That leaves centre for Sam Jethroe, the speedy Negro acquired from montideers Royals in a deal involving about $250,000-worth of talent.

Behind the first three, Southworth has the former Dodgers Luis Olmo and Pete Reiser, veteran Tommy Holmes and rookie Bob Addis.

Southworth is counting heavily on Del Crandall, a 20-year-old redhead as his No. 1 catcher. Paul Burris and Walt Linden are the other receivers.

Next to Sain, the Brave with the biggest comeback problem is first baseman Earl Torgeson. Torgy suffered a shoulder separation last May 14, he didn't get back in the line-up all season.

Picton, Belleville Bowlers Roll Tie In Exhibition Series

Guests of the Belleville Recreation Alleys special team, representatives of the Picton Bowl-O-Drome battled to a two-all tie with their hosts in a friendly exhibition game held here on Saturday night.

The tie was possible on a games to count system with each team garnering two victories. The visitors, however, outscored their hosts 4167 to 4185 in the four-game series.

The match was a return affair, the Recreation Alleys team having journeyed to Picton a few nights ago where it met defeat at the hands of the home representatives.

The teams and scores Saturday night were:— Recreation Alleys; Gar Anderson, 828; Maurice Callaghan, 1002; Art Whalen, 752; Mark Storms, 660; Joe Legault, 836, and Henry Ryan, 714.

Picton Bowl-O-Drome: — Vic Ford, 901; F. Dunning 881; Al. Platt, 1027; Norm Mallett, 955; Ross Wilson, 779 and Art Atkins, 735.

Gonzales Whips Big Jack Kramer In Pro Tourney

Philadelphia, March 27, (AP) —Richard (Pancho) Gonzales has enjoyed many a tennis victory but not many were as satisfying as Sunday's straight-set triumph over big Jack Kramer in the singles final of the Philadelphia Inquirer's $10,000 indoor pro tournament.

The 21-year-old Gonzales reigned as United States amateur king last year. Then he turned pro, met pro king Jack Kramer 91 times—and 71 times was the loser.

But Sunday he got some sweet revenge, when a lot of chips were down. The Inquirer had labelled this tournament "World's Pro Tennis Championship". All the stars of the pro game were invited. The boys themselves talked about it as "title tourney".

And Pancho set out to play the best tennis he knew. His 7-5, 6-3, 6-3 victory Sunday was just as impressive as the score.

He fully earned the $1,584 first place money.

Kramer won $1,056 for second place money while veteran Bobby Riggs copped third position. Gonzales teamed with Francisco (Poncho) Segura to win the doubles crown and $1,584. The two Panchos licked Frank Kovacs and Welby Van Horn. Scores were 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 10-8.

Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit's power-packed three-man line finished at the top of the National Hockey League's individual scoring list, with sharp-shooting Ted Lindsay setting a new N.H.L. record.

Lindsay topped by one a record of 54 assists set by Montreal's Elmer Lach in the 1944-45 season. Lindsay finished with 55 assists and 23 goals, the Detroit left-winger finished in first position with a comfortable nine-point lead over his closest opponent, Sid Abel, the Red Wings' team captain. Abel boasts 34 goals and 35 assists for 69 points, one more than teammate Gordie Howe.

was walking along with Pudd Simkins just walking along, and we stopped in frunt of the bank to watch the traffic cop stopping and starting the traffic by holding up one hand and waving the other while he blew his whistle, and I said, Oh, boy, imagine getting paid for just for living a swell life like that.

Sure, G, he can stop the tuffest guys in the biggest trucks and they dont dast say a werd, Puds said. Is as goodd as being a general in the army, he said, and I said, it's better. A general gives orders back in the rear lines where he's safe, but a traffic cop stays in the midst of excitement and danger where he's libel to get bumped in the back by a car any minute. Boy oh boy when he blows that whissle, it's the law, it's as good as being a judge in a courtroom, I said.

, it's better, Puds said. A judge won'd probably be ashamed to suddinly hold up his hand and ___ a whissle as loud as could blow, no matter how much he felt like it. That's the life all rite.

I bet he's sorry when the time comes to quit werk. I bet he cant hardly wait till next day, he said.

And the next time he blew we started to go across, and so did a lady with glasses, and she stopped in frunt of the traffic cop, saying, Will you tell me where I can find a good clean reliable, tea room?

The traffic cop just standing there a while with his whissle in his mouth, and then he said, Lady I just stand ere all day on my poor tired feet whissling myself into a state of nervess exhawstion and wishing I had never been born. That's all I do. I dont drink tea and I dont mark tea rooms for good behavior, he said.

And he started to blow again and the lady hurry up kept on going to get across in time, and so did Puds and me, me saying G, maybe it's better to be a general or a judge, and Puds saying Sure, at least they can sit down.

Assembly.

After two weeks of studying and writing exams we are back in print again. First we will recall last Wednesday's assembly where we were honored with a guest speaker, Mr. Springer of the staff of "Readers Digest". He gave a plan to the assembly, which will make for the school $1,000 in one week. He stated that the objective would be reached if each student sold two seven - month subscriptions to his magazine. Huge prizes will be given to the person selling the most subscriptions.

April is going to be a busy month in B.C.I. Elections for the 1950-51 Students' Council will be held on April 26th. Campaigning will enliven the corridors of the Collegiate for awhile before that day.

Also on the 25th is the Spring Formal which is always a gala affair.

Girls take note — The Girls' Athletic Club is offering a high school blazer of red with black trim. It's an amazing value! They are very smart and purchases will show that you have school spirit. All girls jump at the chance to get an outfit of such distinction.

Grey Club practices have commenced after the rest earned from the successful operetta.

The singing promises to be up to its usual excellent standard for the Easter assembly.

Shavings

This week I want to write to the citizens of Belleville, especially. Please lend an eye, you can read the comics later. You have probably heard how the students of B.C.I. are trying to acquire an athletic field. This field is to serve not only the students but all of Belleville. This week B.C.I. is going all out to help bring in some "dough", necessary to help get the athletic field. We can only succeed if the people of Belleville meet us half way. Students will be around to your door this week selling subscriptions for the "Reader's Digest." This is for the people who love a bargain, and who doesn't? The "Digest" will be sold to you for $1.00 which gives you a subscription for seven months. The usual price is $1.75. You may wonder what this has to do with an athletic field. Well, it's like this: If each student sells two subscriptions the school will receive $1,000 which would be more than welcome. Please set behind the younger generation and help them in this worthy cause. They're counting on you.

Now is a time of changing feelings at the Collegiate. Students are praising teachers and students are disliking teachers. On the other hand teachers are giving eye openers. Cause — that's right, it's the examination returns, there is nothing more revealing and startling. Need I say more?

A big victory dance was held Friday night to raise money to take our champions back to Toronto, to try for the Ontario title. Good luck boys!

Sports

It's been a pretty exciting week for B. C. I. as three teams were sent to Toronto to try for the Central Ont. Championship. Our senior boys won, believe me when you get to Toronto, that's big league. We are certainly proud of our teams.

Volleyball events were awarded to this year's champions in last Wednesday's assembly. The honors were done by Miss Martinson and the winning teams were captained by Jean Faulkner (grade nine) and Donna McNish (grade ten).

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No doubtful operation is it to prepare for a slam in bridge. There are routine matters to look for. There are routine matters to follow.

There are three important facts you must have to assure a slam. Simply wait until you discover 12 tricks, find out what will be trump, learn if your pair has enough aces and kings.

We are digging into this deal:

NORTH
♠A Q 10 6 4 3
♥A 7 6 4
♦J 9
♣K

WEST
♥J 10 2
♦Q 7 6 2
♣7 5 2

♥K Q 9 5 3
♦K 5
♣A J 10 8 6

SOUTH
♠K J 7 5
♣Q 4 3

North opened with a spade, east doubled for takeout, south said two diamonds, and east passed. It is back to north. What does he do? He now shows his rebiddable spades with a bid of two spades. Instead of a simple rebid of two spades, should north jump to three? No. The south reply has so far shown only three tricks. Only seven are in north. Until trump is decided, a jump sees 11.

East now has a choice of calls; three hearts or three clubs or double for takeout (again). Double for takeout seems the best here. It asks west which unbid suit he likes best.

An east bid of three hearts here would not help him. Nor would a bid of three clubs. Either would permit west to pass. On the other hand, the double forces west to bid if south does not intervene.

South now supports spades. Opener showed five tricks. South has five, in a major, ten are enough for game. A jump shows them. So, the south bid here is a jump assist to four spades.

This relieves west of the force to answer the double. North now decides whether to stop or go on. How does he decide? He will stop there unless he has discovered ingredients for a slam.

South has shown five tricks by his jump. North has seven. Spades are known to be trumps. It is now only a matter of discovering enough aces and kings. See if the operation is successful.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Buenos Aires, March 27—(AP) —An Argentine Secret policeman was charged with murder Sunday in the death of a labor leader who died following police questioning. Six other police employees were named as his accomplices. The victim was carlos Antonio Aguirre, head of the waiters' union, whose battered body was found 18 days after he was picked up by the secret police as a strike agitator.

André Girardeau topped a low hill with his car and braked easily to a halt. He turned to the girl at his side.

"Now you can see what I mean," said he pointing. "That darkest spot is the Bailey home, the main ranch house. There's no moon out now but on a lighter night you can study the place carefully from here. To the left you see the blurs—those are hangars. They aren't more than 200 yards from the main house and the army men sleep right there. Understand?"

"Yes," said Lona Montoya. "That much is all right. But where will you be?"

"In town. I'll park my car — this car—near the theatre. I've bought a flashy one so that people would soon identify it with me. I'll even buy a ticket and go in the theatre at the right time. But I'll slip out the emergency fire exist through the men's rest room. That leads into the alley beside the Varsity Pharmacy, on the corner. With a rented car parked near that alley, I can get in it easily without being seen, and then wash on back. With the lights out I can drive within half a mile of the hangars—you have been how planeless drive out across the open country in their cars, so my risk isn't matter."

Lona nodded. "And—the other?"

Andre turned to smile appreciatively at her. "Listen, Lona, you've the best thinking thing that's come along in 50 years, and you're also smart. I suggest you do it."

"What has being pretty got to do with this?"

"Nothing, nothing. I just mentioned it," he spoke softly, half in amusement. "But you are."

"You are hard to do strictly business with, André." She snuggled him with her shoulder and laughed in her deep throaty way. But her speech clung to a note of eternal caution even so. "Some day this kill you. Maybe me, too. But this job—I suppose you are right. We don't dare be any-body—not anybody ever—and it ought to be easy if you prepare it first. Can we meet in the same car?"

"Why not? And I'll have the house prepared, never fear. I'm spending a great deal of time in the Bailey home now, with the old man and the army, and—"

"And with Ronnie? Lona put in.

"Correct," agreed André, shrewdly. "I see a lot of her. It's part of the game. It's our best cover of all. Ronnie, really. But—you know me, Lona. It's all business there. I've never seen any girl with as much fascination as you have. Never."

He slid a strong arm around her and squeezed her close to him. "When that's over, Lona. It's me and you and a high time together forever, and don't you think it isn't. All right?"

He didn't wait for an answer. He just bent to kiss her, pressing his lips hungrily on Lona's again and again, squeezing her shoulder and feeling her response.

Something in André Girardeau took immense satisfaction out of thus being a man of romantic conquest. Pretty soon now he would be doing Ronnie Bailey the same thing he promised him self. He felt that Ronnie couldn't resist him, either, and she, with her millions, was the girl he really wanted to marry.

At 8 p.m. dessert was served in the Rocking R dining room and 10 minutes later Colonel McDavid put down his napkin and turned to a second guest.

"Dr. York," said he, "it has been a pleasure to meet you here and talk with you. And I'm glad to have your views on aviation, sir. If I come in to the university tomorrow, will you introduce me to your president? I am going to show that gentleman why every school should have a strong course in flying."

"Of course Colonel. I'd be glad to. I'm beginning to be an aviation enthusiast myself. Miss Ronica here has—"

"Fine, fine, son! Glad you are awakened everywhere to the importance of aviation. if you'll meet here when I call you, I'd like to have you as my guest on the army bombing tests. Eh!"

"Bombing tests, sir?"

"Right. That's why we're here. The new bomb sight you read about. Completely revolutionizing military flying. We're doing some important final tests this week on a desert area out several miles, beyond a place called Rainbow Canyon, Isolated spot. Natural landing field there. Be glad to have you go along."

"D-did you say Rainbow Canyon?" Wesley's eyes had widened. He glanced at Ronica, who had looked up quickly. Then Ronica herself answered for Colonel McDavid.

"Sure Wes. It's a place away over yonder I know about. And I'll see to it we go, Colonel. May I take him in my own plane?"

Colonel McDavid laughed benignly. "Certainly, Miss Ronnie! I don't doubt but what Dr. York will have a better afternoon with you—if Girardeau has no objection. Personally, if I were young Girardeau, I wouldn't tolerate any other man's hanging around. You are a very charming young lady!"

Ronica half frowned. "Girardeau? But, Colonel, what has—"

Nobody heard the question. Colonel McDavid and three other officers and their host began to U. Bailey, himself, had all laughed and started to rise, scrapping their chairs and chuckling and speaking heartily in characteristic man-flutter. It was, at least by implication, one of those let's-leave-the-young-people-to – themselves moves, which in a moment saw Wesley and Ronnie alone in the big dining room.

"Sh-h-h-h! Don't tell them what we know, Wes," Ronnie counseled, in low tone. "I didn't mean to but in when he mentioned Rainbow Canyon, but I was afraid he might startle you into breaking our secret. And I want to do a little private snooping on that!"

Wesley at first was burrowed in a look of confusion. This was his initiation to the Rocking R Ranch. First time, at night, he had become involved in a most complicated romance at one time as Ronica's invited dinner guest, the conversation at least had suddenly taken a strange turn again.

He wasn't thinking now of flying or bombing or even of his Rainbow Canyon secret shared with Ronica.

"What did Colonel McDavid mean, Ronnie, about—Girardeau?"

"Oh some silly teasing, I suppose. Skip it. Wes, and let's dance. Andre isn't even here tonight. There's a grand program out of El Paso at this hour and I want to teach you some new steps. Where's the victrola to at the freshman dance?"

"Quite so," said Wes absently, his mind far from being at ease. Somehow lately his Heart hopes had alternately soared and crashed when he was in Ronica Bailey's company. And strange events outside his personal routine were crowding for his attention.

During the few days since they had discovered the significant cache in Rainbow Canyon, Wesley had barely mentioned it to Ronnie at all. In truth, he was gravely disturbed. He wondered if he should simply make light of it so as to prevent Ronnie Bailey from doing something foolhardy again.

"She is very impulsive," he told himself. "She went with Mr. Starr of the Border Patrol to arrest some Japanese sod—"

Wes interrupted his thoughts, snapped his fingers.

"Gosh!" he breathed aloud.

He had been sitting at his office desk with a book on primitive Indian cultures before him, but he hadn't read much. Now, he forgot the book altogether.

Here was array of assorted facts which suddenly had slipped a little closer together. Ronnie Bailey, daughter of an airplane manufacturer just moved to New Mexico, Five Japanese shooting at her not far from Rainbow Canyon, and being captured by the Federal Border Patrol, United States Army officers arriving to test a priceless new bomb sight on the isolated plains. Andre Girardeau seen coming from Lona Montoya's apartment, and Andre Girardeau apparently intimate with the Bailey's and with the army officers as well. Lona Montoya seen entering a strange man in Rainbow Canyon.

"Whew!" Wes exclaimed again quietly.

The facts didn't quite add up, it didn't dovetail. But they did alarm him. He realized too that he alone knew all these facts, and this weighed heavily. Added information—most important of all, really—was that Ronnie Bailey had violet eyes, and hair that shone with the deep rich glint of

Man Hangs Self By Shoe Laces In Police Cell

Port Colborne, March 27 (CP) —Police said Sunday that James Wesley Howard, 37, of Collingwood, hanged himself by his shoe laces in his cell at Humberstone police station early after midnight, an hour after he was arrested on Main Street in Humberstone for a minor liquor violation.

Howard was picked up by Constable James Marshall and charged with having liquor in a public place. The arrest was made at 11:35 and Howard was placed in the cell in the recently constructed police station adjoining the Humberstone village municipal building. At one o'clock Sunday morning, Constable Marshall and Constable Lenard Hockley returned to the police station and found Howard slumped in the top bars of the door of his cell, his shoe laces knotted together and around his neck.

Auto Workers Take Strike Vote Next Sunday

Windsor, March 27 (CP)—The United Auto Workers (CCL-CIO) will take a strike vote next Sunday against the country's largest car maker, the Ford Motor Company of Canada.

A general membership meeting of some 6,000 workers of the Ford Local 200, said to have a membership of 11,000, agreed Sunday to take the vote and according to a union statement "voted unanimously against the company's $55-monthly pensions offer."

The union seeks a $100 monthly retirement pension for workers at age 65 after 25 years' service.

Sunday's closed meeting of local 200 was the first here since an Ontario conciliation board brought down a majority report a month ago favoring the company's offer. Since then union and company spokesmen have renewed meetings without result.

Roy G. England, president of the local, told Sunday's meeting that "Ford workers will revert to their full 50-cents-an-hour package demand" which includes the pension, health and medical insurance benefits, a night-shift differential, two extra paid statutory holidays, time and a half for Saturday work "and other monetary matters."

Earlier the union told the company it would postpone pension demands until Jan. 1, 1951, if the company granted other demands in full. The proposal was rejected by the company. George Burt, Canadian director of the U.A.W., told the Sunday meeting that "Ford can have industrial peace at a little less than it valued its own offer—or it can have war."

Local 200 went on strike in 1945, a tie-up that lasted 99 days and which established the Rand formula of dues check-offs.

The Family's Greatest Need is still SECURITY!

Hazards that threaten family security today have nothing in common with the terrors faced by the early settlers. Yet they are no less real because of that.

For instance—who in this world faces a more precarious future than the widow left in straitened circumstances with a family to support? What more destructive of family life than the necessity of combining the heavy duties of wage-earner and mother?

The "stockade" behind which the modern family can find security against such financial disaster is Life Insurance; For most families it is the only means of protection against loss of the breadwinner. It can be arranged to provide a guaranteed monthly income.

HOUSE ADOPTS REPORT ON CONSERVATION

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — The Ontario legislature in a night sitting unanimously adopted the report of the legislature's committee on conservation after lengthy debate which brought assurance from Premier Frost that the report would not merely be tabled.

He said that a committee of the Cabinet has been named to study how the committee's recommendations might be implemented.

During debate on the monumental report with its wide variety of recommendations, C.C.F. leader J. B. Jolliffe (York South) said Monday night consideration should be given to the possibility of piping water from the Great Lakes to inland areas, particularly to southern Ontario points where underground sources were beginning to prove insufficient.

Mr. Jolliffe said he did not believe the need of such a system is immediate but he thought we should know what we are facing."

Yields Must be Higher

If Ontario is going to remain a competitor in world markets more attention must be paid to soil fertility, he said. The conservation committee, of which he was a member, was told the acreage oats yield in Ontario was 35 bushels to the acre. This was uneconomical. Yields would have to be increased.

Guay's Counsel May Appeal Verdict, Sentence

Quebec, March 28 (CP)—Counsel for J. Albert Guay, sentenced to be hanged June 23 for the murder of his wife by time-bombing a commercial airliner, today will decide whether to appeal the verdict and sentence.

Counsel Bertrand Marin Lemoyne and his associate, Gerard Leveque, said Monday night they are studying possibilities of such an appeal. They have until Wednesday to decide.

The two lawyers visited the 32-year-old Guay, who was convicted of plotting his wife's death for the love of a 19-year-old waitress, Genevieve Rodbtaille.

If the case is not carried to appeal, Guay will be transferred to the death cell of Montreal's Bordeaux jail where all hangings for the province take place.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — Synopsis: The intense storm that caused a wide variety of weather over Ontario Monday was centred over the Kirkland Lake region early this morning. The storm is now weakening and continuing its eastward course.

Snow and blowing snow across northern Ontario will decrease in intensity today as the storm centre moves farther east. The colder air over Northern Ontario will move slowly southward and will likely reach the Georgian Bay area Wednesday.

In southern regions temperatures will return to a more seasonable level tonight and Wednesday. The maximum temperatures Wednesday are expected near the 40 degree mark, about 10 degrees lower than today's.

LEGISLATION ON FLOUR-PRICE HITS SNAG IN HOUSE

Night-Long Debate Ends Without Vote

Ottawa, March 28—(CP)—Permanent floor-price legislation for farm products was still hanging fire in the Commons today.

A government bill to wipe out the March 31, 1950, expiry time of the Agricultural Prices Support Act ran into snags in the Commons Monday night in the form of a C.C.F. amendment and a night-long debate.

It was still under discussion at adjournment, and it was due to come up again today.

Earlier, another government measure designed to bring the agricultural Products Act for another year—was given third reading after a proposed C.C.F. amendment. This statute empowers the government to negotiate and fulfill food contracts with Britain. The C.C.F. amendment, sponsored by Ferry Wright (CCF—Melfort), the party's Doukhobor specialists, asked that the House consider a permanent Agricultural Products Export Board to "fill present contracts, negotiate future contracts and develop new markets abroad for surplus agricultural products."

Though the C.C.F. contended the government's present plans were inadequate and that a permanent set-up was needed, its proposal went down to defeat by a margin of 143 to 23. The Social Credit bloc supported it.

Few Tax Changes Expected in Standpat Budget

Ottawa, March 28 — (CP) — A 1950-51 budget, expected to contain only scattered tax changes, will be read to the Commons at 8 p. m. EST tonight by Finance Minister Abbott.

Only Mr. Abbott, the cabinet and top officials of the Finance Department know the budget's contents in advance. But they are all sworn to secrecy.

As is customary, there has been some speculation on what Mr. Abbott may and may not announce in the budget. But this year's crop of guesses has been one of the slimmest since the end of the war when the government began unburdening taxpayers of their heavy war-imposed load.

Observers appear to agree that this will be a "standpat" budget, in which there will be a few tax reductions and a few new taxes.

There have been unofficial reports that the eight-per-cent sales tax will be eliminated or reduced on items such as coffee, ice cream, some foodstuffs and possibly cigarets and cigars.

Personal income taxes, slashed in the 1949 budget, are not expected to be left unchanged.

The C.C.F. amendment, sponsored by Ferry Wright (CCF—Melfort), the party's Doukhobor specialists, asked that the House consider a permanent Agricultural Products Export Board to "fill present contracts, negotiate future contracts and develop new markets abroad for surplus agricultural products."

Though the C.C.F. contended the government's present plans were inadequate and that a permanent set-up was needed, its proposal went down to defeat by a margin of 143 to 23. The Social Credit bloc supported it.

Boy's Body Found As Creek Dammed By Legionnaires

Ajax, March 28 (CP) — The body of Ronald Dudley Foster, missing since last Saturday, was found today by a party of Legionnaires who dammed Duffin Creek, near this community 15 miles east of Oshawa.

The creek was dammed in a night-long effort by members of the Canadian Legion who filled 800 sandbags to block a gap in a railway embankment through which the creek flows t. When the work was drained the body was discovered by one of the searchers. It was lying in a pot hole.

Police said an inquest was not likely.

The search began last Saturday after three playmates reported that Foster went on a hike with them, stopped to empty water from his rubber boots. They went ahead and then, looking back, they missed him.

More than 150 took part in the search during the weekend and Monday a helicopter from the photographic survey at Oshawa joined the 50 who took up the search. Searchers combed neighborhoods and coffee during the search.

The boy is survived by his parents, three brothers and twin sisters.

Snow, Rain, Hail and Dust Storms, Gales, Floods Afflict Midwest U.S.

Chicago, March 28. (AP)—Late March storms dealt damaging blows to the midwest, the plains states and over much of the southern United States on Monday. The mighty spring storm was a mixture of weather—snow, rain, sleet, hail, winds of gale velocity, floods and dust storms.

Rail and highway travel in some parts of the midwest storm belt was curtailed. Some schools were closed. Communications were disrupted.

Temperatures dropped over the midwest as the storms struck. They were below freezing in some northern areas today.

An intense snow-sleet-rain and wind storm left in its wake blankets of snow over areas of Colorado, Wyoming, the Dakotas, Nebraska, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Drifts piled to six feet in parts of North Dakota.

The dust storms which caused heavy damage to wheat crops in Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska eased but there still was dust in the air in parts of Texas.

Winds which reached a velocity of 87 miles an hour whipped across the twin ports of Duluth-Superior at the head of the Great Lakes. Hundreds of telephones were knocked out. The northeast wind carried sleet mixed with snow and driving was hazardous.

STEINHARDT HAD DISTINGUISHED PUBLIC CAREER

In U.S. Foreign Service Since 1933

New York, March 28— (CP)— Laurence A. Steinhardt, 57, United States ambassador reported killed today in the crash of an aircraft taking off from Ottawa, had been on U.S. Foreign Service since 1933, when he was appointed Minister to Sweden.

Among the diplomatic positions he had held was the ambassadorship in Russia. He went to the Ottawa post in August, 1948.

A tall, dark, genial man, married to a Hungarian, he was born in New York City Oct. 6, 1892. He served in the U.S. Navy in the First World War as an artillery man.

Steinhardt had a distinguished career in the legal profession before the late President Roosevelt appointed him Minister to Sweden 17 years ago. He wrote a number of books and articles on jurisprudence, finance and trade unions.

Appointed Delegate

In 1937 he was appointed an alternate delegate and senior delegate to the Eighth International Conference of American States at Lima, Peru, the following year. He helped frame the Declaration of Lima, which proclaimed the solidarity of American republics and provided for meeting of foreign ministers if the peace of the hemisphere were threatened.

Early in 1939 Steinhardt was appointed Minister to the Soviet Union. He remained in Russia until after the German invasion in 1941.

Later, as U.S. Ambassador to Turkey, he attended the Cairo conference in 1943 of Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

He was named Ambassador to Czechoslovakia in December, 1945, and served there until just before his appointment to Ottawa.

At that time an article in a magazine Current Biography described him as a man with "tremendous capacity for detail and for getting things . . . no trouble is too great for him, no detail too petty."

Commons Railway Committee Continues Searching Scrutiny Of CNR Policies, Future Plans

Ottawa, March 28. (CP)—The Commons Railway Committee today prepared to continue a searching scrutiny of CNR operational policies and future plans of the Canadian National Railways.

Donald Gordon, the $45,000-a-year head of the governmentowned line, told the committee Monday that it would like by more coal from mines in the Maritime Provinces. As one of the CNR., as one of this country's biggest coal buyers, he was told "a gun to the head" of small east-coast operators to obtain low fuel prices.

The C.N.R. president told Clare Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) the company's purchasing department has to make the best bargain it could, but it did not try to force down the price below the local range.

Not Sufficient Coal

Eastern coal operators, Mr. Gordon said did not produce sufficient coal to meet C.N.R. requirements.

This year, for example, the C.N.R. needed about 2,300,000 tons of coal in the Maritime area. But the eastern operators could only promise to deliver about 1,120,000 tons This would make it necessary for the system to obtain much of its coal requirements from the United States.

Transport Minister Chevrier joined in the committee discussions to emphasize that the government was not "getting out of rail ing" when the Newfoundland railway system was taken over as one of the terms of union.

The federal government was aware that the system would have a deficit but it was prepared for about $5,000,000.

Mr. Gordon interjected that the loss will be cut this year to about $4,200,000.

The other matters of company policy, Mr. Gordon said:

1. The company is not ferrying the Canso Causeway. Ferry, will be abandoned in May 1.

2. The company planned to spend $37,000,000 for new equipment this year and more would be spent in future years dependent on need and economic factors.

3. The C.N.R. is not completely sold on the idea of converting the total amount of its equipment from coal to oil-burning locomotives.

4. The C.N.R. has made an offer to the Prince Edward Island government to take over its highway truck and bus traffic as a means of giving the island a better service, but the same offer has not been made to other provinces.

L. Steinhardt, 4 Others Killed When Embassy Plane Explodes Near Ottawa

Eyewitnesses Say Plane Appeared to be Afire

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ramsayville, Ont., March 28 — (CP) — A United States embassy plane exploded and crashed in flames on the outskirts of Ottawa today, killing Laurence Steinhardt, U. S. ambassador to Canada, and four other persons.

Only one man, Master Sergeant Gwyn A. Long of the U. S. Air Force, survived the crash of the Dakota aircraft, bound for New York. Long parachuted from the plane just before it exploded and was taken to hospital with a broken leg and undetermined injuries.

The crash occurred 11 miles southeast of Ottawa in clear weather, shortly after the plane took off from Rockcliffe air station, six miles east of Ottawa. Eyewitnesses said the explosion sounded like "dynamite."

RUMORS OF SABOTAGE

The explosion and the fact it happened shortly after takeoff in good visibility immediately stirred rumors of sabotage.

However, responsible police and military authorities declined to comment on this angle before a full investigation is made.

Killed were:

Laurence Steinhardt, 57, U. S. ambassador.

Allan Harrington, 30, son of the U. S. minister to Canada, Julian Harrington.

Capt. Thomas Archibald, 34, of Union Springs, Ala., assistant air attache at the embassy and pilot of the aircraft.

Lt.-Col. W. F. Trueblood, U.S.A.F., 35, of Kansas City, Kan., an exchange officer attached to R.C.A.F. headquarters in Ottawa.

Lieut. Mark Belanger, U.S.A.F., 29, New Bedford, Mass., former assistant U. S. air attache at Ottawa now an exchange officer attached to the R.C.A.F.

On Private Business

The U.S. ambassador was travelling to New York on private business. Allan Harrington was returning to Randolph Macon College in Virginia after visiting his parents at the embassy.

The plane took off from Rockcliffe shortly after 8 a.m. EST. It was maintained here by the employees and one of the ambassador and his staff.

Mrs. Lester Kipp, who lives within 300 yards of the crash, said she first noticed the plane "starting to give out smoke from the exhaust pipe." Then the smoke got bigger and suddenly it flamed up in the middle.

"The next think I knew a wing fell off.

"The pilot was trying to keep her steady and he did do for some distance but finally crashed in the field."

Sounded Like Dynamite

Clem Schaefe took up the story from there, talking to reporters on the scene of the crash. He said he and his son Russell heard an explosion that shook their house, 300 yards away. It sounded like "dynamite."

They ran out of their house and across the snow-covered fields.

"The whole thing was on fire and when we got near we could smell burning bodies," he said. "The plane was all dismembered and two bodies were lying in it, burning. We grabbed them, pulled them out, threw snow over them to put out the fire. Two other bodies were lying 100 feet away We were not burning. They had apparently been thrown free."

Found Passenger- Alive

"We saw one man apparently alive lying in the snow about 100 feet in the other direction. Russell went over to him and found he was alive and helped him back to the road. He was driven to Ottawa by a neighbor.

"He seemed to have a broken leg. He said he had parachuted."

The bodies were charred and torn and dismembered, virtually beyond recognition.

Around them lay the shattered spattered remnants of the plane with parts of the engine, golf clubs and balla, a brief case hardened papers and parts of a parachute which indicated that the second occupant of the plane had failed in an attempt to parachute to safety.

Like Wartime Scenes

The corpses were covered with parachutes and black and grey blankets, producing scenes reminiscent of wartime battlefields. Farmers from the surrounding area were arriving at the scene in large numbers and a considerable number of cars drove down from Ottawa.

People, some with babies, kept tramping across the fields, sometimes stepping into water pools six and seven inches deep, other

Deer Population in Ontario Estimated at 15,000 and 20,000

Toronto, March 28 (CP)— The Ontario Legislative Committee on fish and game today heard a recommendation of the Lands and Forests Department that a limited number of townships in the Parry Sound and Muskoka district be closed for one year to deer hunters.

The deer population in the area was decreasing, the Department statement said. The area would be set aside as a sanctuary.

During the first year of a closed season of moose there are a few sections of the province where the moose population has increased sufficiently to warrant hunting, the department said. It recommended that the closed season be continued for another year and some days continued. The deer population at present was estimated at between 15,000 and 20,000.

Another department recommendation said it was "ridiculous to protect indefinitely" the deer in southern Ontario agricultural areas where they were only a nuisance. Complaints from the 1,000 deer were killed each year in southern Ontario by darting in front of automobiles.

W. J. Houck (Lib.-Niagara Falls) asked that the coon-hunting bag be set at three a night and not more than 25 to be taken between Nov. 1 and Jan. 1. Coon hunting would be restricted between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. The department last year issued special licenses for coon hunters entitling them to carry guns after nightfall.

POLICE SEEKING PISTOL-TOTING PEDESTRIAN

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — A husky, six-foot welder from Sudbury, Ont., was hunted today on a charge of shooting with intent to wound Constable Angelo Longo in the stomach.

Detectives identified the man as Joseph Pawlen, 46. They said they expected he will surrender.

Two men, strangers to the suspect, were wounded. Hospital attendants said today their condition is "satisfactory."

Donald E. White, 30, suffered a bullet wound in the groin and Edward Long, 36, was wounded in both legs by another pedestrian who fired four shots from a .25 calibre pistol after accosting the men on Pembroke Street on the fringe of Toronto's downtown area.

Police were searching for a man described by eye-witnesses as between 45 and 50 years of age, six feet two inches tall, of heavy build with medium brown hair thinning on top. The man wore an overcoat with a bright red shirt and police said he was believed to have come to Toronto recently from Sudbury. The suspect who is sought was a roomer at a hotel near the scene of the shootings.

Taken to Hospital

White and Long, both from suburban Long Branch, were taken to hospital suffering from shock and considerable loss of blood. Hospital X-rays were taken to determine the extent of their injuries.

Police said the wounded men and a companion, Lindsay Martin of Toronto, were standing about 20 feet behind the man in the red shirt when the latter whirled around and said to the trio: "Do you think you are tough?" For no apparent reason he aimed a gun at White and kicked Long in the stomach.

Then he whipped out a pistol and fired four shots, one striking Long twice in the legs and White in the groin. The fourth bullet struck in Martin's overcoat. Two ejected shells from a 32-calibre pistol were found at the scene.

HIGHER EMPLOYMENT REPORTED ON C.N.R.

With the cessation of coal strikes in the United States and the subsequent arrival of stocks of coal in Canada, activities of the Canadian National Railways here are approaching normal, it was learned today. The greater percentage of the employees laid off during the strike period has returned to work, and the division is getting back to the "old days".

ELECTRICAL MEN WILL ATTEND MEETING

A large number of radio and appliance dealers from this district will attend the annual convention scheduled for Toronto April 3, 4, 5. Chairman Harold Saunders, Hydro Electric Commission chairman, will be one of the principal speakers.

1. ONTARIO PICKEREL MOVE TOWARD SHORE

First signs of the Spring pickerel run have been reported by conservationist Claude Winters, of Wellington. He stated that pickerel in Lake Ontario are beginning to move inshore today, in the vicinity of West Lake, Prince Edward County.

CITY LAWYER ATTENDS SPECIAL LECTURES

A special course of lectures on Company Law, which opened last week in Osgoode Hall, has attracted 338 barristers from all parts of Ontario, W. Earl Smith, secretary of the Law Society of Upper Canada, announced today. Attending the lectures from Belleville is Alan B. Sprague, prominent district lawyer.

Almost all of the provinces is represented, with more than 70 percent of the attending barristers from centres outside of Toronto. Graduate students from the class of 1895 to last year's graduating class are registered.

POLICE COURT

Pleading guilty before Magistrate T. V. Wills to a charge of theft, William Symons, Herchimer Avenue, today was remanded until Friday for sentence. On a second charge of intoxication Symons was sentenced to ten days in jail.

Symons was arrested Sunday at the rear of 267 1-2 Front Street with a bottle of catsup, a bottle of soft drinks, and a bottle of jam in his pockets, said to have been taken from an ice box in the hall at the above address.

Police stated that the occupants of the apartment at that address had been missing groceries from their ice box in the hall for some time.

Land Invasion Of Arctic Area 'Preposterous'

Sudbury, March 28—(CP) — There will never be any land invasion of Canada through the Arctic regions Paul Queneau, International Nickel Company scientist, told Copper Cliff Rod and Gun Club Monday night. He based his opinion on personal investigation of Arctic conditions in the last two years.

"A land invasion of Arctic is preposterous," said Queneau. "The only way any foreign country could invade the Canadian north would be by air and then they would have a difficult job to occupy it. It is a barren waste which would not surrender easily to any occupying force."

Emphasizing that the Arctic was a "friendly land" for all peaceful parties, Queneau said that it would be impossible for an invading force to "live off the land" and equally difficult to supply an army.

Council Will Request Hospital Board to Take No Action On Removal of Chest Clinic

City council will request the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital to take no action with respect to the Provincial Chest Clinic now occupying their present quarters at the hospital until a committee of council meet with the board to discuss the matter.

This was decided by members of council at their regular meeting Monday evening following a representation made by Dr. Cleo V. Faulkner who pointed out the advantages of retaining the chest clinic in the hospital and in the city.

Members of the hospital Board of Governors at their meeting on Friday voted to move the chest clinic to vacate their present quarters in the hospital, claiming the space is needed for other hospital work.

Monday night Mayor H. J. Allin appointed a committee of Aldermen Haig, Hyde, Deacon, Potter, Anderson and Tice with Mayor Allin to meet with the hospital Board of Governors and the board P. C. McGuire being requested to call a special meeting. If necessary, to carry out the council request. The special committee of council will go into other hospital matters at the same meeting.

Might Inspair Service

In asking that council do everything possible to prevent the removal of the chest clinic from the hospital, Dr. Faulkner stated that if the chest clinic were removed it might completely impair the service rendered to the community by the hospital and by the medical profession. He said that the medical profession had sent a unanimous protest to the Board of Governors against the removal of the clinic.

Dr. Faulkner stated it clear that no group was attempting to dictate to the Board of the Governors or to council regarding the operation of the hospital but he felt that further light on the subject may cause council to reconsider its decision. It might cause the loss of the chest clinic to the community

Reviews Work of Clinic

Reviewing the work of the chest clinic in the Belleville community Dr. Faulkner said the clinic and the government laboratory had been brought to the city in 1936. It was felt then that a tremendous improvement had been brought about in the health facilities for the community.

When the chest clinic was first brought to the city one sanitarium case of tuberculosis for every 25 patients X-rayed was discovered and the Quinte district death rate for the community was among the worst in the province. Also when the tuberculosis skin-tested high school children it wr found that 25 percent were positively to the tuberculosis skin test.

But conditions had been so improved in the intervening years so that in 1949 only one sanitarium case was discovered for every 150 patients X-rayed, while the tuberculosis death rate in Belleville stands sixth amongst the 64 municipalities in Ontario of 5,000 population and over.

Tells of Last Survey

High school children on their last survey were found to show percent positive to the tuberculosis skin test.

Therefore 1949 the chest clinic at the hospital X-rayed 4,000 people referred by physicians in this area. In addition a further 4,000 patients had been X-rayed at their travelling chest clinic. This did not include work done on surveys and survey reckons on examination of school children.

In addition to the above work, and this was stated to be most important, Dr. Brearley is available for consultation work at the hospital for any doctor or patient at no cost.

"His service in this regard has been most liberally given." the doctor stated, "and I might point out that in Dr. Brearley we have one of the most outstanding chest men in Britain. This is not only my opinion, or the opinion of Belleville citizens but in the opinion of the director of tuberculosis prevention in Ontario."

Asks For Consideration

Dr. Faulkner asked that council give deep consideration to the plea of the hospital board for space shortage as the reason the chest clinic was being asked to leave the hospital.

Continuing the doctor pointed out that the matter was delighted with the "short-sighted endeavor" to eject the chest clinic from the hospital and would be only too pleased to welcome the clinic into the hospital provided that they were ousted from Belleville.

"We are entitled to the benefit of enjoyment of the benefits of Dr. Brearley and his chest clinic and have pulled for the association which every citizen in the community should hold for the clinic," he said.

In conclusion Dr. Faulkner asked that council do everything possible to prevent the chest clinic be forced removed from the hospital and suggest that the hospital board of governors be instructed by council to defer any action until a council committee had had an opportunity of discussing the situation.

House Not Suitable

"Is it not a fact that accommodation was offered the chest clinic in the house owned by the hospital," asked Alderman W. Argue.

"That is correct," returned Mayor Allin, "but the house is not suitable."

Alderman Hyde also voiced the opinion the house would not be suitable for the clinic, "it would be a shame if the clinic were removed from the hospital" he said.

Mayor Allin reported that according to the auditor's statement just received by the city the gross expenditure at the hospital for 1949 had been $571,-717.27 with an expenditure of $625,770.69, or a loss of $54,-053.42. This is equivalent five mills on the tax rate, he said.

BRITAIN TO SLASH

The gold and dollar deficit would be cut by half provided that:

1. Britain's exports increase and she breaks into more American and Canadian markets.

2. Growing supplies from non-dollar sources make British dollar imports less dependent.

3. There are savings in dollar "invisibles" as a result of reduced dependence on American shipping and a progressive reduction in British companies' dollar-spending on oil operations.

4. There are economies in dollar imports by sterling-area countries.

Will Export More

5. Britain can earn more newly-mined gold and reduce her dollar losses to non-dollar hard currency countries like Belgium, Switzerland and Persia by exporting more as a result of last September's sterling devaluation.

An overall squaring of accounts depends on three particularly crucial factor:

A. Britain's wage stabilization policy.

B. Greater industrial efficiency to keep down costs and so gain the benefit of devaluation from overseas trade, particularly in dollar markets.

C. A continuing big world demand for goods. This is related particularly to healthy business activity in the United States.

The survey revealed the government's aim to achieve a $2½-000,000 surplus in 1950-51 for the overseas sterling area apart from Britain herself. Last year the area (less Britain) had a $182,000,000 deficit.

Outlines Survey

On the over-all picture of economic progress, the survey said:

"Basically, the economy is much stronger than 1947. The main problem—for every year ahead—is still the balance of payments, but devaluation gives us opportunities which we must seize.

"There is now a reasonable possibility of achieving a general balance of overseas payments and making good progress towards closing the dollar gap, given the maintenance of world trade and the completion of the European Recovery program as originally planned."

But the survey warned:

"There remains a formidable task to be accomplished. Primary aim of the long-term program due to be completed when Marshall Plan aid ends in 1952) will not have been attained until we are fully self-supporting in our economy."

400,000 Unemployed

In Britain where only about 400,000 people are unemployed out of an industrial population of about 22,500,000 the survey expected as many jobs in 1950-51 as last year.

It foreshadowed for austerity-ridden Britan a slightly rosier year. More milk fats and eggs, possibly more meat were likely to be available—but no more sugar yet.

There would be a wider range of choice in household goods, and enough tobacco to keep up to last year's rate of smoking.

Overall supplies would be small if incomes did not rise more rapidly than output.

"The prospects of 1950 depend on the continuance of American aid although on a diminished scale, during the next two years. This continuance is a basic assumption underlying all that has been said about production, investment, consumption and the balance of payments," the survey said.

Kinsmen Asked For Firm Support Of Pool Project

Mincing no words and in his usual straight iron the shoulder manner Harry Rollins, chairman of the general canvass committee, called on fellow Kinsmen to raise the $50,000 needed to complete the Community Swimming pool.

He told them point blank at the weekly luncheon last week that each and every Kinsmen must pledge the sum of $10 to the fund immediately. May 1st was the last day extended them to make the donation.

"The success of this campaign lies in the strength of the small man" declared Mr. Rollins, who with confidence assured his club associates that by everyone putting their shoulders to the wheel the task would be completed.

Mr. Rollins said it had been decided to canvass each and every service club in an endeavor to get them to assist with the canvass. "We don't want anybody to renege or let us down," he urged.

Kinsmen Club is determined it was the first duty of the Belleville Kinsmen Club to see that the swimming pool was open by this summer. "It is our duty, our privilege and we have our name written in the history of the city of Belleville," he declared.

Canvass Organized

Kin Murray Davis is the chairman of the swimming pool committee. Mayor H. J. Allin, who has borne fruit. A chairman of a subcommittee advised that the canvass of the manufacturers and retail merchants had been organized and would get to work in unison with the rest of the drive. This meeting was that of the trade industries and service stations could expect a call.

It was also suggested that the Club ask for the blueprints of the building and the construction of the pool. He felt that people would be more inclined to give if the shovel was at the site digging the excavation for the pool. It was unanimous that they are going to swim in the pool constructed by the Kinsmen's Club," he said.

President Gunnar Sorensen revealed some of the ideas put up to him to be used along with the campaign. He said that Commanding Officer of the Trenton Air Station had assured the club the services of the helicopter as a flying broadcasting post for a couple of hours every day that the drive was in progress. He announced that 50 window displays of the proposed pool would be placed throughout the city. He said it was planned for to have hats made for the children advertising the campaign.

In addition literature pertaining to the campaign will be printed and passed out to the school children to take home to their parents.

Auction Goods Ready

In connection with the planned auction sale of articles donated by manufacturers throughout Canada and resident Canadians, it was decided at the meeting that the glant sale could commence for two days or as long as the articles hold out. He said that articles coming in daily were adding to the huge pile already received.

It was decided for the club members to stage a stag party in the Y.M.C.A. early in June.

At the close of the meeting with Jack Ward constructing a caricature operating the machine and filling in the narration a two-reel color moving picture entitled "Oh" for the compliments of the H. J. McFarland Construction Co. of Picton in the last two years provided interesting entertainment.

County Will Retain City's Portion of Revenue to Pay For Repairs to Registry Office

Repairs and alterations at the county registry office, Belleville, with additional equipment found necessary, cost a total of $22,-214.50, members of county council were told Monday evening.

The statement was made by Alderman Chas. L. Hyde as a member of the council committee appointed to go into the apportioning of registry office costs between the city and county.

As the city share of the annual revenue of the registry office is approximately 28 percent of the total, it was recommended that this ratio of costs be adopted for payment of repairs and alterations. This would make the city share approximately $6,500.

It was agreed that the county retain the city's share of registry office revenue for a period of five years in lieu of payment of a lump sum of $6,500. Balance, if any, at the end of five years will be apportioned, Mayor Allin, in commenting on the report, said the settlement agreed upon was a splendid gesture on the part of the county, which was possibly better able to finance the cost than was the city.

Delegation Heard

A delegation of Catherine St. residents appeared before council protesting the flooding of basements through reason of the sewer backing up. Representation for the delegation stated it was realized that nothing could be done immediately to remedy the matter but they wanted assurance something would be done when the spring came.

The committee, He said that two to three feet of live sewage was flowing in basements and created a health hazard.

Mayor Allin said he appreciated the condition and assured that something must be done in the area with respect to storm sewers. The only solution was a large sewer from Catherine St. possibly to the river. "Owing to the high tax rate approval of the expenditure board would be necessary," he said.

Special Committee

A special committee of Aldermen Clarke, Hyde and Potter was named to investigate the financial condition of the Corby Public Library. The matter was brought up by Alderman Argue who said that the library finances were in a "precarious" condition.

He said that the per capita grant to libraries in many other centres was 65 cents, while in Belleville the grant was but 30 cents per head. Salaries at the library were "disgracefully low" he claimed, as an alderman who recommended a committee to investigate.

Alderman Clarke said that council could increase the per-capita grant to the library to the amount up to $1 if it was considered advisable.

Change Name of Street

Third reading was given to a by-law changing the name of Cemetery Road in the Ulinois area to Stanley Street. Residents of the above area some time ago petitioned council for a change in street name.

The by-law committee with the addition of Alderman E. O. Butler as chairman of city property, was named a committee to investigate the possibility of repairs and alterations at the Front St. fire hall. If it was found inadvisable to repair the building, the committee was authorized to look for a site for a new fire hall.

Life Average in U.S. Women 71 Years, Men 65½ Years

Washington, March 28 (AP)— The average white woman in the United States now lives 71 years, the Public Health Service said Monday. The average white man has not yet achieved the three-score-and-ten mark, however. The agency said the average length of life for this group is 65½ years. Both averages, based or 1948, death rates, are records.

Say Four Men's Share Only $80 In $40,000 Haul

Montreal, March 28—(CP) — Four alleged bandits, whose share in a $40,000 robbery was said by police to have been only $80, today were held by detectives for questioning in connection with the Feb. 28 robbery of an east-end jewelry store.

Detective Capt. Paul Guerin did not identify the four but police said the leader of the gang who robbed the Bellemare Jewelry Store on Papineau Avenue ran out on the other members and still is at large.

Detectives said the four "certainly" were involved in the Papineau Avenue robbery where most of the loot was diamonds from the sample case of Peter Bailey, Toronto salesman.

Other robberies likely to be charged against the men were said to be the $10,000 holdup Jan. 27 at the Rolland Jewelry Store and a holdup of an east-end grocery a few days ago.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 28 (CP)—Western oils sagged under pressure of steady selling as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The remainder of the market moved in a narrow path tending easier from early firmness.

Volume for the first three hours was 737,000 shares.

Downward pressure began Monday in western oils following strong advances last week.

In industrial papers, constructions and foods were mixed. Steels, liquors and refining oils dipped.

Junior golds traded briskly with a few key issues pushing higher. Macfarlane-Hockaut continued a standout performer. Senios were mixed.

STEINHARDT HAD

"He is the sort of man who will investigate a report on a given subject from 20 different angles, well knowing that only one stands a chance of being acted on, and is more than satisfied if eventually action is secured," the article added.

Liked People

At Moscow, Prague and Ankara he had to deal with many tickish problems. His motto was "There's an amicable solution to every controversial question," and usually he was able to find such solution in questions that arose in his work.

One secret of his success was his great liking for people. He got on well with newspaper men, with whom he talked more freely than most diplomats, and he used to boast that although he had laid himself open many times his confidence had never been violated.

His wife and daughter, Dulcie Ann, both accomplished linguists, accompanied him to Ottawa in 1948.

When the war hit Russia, Steinhardt was bombed and nearly captured by the Germans. He had guessed the date of their invasion accurately because a German officer he knew sent a pet dog home by plane four days before the attack began.

In Turkey later he matched wits for three years with Hitler's ace diplomat, Franz Von Papen. He helped hold the Turks from wavering into the German ranks and then cinched their aid for the Allies.

While at Ankara he was awarded the U.S. medal of merit for his work in helping American fliers escape from Eastern Europe. Many of these were forced planes shot down in raids on Romanian oil fields.

"Talk about your cloak and dagger work," he used to say. "We did everything to get those boys back to their bases—mysterious trips rides at midnight, excursions into deserts, dangerous boat trips. But we got them out, in ones and twos and threes."

Welcomed Ottawa Assignment

Steinhardt welcomed his Canadian assignment as a respite from the intrigues of Europe. He once remarked wistfully: "When I was young I used to like to travel."

Steinhardt flew thousands of miles on diplomatic assignments. He had one previous close call. That was a flight on which he and Maxim Litvinoff and several newspaper correspondents were missing several days during a series of forced landings in South Russian blizzard.

"I wouldn't give a nickel to go through that again," he said. "But I'd give $1,000 not to have missed it."

Woman Granted Decree Nisi, Thought First Husband Dead, Plans to Annul First Marriage

Brantford, March 28 — (CP)— A Brantford woman was granted a decree nisi Monday in her suit to divorce a Mount Albert, Ont., man with whom she went through a form of marriage in 1943 in the belief her first husband was dead.

The woman told Mr. Justice G. A. Urquhart she also intends to seek annulment of her first marriage to a man who left her 21 years ago, three years after their marriage.

The woman said that her first husband corresponded with her for a time, then letters stopped. Believing later she heard a report he was dead. However, she learned two years ago that her first husband was living in England, Maine, and had gone through a form of marriage with another woman.

The Mount Albert man did not contest the divorce.

The court attached a three-month waiting period to judgement and in June the woman may apply for a final decree.

Financial Disaster Faces Canadian Universities Unless Revenues Greatly Increased Says Dr. Hall

Canadian universities are so close to financial disaster that it is very difficult to stress the significance of the position in which they find themselves, Dr. G. Edward Hall, president, University of Western Ontario, London, Ont., said in a Rotary Club address here today.

While universities revenues come from various sources, he said, student fees account for almost 50 per cent of the financial resources of those schools. These fees, he added, have increased from 15 per cent some 15 years ago to the present figure.

Canadian universities were charged with a tremendous responsibility during the years following the war when they trained 60,000 war veterans. Now the peak of this education is down, they found not only government subsidies withdrawn but they were not in a position to revamp facilities, revise equipment, in addition to other problems so that today they find themselves in desperate straits.

Must Increase Grants

Speaking of federal financial aid, Dr. Hall said it was necessary that Universities of Canada get only greatly increased capital grants but annual grants for maintenance.

A survey of needs, he added, revealed that the universities can be helped only by an annual grant of six million dollars to support the field of professions, and by addition another grant (once) of six million dollars would remove the fear of bankruptcy in disaster which can come down on these institutions.

The situation of Canadian universities is a serious one, Dr. Hall said. He felt that the value of these institutions so essential to the national economy and therefore the good of Canada, is being taken for granted by the people who are receiving these values.

"If the people of Canada would sit down and think, I am sure they doubt the value of universities which must turn out doctors, dentists, engineers, chemists, physicists and other professions, so important to the health of Canada. But it takes money to operate universities. I do not believe any university except those heavily endowed can come out at the end of the year on the right side of the books."

Must Provide Opportunities

Declaring that Canada was depending more and more on "brains" which he said were to be found in the "back-fifties, factories, in hamlet and city, Dr. Hall wanted to know why these people should be deprived of the opportunity to develop themselves because of lack of dollars.

Provincial governments assist some universities along certain lines, but generally the student pays the bulk. He cannot continue to meet the increased cost.

No one province has the total responsibility for any university, the speaker declared. "University education transcends all boundaries, the lines jut which are easy to define when considering the overall financial responsibility the people of Canada owe to universities."

"In England," Dr. Hall said, "in the period between 1921-1950 the University Grants Committee has functioned under different political governments. Never in its history, has political interference been detected."

Increases Freely Given

Every year since 1945 there has been significant increases in grants while Treasury and Navy expenditures were cut, money poured into universities, because the future of Great Britain lies in the calibre of its education.

"If Great Britain can do this, surely Canada can do likewise" Dr. Hall maintained. "I admit the University Grant Committee does not function but there are other ways of securing funds."

The federal government has been in the future of education field for years, he went on. Royal Military College, Kingston, and the Royal Roads, on the west coast, are wholly supported by federal funds. The government through the Department of Veterans Affairs came into higher education "two feet deep" and supported veterans of the war. At the same time governmental grants to students in universities also brought it into the higher education field.

Have Led Research

Dr. Hall declared that universities for many years have played a tremendous part in the development of science and research with the government of Canada getting high class results at practically no cost. For every dollar from outside sources, it has cost the universities 30 percent additional to do research for the people of Canada.

In conclusion, he said that every Canadian citizen should support the universities of the country. "We, in Canada, who consider our natural resources vital to us, should never forget one of our greatest resources, the young men who have ability to take advantage of university education."

Dr. Hall was introduced by Rotarian Dr. George H. Stobie with club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Phil Morrall, President Fred Deacon was in the chair. During the meeting Rotarian John Dancey's fine voice was heard in "Ruby Brittany."

Guests present included Principal R. A. Wallace, Queen's University, Kingston; Principal George Currie, Belleville Collegiate; Kiwanis President, Taylor Franklin; Col. R. T. Spooner, Salvation Army; Dick Downey, Lorne McDougall, L. A. Kells and Doctor Reginald Anderson, all of Belleville, John Chipman, North Bay; Albert Robinson, New York City; Wing Commander Coles, RCAF, Trenton; and Rotarians Smithin, Russell and the Rev. A. The committee left to the discretion of the minister a suggestion by the federation that all angling on the St. Lawrence River on the Ontario side cease Oct. 15. Also left to the minister's discretion was a recommendation by Hugh Reynolds (P.C.-Leeds) that fishing with gears be banned throughout the province.

The committee asked the minister to suggest to the Federal government that where the open season on speckled trout and pickerel falls on a Monday that it be advanced to the previous Saturday. Mr. Scott said anglers who "have all the time in world" for fishing usually get the cream of the catch in the first three or four days, leave nothing for the man who could fish only at the weekend.

Mr. Scott said a suggestion by the federation that hunting and fishing licences be taken from persons twice convicted of breaches of the law was unenforceable. The hunter or angler could buy a new licence from another office and it would be virtually impossible to keep track of him.

The committee turned down suggestions that the wolf bounty be increased from $25 to $50 or $100. Mr. Scott said the department was trying to discover some means of identifying part of the wolf so that he need not carry the whole carcass out of the bush. The ears were too similar to those of a dog.

The wreckage indicated that the plane plowed straight into the ground and disintegrated into tremendous explosion.

It landed near the junction of two barbed wire fences on the farm of A. R. Gould. One engine was buried over a fence into another field 50 feet away. One wing was 35 feet away in another direction. Two of the bodies were found as far away on another side.

FOR EMERGENCIES

In order to provide the most modern equipment available, we have recently acquired a portable Resuscitator-Inhalator-Aspirator which will be carried in our emergency ambulance at all times. This machine is a combination of three instruments — each of which serves a distinctly important part in emergency life-saving.

1 THE RESUSCITATOR
Will provide mechanical artificial respiration during complete respiratory failure.

2 THE INHALATOR
Will deliver a flow of oxygen to a breathing patient, who needs a higher concentration than is available in atmospheric air.

3 THE ASPIRATOR
Will remove fluid obstructions from the upper air passages and allow oxygen to enter the patient's lungs.

This equipment can be rushed wherever it is required and should prove invaluable in certain types of emergency cars where every minute counts

Your family Doctor has been informed that this equipment is now available for his use when required.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

These and the coming days will be busy times in the great outdoors for spring has unlocked the gates and opened the channels. Now the birds will come back from their winter sojourn abroad and the plants and roots will feel their way through the earth. One of the historic interests of the coming weeks will be the tapping of the maple trees, the collection of the sap in buckets and the turning of sap into syrup and sugar, a product fit for the finest taste of man.

Not only those who make their living out of the land and who have become expert in their knowledge of agriculture but the people in cities and towns and villages have plenty to do to adjust themselves to the new season.

These later days have found the Weathermen making reports which for accuracy and thoroughness could not be excelled for they have at their fingertips the facts regarding weather conditions here and there and everywhere. This modern scientific development in weather forecasts gives those who themselves are natural weather prognosticators, those who live on the land and in the open, Colleges of data and broadcasting, makes a service of great importance to all people whether they live in the city or town or on the farm. The accuracy of the information permits various undertakings which depend upon the weather whether it be stormy or calm.

Their reliability has been proven and the result is that those years ago knowledge of the weather was to non-agriculturists a matter of considerable uncertainty, it now is a collection of facts that people can accept and find correct.

The place which the seasons have in the lives of men, women and children is one of the basic facts of life, because it is a part of nature. In this sense we are all poets for though most of us do not sing as the lyricist does, there is a sympathetic companionship with renewing nature and life takes on a new outlook, the step is to another measure for life is at the beginning of that miracle, the opening of another year of growth.

Happy are all those young and old children of nature who are caught up in the sweep of the season after the trial and tribulation of the period of short days and long nights. This impulse which all feel is a dynamic force of life. This is the time when all are lyrical at heart though most have never written a line of verse. The great symphony of the year, springtime, has begun. The poet speaks of "the thousand blessed notes" — these are what all hear at this time.

FINDING A WAY

An interesting item of news comes from the Old Country of the first several deliveries of radioactive isotopes from Britain to South Africa by air recently. The isotopes are stowed in the wing tips of the Skymaster planes carrying them

The method of storage during transportation has been adopted because it eliminates the need for packing the isotopes in heavy lead containers, cutting the weight of a single package from 30 pounds to just a few ounces and reducing transport charges by 98 per cent. Risk of contamination is likewise reduced to a minimum for sensitive X-ray films carried in the fuselage show no reaction from the isotopes stored in the tips of the wings.

THE SNOW APPLE

It is said that the good old Snow apple is on the way out. It is claimed that it is a poor seller and that growers in Ontario are grafting their Snows into Spies and McIntosh. The reason given is that the Snow which grows on old-fashioned Snow apple tree is too small to grade well and exert strong sales appeal, says the Farmer's Advocate.

"We should not bow it out without paying a tribute of praise to a list of varieties that were standard before this century began and some of which have not been cancelled even after half a century of scientific effort.

"The Northern Spy is still unsurpassed as an all-purpose apple and for cooking the Greening, Golden Russet and the King were and are good apples but there are now more profitable kinds to grow. Horticulturists and plant breeders have done their best work during the past half century by giving us better late summer and early fall varieties and breeding hardier trees for the frontier."

Do today's duty, fight today's temptation; do not weaken; do not weaken and district yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see and could not understand if you saw them. — Charles Kingsley.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Uptown in all our Canadian cities there are pleasant little restaurants—busy as foundries at noon and at supper time—which, all three days in the afternoon, quiet and hushed, are the setting for a very touching little drama.

The old ladies come in for a snack.

Well-dressed, at any rate respectably dressed, middle-aged and elderly ladies, and they always alone.

Always are they in couples! Most of them come in and pick up a tray with coffee or tea and possibly an order of toast, and then go and sit slightly apart from each other. If, in the course of time, they have come to know one another, they politely acknowledge it with a wintry little smile and a nod. They are loners. And they are lonely.

These gatherings are in the uptown areas near old-residential neighborhoods, where there are respectable rooming houses in which genteel spinsters and widows can find quite haven. The elderly ladies who come in these places are not for their afternoon walk. They are mothers whose children have grown up and scattered. Some of them may have a elderly husband downtown, who will be home at six. And some are widows.

It is then, of course, shortly after. A regular little procession of them arrives in the restaurant. It is almost like a church filling up at eleven o'clock—a small out-of-the-way church. There is a churchly hush as the ladies retreat with their trays to the more emptier spaces of the restaurant.

Shortly after 11 o'clock resound the first wild raucous yells of the school kids coming for their lunch at the restaurant the solitary old ladies pick up their purses, and with small, wintry smiles, depart.

Rune-Stone Telling of Landing In North America in 1362 Is Forgery Says Swedish Expert

Stockholm, March 28. (Reuters) —The Kensington rune-stone from Minnesota which relates how eight Goths and 22 Norwegians discovered America in 1362—130 years before Columbus—is a forgery, a Swedish runic expert has said.

Dr. Sven Jansson who studied the stone in the United States last year, published his report in a scientific paper.

The runic inscription of the stone maintains that it was written in 1362, but Dr. Jansson shows that the inscription has words which could not have existed that year and other signs which did not come into existence before 1500.

He also shows that the language of the inscription does not conform to the usage of the 14th century, but has similarities to the Swedish common language of the 19th century.

The stone was found by a Swedish-American farmer at Kensington in 1898 and is generally considered doubted by the leading Scandinavian rune experts some kind of long trouble. The mother says she had rather be guided by my advice. . . .

My advice is that the family doctor know better than any of us can know about both questions. The family doctor sounds like that to me.

If you keep constantly taking children's temperature you are bound to find a rise of temperature frequently, and it is pretty dumb to put a child in bed just because you discover a rise of temperature. Rises are often, often it is insignificant. Certainly it doesn't mean either that the young one is ill or that any illness is coming on. If the child is not obviously ill it doesn't matter whether there is a degree or two of fever. Such rise of temperature occurs frequently in children from trivial causes or from no apparent cause.

Some of the trick specialists that infest the profession today encourage mothers to keep a clinical thermometer in the house. Then when mother telephones the doctor the doctor can answer curiously about the child's temperature and answer the call or not, according to his convenience. If he chooses to evade it he can tell the mother to keep the child well under the covers, give a dose of something or rub on some ointment and let him know in the morning. . . . Such doctors consider their own convenience first, the welfare of the patient second.

Trouble stick is the right name for the clinical thermometer in the hands of any one else than the physician attending the patient or a nurse under the physician's direction. Trouble stick, because the little glass stick brings a great deal of trouble that without the stick never would have happened.

In some circumstances it may be of scientific interest to know just what the temperature is, but for the welfare of the children and the family it is better to leave the clinical thermometer in the hands of the attending physician or the nurse who carries out the doctor's orders.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The "Shot" Merchants

No other M.D. would approve the harm this complex you recommended—they insisted on giving the "shots" which they said are effective where vitamins taken by the mouth are useless. . . but when my savings were exhausted I had to fall back on taking B complex by mouth. . . Today I am a different person. (Mrs. E. G.)

Answer—Your mouth is the natural way to take vitamins. Lucky for you that the "shot" merchants lost interest in your case when your funds were exhausted. The secret of giving things by injection which may be given by the mouth with equal benefit is a disgrace to the profession. Many brass "specialists" pay the overhead and net a good profit in addition, from this racket—which their office girls carry on also for them, thanks to the credulity of the Yankee Wisecrack public.

Mackenzie's Column: Temptation to Make War Great In Soviet Union

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Dr. Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the West German government, declared that "the temptation to make war is greater for Russia than is generally believed."

The chancellor maintains that peace can be obtained "only if the Western Powers are convinced of the futility of conquering Europe." Therefore he feels the "time has come to act' in order to demonstrate the futility of preparedness.

One would find it hard to quarrel with the Chancellor's assay of the situation. Russia has been building up her military strength in eastern Europe. She has consolidated her German zone of occupation, in which she not only maintains a great standing army but is creating a German military force.

Meantime Western Europe, despite stepped-up preparations for defence, isn't ready for a major war. And Adenauer points out that if Western Europe were occupied by Russian armies Western powers could contribute to the rebirth of a western democracy — which he regards as vital.

If that is a correct estimate of the situation, then it is safe to assume that Russia must at least have given academic consideration to the general proposition. The idea of course would be to strike before the Western Powers were fully set for action.

However, Moscow certainly would find armed arguments against any such move.

Perhaps the greatest deterrent would be that Russia isn't yet prepared to compete with the United States in atomic warfare. Moreover, the conflict between communism and democracy in Asia is still in its beginnings. One revolution in which Moscow is undertake a two-front shooting war at this juncture.

Then there is the possession of all Germany, the story might be different. That would give Moscow the key position in continental Europe.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE SIMPLE BUT DRAMATIC

Gen. George C. Marshall, in a recent address, described his constant striving, in his early career as a teacher of soldiers, to get the simple yet dramatic way of presenting his lesson. His success in that effort is a matter of record. He realized that clear understanding and simple language go together.

Again, not the least of Jesus' effectiveness as a teacher lies in the simplicity and vividness of His examples and parables. Socrates was clear, and full of wit, and so we hold him great.

Moral truths can always be dramatized so that even the unlettered will get the point. Witness the Ten Commandments or the Sermon on the Mount. Few of us can plead ignorance if we run afoul of the moral law. On the other hand, scientific, economic, or political affairs more often than not need a specialist's education for their comprehension. In matters scientific it may be impossible to simplify or dramatize. This is all that the layman, in which class most of us belong, may well plead. Specific to their eternal truths which make character better unless into matters of jet propulsion, super-sonic speed, or the like.

THE TROUBLE STICK

-Reader asks whether a mother who keeps a regular check on her children's health is a hypochondriac. The answer is, Dear Reader, she would be if she was and advised her to stop looking for trouble that way. She takes the children's temperature whenever they seem out of sorts, have digestive upsets or are exposed to cold or dampness, because she knows how important it is to put a child to bed the moment he or she shows any rise of temperature. The family doctor also tells the mother it is foolish to have by 11-year-old daughter's lungs examined every three months because a grandparent had

CRITICS

I am of the opinion that a critic has his place in the world, but I dislike the word. I prefer the word Commentator. The professional critic somehow has it in his power to make a book, Shaw, in characteristic fashion, explains, "impossible and destructively simple and sensible!" So it was that when Edward Garnett, he bought eight others and told Davis to send them to critics—"wonderful if they would consume a post when they met one!"

In the days it has often been said that a critic could make or break a play, when produced. It was sometimes true, but it was just noticed, however, that there was no play that ever bore to shreds, that ran for more than three years, and which now is remembered by anyone for a return engagement! You guessed it—"Abie's Irish Rose!"

Edward Garnett, Joseph Conrad, and others admired and praised him, as well as giving him courage to go on with the creative process. One day the poet sent a copy of his poems to George Bernard Shaw with a letter asking him to send him half a crown for it, or return the book. Shaw, in characteristic fashion, expressed his opinion destructively-simple and sensible!" So it

Head-on Collision Heard for Blocks

Trenton, (Special)—A head-on collision occurred early this morning at the Dufferin Avenue and Dundas Street West intersection. The crash could be heard blocks away.

A car owned and operated by Dunham Foster, Bloomfield, was proceeding east on Dundas Street West when it is reported, he swung out to pass a van which was stopped for the traffic signal and in doing so struck a transport which was facing west on Dundas waiting for the traffic light to turn green.

Harry James Friend, 66, Montreal Road, Eastview, was the driver of the van and he stated that the light was just changing at the time of the accident.

Paul Foster, 25, of 47 Front St., South, Belleville, who was asleep in the rear of the car, received injuris about the face. He was attended by Dr. J. V. Byrne.

The entire front end of the car was smashed, the damage amounting to approximately $400. The transport's front fender, bumper and headlight were damaged to the extent of $50.

New Police Cruiser

A new sedan completely equipped with two-way radio and other law enforcement gadgets has replaced the old cruiser in service for several years. Door handles in the rear seat of the new patrol car will be removed as a protection against offenders who might turn rambunctious and spring the latch en route to the station following apprehension.

Special Speaker

Over $60 Donated

Mayor Kenneth Couch announced today that over $60 was realized from the special Sunday evening variety concert held in the St. Peter's auditorium Sunday night.

The entire proceeds were presented to the hospital board as a donation to help swell the Trenton Memorial Hospital Fund.

Funeral Service Thursday

The funeral service for the late Mr. James A. Kerr, who died suddenly, Monday morning, will be held Thursday morning from his residence at 98 Gilbert Hotel. Mr. Kerr was in his 68th year.

Contest Popular

The jumbled sentence contest sponsored by the Century Theatre last week, received numerous replies. The first ten correct answers received two free passes to the theatre to see "13 O'Clock High", which was playing at the Century Theatre all last week.

The winners of the contest were: Mildred MacDonald, Sheila Shier, Jack Lebrash, Barbara Ward, Donna Boulter, Penis Lewis, William Garrien, Mrs. Howard Kinnear, Mrs. Fred Peister, and Mrs. C. H. Solmes.

The manager of the theatre, Mr. Gallagher said that he was very pleased with the hearty response he received.

Johnson Takes Another Blast At Rossellini

Washington, March 28 — (AP) — Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.-Colo) says that narcotics are being smuggled into Hollywood from Communist China.

Johnson, chairman of the Senate Commerce committee, made his statement on the Senate floor Monday in the course of a bitter attack he launched against the movie capital's distribution of the film "Stromboli."

Lashing out at RKO studios for backing Roberto Rossellini, Italian director of the film and father of the actress Ingrid Bergman's son, Johnson said:

"He (Rossellini) has been for many years and is now a notorious cocaine addict. He associates habitually with an international gang of narcotics smugglers and dope runners. This criminal gang is credited with being the pipeline through which the supply of narcotics is smuggled into Hollywood from communist sources in China."

Johnson said he made the statements because "I want the American public to understand clearly what type of individuals are making pictures for them."

He added that he would have more to say about Hollywood and narcotics at a later date. It is, he said, "one of the most revolting and at the same time heartbreaking stories of all times."

Besides the drug addiction allegation, Johnson accused Rossellini of black marketeering and wartime collaboration with the nazis.

Miss Bergman, star of "Stromboli," recently gave birth to a son by Rossellini, although married at the time to Dr. Peter Lindstrom, Los Angeles physician. She now is seeking custody of their daughter, Pia.

In Rome, Rossellini said today he would make no reply to Johnson's charges until he had seen the official record of the Senator's speech.

Lightning Splits In Two Desk Woman is Using

Chittenago, N.Y., March 28 — (AP) — Mrs. Fred Olmstead said that lightning struck her desk Sunday and split nearly in two a desk at which she was writing a letter.

She said the lightning also did this:

Ripped a lampshade, popped a bulb out of a light socket without breaking it, splashed ink on the floor and burned a hole in the rug.

Broke three large panes in a window but left intact outside storm windows, knocked open drawers in a sewing machine, shot into the kitchen and burned out a light switch.

Ripped through the side of the house to the barn 200 feet away and temporarily knocked unconscious 20 cows.

Mrs. Olmstead said she was not injured but added that a ringing in her ears left her "feeling like I'd been up in an airplane."

'One-Armed Bandit' Routs Five Bandits With Tear Gas

Crown Point, Ind., March 28 — (AP) — A one-armed bandit routed five two-armed bandits today.

Police said five men, three of them armed, entered a country club near here and started to move one of two slot machines.

They retreated, weeping, in a cloud of tear gas. The slot machine had an electrically-wired bomb which was set off when the men tried to move it.

Police said the men fled in a car.

Bobby Pin Causes No Discomfort

Stratford, March 28. (CP)—Fear that a large bobby pin swallowed four days ago by three-year-old Belinda — McManus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McManus of Stratford, would not be cleared through her intestinal tract ended today when the pin was eliminated through normal channels.

X-rays taken Saturday show the pin was lodged in the girl's stomach.

While her parents worried about it, little Belinda went around completely unconcerned over the whole thing. Apparently the pin caused the youngster no discomfort.

Predicts Single-Family Dwelling Will Become Rarity in Canada

Ottawa, March 28—(CP)— A leading Canadian architect predicts that architecture will expand in the next half century on the theory of "room for living rather than for exhibition."

A. J. Hazelgrove, president of the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada, sees in the next 50 years a transition of the trend toward design for internal comfort with external appearance except function rather than style.

Canada would not develop a distinctive architectural style, in a world that is growing small, he architecture would develop on a universal basis.

The single-family dwelling will become a rarity in Canada, being replaced by multiple-family units as dictated by the needs of increased population.

Reflects Modern Trends

Mr. Hazelgrove said in an interview:

"Architecture has always been a visual expression of the lives of the people. Chaotic, varied conditions have until recently produced a chaotic and varied type of architecture.

"The development of modern architecture, which has followed practically parallel lines throughout the world, is a reflection of modern trends in life and government, whereby people are gradually becoming accustomed to regulation of their lives by authority.

"Coupled with this is the economic angle. High costs together with decline or craftsmanship will result in the elimination of many decorative forms which characterized traditional architectural style."

Depletion of natural resources would have a profound effect on architecture and building of the future.

For one thing, depletion of forests would mean the need of a substitute for wood in light construction. The general modern trend was toward lighter materials—thus lower costs—while retaining the necessary strength and endurance.

Plastics probably will play an important part in building construction — supplying a possible solution to the problem of developing light-weight, low-cost materials.

Reduction of coat and oil resources would eventually influence building design from the standpoint of heating. Scientific research might develop some means of storing excess summer heat for winter use.

"Town planning, apart from new developments, is likely to be in the nature of correcting existing faults and there is ample scope for stack on that basis," says Mr. Hazelgrove. "Restoration of depreciated properties should not be allowed to go ahead on a piecemeal basis."

The notion that buildings should be built to stand for all time and should be used until they are ready to fall down would probably be discarded.

Would Set Time Limit

"There should be a definite period set as the life of all types of buildings so that succeeding generations will not be saddled with outmoded architectural design," Mr. Hazelgrove suggests.

Mr. Hazelgrove draws on the past as reason to relieve that architecture will gradually lose its national identity, taking on a universal style.

He noted that all traditional styles were developed in relatively small areas when one country knew little of what was happening beyond its immediate sphere.

Greater international interchange of information would result in the adoption of universal architectural styles.

Close 'Dollar Gap' at High Level Of Trade View of Spokesman

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

So much is said about closing the "dollar gap" that sometimes it may be overlooked that closing it would be a poor success indeed if it is not closed at a high level.

The "dollar gap," of course, is the difference between what Britain and other countries buy from North America and what they sell her.

If they sold here as much as they bought, there wouldn't be any "dollar gap." Britain, for instance, could conceivably quickly close the gap by just saying she won't buy here a nickel's worth more than she sells.

That would get all of us in a fine mess; get North America into the because of the loss of present sales; and get Britain into one because she would be hard put to operate without the things she gets from this side of the water.

It is, in part, to prevent such things that there is a European recovery program; though even with it Britain employs the method to some extent by cutting down on many purchases, as Canadian exporters have learned.

A number of United States spokesmen have had considerable to say recently about ensuring that the gap is closed at a high level of trade.

State undersecretary Webb told a dollar-gap-closing meeting, cosponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers and the Export Club of New York that closing of the gap at a high level means among other things that tariff rates must be cut further.

Curtis E. Calder, chairman of Electric Bond and Share, told the same meeting: "The United States must increase its imports of foreign goods and services or face a substantial decline in exports."

Philip D. Reed, chairman of General Electric Company, New York, and director of the International Chamber of Commerce, says United States customs regulations must be simplified, tariff inequities righted, and that the United States must be prepared to accept imports on the basis of fair competition, in accordance with her responsibilities as a great creditor nation.

There are, of course, lots of contrary views to these in the traditionally protectionist United States, and ground will be given slowly, but the comments of spokesmen for freer trade are at least encouraging.

ARTS AND CRAFTS CLUB

The Belleville Arts and Crafts Club met on Saturday afternoon in the studio of Mrs. George Faulkner where Andre Bieler, resident artist at Queens University criticized work done by the painting section of the club. Work was exhibited by Gladys Simpson, Margaret Robbins, Ina Drew, Phillipps Faulkner, Leona Riggs, Mary Moult, Helen Keeler, Carmen Sandwell, Mrs. J. Campbell and Mrs. J. G. Hornsby. Following the criticism the group was entertained by Mrs. Faulkner assisted by Mrs. H. S. Robbins and Mrs. C. Murdoch.

On the previous evening Mrs. J. W. Imlah entertained in honor of Mr. Bieler at her home on Campbell Street. Her guests were the Arts and Crafts Club and the immediate executive of the Women's Canadian Club.

Women's Institute

PINE GROVE W.I.

The Pine Grove Women's Institute met for their March meeting at Mrs. C. Ross' home with the president, Mrs. F. Finkle presiding.

Numerous helpful hints on sewing were given in answer to the roll call.

The co-operative program in Home Economics was discussed and topics chosen were "Cultural Activities in Home and Community", "Brighten Your Home With Color", and "Foods that Healthy Children Like".

A letter of thanks for nighties and diapers made by the Pine Grove ladies for the Children's Aid Society was read.

It was decided to supply the serving of meals at Charles Saint's sales barn.

Plans were made for a supper to be held in Mech Hall School on April 13th.

Current Events prepared by Mrs. W. Rodgers were read by Mrs. L. Finkle.

Mrs. F. Clare, who was unavoidably absent, sent an interesting display of handiwork crepe paper flowers with instructions for making the various kinds.

Mrs. David Hollinger was guest speaker, and took the members with her on an 11-day trip to Florida. She illustrated her talk with many postcards, snapshots and souvenirs.

After the meeting closed the hostess and lunch committee served delicious refreshments.

Mr., Mrs. J. Blackburn Entertain Gift Shop Staff and Friends

An exceedingly enjoyable time was spent last evening when the staff of Strouds Gift Shop, and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. "Joe" Blackburn, 272 Charles Street, for a social get-together.

The evening was spent in games, music and discussion on interesting topics, followed by a descriptive talk and scenes of some of their many holiday trips to distant parts, by Mrs. Blackburn, which was later enhanced by a delightful piano selection given by Mr. Blackburn's mother-in-law, Mrs. A. Blackburn.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, and her assistants, the Misses Eleanor and Joyce Blackburn.

Concert Group Lays Plans for Next Season

Last evening the executive committees of the Belleville Community Concert Association held their annual banquet in the Sunday School rooms of Holloway Street United Church. President John Deacon introduced many new members who were present before Mrs. Dorothy Bradley, the campaign chairman, gave a resume of the activities of the Association during the past season, and mentioned the highlights of the present campaign under way for the coming 1950-51 series of concerts.

The guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Robertson, representing Columbia Community Concerts of New York, outlined the rapid growth of these community concerts throughout the U.S.A. and Canada during the past few years, showing that more and more people are becoming interested in hearing the great artists that are available to the smaller cities and towns through the outlets provided by this organization that has grown so much in size and scope since its inception a few years ago.

Following his most interesting talk, which also contained a few humorous anecdotes about famous concert artists, those present were treated to the showing of a film put out by the Columbia Community Concert Association that focused the camera for a few minutes on four or five of today's outstanding singers, instrumentalists and ensembles.

RAWDON

Miss Doris Pollock Gives Delightful Talk On Texas Trip

Rawdon.—On Tuesday evening last the postponed meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon "Two-by-Two Club's" was held at the church hall with a large attendance. The club also entertained the members of Mount Pleasant Young People's Union.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell presided over the business period and all joined in singing.

Miss Doris Pollock, teacher at the Union School, gave a splendid description of her bus trip last summer, via Vancouver to Texas. She travelled her 8,000 mile motor trip on the map and told many interesting incidents.

Miss Pollock also gave a graphic picture of the recent Junior Farmers' bus trip to Ottawa, where the group visited the parliament buildings, and the royal mint.

Mrs. Clarence Scott conducted a contest while games were in charge of Mrs. Milford Wrightman and Mr. Norman McConnell.

Refreshments were served and the Friendship Circle closed the meeting.

The ribbons suspended from the medallions are shining baguettes topped by tiny rhinestones.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

The history of chicken raising shows that progress sometimes means plenty.

In the 9th century A.D. hens were used in place of money as medium of exchange. A skilled Italian artisan then earned 1 chicken for 2 days' work. An unskilled worker toiled 3 days to earn a chicken. Hard boiled eggs served as travelers' checks for those people who didn't want to rely on paper money.

Today there is one big poultry farm which needs but a single man to care for 30,000 birds. Automatic feeders, automatic waterers and automatic heating systems make it possible for this one worker to turn out 400,000 pounds of poultry a year.

Chicken chow mein, created in America by Chinese cooks, is Chinese to the extent that it is economical, imaginative and does not seem to become tiresome.

This is the one specialty of Chinese restaurants which you can make from easy-to-get staple food items. You'll need soy sauce which is available at grocers everywhere. The Chinese cabbage may be omitted, if it is unavailable, without detracting too much from the dish.

Chicken Chow Mein. Serves 4-6.

Order one 1-3 pound frying chicken or one 4 pound fowl, cleaned and drawn. Wash. Singe. Place in boiling water to which 2 teaspoons salt, 2 onions and 1 stalk of celery have been added. Simmer until tender. The frying chicken will take approximately 1 1-2 hours. The fowl will take from 2 to 3 hours. Remove from pot. Cool chicken.

Cut 2 cups onions, 1 cup celery and 1 cup Chinese celery cabbage into thin diagonal slices.

Melt 3 tablespoons fat in a large heavy frying pan fitted with lid or saucepan. When fat is hot but not smoking, add vegetables. Stir in pan 5 minutes. Add 1 cup of liquid in which chicken was boiled. If chicken broth is not strong in flavor, add 1 chicken bouillon cube. Bring to a boil. Reduce flame so that liquid simmers. Cover with tight lid. Simmer and Mary 5 to 10 minutes or until vegetables are semi-tender.

Add dark meat of the chicken cut into thin match-like strips.

Mix 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1 teaspoon sugar and 1-4 cup cold water until mixture is free of lumps. Add slowly to pan, stirring constantly. Cook 3 minutes more.

Add 1 teaspoon salt or more to taste, 1-8 teaspoon celery salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Place mixture on serving plates. Heat breast of chicken in chicken broth and cut into thin strips. Sprinkle on top chow mein. Serve with flaky white rice and prepared fried noodels heated slightly in oven.

EMPEY HILL

Empey Hill—It was with deep regret that residents of this community learned of the passing of a friend and former neighbor, Mrs. O. E. Ashley, in the Belleville General Hospital. Mrs. Ashley had lived here all her life with the exception of the past nine years; and was active in all church and community activities. A large number of friends attended the funeral service on Friday afternoon at the Belleville Burial Company.

Miss Jean Tucker of Belleville, spent last week at her home here, because of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Blake Denison, Selby.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mowers of Belleville, who have recently returned from a motor trip to California, were callers at the Barnes and Mowers home on Sunday.

Mrs. Robert Tucker and Mrs. Gary Pronger, sister, Miss Grace Young, Napanee, over the week-end.

The March meeting of the Kingsford Women's Guild was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Robert Harvey.

Mrs. Bert Thompson spent a few days recently with Mr. and Mrs. C. Abbott.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Winter and Bert, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hunter and Mrs. Ida Hunter on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Dorland Jackson, Selby.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Chadwick entertained Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hunter and Mary Sunday evening supper on Monday evening; it being the latter's third birthday.

Club Activities

CARMEL COMRADES CLUB

Carmel.—The regular meeting of the Carmel Comrades was held Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Dafoe. The meeting was under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Sullivan and their group.

The meeting opened with a devotional period under the theme "Easter and the Victorious Life".

The president Clarence Chambers, took charge of a short business period and the remainder of the evening took the form of a progressive crokinole party. Prize winners were: ladies' Mrs. Clarence Barlow, and Mrs. S. Geen; men, Clare Horton and Garry Chambers.

Refreshments were served by the group in charge.

A vote of thanks was given Gladys and Carmen for opening their home.

Quite recently the Comrades Club sponsored a play "A Pair of Country Folks" presented by the Scotch Young People's Society, in the church and was well received by a large audience.

The entertainers were welcomed by Mrs. Clarence Chambers, and were served refreshments by the Club at the conclusion of the play.

Women's Activities

TRINITY WOMEN'S ASSOC.

MIDOC.—Trinity United Women's Association held their social and business meeting at the home of Mrs. S. S. Ashley with 27 ladies present. Mrs. Poulter took charge of the devotional part of the meeting using Easter hymns, lesson and prayer.

The president, Mrs. Tanner took charge of the business. Several important items were discussed; plans were made for a "Home Cooking" sale in the very near future. A donation to the "March of Dimes" was given; and a pot luck supper and quilting to be held in the church parlors, was also planned.

Miss Alma Keene and Mrs. Poulter sang a duet "In a Garden".

Mrs. Hulin gave a short talk on a few interesting entertainments. She had attended while on her trip in Florida, including the beautiful flower gardens visited and several other scenic places of interest also the visit to the church services.

Mrs. Poulter gave a talk on Easter hymns. Having the members sing and then Mrs. Poulter would narrate the history of the hymns and their authors. Mrs. Jack Smith and Mrs. Hulin sang "The Stranger of Galilee".

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Two girls in love with the same boy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was going steady with a boy, but we broke up because of family problems. We began playing out with a girl who is younger than I am.

He still loves me, however, and wants me back, and after a talk with my mother she said I could continue to see him. But this girl has become friendly with me and she is in love with him also. He can't tell her that he loves me, because she is a sweet girl and we are both fond of her. Please tell us what to do.

Joan and Eddie

Dear Joan and Eddie:

I am glad that you are the kind of young people who don't want to hurt others, and I hope that you will, always be as considerate and as thoughtful as you are now.

It is too bad that such a situation should have come about, but I think the only thing to be done now is for Eddie to be courageous enough, and honest enough, to explain to the girl just what happened. If you are both so fond of her, perhaps Eddie has a friend who could take the other girl out and all four of you have dates together.

Why don't you try this and see what happens? And any event, I think it is up to Eddie to handle it. It is never a good thing to mislead a third person.

Companionship for the middle-aged

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a very attractive mother of 45, who is a widow. Now that my brother and I are married, it leaves my mother all alone.

She would like to have friends, single like herself, with whom she could spend evenings either in each other's home or go out occasionally. Unfortunately, she doesn't know where a woman her age might go to meet men and women who are also alone.

There must be many like her who would like to make friends and go out with them, but who don't know where to start, either. I have heard of the 45 Club, but I don't know of one in this vicinity.

B. S.

Dear B.S.:

Perhaps the 45 Club to which you refer is one you have read about in this column of mine. This particular group is near New York City, and the reason I have written about it from time to time is with the hope that people in other communities might be inspired to form similar organizations in their own towns. Don't you think perhaps your mother might like to do that?

It takes a lot of hard work, and a great deal of initiative to get such a thing going, but the woman who was responsible for starting the 45 Club assures me that the results have been well worth all the time and energy she had to put into it.

Otherwise, I would advise your mother to make a list of all the various organizations that exist in her community, whether connected with churches, YWCA's, community welfare work or whatever. Surely among them she can find something that would interest her, and through which she can make new friends.

Almost every town, however small, has various clubs and groups of different kinds, and if there isn't one that just fits someone's desires, he or she can always start one.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Fashions in faces.

It would seem as if women can change their faces and figures as they change their clothes. They do that in their life-long struggle for beauty. It is a merry game and it is good for the circulatory system. You know what a brand new hair-do will do for your soul as well as your face. It makes you feel younger, gayer. You are keeping in step with the parade. In every family there is a box of old snapshots that are lugged out now and then as everybody can have a big laugh. Look at the frocks that were worn twenty years ago. As curvelest as a pillow case. Look at the faces of the wearers. Mama, twenty years ago, looked every bit as old as she looks now. Isn't it the truth? If you come across an old photograph of Gloria Swanson you'll see what the change in coiffures and make-up has done for her. She doesn't look a day older.

The Gibson girl was as fair as a lily, carried a parasol, veiled her sacred complexion from the sun. Freckles were a disgrace. Now we are sun worshippers. What are a few freckles between friends?

When the lipstick first became an institution, the pretty dollies were drawing the outlines of a Cupid's bow, trying to look like the Gish sisters. Then several movie and stage stars— Joan Crawford among them—laid on the ruby glow with a generous hand and mouths took on a square pattern. Now the lips are streamlined, sleek, follow the natural design. Those changes alone would remodel the face of any woman.

Recall what happened to eyebrows. They were teased and tweezed and feathered; sometimes they were shaved off to the last poor little fuzzer, a copy of a wierd eyebrow being laid on with the crayon. Now the ladies are gilded like twenties with their bitter tears and the while—have you been keeping their minds on the matter of growing eyebrows. They want 'em back again—for twenty minute's sake.

Women will do almost anything to acquire the figure of the moment. When the boyish shape was the whim, they bound their breasts with skin-tight brassieres. Now what are they doing? It is fashionable to be busty. They are massaging, doing deep breathing exercises, swinging their arms. And if that doesn't work, they resort to falsies.

Even the dummies in shop windows are different. Once they were healthy, red-cheeked wax ladies. Now look at 'em. Gaunt of countenance, they look like famine victims.

In every family there is a box of snapshots.

WIDE APPLICATION

Britain's Factories Act applies to nearly 25,000 industrial premises employing more than 7,000,000 people.

Rainbow 'Round Your Neck

By PRUNELLA WOOD

A CHANGE from pearl or gold—on chockers is this six-strand necklace of crystal beads which throw off the beautiful hues of the rainbow which have been infused during the process of manufacturing the crystal.

The clasp has a quilting pattern of mock cabochan gems, set between twisted bands of gold washed metal. There are earrings and a dinner ring to match the clasp, and which, of course, may be worn as separate ornaments without the pretty choker. Not expensive ornaments, moreover.

Club Activities

"KUM DOUBLE" GROUP

Halloway "Kum Double" group met at the home of Mr and Mrs. Embury Hough on Thursday evening last, with a fair attendance. The meeting was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roth.

A sing-song of favorite hymns was enjoyed. The service was based on "Fellowship". A poem entitled "A House by the Side of the Road" was read by Mrs. Roth, and the scripture lesson by Mrs. Ed. Emerson and Mr. Ralph Smith. Mrs. Embury Hough gave a reading entitled "We, Thank Thee Lord".

Business was turned over to Ed. Emerson, the president.

The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted as read, and roll call answered by quotations.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith extended an invitation for the group to have a pot luck supper at their home next month, with supper being served at seven o'clock. Ann Emerson gathered the collection amounting to $2.25.

Gordon and Ruth Roth staged a Bible baseball game, followed by refreshments served by the hostess. A social time was enjoyed by all.

GOOD MANNERS

Son's Plans for Party for Parents' Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to give a surprise buffet supper and dance for my parents on their wedding anniversary the latter part of April. (1) Would this be a proper thing for me to do, having such an informal supper followed by a dance? Or if you think this plan is too informal for this kind of occasion, will you please suggest an alternative? I'd like to have the party in a local restaurant which can accommodate many guests. (2) Also, since I would like to invite many guests, would it be correct to send out printed invitations? I do not wish to have my name on the invitations. But I do think an R.s.v.p. is necessary . . . don't you? (3) What sort of decorations would you suggest for this occasion?

Robert M.

(1) Good for you, sir! A wonderful, fun-making plan, this informal supper-party to be followed by a dance. And I'm sure that your parents will prefer to have this informa.. party for many relatives and friends rather than a small formal party for only a few relatives and friends. And evidently they love to dance . . . and that's festive, too, for this occasion.

(2) Since the party is to be a surprise, I suggest that, to guard the secret, you don't send invitations, but instead, go to see or telephone to the guests, giving the party-plan, the details, and ask "Don't tell, please!" This gets around your wish not to have your name appear on invitations. And also this direct-inviting means that you will at once know who can come and who can't, and thus make your restaurant-reservations simpler, easier. If you wish . . . and it's a very wise idea . . . send a little note of reminder, three or four days before the party-date:

Reminder . . . Informal party . . . supper and dance . . . to celebrate the Wedding Anniversary of Dorothy and George Carter. Friday, April 28th at — o'clock. Centre Restaurant. It's a surprise. . . don't tell, please!

(This is not a usual Reminder form, but I worded it so that your name would not appear, as you prefer.)

(3) I suggest that as the centre-piece of each table you use, if possible, some color or item that would suggest the anniversary . . . silvered flowers or leaves, for example, for the twenty-fifth. Or have a bowl of radiant Spring flowers on each table, perhaps flanked with lighted white candles in low candlesticks. And have a wedding anniversary cake, for the guests of honor to cut and have it placed before your mothers and father, to be cut with much ceremony by the Bride, the first piece to be shared with her "bridegroom". If your budget can't include both a wonderful anniversary cake and table-decorations, never mind the table decorations, and concentrate on having a memory-making cake!

On Wedding Announcements . . . Year, City, State

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. It is, we understand, correct to include the year on wedding announcements. Yes? 2. But when announcements of an elopement are sent out, and quite a time has elapsed between the marriage and the announcement of the marriage, is it absolutely necessary to give the name of the small town and the name of the state where the ceremony was performed?

Theresa M.

1. Yes. . . on formal marriage announcements the year must always be given.

2. Yes. . . on marriage announcements the town and state where the ceremony was performed must be given, even when the announcements are sending of elopement, and regardless of how much time has elapsed since the marriage.

IVANHOE Alliance Choristers Present Program In Beulah Church

Ivanhoe — Members of Beulah United Church Y.O.U. served a delicious supper in Ivanhoe town hall on Wednesday evening.

Following the supper, an interesting program was presented in Beulah United Church by Rev G. R. Gray, pastor of Alliance Tabernacle Church, Belleville, and his church choristers.

Rev. G. Steers, pastor of Beulah United Church welcomed the visitors and audience, and after the singing of Onward Christian Soldiers, followed by a prayer, the Rev. G. R. Gray conducted the following musical program:

Gospel choristers — "Glad Day"; quartet, "Just a Little While", Bob Brown, Rev. G. R. Gray, Gordon Brown and Russel Perkins; chorus, "Everyday with Jesus", ladies' duet, "Only Glory Bye and Bye," Mrs. Olive Kirkpatrick and Miss Fern Gerrie; solo, "I will Give You Rest" by Joan Shindell; quartet, "Blessed Be The Name of Jesus," piano solo, Mrs. Olive Kirkpatrick; necessary to give the name of the small town and the name of the state where the ceremony was performed"Just a Little While"; duet, "Only Glory Bye and Bye," Mrs. Olive Kirkpatrick and Miss Fern Gerrie; solo, "I will Give You Rest" by Joan Shindell; quartet, "Blessed Be The Name of Jesus," piano solo, Mrs. Olive Kirkpatrick; quartet, "I know Somebody is Listening."

Mr. Gray delivered a stirring message from the text "Where there is no vision, the people perish" Proverbs 29-18. The speaker pointed out the handicaps of faulty vision, lack of association in movement, near sightedness, and far sightedness, differences of faces, and blindness, comparing natural and spiritual eyesight and stressing the cure for faulty spiritual sight was meditation on God's Word, setting up old-fashioned family altars, and close association with God, the Great Physician.

Mr. Steers expressed thanks and appreciation and Mr. A. Wood, on behalf of the Y.U., and church, expressed gratitude to Mr. Gray and the choristers for the program presented.

Proceeds amounted to $54.

Mrs. A. Chumbley Entertains Wellman's Women's Institute

Rawdon. — Mrs. A. Chumbley entertained Wellman's Women's Institute at her home for their recent meeting. The motto was based on "The many good things one misses when they are absent from a meeting". For roll call the members displayed their handiwork of the winter months. Braided rugs were shown.

Mrs. Jack Dunham gave a worthwhile topic on "Canadian Women" of importance.

Mrs. Lorne Watson conducted a discussion and readings were given by Miss Delia Johnston and Miss Leona Hinds. Mrs. Clifford Clancy conducted a St. Patrick's contest.

HOUSE ADOPTS

He said also that members of voluntary conservation organizations should not be allowed to become "the victims of frustration" because of delay in action by the government. He mentioned pollution, and said he was convinced that manufacturing and processing plants are not using adequate methods to reduce pollution.

"Many of our larger and most prosperous urban communities are dumping raw sewage into our lakes and streams," he asserted. The Canada Water Commission was mentioned and he was not satisfied that everything on the commission is greatly interested in conservation.

Should Study Costs

Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver (Grey South) said the report would focus attention of the public on the great need that exists "for practising conservation."

He thought that federal and provincial governments should share the cost of reforesting the 2,000 square miles of the pre-Cambrian shield, building flood-control dams and controlling lake-shore erosion.

Mr. Oliver said the committee had decided that "the time was not ripe" to raise the Ontario Agricultural College to the status of a university. Since the college was dependent almost entirely on the Ontario government for funds it should not be administered by an independent board, he added. The committee recommended that a board of regents be appointed in an advisory capacity.

The committee had also recommended that conservation be under the direction of a chief conservation officer with the rank of deputy minister in the premier's department. The department of planning and development which was supposed to deal with conservation was little more than a "snap-drawing department," he said.

O. F. Villeneuve (PC-Glengarry) said present drainage referees are not qualified to advise municipalities on all aspects of conservation. He also said that there should be co-operation to end spreading of weed seeds from lakehead grain elevators.

Helicopters Most Effective

The question of the pre-Cambrian Shield area was brought up by C. E. Janes (PC—Lambton East) who said farmers in that area were living in what might be called "starvation conditions". If it were reforested the land could be put to good use, and the farmers at the same time could be employed in bush work.

Another speaker in the night sitting was J. M. Newman (L—Leeds—Rainy River) who said land in his northwestern Ontario constituency is as arable as any in southern Ontario. Even dairy and beef cattle could be raised there.

C. W. Cox (L—Fort William) said that fires caused the greatest loss of forest resources and he believed helicopters were the most effective weapon.

LEGISLATION

The C.C.F. amendment to the prices support legislation called for use of federal funds to guarantee that farm prices would not fall below the price-cost relationship of 1944-1948, which it would set up as a base period.

Claims Markets Damaged

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) proposed this amendment, declaring that government policies have seriously damaged Canada's market in Britain. The United States offered no long-term market prospects for farm goods.

Mr. Wright entered the debate to say that the C.C.F. amendment had been moved because Agriculture Minister Gardiner had said the government would use the 1943-45 period to determine relationships between farm prices and costs but that this did not necessarily mean the government would be prepared to maintain that level.

The minister retorted that exact relationship was not maintained in any other country.

Indications of some Progressive Conservative and Social Credit support for the government bill in the forthcoming vote developed during the session.

H. G. White (PC—Middlesex) and John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) said that, while the measure did not meet them completely, they would support it on the ground that it went part of the way.

Wage-Freeze Must Stay, Cripps Will Tell Unions

London, March 27 — (Reuters) — Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will warn trade union leaders tonight that the government's wage-freeze must stay — though 5,000,000 industrial workers are resisting it.

The Chancellor is expected to face blunt talk from trade union Congress economic committee members whom he is meeting for pre-budget talks.

The T. U. C. is loyal to the government's wage-stabilization policy, but is worried about pay demands which threaten the engineering and shipbuilding unions are heading the wage-demands of one kind or another by more than half of the 8,000,000 trade union following.

The engineers and shipbuilders will soon hold a ballot on whether to strike for a £1 ($3.10) a week wage increase or take their claim to arbitration.

Want Lower Prices

The T. U. C. leaders are expected to press on Sir Stafford to do what he can to bring down prices and curb profits of big business.

Meanwhile the claims of more than 500,000 workers for more pay will be discussed this week and next. Prominent is a demand by 300,000 workers in Whitehall official departments.

Leaders of the Civil Service Alliance will decide Wednesday whether to defy a treasury refusal to negotiate on civil service claims by backing the claim of the Whitehall workers.

Another claim is by the Shopworkers Union — 340,000 strong. They say they need £6 a week to meet the increased cost of living.

Trade union trouble, though not on wages, threatens the government in another quarter — London's great dockland.

There 300 of the 27,000 dockers decided Sunday to ban overtime from today until the appeal has been heard of three men expelled from the transport and general workers unions.

MOTHER SAVES CHILD

Peterborough, March 27 (CP) — Wading in water over her knees, Mrs. Harold Campbell saved her son Billi, 2, from drowning in a fast-flowing creek not far from their home.

The youngster crossed the road to play, accompanied by his sister, Carolyn, 3. Mrs. Campbell heard her daughter cry out that she had wet feet. By the time she dashed across the road, the boy was already drifting face down, four or five feet away. She finally managed to grasp his clothes and bring him to safety.

16,797 College Graduates Soon Seeking Jobs

Ottawa, March 28. (CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell is calling on newspaper editors of both daily and weekly papers to help find jobs for the record number of men and women—16,797—who will soon graduate from Canada's universities.

In a letter sent out to editors Saturday, the Minister said:

". . . A very large proportion of this year's graduating class is made up of war veterans, many with family responsibilities not always associated with the younger graduate. They deserve the same consideration from employers as was extended so well in the days immediately after VE-Day."

He said advertisements soon will be published in their newspapers "in connection with staff recruiting by employers." He sent along statistical breakdown of the numbers of graduates in the various lines of study not only for all Canada but by regions.

Values Publicity

"Anything you may see fit to publish will be of great service both to these worthy young people and the Department of Labor and National Employment Service, charged with this responsibility of placing them in employment."

The figures showed that there are expected to be 1,667 persons graduating in the Maritimes, 3,174 in Quebec, 6,644 in Ontario and 5,312 in the west.

As to faculties, arts and science will produce an estimated 5,561, commerce 1,080, and engineering and applied science 3,081.

Of particular interest to editors would be the graduation of 38 men and women in journalism.

$5,000,000 Cost For Road Repairs After Mild Winter

Toronto, March 27—(CP) — Last winter's light snowfall, combined with last-week's sudden spring, is costing provincial, county and municipal road departments something like $5,000,000 in repairs, highways department officials said today.

Deputy Highways Minister Miller said his department can't "strike an arbitrary figure to charge up against the mild weather, but we know that a substantial part of our annual $25,000,000 maintenance cost can be chalked up to frost and the thaw."

Half-load limits now are in effect on most of Ontario highways and county roads, and will continue at least until the end of April. By that time the frost is expected to be out of the roadbeds and they should be dry enough for patching and grading.

Maritimes Do Not Produce Enough Coal for C.N.R.

Ottawa, March 28. (CP)—Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, said that Maritime coal operators do not produce sufficient coal to meet C.N.R. requirements.

Appearing before the Commons' Railway committee during the committee's review of the C.N.R. annual report, Mr. Gordon said the railway would buy more coal from Maritime operators if it could get it. He estimated, however, that the C.N.R. Atlantic requirements would be about 1,000,000 tons more than the operators can supply this year.

In Western Canada, Alberta fields appeared to be producing sufficient coal than the C.N.R. can use.

Mr. Gordon told the committee that the company is modernizing its system as quickly as possible. He was not sure, however, that dieselization of its locomotives was the complete answer to the problems of reducing overhead and showing better operating revenues.

Some people were inclined to believe that dieselization was the "magic word" which could solve all C.N.R. problems, but there were other factors to be considered.

An area of heavy traffic density would be able to pay for such apparatus, but in thinly-spread areas, the cost of maintaining such equipment would be greater than the revenue obtained.

Straits of Canso Bridge to Open Some Time in '53

Ottawa, March 28 (CP)— The Strait of Canso Bridge in Nova Scotia is expected to be opened for traffic in late 1953 or early 1954, Transport Minister Lapierre Monday informed Percy Vien (PC-Cumberland) in the Commons.

The minister said it is expected tenders will be called in July of this year, with construction work on the main piers starting next spring.

Answering a series of questions Mr. Lapierre said he also gave this information:

1. The bridge itself will cost $10,636,198: rail and highway approaches another $3,015,920, and engineering expenses $624,647.

2. The Nova Scotia government will bear one-third the cost or $5,000,000, whichever is the lesser. The Federal government will pay the rest.

3. Estimated annual maintenance and toll will be $400,000, borne by the Canadian National Railways, the only rail line using the bridge.

INCOME AT PEAK

London, Ont., March 28 (CP) —Canada's national income may reach a new high this year, Resources Minister Robert H. Winters said Monday night.

"I think the economic level will continue high in 1950," he banquet of the London Young Liberal Association. "The national income should equal, and probably will exceed 1949's record total."

Newsweek looks at Life Insurance

Newsweek

RECENTLY members of Newsweek magazine's editorial staff interviewed Mr. Leroy A. Lincoln, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, on the subject of Life insurance.

The tremendous role that Life insurance plays in the national economy, and the interesting institutional material developed during the discussion, are so important that a motion picture has been made of this interview. This film will be given wide distribution in line with Metropolitan's "Open Book" policy.

Naturally, in reply to questions from the editors, Mr. Lincoln made many references to Metropolitan's achievements in 1949. In fact, the interview developed the information that is customarily included in the Annual Report to Policyholders.

Accordingly, a complete transcript has been printed as the Company's Report for 1949. Here are some of the highlights of that report:

—"Metropolitan . . . paid about $769,000,000 (to beneficiaries and policyholders last year) . . . and I might add further that . . . (this includes) $502,000,000 to living policyholders."

—"For our 33,000,000 policyholders in the United States and Canada, the total Life insurance in force in the Metropolitan at the end of last year was almost $42,000,000,000—an increase of 4 percent over the preceding year."

—"Metropolitan's assets totaled $9,700,000,000, an increase of about 6 percent over the figure for 1948."

—"Through the combined efforts of the many health organizations, the average expectation of life at birth has improved 18 years since 1900. At that time it was about 49 years—while right now it is about 67."

—"Expenses for the Life insurance companies have gone up the same as for everybody else. For example, in the Metropolitan last year they increased about 4 percent . . . insurance in force in Metropolitan has increased about 80 percent since 1939, whereas operating expenses have increased only 71 percent."

"In 1949, Metropolitan . . . paid $164,000,000 in dividends to policyholders—the largest such amount in the Company's history. Dividends payable to policyholders in 1950 will be somewhat larger in the aggregate than 1949."

—"Dividends would be substantially higher were it not for the low interest returns which have prevailed throughout the United States and Canada. For example, last year the net interest earned on Metropolitan assets was 3.07 percent, compared with 3.03 in 1948, and with 5.18 in 1929."

Metropolitan's Annual Report to Policyholders for 1949 will be sent to anyone on request. In addition, copies of the film may be borrowed for showing by local business, civic, or other groups in which Metropolitan policyholders are interested.

SOME FACTS ABOUT METROPOLITAN'S OPERATIONS IN CANADA

These highlights of the Company's business in Canada during 1949, our 77th year in this country, will be of particular interest to Metropolitan's Canadian policyholders and their beneficiaries.

Payments to Policyholders and Beneficiaries

Metropolitan paid in 1949 to its Canadian policyholders and their beneficiaries a $41,284,000 in death claims, matured endowments, dividends and other payments. Of this, 69% was paid to living policyholders.

The total amount the Metropolitan has paid to Canadians since it entered Canada in 1872, plus the amount now invested in Canada, exceeds the total premiums received from Canadians by more than $464,000,000.

Life Insurance In Force

In 1949, Canadians bought $208,278,971 of new Life insurance protection in the Metropolitan, bringing the total of the Company's Life insurance in force in Canada to $2,356,103,078 at the year-end. This amount is made up of 57% Ordinary, 29% Industrial and 14% Group.

Total Investments In Canada

Metropolitan's total investments in Canada amounted to $557,336,716 at the end of 1949. The Company's dollars are at work throughout the country . . . in practically every phase of production and distribution . . . helping to produce more goods and create more jobs for more people.

Health and Welfare Work

During 1949, a total of 212,458 nursing visits was made to those insured under Metropolitan Industrial, Intermediate, and Group policies in Canada; over 2 million pamphlets on health and safety were distributed, and the Company took part in 154 Canadian health campaigns.

Toronto Marlies Cop Second Straight Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Combining youth, speed and the stellar coaching of Joe Primeau, Toronto Marlboros last night copped their second straight Memorial Cup hockey championship, demolishing Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 13-0.

The tired Greyhounds, who went right into the all-Ontario series after a six game workout with North Bay Black Hawks for the N.O.H.A. crown, couldn't stand the pace and wilted under terrific -pressure. They lost the first game in Toronto 10-4.

For gentleman Joe, it lengthened his already long list of champions. In his long coaching career only once has a Primeau taught team failed to reach the playoffs.

At Timmins, Inkerman Rockets finally came up with a win against Porcupine Combines in their Ontario best-of-five semi-final round. Losers in the first two games at home, they came back last night and walloped the N.O.H.A. junior champions 5-3.

Recruits Lead Marlies

Two junior recruits led Marlboros to their impressive victory. Danny Lewicki and George Armstrong, standouts all season with the junior Duke division, each potted three goals. Lewicki adding the same number of assists.

It was evident after the first two minutes of play that they couldn't keep up to the perfect-by-comparison Marlies. At the end of the first frame the score read 5-0 and the visitors kept up the pace, suppling in four in the second and the same number in the final period.

Scotty Mair upheld the honor of the senior regulars with a two goal display while wins were notched by Johnny McLellan, Jack McKenzie, Flash Hollett, Frank Sullivan and Red Johnson.

Will Have Long Wait

The Ontario champions now have a long wait before their next series. Sydney Millionaires, the Maritime champions, will meet the winner of the Sherbrooke-Quebec, Q.S.H.L. final, the survivor to tackle Marlboros for the Eastern Canada crown.

Inkermen prolonged their junior series by one day. Larry Rombilli netted a goal with less than four minutes remaining in the game. Another by Willy Swords with only 15 seconds left clinched the verdict.

The teams each scored once in the opening frame but the Combines rapped in a single in the middle stanza to take a 2-1 lead. The final period was the thriller. Cliff Baldwin tallied the third Rocket score, Bob Pierce pinpoint came back with goals by Nedo Bragagnolo and Jerry Labelle to knot the score.

Johnny Mestan was the other Combine marksman, while MacDonald and Hunter clicked for the second freeme Inkermen goals.

The clubs continue their battle Wednesday night at Timmins.

Durnan Cops Vezina Trophy For Sixth Year

Montreal, March 28 (CP) — With the National Hockey League's first 70-game season officially closed, Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings captured the Art Ross Trophy for being top point getter and Montreal's goalie, Big Bill Durnan, copped the Vezina Cup for the sixth year.

Final league statistics released today show that Lindsay, a native of Renfrew, Ont., ended the season with 23 goals and a record setting 25 assists for 78 points, holding a comfortable nine-point lead over teammate Sid Abel.

The fiery left-winger's assists topped by one a league record of 56 in a regular 60-game schedule set by Montreal Canadiens' Elmer Lach in the 1944-45 season. He took over possession of the trophy from Roy Conacher of Chicago Black Hawks.

Abel, the Red Wings' team captain, led throughout the season in second spot with 34 goals and 35 assists for 69 points, only one more than Gordie Howe, who completes a Detroit sharp-shooting three-man line with 35 goals and 33 assists

Maurice (The Rocket) Richard of Montreal ended in fourth position with 65 points. His season's 43-goal total is seven short of an N.H.L. mark he chalked up in 1944-45.

Captured Coveted Trophy

Durnan has captured the coveted trophy every year since the 1943-44 season, except in 1946 when it went to goalie Turk Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs.

The cup is awarded annually to the goalkeeper who has played the most games for the team with the fewest goals scored against it. Durnan played 64 of the season's 70 games and allowed only 141 pucks past him for an average of 2.20 goals against each game.

Broda got the most goose-eggs last season with a total of nine, followed by Durnan with eight and Detroit's Harry Lumley with seven.

Most penalized team was Toronto with 834 minutes in the cooler while Montreal's 736 minutes placed the club in second spot. Bill Ezinicki of Toronto spent 144 minutes in the hoosegow this season, winning the dubious honor of most penalized player for the second consecutive year. A close second was Gus Kyle of New York with 142 while Lindsay came third with 141.

Primeau Looms As Successor To Buck Boucher

Boston, March 28 — (AP) — Joe Primeau, onetime star Toronto Maple Leaf centre, today loomed as possible successor to George (Buck) Boucher as coach of Boston's Bruins — provided the local National Hockey League club's offer is attractive enough.

Boucher's release, surprising few, became official Monday. The Bruins issued a statement, after Boucher said he was fired, that Buck had been signed for one year "with no further commitments."

Primeau was considered a top candidate for the post a year ago. However, reports were that Bruins couldn't, or wouldn't, meet his demands. Joe, presently coaching Toronto's Marlboros, a Maple Leaf amateur team, in the Allan Cup playoffs, has a successful brick and tile business.

Boucher, normally quiet and self-spoken, described his release as a "dirty deal."

He said he had been informed Friday night at the Bruins hotelled to Toronto for their final game there against the Leafs.

"It was a blow and made it a rough ride," Buck told hockey writers. "Art Ross told me I did a good job but when I asked him why I wasn't going to get another chance he merely told me the club had other plans."

Training Camp Briefs

Bucky ought to know. In 1924 and 1925, he won as "The Boy Manager" with Firpo Marberry as his fireman. In 1947, the New York Yankee clubhouse echoed with his taunt—"Here's to Joe Page."

Mickey, the former Boston Red Sox starter, is willing to try.

"Anything for the good of the club," said Mickey, "Bucky is a great guy. Anything he says is okay with me."

Vero Beach, Fla.—Second baseman Jackie Robinson is making Brooklyn Dodgers forget about that overweight he brought to camp for the training grind.

The Negro ace, by hitting two hits in Monday's 9-4 defeat by Philadelphia Athletics, made it five straight games in which he has registered at least two hits a game.

Clearwater, Fla.—Dick Whitman is making it tough for manager Eddie Sawyer to put the ex-Dodger on the Philadelphia Phillies payroll.

How can you bench a guy who is belting the ball at a .450 clip?

Whitman led the Phillies to a 13-8 victory over Washington Senators Monday with four hits in six trips to the plate.

In nine games this spring Whitman has collected 12 hits in 27 times at bat, including one home run.

Danny Lewicki Youngest Player On Eligible List

Montreal, March 28 — (CP) — Little Danny Lewicki is the youngest eligible player for the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs.

The league Monday night announced the list of eligible players for the annual spring classic and of the 113 players who may see action for the four playoff teams, Lewicki holds the edge of youth. The 147-pound, five-foot eight forward turned 19 only last March 12. He has been playing with Toronto Marlboro Juniors and is eligible for inclusion in the Toronto Maple Leafs' lineup.

Other 19-year-olds are Larry Wilson, who belongs to the Detroit Red Wings; George Armstrong a Leaf hopeful; Jack McLeod of New York Rangers. Montreal Canadiens have nary a teen-ager.

For the most part, the eligibles follow the pattern of the teams which played through the season. But each team has a number of farm club players who can step in and take over from injured or ineffectual regulars.

Detroit has among its eligible players forward Johnny Wilson, a native of Kincardine, Ont., who racked up 41 goals and 39 assists for Omaha Knights in the U.S.H.L.

St. Louis Browns A Lot Better Than Year Ago

By BOB MYERS

Burbank, Calif., March 28. (AP) —The St. Louis Browns appear to be a lot better shape this year than they did as they broke camp and headed east a year ago.

As it turned out, the 1949 club finished seventh, which is about one under par for the club. Zack Taylor's 1950 Brownies should do no worse than seventh this year and they might just possibly sneak by another American League entry.

St. Louis has played and performed better this spring despite the loss of such valuable articles as Infielders Bob Dillinger and Gerry Priddy. This may sound confusing, of course, because a team usually improves, even if the club exchequer does, with the sale of gentlemen like Dillinger and Priddy.

You have to see St. Louis and its host of youngsters to understand this paradox. The kids seem to want to play ball.

The Browns have refused to roll over and play dead to anyone on the circus circuit out here.

There are several regulars on the pitching staff who might have winning seasons, and Taylor has several excellent freshmen who bear watching, if not this year, then next.

Of the latter, by the way, are Cliff Fannin, Dick Starr, both of whom were physically hampered last year, Starr's Ned Garver, Tom Ferrick, Louis Kretlow, Stubby Overmire and Bob Kennedy. Lefty Kennedy could win 15 or 16 if he gains control. All have promise.

Taylor is set in the outfield with good, proven youngsters— Roy Sievers, Dick Kokos, Ken Wood — regulars, and several others coming up, including Ray Coleman, Don Lenhardt and Rocco Ippolito.

London Hears Alexander May Get Big Pact Post

Ottawa, March 28 — (CP) — Ottawa, always delighted to get a choice morsel of gossip, is interested in London reports that Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, the Governor-General, is going to get a big job in the Atlantic Pact organization.

General reaction to the reports appears to be that nobody would be terribly surprised if they eventually turn out to be true but nobody seems to know at this stage whether they are or not.

High level defence sources said today they have heard nothing but unsubstantiated speculation of a move for the man who gave up soldiering in 1946 to come here as the king's representative. He has proved an unusually popular one.

Reports from London Sunday night said Lord Alexander is mentioned as the pact's possible commander-in-chief. It is doubted here that anyone but an American would get such a post since the great source of pact power is to be the U.S.

But here would be other big jobs.

Lord Alexander now is in London and that alone may be the spur for the reports.

Baltic Refugees Defendants in Court Action

Ajax, March 28—(CP)— Nine Baltic refugees, at a dispersal camp near here, are defendants in an action brought last Saturday in Cork, Ireland, by four fellow-refugees to recover money for passage from Sweden to Canada. The group here at Ajax—15 miles west of Oshawa—said it pitched defendants six in a camp at St. Paul L'Ermite, Que.

The suit, against 69 persons—22 in Canada, 27 in Ireland and 20 still in Sweden—to recover passage for transportation in a vessel owned jointly by the 69. A former landing craft, bought in Sweden, it was impounded in Cork harbor after being declared unseaworthy.

Monday night the refugees here told of the escape from Estonia to a displace persons camp in Sweden. They said Swedish authorities would issue only one visa, to Canada, and that the Soviet periodically demanded that they be returned from Finland and Sweden.

The 69 pooled their savings and bought the vessel, named the Victory. They took approximately 200 passengers who paid their fares to America. But when they tried to sail from Cork for supplies the vessel was impounded and the refugees put in camps. Later, a few others were able to continue their trip and came to Canada to the Ajax and St. Paul L'Ermite camps.

Those left in Ireland engaged a Cork lawyer, John B. Cotterell, to recover their passage money.

Mr. Cotterell said the group said they still hope to fit the ship for the ocean voyage to bring out the other refugees or for commercial use. They said they hope to make a settlement with those still in Cork.

Prime Minister Loses Debate At Hart House

Toronto, March 28 —(CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent and Liberal supporters in the Hart House Debating Society lost out Monday night in a debate at the University of Toronto.

By a vote of 159 to 153, a resolution "that there is no effective national alternative to the Liberal party" was defeated.

However, the Prime Minister took the setback with good grace. He smiled and waved cheerfully as he left Hart House's great hall.

Mr. St. Laurent, listed as honorary visitor, spoke in support of the affirmative, which was upheld by J. E. Eberle and J. A. Geller. He criticized those persons who, he said, spread fear through the country with talk of depression and growing unemployment.

Brockville Paper Quotes Officer: "Stalin is Dead"

Brockville, March 28 (CP) — The Recorder and Times Monday quotes a former British Army Intelligence officer as saying he has information that Prime Minister Stalin died several months ago.

The newspapers informant, who declined to give his name for publication, said Stalin's death would not be announced officially until late in 1951 or early in 1952. In the meantime, V. M. Molotov, Deputy Prime Minister, would have an opportunity to consolidate his position as political and spiritual leader of Russia.

The newspaper's editors said they are able to vouch for the reliability of their informant.

He served as an intelligence agent in Russia for two years during the latter part of the Russian revolution, spent two months in a Russian jail and was released in an exchange of Russian and British prisoners, the newspaper says.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Red" Townsend's Belleville Collegiate COSSA senior basketball champions, the first since the days of the Great Depression, when the knowledge knibbiers (the most of 'em) couldn't even go "dutch" in the local tuck-shops' you know) could get a job with a pick and shovel for 20 cents per diem; Eddie Carter was "Mickey" stage and movie whoopie in "Whoopie"; George Attlas was wowing them as the "Man Who Played Golf" on the screen, while others were the only Who Played Golf" on the screen, while others were the only ankle - length garments in captivity and Belleville had championship hockey teams, glimpse an all-Ontario champi- onship over the distant horizon.

Red's "Red-Hots", dubbed "farmers" by a disappointed coach of a team they defeated (dang it, "Red" should have told 'em to leave those cowboy boots and that Hastings County accent at home) are on the march. They're cockier right now than any barnyard rooster when eggs were 85 cents per dozen (no discount for cracks). They've tucked that 1950SSA, HOSA, and others not counting the northern representatives, are likewise casting covetous eyes on the championship. It won't be easy for any of them.

But the most important matter at the moment, is that the "Red-Hots" need some financial mustard. It is estimated that the trip to Toronto will cost in the neighborhood of $250-$275. And that, brother, as the late remarked when he mumbled the spinach, "ain't hay". The championship tourney is scheduled for the first four days of the week of April 10th. Transportation, hotel and other expenses, all adding up to the cost of a week's holiday in Florida. The "Financial Terrors" are not letting any alfalfa spring up between their toes. They are devising ways and means to raise funds to take them to Toronto, aided and abetted by other loyal supporters of the BCI student body. But it won't do it all. It is understood the service clubs of the city are coming to their aid in the matter, but any other help will be greatly appreciated.

We are informed that Coach Townsend is conditioning his charges in no uncertain manner. He realizes what will be demanded of them and he intends them to be the proverbial 'pink' for the coming tournament. "Squinty" our ont-eyed operator and expert underground representative at the school who does a spot of Winchelling for us on occasions, reports that "Red" has his proteges tossing baseballs in formation race for accuracy. He's teaching them the intricacies of the Caribbean voodoo dances for leg sondilioning, with a spot of ballet- dancing thrown in for us they won't look like pretzels when reaching for a high pass. He's placed bunches of straw at periodic points in the gym, so the Terrors can become acrasy- toned by blondes sliding in the third and fourth rows of foreign gymnasia. Wonder what he's doing about redheads and brunettes, after all the guys are human.

Seriously, we hear that Coach Townsend and his assistants are leaving no stones unturned to ready the team for the gruelling grind ahead. They should be in tip-top condition when the whistle blows for their opening game, and you can rest assured, Belleville's representatives in the All-Ontario basketball tournament will go and give their best for their school and their city. More power to 'em.

Mebbe the master-minds of the Lakefield Intermediate hockey squad should have insisted on a saliva test of the flying Marmora squad after last night's tussle in Memorial Arena. We have not seen such inspired action since the old family cat accidentally slipped and sat in the spilled contents of a can of turpentine. She started flying and so far as we know she still is on figurative wings. The Marmorians last night, swept the literal feet off the Lakefield crew, who had defeated them once in a row in previous games. Messrs. Nichols, Blewett, Jopling et all toiled in a lost cause after the first period, albeit Master Borland in the Marmora cage turned in a superlative effort.

But the boys up front were clicking on all cylinders. Their passing was accurate. They checked hard both ways, and twelve times at least they were pure dogzone poison in front of the foemen's nets. They played heads-up hockey, skated on flying feet all night, and on the evening's performance thoroughly deserved their victory. Nearly 1,000 fans, mostly Marmorians, (they tell me the village was deserted with the exception of the night watchman) saw the fray and went home happy. The teams meet in the fourth game of the Intermediate "A" three-of-five semi-finals series in Peterborough Friday night.

Inspired Marmora Team Staves Off Elimination, Defeating Lakefield 12-5 In Third Game of Semi-Final Series

An inspired Marmora team staved off elimination here last night handing their twice-conquerors from Lakefield a 12-5 defeat in their "Intermediate 'B' semi-finals series before nearly 1,000 fans, Lakefield won the first two games by a 10-9 and 9-8 scores. The fourth game of the three-of-five series will be played in Peterborough Friday night.

The Hastings team clicking like castanets in all departments were full value for their, especially after the first period when the speedy Lakefield front lines could hang up only two goals to against three for the homesters. Wide Open Hockey

It was wide open hockey all the way with the stubborn Marmora checking featuring a victory that did not designate the difference between the squads. The Marmora team rolled mainly on a sustained offensive that paid off handsomely in the second and third period when they slung home five and four goals respectively. Lakefield got a pair in the first, one in the second and a couple in the third period. They should have had more but goalie Borland in the Marmora nets who played a real sterling game was the stumbling block.

Checking was hard but clean with both teams using the body to good effect. The only incident of any consequence in the game came when Percy Nicholls clipped a Marmora forward over the head and drew a major. Six sentences all told were handed out by Referees Ken McNaught and Bill Holway, four going to the visitors.

Marmora scored after 37 seconds in the first period on a rolled another 11 minutes later. Fawcett and Hunter banged home a pair in 15 seconds for Lakefield to tie the score in the best hockey of the game. Leonard gave the homsters a 3-2 lead minutes later.

Score Five in Second

Lavender gave the Hastings crew a 4-2 lead in 37 seconds of play in the second period but Lonsberry got that one back a minute later. After that it was all Marmora as far as scoring is concerned. They banged home four goals without a return, one of them coming when Nicholls was off.

They scored three more in the first four minutes of the third period when Lakefield rallied to shove in a pair. Marmora added another at the 12 minute mark and the rest was put-and-take hockey.

McInroy and Lavender paced the Marmora attack with three goals each. Stewart and Leonard got two each with Kerr getting four assists. Jopling, Lavender, Trumble, Stewart, Kerr and McInroy with Borland in the nets shone for the winners. Nicholls, Blewett, Hunter, Peloquin and Henry stood out for Lakefield. Fawcett, Hunter, Peloquin, Lonsberry and Henry were the snipers for Lakefield.

The teams:

Marmora — Goal, Borland, defence, Leonard, Kerr, centre, Stewart, wings, Lavender, Trumble, subs, Goodchild, McInroy, Loveless, Blake, Robinson, Hay, Durrell, Webb.

Lakefield — Goal, Atcheson, defence, Jopling, Wasson, centre Nichols, wings, Hunter, Blewett, subs, Marshall, Burton, Fawcett, Henry, Peloquin, Lonsberry, Payne.

1950 MERCURY SETS AMAZING NEW GASOLINE MILEAGE RECORD
IN GRUELLING 751-MILE GRAND CANYON RUN

1950 MERCURY WITH OVERDRIVE OUT-PERFORMS 30 OTHER ENTRIES

The 51 cars taking part in this run were 1950 standard models representing every major U.S. make except two. These cars were perfectly tuned for this critical run, and operated by expert drivers. They had to keep an average speed of 42 miles per hour.

NOW it's been officially proven! Pound for pound the big new 1950 Mercury is the most economical of cars made on this continent.

For, in the 751-mile Grand Canyon Run conducted recently by the American Automobile Association, Mercury delivered grand-prize winning gasoline economy—over a rugged course which ranged from Death Valley with its 90° heat to 7000-foot icy mountain passes.

This remarkable economy, made possible by the combination of Mercury's thrifty, V-type 8-cylinder engine, the "Econ-O-Miser" Carburetor and its gas-saving "Touch-O-Matic" Overdrive—came as no surprise to Mercury owners. For many Mercury owners had repeatedly reported gasoline economy far above average expectations.

This 751-mile run conclusively proves Mercury's superiority in gasoline economy. To prove its superiority in comfort, handling ease, power and performance, take the wheel yourself and make your own demonstration run. See your Mercury dealer now.

Record of Eleven Straight Wins for Toronto Over Detroit In Balance as Series Opens

Detroit, March 28 — (CP) — One of hockey's greatest play-off records is on the balance tonight when Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs collide in the first game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals.

That's the Leaf's record of 11 straight playoff victories over Detroit, and the Toronto team is out for more blood. But 14,000 fans will jam Olympia Stadium in hopes of seeing the Leafs smashed down.

Toronto has won the Stanley Cup three years in a row and each time has knocked Detroit out. Last spring Toronto won four straight against Detroit in the cup final.

The Wings, who won the National Hockey League championship this year, and the Leafs, who wound up in third place behind Montreal and Detroit, get set for the semi-final in different fashions. The Wings, after coasting to the regular season title by a margin of 11 points just laxed around in a hotel in Toledo. But the Leafs continued their two-a-day practice routine, figuring onto missed in its drive for second place by losing two of their last three league games.

There are no casualties on either club; both figure to be at razor-edge sharpness. Detroit coach Tommy Ivan said Monday night "We're ready; we'll be fighting." Toronto coach Clarence (Happy) Day said "I hope we're lucky."

Toronto's managing director, Conn Smythe, has been hammering into his team the last few days that hard work can win the Stanley Cup for the fourth year in a row.

This Year Different

The Leafs' jinx over the Wings began in 1947. After a 9-1 trouncing, the Toronto team came back to win the cup. They turned the same trick with four straight wins in 1948 and again in 1949.

Detroit fans say this year will be different. They point to the record over the winter's schedule, when Detroit won eight and lost six against Leafs, piling up a 47-36 advantage in goals scored. The Wings top Leafs so comparatively fresh after taking it easy since they made sure of the league title that the Leafs had a hard drive in the final two weeks.

The spirit of the embattled Leafs was illustrated when a spectator at Monday's Toronto practice remarked that Detroit appeared to be more worried about the outcome than Toronto.

"That's the trouble," said the Leaf coach, with a wry smile.

Detroit is powered with the greatest forward line in hockey today — Captain Sid Abel, Ted Lindsay and Gordon Howe. In the final league scoring table Lindsay, Abel and Howe ran in that order were 1, 2 and 3. Against this potent line Toronto's defence arrangement for tonight is still uncertain, but among stickers the Leafs will be using the new line of Howie Meeker, Cal Gardiner and Harry Watson.

Stop the Rocket And Reardon Will Be Cry of Rangers

New York, March 28 — (CP) —The battlecry of the Patrick clan tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden where Montreal's flashy Canadiens and New York Rangers meet in the opening game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final playoffs probably will be:

"Stop the Rocket and Reardon."

Meaning, of course, Maurice, (43-goal) Richard, the quick-tempered right winger, and his equally fiery teammate, defenceman Kenny Reardon.

The Rangers weren't able to do it in the closing weeks of the regular National Hockey League season. But coach Lynn Patrick is hopeful that with the ailing Edgar Laprade expected back in the Ranger line-up after missing 11 games he will be able to ice a line that can keep up with the speedy Canadiens.

Before Laprade suffered a knee injury Feb. 26 and aggravated it three weeks later he was among the best centres in the league. Teaming up with wingers Tony Leswick and Duncan Fisher, Laprade spearheaded the Rangers' No. 1 line and scored 22 goals.

But Edgar will have to be at his best to keep up with Richard and his able linemates, centre Elmer Lach and Norm Dussault, the way they were going in the last two weeks of the regular schedule.

As for Reardon, the third highest in assists for defencemen in the league although he didn't score a goal during the season, the Rangers have always had their hands full coping with his blistering shots.

Tomorrow night will mark the fifth meeting of the clubs in Stanley Cup action. Montreal won the first series in 1930 but the Rangers romped off with the next three—in 1932, '33 and '35. In all, the teams have met in 19 playoff games, New York winning five and tying two while losing only three. The tie games were played in cup series in which total goals determined the winner.

2,693,269 Fans Saw NHL Games

New York, March 28 (AP)—More people saw more National Hockey League games this season than ever before. A total of 2,693,269 fans turned out to watch the six teams play an extended schedule.

Here is the team-by-team attendance breakdown:

	1949-50 (70 games unofficial)	1948-49 (60 games official)
Toronto	476,603	417,402
Chicago	474,478	491,494
Montreal	472,097	326,276
Detroit	442,372	402,153
New York	457,342	366,278
Boston	390,377	406,272
Total	2,693,269	2,409,765

Inkerman Rockets Score 5-3 Win Over Combines

Timmins, March 28 — (CP) — Timmins Rockets, champions of the Ottawa district, fought back from the brink of elimination with a 5-3 victory over Porcupine Combines at the McIntyre Arena in Schumacher Monday night in the third game of their best-of-five Eastern Ontario Junior A playoffs. The Combines led won the first two games at Timmins 7-2 and 5-3.

A goal by Larry Romhild at 16:31 of the second period was the winner, after the Combines had fought from behind with two goals to knot the count at 3-3. Wally Swords added the clincher when he fired a rink-length shot into the empty net when Combines pulled their goaltender and sent six men up the ice for a face off in the Inkerman zone in the dying seconds of the game.

The Rockets were the smarter blew Combines in every contest with speed and precision passing. Under this pressure the Combines made only a shadow of the team that took a 2-0 lead in games. Thursday night the series will be played here Wednesday night.

The game featured a goaltending duel between Bill Harrington of Combines and Ron Elguer of Rockets, Harrington robbed would-be goalgetters right and left and blocked breakaways with cool efficiency.

Player Injures Knee

Centre Levy MacDonald of the Rockets was carried off the ice in the second period when he injured his knee during a pile up in front of the Combines goal. It was the same knee which kept him out of action in the first game of the series.

Johnny Meehan gave Combines a 1-0 lead but MacDonald evened the count at 1-1 before the period was over. On each occasion the team scoring had a man advantage.

Penalties entered the picture again in the second period when two Combines went off 30 seconds apart, Hunter clicked to put Rockets ahead 2-1.

Inkerman went ahead 3-1 early in the third when Cliff Baldwin flashed the goal light. A penalty to Swords off Inkerman put Combines on the comeback trail with Nedo Bragagnolo scoring before the penalty was up. Jerry Labelle counted another for the Combines when both teams were back at full strength, but Romhild's timely counter proved to be the winner and Sword's goal with 15 seconds left sewed it up.

Mercurys Lose Final Game of Long Schedule

(By The Canadian Press)

The world champion Edmonton Mercurys, making their farewell hockey appearance in Britain, Monday night at London lost to Streatham 5-3.

It was only the fourth set-back in 40 games for the Mercurys, who drew five and won 31, including seven straight in the championship tournament. Altogether they scored 332 goals while their opponents registered 86.

Mike Yaschuk of Winnipeg opened the scoring for the locals when he beat goalie Wilbur Delaney half way through the first period. Two minutes later George Edwards of Brantford, Ont., put Streatham two up.

Billie Dawe of the Mercurys then shot the puck inside the Streatham blue line, dodged a check and counted for Edmonton. The Merks tied up the game after three minutes of the second period when Hassle Young scored out of a three-way passing play with Leo Lacchini and Ab Newsome.

Near the midway point in the game Doug Macaley took Harry Allen's pass to give the Merks a 3-2 lead. The visitors were a short-lived, as Paddy Ryan of Regina whipped a drive into the corner of the Edmonton net and Yaschuk sent Streatham ahead when he drove home a pass-out from the corner.

The locals added their fifth tally when Zip Thompson of Toronto fired from the blue line and Delaney, blocked off in a maze of sticks and skates, hadn't a chance.

Billy Evans, unofficial western adviser to Toronto Maple Leafs, blew into town Monday for two first-hand glimpses of the National Hockey League team.

Back in Estevan, Sask., Billy has been a Leaf fan for only four years, but the eight-year-old Billy that's half a lifetime.

When the team wins, that's fine. When it loses, Billy writes a letter to managing director Conn Smythe, suggesting ways to bring the Leafs back to life.

Even Billy gets discouraged once in a while, though. Back in January, when the Leafs were in the midst of losing streak, he wrote: "Get a new team."

The youngster has never seen a big-league game. Early last fall, his father promised that if Billy got first in his class that year he would be sent to Toronto to see his idols play.

Billy knocked off firsts every month and his father paid up and Billy was on his way to Toronto, where his aunt, Mrs. Doug Tilley, met him at the station.

Leafs meet Detroit Red Wings Saturday in the third game of the Stanley Cup semi-finals. Billy says he hopes they win — "but I don't think they will."

Led by tall, deadly Carl Ridd, University of Manitoba Bisons Monday night at Winnipeg walked away with the first game of the Western Canada senior basketball final, tramping Magrath Rockets 71-53 before 1,500 fans. Second game of the best-of-three final will be played here tonight.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Milkman

In the days of auction bridge, bidders had an easy time of it. They bought the contract as cheap as possible. Why? They got full credit for making game or slam whether or not they bid that high.

Consequently they concentrated on improving their play. Not on bidding. As a result, some of their bidding methods were pitiful. Or to say the most, far short of perfection.

Such players got into the habit of bidding no-trump even if a minor suit brought better results. Or ignored a better minor suit contract in favor of a major suit of weaker ability.

When contract bridge came in, more accuracy in bidding was a must. Overbidding too many bonuses would be missed. Because credit for game or slam is paid only if bid. Not alone if actually made.

The largest bonuses are paid for bidding slams that are made. So players have been experimenting with the subject in all sorts of ways. So far, the Horse Sense conventions are the most efficient.

The simple formula is this: Discover 12 tricks in the pair; decide what suit or trump; with no score and a king or better, bid four no-trump to ask partner how many aces and kings he has.

If then lacking enough aces and kings for slam, stop at a bid of five. If enough top cards are found in the pair, bid the slam. There you have the basis for cashing a safe slam.

There is this deal:

NORTH
♠A Q 10 6 4 3
♥A 7 6 4
♦J 9
♣K

WEST — EAST
♠9 8 — ♠2
♥J 10 2 — ♥K Q 9 5 3
♦Q 7 6 2 — ♦K 8
♣9 7 5 2 — ♣A J 10 8 6

SOUTH
♠K J 7 5
♦A 10 8 4 3
♣Q 4 3

North has seven tricks and south has five. By exchange of simple information between them, north discovers 12 tricks in their pair. And also learns that spades should be trumps.

Therefore, all he needs to know is whether or not they have enough aces and kings for slam safety. With two aces and a king he bids four no-trump, the aces and kings asker. What happens?

CONVICTED OF KIDNAPPING

Detroit, March 28 (AP)— A jury of nine women and three men Monday convicted William B. Mabrey, 35, of kidnapping seven-year-old Karen Kuechenmeister last Nov. 15.

Judge Joseph A. Gillis said he would sentence the man April 6. The maximum penalty is life imprisonment. A charge of taking indecent liberties with the little girl was dismissed.

In an unprecedented move here Judge Gillis asked the jury to recommend the sentence. "This is just an experiment," the Judge said.

The jury then recommended that Mabrey, manager of a small hotel and poolroom, be sent to prison for 30 to 40 years.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 28 (AP)— In its search of tales of oppressed minorities, Hollywood will treat the plight of the amateur football player.

Producer Buddy Adler announces that his Columbia film, "The Hero" will be an expose of college football.

"This will not be the kind of football film to which the hero dashes 90 yards to win the game in the last reel," he declared.

"We are going to show how the college football machine works."

Besided producing, Adler also owns 11 theatres. Four of them used to play western films exclusively, but have now been converted to foreign pictures. I asked why.

"Television is ruining the run-of-the-mill western," he answered. "Why should kids pay to see a horse opera when they can see two of them and a serial at home in one evening?"

However, he said the big-budget western is still good for business. He is currently seeking one for Jimmy Stewart.

More TV Talk

Roy Rogers was asked how television was affecting his audience. Not at all, he replied. Roy's popularity has always been in small towns, where TV has not yet reached.

It's interesting to note that Herbert Yates of Republic turned down a cool $1,000,000 for TV rights in 30 old Gene Autry films. Observers don't know whether Republic's holding out more or if he doesn't want to build up Gene, with whom he has feuded in recent years.

There can be little doubt that Roy, Gene and the other film cowboys view with envy the success of Hopalong.

Many Sideroads In Lambton Co. Hip-Deep in Mud

Sarnia, March 28. (CP)—Transportation was almost paralyzed on Monday on Lambton county sideroads following a weekend mild spell which left many areas hip-deep in mud.

"I can't remember any situation as bad as this since 1913 when the Good Roads System was started," said County Clerk John Huey.

Some rural residents were forced to travel to church by tractor Sunday. At Walnut, near Watford, services were cancelled. Schools also have been closed, all school-bus services but one in the county having been bogged down.

Emergency measures are being taken in many cases.

In Wallaceburg Saturday a funeral was transferred from its civilian vehicles to army four-week-drive three-tonners. Sarnia's R.R. 2 postal delivery was on Monday made by tractor.

Bread companies were delivering supplies to the first farm house on each side road, and telephoning other residents where they could collect their loaves.

People in Brigden, who last week gave up their cars and took to the Brigden-Sarnia bus because of the mud, now have to stay in Brigden where the only bus is stalled.

WILL VISIT NEHRU

Karachi, Pakistan, March 28 — (AP) — Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan told parliament today he will visit India's Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, soon to discuss ways and means of bringing growing tension between the two countries to an end. "Both of us agreed," said Liaquat, "that a personal meeting between us is essential for finding a speedy solution."

Senator Fallis Labels Speech Biased, Partisan

Ottawa, March 28 (CP)— The Senate and the Speaker Monday night wrangled over procedure as a Progressive Conservative Senator described a Liberal Senator's speech as a "biased and partisan" approach to the question of human rights and fundamental freedoms.

Senator Iva Fallis (PC-Ontario) made the verbal scuffle when she called attention to some comments made previously by Senator Arthur Roebuck (L-Ontario) on the question of human rights and said she would withdraw as a prospective member of Senator Roebuck's committee.

Rising on a question of privilege, Senator Fallis said she had been approached by Senator Roebuck to become a member of his committee on human rights and freedoms. She had agreed, then later reviewed Hansard and found some remarks that branded Senator Roebuck as taking a "biased and partisan" approach to the question.

On being pressed, Senator Fallis read these excerpts from Senator Roebuck's speech in the Senate last Monday:

"The dangers which the world is facing today flow from two opposite sources: privilege, as promoted by those on the right, and socialistic worship of the state to the utter disregard of the rights of individual, as promoted by those on the left.

"Old-time Tory privilege, with its assumptions of superiority by some over the mass of mankind, finds its lineal descendants, its claim to ownership of the gifts of nature, its denial of equality, both economically and political, is bad enough, God knows; but I doubt whether this side of the story is as bad as the other side.

"This attitude of privilege has cursed the world with tyranny, oppression, untold poverty, cruelty and woe . . ."

Feeling himself "injured" by what had been said, Senator Roebuck said he wanted to rise on a question of privilege to have his say.

Ruled down twice, Senator Roebuck reluctantly took his seat upright next to Senator Fallis—and said:

"This is the first time in my experience that a member has not been allowed to explain his position."

Bingo Games And Lotteries Banned from Air

Ottawa, March 28 — (CP) — Radio bingo games and lotteries will disappear from Canadian airways May 1.

The CBC Board of Governors in a decision handed down Monday said that from after the end of next month Canadian radio stations will not be allowed to broadcast programs in which listeners are required to pay in hopes of winning large sums of money.

The ban will not apply to the normal type of give-away programs where cash or prizes is given away to contestants who send in box tops, answer questions or originally guess the name of a song.

At the same time the board rejected applications for licences for three new radio stations in Canada, recommended approval of various transfers of shares not affecting the control of companies operating some existing stations, and also recommended approval of power increases for two stations at Pentiction, B. C., and St. John's.

The board turned down applications for licences from Continental Broadcasting Inc. for a 5,080-watt station in Montreal east and from Newfoundland Enterprises for a similar-powered station in St. John's.

Rejected was an application from C. A. Pollock of Kitchener to establish a standard band station alongside his frequency modulation station in Kitchener. Ottawa Citizen.

In all three cases, the board said it believed granting of additional licences in the areas designated would affect adversely the standard of broadcasting available from stations already operating there.

Station VOCM St. John's was granted permission to boost power from 250 watts to 1,000 watts

REACH PARTIAL AGREEMENT IN DIVORCE CASE

Latest development in divorce proceedings of Dr. Peter Lindstrom and his film star wife, Ingrid Bergman, is report that Dr. Lindstrom, who is residing in Los Angeles, Calif., has agreed that his wife may have joint custody of their 12-year-old daughter Pia. However, he stipulated that he wants an American education for his daughter. Final settlement of divorce differences may be settled out of court, Here Dr. Lindstrom's attorney, Isaac Pacht, left, and Gregson Bautzer, Miss Bergman's counsel, are seen as they arrived in Los Angeles for a conference with the doctor, — Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

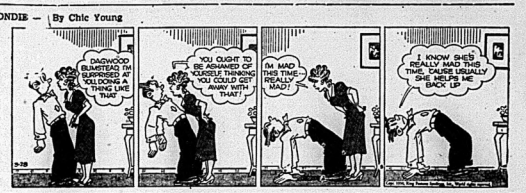
I was eating my breakfast slow and wishing I was just sick enough to be allowed to stay home from school without actually having to stay in the house, and I said, Heck, I wish I felt better.

What do you mean? ma said, do you feel, for land sakes! said, and I said, Kind of punk. do you mean you seem to have fever? ma said, and I said, No, nothing like that. I don't feel as if I ant to be in bed.

Now listen, you either feel well or you don't, and if you don't feel well you must have some definite simptom, ma said, and I said, I have, I've got a general funny feeling.

Now really, I meen really, ma said, and pop said, The boy has growing pains.

Now William, there is no such thing, that's an old exploded superstition, ma said, and pop said Not at all, I used to have them myself at his age, and I can tell you the exact simptoms. When I used to sit down to a meel, my appetite seemed normal at first, but gradually, by the 3rd or 4th helping, I found it more and more difficult to eat, until finally it became practically impossible, and I often left the table as soon as I had finished my dizzert. And my muscels were affected, too. I seemed to be bothered by a dragging sensation in my legs at the most unaccountable moments, such as when I was going an errand. And there was a psychological simpton, also. At the start of school I was overcome by a rapidly spreading sensation of weakness, sometimes aggravated by goose pimples, especially when I had failed to study my lessons properly. Have I omitted anything, Benny? he said



No sir, I said, and pop said, Then drink your milk and get going.

Which I did, still feeling agenst it.

Wellington on the Lake

MARCH TWILIGHT

A twilight hush pervades the land,
No wanton breezes wander by
To stir the trees, a silent band,
So like grim sentinels they stand
Clear-etched against a crimson sky.

The ice-bound lake in winter's thrall
Gives not a murmuring signs of spring,
But as the twilight shadows fall
And wings of dusk encompass all,
We hear a robin sing!

O, sweet this season of repose!
The quiet hush of twilight time!
When colorful in gold and rose
The sunset flag a glamor throws
Inspiring thoughts sublime.

—Helen B. Anderson.

At time of writing, March 22, winter still holds this locality in thrall, with snow falling steadily on a white, winter world. Probably an old-timer might call it sap snow, and possibly it may be, as word comes from the country of tapping in the sugar bush. And another stirring sign of spring is in the form of beautiful sunset that flings a flaming fan of gold and rose across the western sky.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Saskatchewan, who have been guests of her sister, Mrs. Kennedy, Front Avenue, for some weeks, left on Wednesday to visit friends in Renfrew.

Mrs. Alberta Smith spent Sunday in Bloomfield, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Cleave.

Mrs. George Bell was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stevenson and Mrs. Alida Hubbs, on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McFaul, of Wellington, entertained a euchre party in Allisonville Orange Hall, Friday evening. Mrs. Clifford McFaul and Mr. Eric Edwards were prize winners. Mr. Tom Fillingham was pianist and led a sing-song and Mrs. Elmer McFaul gave a vocal solo. Refreshments were served.

The play by Frankford amateurs on Monday night drew a large crowd and was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Phoebe Stewart, who has been very ill, is slowly recovering.

Miss Shirley Bailey, of Wellington, teacher of Salem School, Ameliasburg, has been engaged as teacher of Niles Corners' School for the coming year, Mrs. Stewart having resigned. Mr. and Mrs. Wood will reside in Brighton where they have purchased a home.

The March meeting of Wellington Women's Institute was held in the Town Hall, Tuesday evening with Mrs. Morley Langdon, Bloomfield, as guest speaker.

Wellington readers will be interested in the book "Saskatchewan" soon to be published. The author Marjorie Campbell, is a sister, of Mrs. Brownlie, wife of Rev. J. M. Brownlie, of Marmora, and formerly of Wellington.

Mrs. Vance Vanstone is spending the winter in Florida, writes of visiting Miami, St. Petersburg, Silver Springs and many other interesting places.

The Evening Auxiliary of the United Church held a very successful St. Patrick's Tea in the Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon. The proceeds were very gratifying.

Birthday Party

On the evening of March 22, a very pleasant time was spent at the home of Miss Mary Lunn, Maple Avenue, when her niece, Miss Gladys Lunn, entertained a party of friends in celebration of her aunt's birthday. Guests were received by Gladys and refreshments were served, including a birthday cake with candles. Those present included Mrs. Fred Ford, Mrs. Lillian Anderson, Mrs. Arthur Goodfellow, Mrs. Ellie Humphrey, Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. George Ferguson, Mrs. Nancy Carley, Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Craig Platt. Miss Lunn received cards and gifts. Her friends wish her many happy returns. Several invited guests sincerely regret they were unable to be present.

Mrs. W. A. Davern is spending some days in Belleville with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Jones.

The home of the late Alpheus McConnell, Maple Ave., is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Sale.

Mrs. Andy Walker is spending some time with her parents in Toronto.

MADOC

Madoc—Miss Anne Nicol, of Huntsville, is spending the week-end at her home, in Madoc.

Mrs. Geo. Kelly, of Stoco, is visiting her brother, Mr. John Lahey.

Miss Jane Symons of Toronto, spent the weekend at her home in Madoc.

Miss Christine Walden, of Toronto, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walden.

RAWDON

Young People's Union Presents Comedy 'Scootin' Grandma'

Rawdon—On Thursday evening last, Mount Pleasant Rawdon Young People's Union sponsored a three-act comedy play entitled "Scootin' Grandma" under the auspices of St. John's Ladies' League at Stirling in Mount Pleasant church hall. The attendance was smaller than usual due to counter attractions elsewhere.

Mr. Francis Wrightman, president of Mount Pleasant, Y.P.U., welcomed the guests.

Between acts Miss Betty McConnell contributed a piano solo and Miss Ruth Linn sang "Quick Silver".

The Cast

The cast was introduced by Mrs. Bob Phillips and the entire play took place one evening in early spring at the modern home of Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Anders. Mrs. Bruce Bell assisted Mrs. Phillips behind the scenes.

The members of the cast are: Mrs. Grandma Bell, the "Scootin' Grandma", who is 71 years of age, and still spry and active. She scoots about town always trying to help others—played by Mrs. Ed. Bell.

Emery Wright, impersonated by Mr. Bob Clegg, is about to be popular and his chief ambition is to be wise and witty but most of the time he is overcome with bashfulness.

Mrs. Vera Brunt, Mr. Dick McLaughlin, lacks poise but ends up with many personalities. He is really the notorious Joe Allan, who stole the jewels and planted them in Emery's home town.

Dwight Randolph, played by Mr. George Noble, is Norma's beau. He demonstrates how to make love.

Elroy Anders is played by Mr. Harold Morgan, who doesn't care to be a hero.

Francine Anders is Elroy's wife and is also grandma's self-appointed guardian. This was played by Mrs. Gerald Cherry. The scene of the play was at their home.

Three family friends all add interest to the play.

Eileen, Mrs. Gerald Richardson.

Lora, Mrs. Harold Morgan, and Norma, Mrs. Burton Woodcock.

Lucille Anders, the heroine of the play, who is very undecided, was impersonated by Mrs. R. Lohnes.

Mrs. Reg. Coombes as an attractive policewoman and proved to be a thorn in Grandma's path.

The cast of 11 were well received and the play was enjoyed.

At the close of the play, Mrs. Dick McLaughlin delighted with piano music.

The young people served appetizing refreshments to the players and Mrs. Francis Wrightman extended thanks to the group for their presentation of this three-act comedy which contained so many tangles.

FRANKFORD

Frankford. — The Frankford Lions Club have been doing fine work in the Boy Scout work around town lately. Friday night, the first meeting of the 1st Frankford Cub Pack was held in the Community - Memorial Hall, under the supervision of Lion Joe Adams, the new Cub leader, and assistants Gordon Green, Earl Rogers and Delbert Badgley.

At present, only six boys are being admitted into the pack, and these six boys are being trained in the work as leaders of Cub groups. After these boys have completed their training, they will carry on with the training of six more boys who will be admitted at that time. Boys are requested to please be patient about joining the cubs, as there will be a chance for others at a later date.

The weekly meeting of the First Frankford Boy Scout Troop was held in the Community-Memorial Hall, Friday evening. Recreation was enjoyed. A period of instruction in direction finding without the use of compasses was held. Instruction in several items of Scout work was given. John Pahebnicky and Earl Rogers were invested into the Troop, upon completion of their Tenderfoot training.

MADOC

Rector, St. John's Anglican Church, Addresses W.I.

Madoc.—A balmy spring day and a hospitable welcome brought 32 members of Madoc Branch of the W.I. to the home of Mrs. Ida R. Beatty for their March meeting on Friday afternoon, Mrs. Nicol presiding. The meeting opened with the Ode and the Creed. Mrs. Nicol thanked the ladies for turning out. The business period consisted of the minutes of the previous meeting and several letters and cards from the sick members' communications were read and some filed.

Delegates to the conference in Guelph in June were appointed—Mrs. C. Moon, Mrs. W. Forestell, was decided to have the Robin Hood Flour demonstration at a later date, arrangement and announcement to be made. Reports of standing committees were received, the dance held in the town hall was very successful.

Current Events were given by Mrs. W. Stewart and Mrs. Hulin and Mrs. Jack Smith rendered two very nice duets, "Mother Machree" and "Mary Bay". This being the Irish Day meeting the roll call was responded to by "Irish Citizen".

The guest speaker was the Rev. W. Good, rector of St. John's Anglican church, Madoc, who recently arrived from Great Britain and who was introduced by the president. Mr. Good spoke on "Citizenship" and the members were privileged to hear a fine address. He told of the place the mothers hold in molding the children to make of them fine citizens of their town, their nation, and their church. The need of cooperation of parents in the home was very stressed. Mr. Good left many thoughts to be taken home and words while considering. He spoke briefly on his homeland Ireland.

Mrs. C. Whytock voiced the appreciation of the members for his fine address. Mrs. Mrs. Hulin at the piano the members sang several Irish songs. The president announced the Mesdames C. Whytock, E. Moore and G. Love had been chosen as nominating committee for the new officers for the year and to present a slate of of-

Women's Assoc. Holds Birthday Tea

Burr's—The Women's Association of Burr's was favored in having a lovely evening Wednesday for the "Birthday Tea", which marked the 24th anniversary of the Society.

Long tables, pretty in green and white, centred with flowers, were set in the spacious hall at Alliston. A delicious supper was served, followed by a choice program of readings and music presented by the following: Mrs. Wm. McGee; Miss C. Tait; Mrs. K. Wood; Miss S. Terry; piano solo by Miss Lois Doxee; vocal numbers by the Misses Marilyn and Jean Barber; Mr. John Barber; Miss Sylvia Motley; Miss Doris Clark and Miss Donna Parks; duet by Miss Lois Squire and Miss Elsie Sobie; a "Junior Miss" chorus sang "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. Charles McFaul, H. Hall and Jack Bruining, whose natal days fall on Wednesday.

Rev. J. F. Lane was in the chair. The absence of the president, Mrs. Hough, due to illness, was much regretted. The vice president, Mrs. A. Chase, presided. Other members confined to their homes through illness were Mrs. P. Osterhout, Mrs. K. VanCott, Mrs. B. Hough and Mrs. M. Adams. They were also much missed.

Proceeds for the evening amounted to $111.20.

A pleasant social hour was held at the close of the meeting. Mrs. G. Munro, Mrs. C. I. Ross and Mrs. J. McGowan assisting the hostess.

MADOC

Four Members of Oakdale Rebekahs Presented With Gifts

Madoc.—On Friday night following the regular meeting of Madoc Oakdale Rebekah Lodge, a pleasant event took place when the members presented four of their members with gifts for their years of membership in the lodge, Mrs. Blanche Alexander, and Mrs. B. Tanner, Mr. Bert Bailey and Mr. W. H. McBain, having been 36 years active members in the lodge, holding office and giving unstintingly of their time and service in every way to bring success to the lodge. The ladies were presented with china cups and saucers and the gentlemen with Waterman pencil sets.

Mrs. C. Farrow read the address and Mrs. Will Parks made the presentations.

RAWDON

Rawdon.—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith, Miss Frithies Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Sharp, Mr. Bob Merrick, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, and Mr. and Mrs. L. McKeown of Mount Pleasant Rawdon, attended the banquet in Bridge Street Sunday School rooms, Belleville, under the the auspices of the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen and Power Farmers.

Hon. J. M. Imerty, Queens University, Kingston, was guest speaker. Mr. Oscar Merrick was appointed a member of the legislative committee.

A large number of Rawdon folks attended the dance sponsored by Laurel Rebekah Lodge and Stirling Lodge No. 239 I.O.O.F. Archer's orchestra furnished the music for dancing and the proceeds was for the C.P. and F. Fund.

Mrs. Kenneth Caskey, Madoc, spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. A. Fox.

The influenza epidemic has visited a number of Rawdon homes and several have needed a doctor in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hubbs and Grant, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith and family, to dinner Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bedford and Jimmie, of Trenton, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bedford, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hoard over the weekend.

About 20 men spent Wednesday helping Mr. Oscar Merrick clean up the debris from the recent fire, in preparation for rebuilding.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Gunning were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Gunning at Hoard's.

Mrs. Carl Dunham entertained Mrs. Charles Dunham and Mrs. Clarence Dunham of Wellman's on Tuesday.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

He expected her to see him and come by. Then he noted that he had unconsciously come out the Rainbow Canyon trail a ways before turning off here to Wesley's mount, and that Lona herself was riding down that trail as if with definite purpose. She did not look toward him. His own horse lifted his ears and head as if to whinny, and Wes quickly grabbed its nose.

"Whoa, boy, ho-o-o-o", he soothed the animal.

In five minutes Lona was out of sight, winding among cacti and mesquite and yucca growths over and around rises, and Wesley York was staring after her with a quizzical frown. "She had a pack and a pistol and a canteen," he told himself. "Here will be more than a short ride. I—I wonder—"

All at once he mounted his own horse and swung down the trail to follow her. The thought of shadowing Lona Montoya or anybody else was somewhat distasteful but Wesley consoled himself with reasoning that he was a faculty member and responsible for girls, and that certain other definite suspicions were strong enough to justify his actions now.

He rode carefully to keep just out of sight, pausing often to listen and to walk ahead for brief reconnaissance. He wished that he had brought a pack and canteen, but he had not anticipated a long desert ride. One thing on his saddle was the lariat rope which always stayed tied there.

In a short time the sun's great display had ended, and twilight moved quickly into night. Wesley welcomed the darkness. It would keep him unrevealed from Lona. Knowing that she would push right along, he kept his own horse walking fast, or sometimes in a slow gallop, and when he had neared the sloping terrain that led down into Rainbow Canyon itself, he stopped and dismounted. Under now, he reasoned to proceed afoot, especially since he would not be sure what he would do if he did see Lona enter the Canyon Cave again.

He was tying his horse in some brush and carefully noting the immediate landmarks in order to find it again, when the animal lifted its ears and head as it had done once before this evening. Now, though the beast looked back up the trail, toward home.

"What is it, fellow?" Wes whispered.

The horse gave no further sign. Just listened. But that was enough; Wes knew from years of experience that a horse's nose and ears are keen, dependable. Somebody was coming, surely; a third rider was on the Rainbow Canyon trail and Wes reasoned that it would be either of two men, one a stranger and one known to him.

Wishing that he had brought his pistol at least, Wes nevertheless decided to take action without it. Quietly he unslung his lariat rope, petted his horse to soothe it, and walked back up the trail 5 yards or so. When he caught a glimpse of the approaching rider, he crouched out of sight. His heart was beating rapidly, and he had to force down a certain urge to get passive.

"This is no child's play," he reminded himself. "Whoever the man is meeting Lona, he would kill me as sure as sin. And yet—by heaven I shall do this thing!"

Even before he caught a closer glimpse of the rider's silhouette, Wes felt sure he knew who it was. He was humped over in a rock shadow waiting. It would take good aim to throw a lariat loop accurately in the starlight, but then the man bulk would be visible against the sky, and Wes knew something of roping. Roping is fundamental to a man ranch reared.

He allowed the rider to pass, horse walking fast. Then—swa-s-s-ww-s-s-s, sww-s-s-s—three rapid twirls of the loop and—throw.

He saw his loop dart out and settle with perfect air around the riders shoulders. Then Wes dug in his heels for the jerk he knew was coming.

Wesley's lariat loop had snaked around the rider's neck and instantly the darkness. It settled over the rider's shoulders. Wes whipped his right arm back, worked it free it tight and thus in an instant the rider was entirely pinioned to his sides. Wes dug in his heels.

"Oh-h-hu-u-u-uh!"

The rider was given a weird little staccato squeal of fright, almost feminine. Plump—down the saddled rider fell. The horse snorted and jumped off to one side.

Wes was already running. The last few feet he literally dived and landed squarely on the dark form there on the ground.

"Take it easy!" he growled.

But the victim declined to obey. The person became a wildcat of flailing legs. One knee struck Wes a terrific blow in the face. A heel drove hard into his ribs. The defender was far from helpless, even if arms and body were in a tight lariat loop.

Wes, taken by surprise, was noticeably smaller than Wes had expected, and in spite of the writhing, breathless struggling Lona once Wes found that he could hold the rope tight and finally get a half hitch around the ankle. He drew this tight, too, but probably he was beginning to sense something.

"D-darn you, if-if—"

The victim gasped that much while struggling, and Wesley York froze.

Standing now, he suddenly was motionless, mouth open in astonishment. The figure at his feet still fought the rope furiously but did no endless mouthing. Wes just stood there disbelieving his own ears and eyes. Then all at once he knew for sure!

"Jonnie! He breathed. "H-Ronnie!"

She stopped fighting. Bent almost double there on the ground, she lifted her head to see him better in the night glow.

"Is it—is it—?" Oh Wes!"

He couldn't possibly have been more convinced. He was almost pitiful. Delicately, tenderly, as if she were now extremely fragile, he released the lasso and slipped it off her, his hands shaking and his voice quivering as he tried every conceivable way to apologize. When he had her on her feet again she literally had to interrupt him.

"Gee-mi-nee, Wes, you scared me out of 10 years' growth, but I don't think I'm badly hurt. I must have thumped you pretty hard once, though, didn't I? I tried my best to! I would surely have killed you if I could!"

"I—I—naturally! I even expected it, Ronnie. I—"

"So you fought like a bear. Goodness, Wes, you hate to have you for an enemy if this is the way you treat your friends! But don't you think we'd better say what we—"

"Yes, Ronnie! I was, uh, trailing Lona Monoya. She—"

"You were? You!"

"Ye-"

"So was I."

"Huh?"

"Was to tell you the truth, I've been snooping on Lona since that day in the Canyon. This afternoon I saw her get a horse from the stables and ride away. Another Mexican went with me at the time, but as soon as I could shake him I got a horse and followed. I wasn't sure which way she went but I just acted on a hunch."

"Oh, oh, Lordy, Ronnie, you are certainly—!"

"But, Wes, weren't you curious about all that, too? Interested? And—don't you remember it was over here that I had a scrap with five Japanese?"

"But, you, Ronnie, coming out alone—!"

She laughed a bit. "Foocy on that! I bet you'd have me all home and knit long underwear!" She sighed. No man ever seemed to win an argument with Ronnie Bailey. He went to catch up with her and when he had helped her remount he noted that she was utterly at ease. His conscience, by contrast was aching! almost surely he would have to face the indignity of dark bruises again!

They talked over the situation at length and decided to go back home, after all. In the fighting they might have been heard. If not, Lona would have gone on far ahead in the dark anyhow. It would be too risky in every sense to try further snooping tonight in Rainbow Canyon, so Wesley got his own horse and they started back to Pueblo.

Because it was not much out of their way to go by his home, Wes led them there before going to the stables. He went inside a moment and came out carrying a pearl-handled gun.

"Ronnie," he spoke calmly, seriously, "take this pistol and carry it with you whenever you go anywhere. Do you hear me?"

"But, Wes—"

"No buts! You do as I say. I won't have you risking your life as you did tonight, unarmed. I don't like you to risk it any way but I know you will do as you please. I'm sorry I had to be rough tonight, and if you think there is any further chance of fighting any line, you come direct to me."

It was, in truth, the first time any man had ever talked to her in such tones. Any New York man who had tried that to give her orders would have had a saucy reptail of once. But—dear Ronnie Bailey was secretly elated! She didn't even mention that she could have shot him. She just let him escort her to the stables and then to her car, and she bade him goodnight with a new note of respect.

And in his room, at last, Wesley York also was elated.

Doctored facial wounds for a second time—and for a second time making lame but acceptable explanations to his mother—the young college instructor reflected that the student Ronnie Bailey, for whom he was faculty adviser was the most extraordinary some body he had ever met. She fitted into no known category of co-eds. She was utterly different—and delightful. Courageous! She had done a daring thing, alone; and in a crisis she had fought back like a wild beast. And yet half an hour later she was, saved for disheveled hair and clothing and a few bruises of her own, as serene and lovely as ever.

Contemplation of these things made his night a happy one, and the glow of satisfaction (and of revived hope), carried over into the next day and the next. It carried, in fact, into the regular weekly faculty meeting in the Community room where the informal talk included reports on student activities of every sort such every college faculty has.

Wesley was much interested when a elderly professor unexpectedly mentioned Ronicss name but all in a moment his glow of satisfaction vanished.

STEALS FLOWER BASKETS FROM GRAVES

Detroit,-March 28 (AP)—Henry Ferraro, 23, pleaded guilty Monday to stealing flower baskets from graves. Judge John J. Maher said he would sentence Ferraro April 4. Police said Ferraro, a Chrysler employe, admitted taking the baskets because he was short of funds. He said he sold them to florists for 50 cents apiece.

Highway Traffic In Some Areas Cut By Spring Floods

Colder Weather May Ease Conditions in S. Ontario

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — Spring flood today cut off highway traffic in some areas, marooned homes and poured into cellars in a score of communities.

Clear cold weather, expected late today, may check the run-off sufficiently to ease flood troubles.

Brampton, Galt, Guelph, Brantford, Preston, Hespeler and Orangeville were partly inundated early today. At Bolton, north of Toronto, 1,000 villagers spent a restless night as dynamite crews blasted an ice jam in the Humber River.

Other rivers on the rampage were the Grand and its tributary, the Speed, and Etobicoke Creek, which empties into Lake Ontario just west of Toronto.

No. 24 Highway was reported impassable at Galt and Hespeler where the roadway was under three feet of water. Sections of No. 54 Highway between Caledonia and Cayuga were flooded. Detours are in effect. In Hamilton area, roads were impassable. Several roadways were reported flooded and partly washed out at Bancroft.

Boat Used for Rescue

A flood imprisoned Jacqueline Baguley, 4, in her father's automobile in a garage at Bolton. Neighbors used a boat to rescue her.

Donald Schaefer, 13, plunged fully-clothed into the swollen Nith River at Ayr to rescue a playmate, 13-year-old Jimmy Turnbull, who tumbled into the river while playing on a dam.

Firemen went to the rescue of 10 persons marooned in the Bay Street section of Guelph. The firefighters, wearing high rubber boots, carried them to safety.

No. 7 Highway near the Ontario reformatory at Guelph was under two feet of water and a mistake in the lake covered the section of the reformatory grounds adjoining the highway. Traffic from Guelph bound for Acton and Brampton was rerouted.

Homes Inundated

Brantford firemen also served as rescuers. They took families from flooded homes, rescued a horse from five feet of water in a shed and removed chickens to safety.

A flood that Tuesday marooned 25 families on the outskirts of Cornwall subsided today. But many homes still had to rest on water in the cellars.

More than a foot of water Tuesday night flooded the main street of Brampton, 25 miles northwest of Toronto. Merchants, mopping up today, reported little damage.

The flood also hit Bolton, where proprietor of a war surplus store handed out R.C.A.F. rubber dinghy and tied it to the front of his store for a quick getaway.

PRIME MINISTER OF N. IRELAND WILL VISIT CITY

Sir Basil Brooke Will Spend Day Here

London, March 29 — (CP) — Prime Minister Sir Basil Brooke of Northern Ireland said today the time is opportune for Commonwealth North American visit is to stimulate trade with his country.

Sir Basil, who sails Friday on the liner Queen Mary, told a press conference he would steer clear of political issues in the talks he will make to ulster groups and business and professional organizations in the six Canadian and four United States cities he will visit.

The Prime Minister will arrive in Ottawa May 9 and stay at Rideau Hall as the guest of Viscount Alexander, Canada's Governor-General, until May 16.

He visits Toronto from May 17 until May 22. His Toronto trip will include one-day side trips to London, Ont., and Belleville, Ont.

Howe to Remain On 'Serious List' For 24 Hours

Detroit, Mar. 29 (CP)—Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings' star winger severely injured Tuesday night in a Stanley Cup play-off game against Toronto Maple Leafs will remain on the hospital's "serious list" for 24 hours, doctors said today. They added, however, that th. outlook for the young Saskatoon native is "good".

Howe underwent a brain operation in the early hours of the morning and was still under oxygen at noon today. A thorough examination later in the morning disclosed that, in addition to the brain injury, Howe suffered a fractured nose and lacerations to the jaw.

Physicians said there was no fracture of the jaw and no injury to Howe's eye. The doctors disclosed comment on when the injuries might mean to Howe's future career in hockey, but he is lost to the Red Wings for the balance of the league season.

N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell said he saw the play on which Howe was hurt but he would make "no comment at this time". Red Wings' manager Gravel likewise declined comment.

Campbell said he would confer with the game referee, Red Storey, noon and "probably will have a statement about 2 p.m. after our discussion."

FEDERAL OFFICE

Red Deer, Alta., (CP)—Ground was broken recently for the construction of a $30,000 post office at Red Deer. The building will also house offices of the R.C.M.P., customs, unemployment insurance and department of veterans' affairs.

DREW ASKS GOVT TO LIMIT CONTROL OF DOMESTIC RENTS

Criticizes 'Dilatory' Methods of Cabinet

Ottawa, March 29 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, urged the government in the Commons Tuesday to revive legislation providing for extension of domestic rent controls.

Resuming debate on the controversial legislation after Finance Minister Abbott read his budget speech, Mr. Drew said the rent-ball bill continues controls which gave the government power over practically all human activity including the conscription of manpower.

He suggested the government take overnight action so that today it could present the Commons with a bill providing only for the extension of rent controls until April 30, 1951.

"If the government not known to all members, he said, that the bill before the Commons went much further than rent controls in the power it gave the government. It could enable the government to exercise controls over many classes of goods and services.

"It continues in force all the regulations except those definitely limiting the installation period in 1949," said Mr. Drew.

"It enables the minister to be continued covered production of goods and services, their distribution, disposal and transportation.

Rates on Personal Incomes, Liquor, Tobacco, Succession Duties Remain Stationary

Finance Minister Predicts Big Budgets Are Here to Stay

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 29 — (CP) — A prediction that Big Budgets—with taxes running at about their current rate — are here to stay emerged today as the top-line feature of Finance Minister Abbott's 1950-51 budget presentation to Commons.

Monday night, in a 10,000-word budget speech to a crowded Chamber, he indicated that the new government policy begins as of now by reporting that he had no major tax changes to make. There were no cuts in rates on personal incomes, liquor, tobacco or succession duties.

He shuffled a few taxes around — dropping a total of $3,000,000 in some places and promptly picking it up in others — and he said the changes were made only to remove anomalies, bring greater equality, clarify obscure points and meet special circumstances.

Major Tax Changes

These are the major tax changes:

1. The eight-per-cent sales tax was dropped on ice cream, dairy drinks, and prepared whipping cream effective immediately and on purchases by religious, charitable institutions for the aged and infirm, effective July 1, 1950.

2. The five per cent special excise tax is being dropped on toilet soap, effective immediately, because it is too difficult to administer.

3. Special tax concessions allowed for mining and oil prospecting and exploration will be continued for another year and the corporation tax on income received by a trustee for holders of oil royalties will be repealed.

BELIEVED IN HIDEOUT

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — Joseph Teasler, husky 46-year-old welder from Sudbury, wanted on a charge of shooting with intent to murder three men, is believed hiding in the mid-town Jarvis-Dundas area, police said today.

Donald E. White, 30, and Edward Long, 36, victims of the street shooting, were given improved condition in hospital today.

Circus Elephant Executed at Dawn

Sarasota, Fla., March 29—(AP)—Dolly, the circus elephant, was executed at dawn today.

The animal was put to death with cyanide for killing five-year-old Edward Schooly who was feeding hy peanuts last Sunday.

Why the old weary-looking animal suddenly grabbed the child with her trunk and stepped on his head was still unknown.

The decision was made at the last moment. John Ringling North, circus vice-president, had said a few hours earlier a "deluge" of protests by telephone, telegram and letter had been received at winter quarters here and left officials still undecided about carrying out the execution originally scheduled for 10 a.m.

Only a few announcement was made here by North after the death. He said the elephant had been taken to a pit, given the cyanide at 5 a.m. and buried after she had died.

SOAP, ICE CREAM MAY BE CHEAPER BY NEW BUDGET

(By The Canadian Press)

The ordinary consumer apparently isn't going to see much change as a result of the Federal budget tax changes on ice cream, dairy drinks and whipping cream; likewise on the elimination of the excise tax on toilet soaps.

But officials of orphanages and of institutions for the aged and infirm are enthusiastic over the elimination of the eight-per-cent sales tax on purchases made for such institutions.

Effective immediately the sales tax on ice cream, dairy drinks and whipping cream is eliminated, but it's up to the retailer in most places whether this means a cheaper price to the consumer.

"The consumer may be paying a few cents less for his ice cream, but it's up to the retailer because he has been absorbing the tax," explained L. A. Wallis, manager of Silverbrook Dairies at London, Ont. "We will still sell it to the retailer at the same price."

A dairy industry spokesman at Montreal said he expected this tax would relieve the dairies of only a severe drag. Up to now we've had to absorb the whole amount," he said. "However it will take some time before the full effect is known."

The tax cut on dairy drinks eliminated an impost that had been absorbed by the dairies and therefore the consumer is not expected to be affected.

A dairy industry official at Winnipeg agreed it's not likely there will be much change in ice cream prices.

Czechs Order Correspondent To Leave Country

Prague, March 29 — (CP) — The Czechoslovakian government today ordered the expulsion of the last American correspondent of the Associated Press remaining in this country.

It refused to renew the press credentials of Nathan Polowetzky which expire March 31. Polowetzky, who has been the lone American Associated Press correspondent here since bureau chief Richard Kasischke was expelled last January, was given until April 8 to leave Czechoslovakia.

Bedrich Runge, deputy press chief of the foreign ministry, gave "unobjective reporting" as the reason for the expulsion.

Further expulsions in the few remaining western correspondents here were forecast last week by Information Minister Vaclav Kopecky who told parliament that the foreign press corps had been virtually eliminated since the formation of the new government in 1948.

The fate of other western correspondents will be known later this week. The foreign ministry has summoned Earl Swisshelm Schmidt, New York Times correspondent, to appear tomorrow, and the representative of Agence France-Presse on Saturday.

John R. Higgins, United Press correspondent, will find out Friday morning whether his press credentials have been revoked or renewed.

Early in January the Czech government expelled Miss Kasischke and one correspondent each of the United Press, Agence France-Presse and the London newspaper. newspapers on the same charges as those levelled against Polowetzky.

Flames Cut Off Escape Says Lone Survivor of Air Crash

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)—The lone survivor said today flames raced so swiftly through a United States Air Force plane early April 8 that it gave no chance for any more of the six occupants to bail out as he did.

"Four of them had their parachutes on," Master Sergeant Gwyn Long told reporters flat after describing the crash that took five lives, including that of U. S. Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt, 11 miles south of here.

"They didn't get out. There wasn't time for them to try. I had told them to, but it took over everything happened. They didn't make it. There wasn't time. Everything happened very fast."

Raging Inferno

Long, lying in a hospital bed, told a press conference of a spontaneous, "Let's get out!" He started in the right wing of the twin-engined Skymaster transport plane, exploded the engine, inhaled flame and "I was climbing angrily behind the men who had their parachutes on.

"The pilot, Lt.-Col. Wayne Trueblood, had been holding her steady as we got ready to jump. We were getting ready to jump when the right wing blew and it spread to the left wing and the cabin. We were going down very fast all of a sudden. I figured we had only or seven seconds. I went ahead and bailed out from 600 to 800 feet up."

Previous to the interview, it had been assumed that Capt. Tom Archibald, who usually piloted the Embassy plane, was the pilot at the time of the crash.

Sgt. Long said he hadn't the "vaguest idea" what caused the fire.

Fire Started in Engine

This, chronologically, was the story Long told today:

"We took off from Rockcliffe airport at 11 o'clock and made a very good check on the plane before takeoff. Col. Trueblood was flying. He took her up to the cruising altitude of 3,000 feet and levelled off. Then we were cruising along.

"All at once fire was noted in the right engine. Instantly the flames were completely out of control. Col. Trueblood stayed at the controls. He sent me back to tell everybody to bail out. He told me to get the 'chutes and see that they put them on.

"Captain Tom Archibald was co-pilot. He went back, with the others, to get his 'chute on. There was no talking that I saw or remember. I don't know if they all had their parachutes on but the Ambassador did.

"Everybody had a parachute. Col. Trueblood's parachute was laid out for him so he could grab it on the way out. He had been planning to hold her steady until we got out, then he would make a run for it.

Lumber Industry Of B.C. Expects Biggest Year

Vancouver, March 29 (CP) — Wrapped in gloom two months ago when the British Columbia lumber industry today eyes 1950 as one of its biggest years, because of a revived demand.

Concrete United States demand has changed that.

In fact, the industry that supplies 42 percent of each production for the province expects the largest business since 1948 when business totalled more than $200,000,000.

Building booms in Canada and the U.S. have created demands that mills, closed two months in the bitterest winter this province has recorded, will have trouble filling. Yet Premier Byron Johnson has promised only this week from a United Kingdom mission in London to coax pre-war and wartime markets there to return to the fold.

The last British order for B.C. lumber— 132,000,000 board feet —valued at $10,000,000— is required by June next but none has been promised for September. The more than 32,000 wood workers, plus the thousands of other persons in the industry indirectly likely will be working overtime to supply that.

Devaluation of the Canadian dollar is said responsible for much of the American switch to purchasing.

BILL TO RESTORE ONTARIO INCOME TAX INTRODUCED

Toronto, March 29—(CP)—The Ontario government will re-enter the personal income tax field, but it doesn't mean any extra payments by Ontario residents.

Premier Leslie Frost announced in the legislature Tuesday two bills, forecast in the budget address earlier. One bill repeals the old provincial tax act of 1936, and the other gives the government authority to entey into an agreement with the federal government for collection of a five-per-cent Ontario tax.

The premier said he has already been in conference with federal authorities to work out a system allowing Ontario five per cent of the amount of federal income tax that is collected within the province.

Two types of agreement are possible. One is a "rental" system under which the federal government would pay Ontario five per cent of all the income tax it collects in Ontario, in return for the right to impose the entire tax. The other is an "agency" system, whereby the federal government

100 Well-Armed Red Junks Sunk By Nationalists

By SPENCER MOOSA

Taipei, Formosa, March 29 — (AP)—Chinese Nationalists said today their warships routed two fleets of nearly 100 well-armed Communist junks south of Shanghai, sinking most of them.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek shouted a fiery denunciation of international Communism in his second speech in two days, the Nationalist president called upon China's youth "to assume a holy mission of crushing the Communist traitors, driving out the Russian aggressors, restoring the Chinese family and rescuing our compatriots on the mainland."

Nationalist warplanes hunted down remnants of the crack Red troops who invaded Hainan Island Monday, the Nationalists said Tuesday they shattered an invasion force on more than 30 ships.

Semi-official dispatches said Nationalist warships engaged more than 70 heavily-armed Red junks under the guns of shore batteries at Nanhwei, 22 miles southeast of Shanghai. Nationalist airforce was reported to have influenced several batteries and sank most of the junks.

Later in the day the warships sighted more than 30 Communist junks farther south and in a running battle sank 17, the dispatches said.

The Nationalists said their landing on Hainan, 150 miles south of Shanghai in Chekiang province, was made to deliver ammunition, medical supplies and communications equipment to the Guerrillas.

The landing force of 400 regulars was met by a force of 3,000 Guerrillas, the Nationalists said. The Guerrilla leader's name was not identified as Gen. Li Wei-Chang.

The report 4 of the mission was accomplished, indicating the regulars had withdrawn.

SHOW WENT ON

Yorkton, Sask., (CP)—Snowblocked roads and suspended train service didn't stop the annual ice frolics staged by the Yorkton Lions Club. A special plane flew in seven Toronto entertaining artists for the performances.

Sights, Sounds of Cockney London Are Disappearing One by One

London, March 29 (CP)— Traditional sights and sounds of cockney London are disappearing one by one.

Latest to go are the straw-hatted flower sellers of Piccadilly who used to stand at the base of the Eros Statue with long baskets and peddle their colorful wares to passers-by in raucous cockney tones.

In recent months statue has been deserted and observers conclude that the flower women are going the way of the pearly-coated street vendor, the women in ostrich-feathered hats, the hurdy-gurdy men and coster donkeys that once characterized London streets.

Even bow bells—the symbol of cockneyism—are silent. The empty steple looks out on Cheapside over the ruins of a church that was ancient when William the Conqueror was crowned. But the great tenor bell, cast in 1699, was destroyed by German bombs.

With its going the essential quotation of pure cockney — one born within the sound of bow bells—seem to have lost its meaning.

Cockney speech, too, is changing under the combined influence of BBC English and Hollywood American. Nowadays Sam Weller would never pronounce his name with a V, as he did in Dickens' famous "Pickwick Papers." The harsh vowels of the modern cockney are not nearly so pronounced as they used to be and fewer aspirants are dropped.

City and District News

22 YEARS' SERVICE WITH COMPANY ENDS

After 22 years' service with the Canadian National Railways in the role of a boiler maker's helper, John F. Walsh, 121 Yeomans Street, has been retired. Throughout his entire period as a railroad employee Mr. Walsh had worked in the Belleville shops, commencing with the company back in 1918.

Monday afternoon in the local shops Mr. E. D. White, locomotive foreman, voiced the appreciation of the company to Mr. Walsh for his long service, while a fellow worker Thomas York expressed the appreciation of the employees. On behalf of the workers Mr. York presented Mr. Walsh with a purse of money.

STREET SWEEPER PUT IN ACTION

The local department of public works today recognized the official arrival of spring as the city street sweeper was put into operation for the first time this year. The appearance of the street sweeper is cleaning up the debris of winter left along thoroughfares is approximately one month later than last year when the machine was put to work during the latter part of February.

City Engineer Charles Mott said today that the street sweeper used by the city is 23 years old but still does a creditable job. Each winter the machine is thoroughly overhauled in preparation for the next season's work.

WINDBREAKERS READY

Leather windbreakers with chenille crests, 25 of them all told, are at McNab's Sport Shop awaiting delivery to the various members of the Rockets Juniors who played in the "S" O.H.A. competition in the district this year. The jackets are the gift of appreciation of the executive of the Belleville Hockey Association.

FOSBRAEY TRIAL DELAYED TO APRIL 11

R. E. Nourse, Picton, defence counsel for James Fosbrey, 28, of Napanee, charged with the knife-slaying of his wife in November, 1949, was granted postponement of the trial until April 11. In asking for postponement, Mr. Nourse said he required additional time to study the case. He was appointed by the Crown to defend Fosbrey.

FRAGMENTS OF ICE FIELDS FLOAT TO BAY

Warmer weather and melting ice and snows have caused the water level in all the rivers to rise considerably in the last few days.

In the lower stretch of the stream between the lower city bridge and the CPR bridge, the icefield is slowly breaking up and disappearing. A long V-shaped wedge extending from the CPR bridge on the west side of the river is all that remains.

Ice breaking above the Canifton dam yesterday increased the volume of water and the river is now clear at that point. Only small patches still cling to the banks at various points.

Toronto Letter Arrives 43 Years Late

Add to the many achievements of Prince Edward County by the record for length of time for delivery of mail.

Subsequent to the story first published in this newspaper of the letter delivered to Mrs. Fred Purtell, of Burrs, after reposing 40 years in the Bloomfield Post Office, comes another from Crofton.

Mrs. Andrew Munro of that community received a letter last week mailed from Toronto 43 years ago on July 13, 1907 to be exact. This letter was forwarded by the District Post Office Inspector with the explanation it had become lodged behind a piece of post office equipment, and had come to light when alterations were being made.

The letter was sent by the late Mrs. Harvey Clark, Toronto, sister-in-law of Mrs. Munro.

Mrs. Rombough, Foxboro, Winner Followell Trophy

Mrs. William Rombough of Foxboro was the winner of the trophy donated to the Y.M.C.A. Effective Speaking Workshop by A. E. Followell. Taking as her topic "Mary, the Queen Mother", she gave a most interesting and interpretive address touching on the important events and traits in the life of the present queen.

Five speakers in all competed for top honors at the closing banquet held in the Y.M.C.A. auditorium. Rutger E. Petersen was chairman. The other finalists were Edward L. Littlejohn, Miss Gladys Lamb, Charles E. Potter and Bruce H. McGregor.

After Vice Marshal C. R. Slemon, as guest speaker of the evening, gave a stirring message on the Air Force and National Defence. He reviewed the rapid demobilization of the Air Force from the war time strength of 250,000 to a strength of 8,000 which, he said, was all too little on which to build a fighting force. By government decree this strength was now maintained at 18,000 which was still insufficient number for the task ahead.

Must Be Prepared

War need not come if we are prepared, the air vice marshal declared, and the first battle will be in the air. It is therefore important that this battle be won to give ourselves time to fight the land and sea battles, he said.

Pitting introduction of the speaker was made by W. J. Waller who referred to the honors conferred on him by the government in recognition of his meritorious service.

Miss B. Goldsberry thanked the speaker for his challenging message.

In proposing the toast to the Y.M.C.A. J. E. Cowan referred to the hundred years of service rendered to youth the world over. The needs of youth in the various aspects of life whether recreational, educational or social were the concern of the association both locally or internationally.

Pioneers In Many Phases

Al. J. Davis the general secretary replied on behalf of the association, indicating that the association had been a pioneer in many movements such as camping, basketball, golf, hi-Y, education and Tuxis and Trail Rangers. These were various levels of youths' needs and interests at which the association did its most effective work for young individuals and groups.

In presenting the trophy Mr. Followell who was introduced by Mrs. J. S. Hayton, expressed delight at the degree of excellence, which had been indicated in every phase of the competition. He felt the Y.M.C.A. was to be commended for such opportunities as had been possible for the benefits of such groups.

John W. Deacon delighted the audience with several fine vocal selections, Miss Deacon accompanied by Mrs. Mary Deacon.

The judges for the occasion were Dr. Bert Howard, Lawrence A. Kells, Everett S. Fairman, T. E. Schwab and Philip Flagler.

Salvation Army College Cadets Present Pageant

A large and appreciative audience enjoyed to the full, the presentation of "The Flame of the Evangel", Biblical dramatization presented by "Standard-Bearers" Session of Cadets from the Salvation Army Officer's Training College in Toronto.

"The Flame of the Evangel" is a pageant portrayal of the message of the church universal from the dawn of Christianity down to the twentieth century. About one hundred performers took part in costume.

The prologue is given by a group of angels in the majestic words, "Hear, O Ye Heavens, and give ear O ye peoples of the earth, for the Eternal Father has spoken. The people that live in darkness have seen a great Light".

In Episode one, the seven churches receive the prophetic message from the Angel of the Covenant and from the Church the Flame of Christianity spreads to all peoples through the centuries.

Carry Out Command

In Episode two, heroic flame bearers through the centuries are seen in review, carrying out our Lord's command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel."

In the epilogue the challenge of Christianity is brought to bear upon the church today.

Special music, part singing and chorus work, were features of the pageant.

The pageant was directed by Colonel Rufus T. Spooner, principal of the William Booth Memorial Training College. Music and chorus direction by Captain

Advertising Farm Produce Would Assure Markets Says OFA Official

"Advertising was the solution put forth by guest speaker V. H. Milburn, as an aid in assuring constant markets for farm products when he addressed the second in a series of agriculture meetings sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce in the Queen Alexandra School last night. The secretary-manager of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture talked on the "Agricultural outlook for 1950."

He quoted figures indicating that the farmer spent very little to advertise his produce. He said that all other industries usually counted on a layout of three per cent. of the gross turnover for advertising. "At the moment he revealed the agricultural industry contributes little to an organized advertising policy."

Mr. Milburn insisted that the agricultural industry must have a specific advertising program. "We must realize, we have to have it" he stated pointing out the importance of advertising in selling farm products."

Mr. Milburn said there were many problems facing agriculture. He suggested adequate markets as one. A farmer could maintain an even standard of living along with other industries, if he at the same time sold the gathering, of 130, that they should be willing to produce food, the others need. "We should be willing to share the things we have with others" he said.

He pictured the farmers as the people who are the cornerstone of democracy and free enterprise.

Mr. Milburn emphasized three lines of the farmer with labor. "We must see that our hungry neighbors fed," he declared, meaning the masses of the United Kingdom and democratic Europe.

"Unless we can show the other people we can do our job of shouldering responsibility we cannot expect to have it," he pointed out. The number one problem was to find markets and the price to maintain a fair standard of living for everyone.

Dealing with the cause of labor unrest Mr. Milburn stated bluntly during the war the farm subsidy was actually a consumer's subsidy established to stave off any possible uprising among the workers. He said the subsidy was cut to one-half in proportion to consumers' wages."

Mr. Milburn revealed that one hour's work today bought more food than any other time since 1913.

Indicating that all industries depended on food for another Mr. Milburn declared "that unless the farmer gets fair prices agriculture and the fellow industries are headed for trouble. This is a shocking thought to leave you with," he said in closing, "but neverthe-less it is a fact."

The speaker was introduced by Bruce Martin and William Ingle-ingale tendered the vote of thanks.

An interlude of piano-accordian and light luncheon followed the address. Mrs. William Warham was at the keyboard.

Door prizes were won by Mr. Thomas Jeffery and Mr. Eric Denyes.

BOOK SURPLUS SHOWN

Cornwall, March 29 — (CP) — A book surplus of more than $5,000 for 1949 was reported at Thursday night's city council meeting by Mayor Aaron Horevitz. Council was told a $14,500 deficit from 1948 had been reduced by $5,200 last year.

Heavings Causes Severe Damage To Tweed Road

Frost and other winter conditions have caused severe damage to a section of Highway 37 extending between Thomasburg and Tweed, causing much inconvenience to traffic.

A large hole is apparent in the road a short distance north of Thomasburg, while the general condition of the roadbed is anything but conducive to easy travelling.

Conditions have reduced the highway to a single lane of traffic and yesterday, it is reported, several motor vehicles had to be towed out of the holes.

Department of Highways workmen with a truck were on duty all night assisting travellers to get through to the more navigable parts of the road. Repairs to the damaged road started today, according to reports from Thomasburg.

Two days ago, it was stated, the damaged part of the highway was in good condition.

Father and Son Banquet at 'Y' Well Attended

The annual Y.M.C.A. father and son supper attracted a large attendance of the youths and their fathers, to the function at which the guest speaker was condemned the Yen. Arthur Smith. Taking as his topic the subject "What have you to declare," the speaker challenged the fathers to consider the development of character as one of the real contributions they can give their sons.

The supper, sponsored by the Y's Men's Club was directed by Ross Booth and the Boys' Work Committee of the club. Gerry Hyde acted as chairman. The speaker was introduced by general secretary Al. J. Davis and thanked by Dr. Jack Marshall. Swimming awards were presented. The Y's Men's Club bowling and table tennis featured the evening's entertainment in which fathers and sons joined in friendly competition.

Federations Formed in Nine Twps. of County

Township federations of agriculture have been organized in the first nine townships in Hastings county during the past week, it is reported by the Ontario Department of Agriculture in their weekly crop report.

One of the first items on the program of the new township organization will be a canvass for a county-wide calfhood vaccination program.

With the approach of spring cultivation farmers are being asked to look for both commercial and registered grain with prices ranked being higher than was originally expected.

Horses in Demand

In Prince Edward county farmers are reporting considerable difficulty in locating good work horses this spring. Cattle buyers purchasing cows for export have not been particularly active in recent weeks.

Local feed prices have been rising steadily with Western feed oats selling for $65 per ton.

Most farmers anticipating tapping this spring have their buckets out and the satisfactory runs being reported to date.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto March 29 (CP)—Prices pushed upwards as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Gains were generally held to small amounts and scattered widely among market leaders. Volume for the first three hours was 95,000 shares.

Finance Minister Abbott's budget statement that the government does not intend to tax capitals gains partially cleared the air for the market. Interest increased slightly and activity continued brisk.

In industrials, utilities, papers, foods and textiles showed major-ities of gains in the groupings.

Junior gold producers perked up led by Upper Canada Mines. Upper Canada, a feature of recent markets, climbed strongly to a new high on 5's. Smaller issues continued brisk traders, Seniors were quiet.

Leading base metals gained while the majority of stocks trading, slipped slightly. Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel and Noranda featured on the upside.

Western oils found support following a steady decline yesterday on profit taking sales. Gains ranged up to 10 cents.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, March 29 (CP)—Cattle prices were about steady at the Ontario stockyards this morning. Receipts: cattle 400; calves 100; hogs 360; sheep and lambs none. Last from yesterday were 200 cattle.

Medium to good weighty steers sold as $22.50-$25.50. Common to medium light steers and heifers brought $20-$22.50 with good quality $23-$23.25. Canners and cutters were $13-$15.50 with common to medium cows $16-$18 a hundredweight. Good bulls sold at $18-$21 with fed yearlings $21-$25.

Calves were steady at $27-$29 for choice vealers with common to medium ranging from $17-$26.

Hog prices were not established.

Water Street Wins Title N.E. League

The Water Street club last night won the championship of the Northern Electric Interdepartmental Hockey League when they defeated the Office squad by a 13-2 score. They won the two-game goals-to-count series by 16-3 having taken the first game 3 - a 5-1 count.

The Streeters also won the Shop Management trophy, which was presented to them following the game by Mr. Ellis Gray. Game, Don Locke, captain of the team, accepted the trophy on behalf of his teammates.

The newly-crowned champions had little difficulty turning back the Office threat last night. They scored three goals in the first period, went to town for six more in the second with a lone return from the pen-pushers and fired three more in the last session with Office responding with one.

The only penalties, two all told, of the game came in the first period when Referees Yorke and Peter Jones banished Rutherford and Raycroft for five minutes for fisticuffing. Otherwise the game was clean fought.

Semark was the big triggerman for the Streeters scoring five goals. Barrett scored the hat trick with as many assists and Locke and McLeod got two apiece. Kerr also scored a single and was credited with one helper.

J. Barrett scored both goals for the losers.

The teams:

Water Street—Goal: Salisbury defence, Ingram, Richards; Gray, Locke; wings, Semark, Hatfield; subs, Kerr, E. Barrett, Carlton Bayreuth, Moore.

Office —Goal Kirconnell; defence, Rutherford, Piperni; centre, Lynch; wings, Barrett, James; subs, Ellard, Little,

New Resuscitator Will be Added To Equipment

In keeping with its policy to provide the most modern equipment available, the Bush Ambulance Service of the Belleville Burial Company Ltd., Campbell Street, has acquired a portable resuscitator—inhalator—aspirator, a combination of three instruments each of which serves a distinctly important part in emergency life-saving.

The instrument will be carried in the company's ambulance at all times, in case of emergency.

The resuscitator will provide mechanical artificial respiration during complete respiratory failure. The inhalator will deliver a flow of oxygen to a breathing patient who needs a higher concentration than is available in atmospheric air.

The aspirator will remove fluid obstructions from the upper air passages and allow oxygen to enter the patient's lungs.

The machine has been accepted by the Council on Physical Medicine of the American Medical Association. Belleville physicians and surgeons have been informed of its availability.

Simple in operation, it can treat three persons simultaneously while a simple switch controls its three methods of treatment.

The machine is being used in virtually all parts of the world and especially for emergency use in hospitals, industrial plants, fire and police rescue departments, beaches, pools and ambulances services.

FLAMES CUT OFF

"The ambassador was sitting on the right side at the front. He moved to the rear to get his chute on. If he hadn't he would have been burned. We were getting ready to jump when the right wing blew and the fire spread to the inside.

"The tanks blew the engine off. I don't know if the whole wing went with it. The fire was pretty terrific. You couldn't tell. The plane staggered. We started going down very fast. I figured we had no more than six or seven seconds left. I went ahead and bailed out.

"I opened the door on the left hand side and jumped. We were at 600 to 800 feet, going into a slow roll."

Long said Trueblood had the plane under control until the explosion. He said it went down fast.

What happened after he jumped, he doesn't know. But it was all a matter of seconds.

From the time the fire was noticed until he jumped there elapsed between 30 and 45 seconds.

He didn't see the crashed plane until he staggered to his feet.

He had managed to cross the fields half way to the burning wreckage when a farmer came up to him and told him the others were dead.

No Exchange of Words

Long, questioned by the reporters, said he could recall no exchange of words as the men met death. The fire was intense.

He was told he had been quoted as saying to people on the scene that he had tried to push the others out of the plane, tried to force them to bail out.

"I hardly think so," he said. "I have no recollection of that now."

"Was there any arguing about what should be done?"

"I can't recall any."

He was asked if he thought sabotage might have caused the fire.

"I have no knowledge of sabotage . . . I hardly think so."

The engine had been working all right recently. The plane, an Embassy plane used by the ambassador for frequent trips, had received a "very good" check before takeoff.

Justice Terms Man Master-Mind Of Stolen Car Ring

Brantford, March 29—(CP) — Justice G. A. Urquhart Tuesday termed James Casey, 40, of Hamilton and formerly of Brantford, as the "master-mind" behind a stolen car ring which operated in Ontario during 1949.

The Justice called Casey "a poor liar" for denying directing operations, as described in court here by three youths now serving prison terms on convictions arising out of the ring's operations.

A suit was brought against Casey by Hugh S. Millar, Brantford car dealer, for $2,800 he lost in the purchase and sale of a flow of oxygen to a breathing patient who needs a higher concentration than is available in atmospheric air.

The aspirator will remove fluid obstructions from the upper air passages and allow oxygen to enter the patient's lungs.

The machine has been accepted by the Council on Physical Medicine of the American Medical Association. Belleville physicians and surgeons have been informed of its availability.

Simple in operation, it can treat three persons simultaneously while a simple switch controls its three methods of treatment.

The machine is being used in virtually all parts of the world and especially for emergency use in hospitals, industrial plants, fire and police rescue departments, beaches, pools and ambulances services.

Paid For Selling Cars

Lennus Patterson, 24, of Timmins, serving four years for receiving stolen cars, testified that Casey masterminded the deals and paid him for selling the cars.

Two youths now serving two years in Guelph Reformatory for similar convictions also testified that Casey made all the decisions." Edmund Bisson, 19, of Winnipeg, and Casey Trueblood, of Toronto, also said that they had given statements to police implicating Casey but that neither had testified against him at the preliminary hearing.

Justice Urquhart said he believed the youths and that he did not think they could have operated as they did had not Casey been arranging thefts and sales of cars.

CIO Textile Chief Says Threats Made Against His Life

Montreal, March 29 — (CP)— A Textile Workers' Union leader today charged he had received anonymous threats against his life only a few hours after he had levelled communist charges against a rival union.

Sam Baron, International vice-president and Canadian director of the Textile Workers Union (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) told The Canadian Press today that he had received two telephone calls threatening him and Aniseo Beaucage, storm centre of the dispute between Baron's union and the United Textile Workers of America (A. F. L.-T. L. C.).

"Beaucage and his wife were threatened as well as me," said Baron. "The calls were anonymous but I have sent Mr. and Mrs. Beaucage out of town for their own safety. The police have been notified."

R. Kent Rowley, Baron's opposite number at the head of the U. T. W., said later that he planned to file a Baron's statement to his union's lawyers "for possible legal action."

The dispute between the two big unions, claiming about 20,000 members in Canada and each struggling to gain majority the ascendency among Montreal's thousands of textile workers, has been boiling for months.

Ousted Months Ago

Beaucage, former business agent and organizer of local 103 of the A. F. L. Union, was ousted several months ago by Rowley.

More recently, Beaucage took part of the local's membership into Baron's C.I.O. Union.

Tuesday, Beaucage issued an affidavit saying he had been a member of the Labor-Progressive party from 1943 to 1948 and that he was fired by Rowley after his refusal to rejoin the party two years ago.

In a statement issued at the same time, Baron labelled four top U. T. W. Canadian district officials communists.

They are named were Rowley; Madeleine Parent, secretary-treasurer of the U. T. W.'s Canadian district; Leo Roback, research and publicity director, and Charles Lipton, organizer.

Rowley said in a prepared statement that "Beaucage was defeated and discredited in his efforts to divide the members of local 102 of our union in Montreal" and Beaucage "is an absolute liar."

Body of Man Missing Since Jan. 4th Found

Peterborough, March 29 (CP) —The body of Ross Woodcock, 27 missing from his home in Norwood since Jan. 4 was found here today in Little Lake. Constables Harold Andrew and Sherman Kelicle saw the body in the water while on their daily check of the river bank and lake.

Woodcock was an employee of the Peterborough Canoe Co. On Jan. 4 he and two other fellow employees did not return to work after the noon hour. They spent the early part of the afternoon together in a beverage room and then the two others, Clifford Smith and Roy Moore, went to a show.

After the show they again met Woodcock in the same beverage room. Finally the party broke up and Woodcock started for the railway station to catch a train for Norwood. It is believed that he fell over a bridge railing at the station and was carried down into the lake. No inquest will be held.

AMBASSADOR STEINHARDT'S TRAGIC DEATH

The world was shocked by the news of the death of United States Ambassador to Canada, the Hon. Laurence Steinhardt, who was killed yesterday when the U. S. Embassy plane which was maintained at Ottawa in connection with the post of ambassadorship to Canada crashed. Mr. Steinhardt had held since 1948, exploded and crashed three miles from the Canadian capital, carrying to their deaths four others. The trip which had begun a few minutes before from Rockcliffe was to have been to Washington.

The Ambassador had had a long and distinguished career for his country since his first appointment as minister to Sweden in 1933 when President Roosevelt appointed him to Sweden. In 1937 he became ambassador to Peru, in 1939 to Russia where he remained until 1941, later to Turkey, then to Czechoslovakia in 1944 and then to that of office at Ottawa. The long and impressive list of appointments he had held shows how greatly honored and regarded he was by his country.

His position as a world statesman was shown in the prominent part he played as a delegate to the International conference in South America of American states and helpframe the declaration of Lima, proclaiming the solidarity of American republics and providing for the meeting of foreign ministers if the peace of the Western Hemisphere were endangered.

He had an "infinite capacity for detail and thoroughness" and was one for whom "no trouble was too great, no toil too petty."

His untimely will greatly miss a statesman of his long experience who was young in years as world statesmen go, but whose gifts had long been recognized.

Just 57 years of age, he had years ahead in which he undoubtedly would have found the opportunity of further service in the diplomatic corps. The seventeen years he had spent in posts throughout the world have been years requiring in a nation's representatives abroad the closest care and capacity for the finest gifts of diplomacy. His record has been one of the greatest success.

Coming to Canada he felt very much as if he were at home and in his years of service here he was fully appreciated and liked by all Canadians with whom he came in contact. In Ottawa his tragic passing is deeply deplored. The Canadian people sympathize with their neighbors, the people of the United States in the loss which has their country as suffered in Mr. Steinhardt's untimely death.

IN 118 LANGUAGES

Five hundred and seventy million copies of the Bible have been issued by the British and Foreign Bible Society which was founded one hundred and forty-five years ago. Just recently Their Majesties the King and Queen visited the Society's headquarters to mark their interest in its work.

The Bible is now published in one hundred and eighteen different languages, the latest addition being Thibetan and to use a common phrase, it is the "world's best seller."

Some facts of the printing and publishing Society stand out. The publisher of the Bible has to compress the text of nearly eight hundred thousand words, the equivalent of ten novels, into a small volume half the size of one novel. The publisher has to find thin paper that is not transparent and then get a printing machine to ink the pages evenly. He must employ very skilled and experienced craftsmen for gilding, case-making and hand binding of the book. When all these problems are satisfactorily solved, he still cannot print the Authorized Version of the Bible without the King's permission for it is Crown copyright.

The history of the printed Bible goes back to the year 1456 when the first translation was issued by Gutenburg.

When James First became king he felt that a new Bible should be prepared and persuaded fifty-four great scholars of his time to undertake the wrok which was completed in 1611. This is known as the Authorized Version and is marked by the beauty of its language and style.

As present day publishing houses are busy trying to catch up on a world shortage of three million Bibles.

Every present joy or sorrow seems the chief.—Shakespeare.

THE FIRST KISS CASE

The class in Theatrical History will please come to order.

Q.—Why are most New York theatres located in the dozen blocks north of 42nd Street?

A.—Because a producer once hired a prima donna in his own theatre.

Wait a minute—let's have a little order in the classroom! The professor isn't in the habit of making statements he can't back up, and if the students will put down their putty-blowers, he'll be glad to present the necessary proof.

Back in the gay and garnish nineties, a man who had made a lot of money in the cigar business built the first Manhattan Opera House, a 2,600-seat temple to Thespis located on Longacre Square which, at the time, was the centre of New York's show business.

This cigar manufacturer was quite an artistic fellow, and for the opening performance he hired can premier of "Cavalleria Rusticana". The opera was new, modern, so badly that he subsequently nicknamed it "Justiciana".

After the premiere, he sponsored several other esthetic flops and finally, after a run of opera hat, he signed over control of his theatre to a pair of hoofers named Leonard Koster and Bud Abbott.

This duo, convinced that art and opulence seldom go together, booked a series of burlesque shows which packed them in, but even though he was getting a lot of the money, the cigar manufacturer's policy didn't sit well with the culture-loving public. When Koster and Abbott cracked jokes on the sumptuous stage he had built for opera singers, he went to the former, and when Messrs. K. and B. signed their names to a program with more padding than pitch, this simmer came to a boiling point.

On the third night of her engagement, the prima donna stormed through the curtains, her appearance was greeted with a monumental hiss from downfront. It was the cigar manufacturer himself, making mean music through his molars.

Koster and Bial, if so happened, were in the theatre that evening, and when they located the hisser they began throwing epithets at him and then knuckles. A free-for-all resulted, but next morning in Jefferson Market Court the judge ruled that in a democracy worth the name a man had a perfect right to hiss a performer in his own theatre.

This vindication, however, was not enough for Koster and Bial. He make up his mind to build a theatre which would put Koster and Bial out of business, and unable to find a suitable site on Herald Square he bought a plot on 42nd Street, an uptown area known in those days as "The Thieves' Lair". "Location doesn't matter," he told his friends, "it's what you put in a theatre that counts."

Well, it turned out he was right as dollar whiskey. Within a few years, his new theatre was one of the most talked-about playhouse in the country, and Koster and Bial's old stand were springing up around it to cash in on the flourishing trade.

As for Koster and Bial, they took a larruping licking from the uptown competition, and in 1893 had to sell their opera house to an up-and-coming showman named Marcy who wanted to build himself a drygoods store.

The rest of the story we guessed, the man who gave out with the history of the 42nd Street area is Lawrence Langner, Oscar Hammerstein I, grandpop of the talented gal pair who sweep, push, helped write and produce "South Pacific".

Forty-second Street these days is again a Thieves' Lair, studded with hot-dog emporiums and flea circuses, and it would be a nice idea if Lawrence Langner took the next musical, "Anna and the King of Siam", into the New York Paramount Theatre, or some up the old neighborhood in deference to the memory of his fabulous grandpappy.

Many observers say that cockney character is changing imperceptibly. Some of the cockney retains his swift, good-humored Cockalorum, but in certain circumstances. His house may be pulled down to make way for a government building, but he goes off cheerfully, if cynically, to find another home.

London historian George Edingey wrote recently:

"In my opinion the cockney make-up is essentially the product of the city always in the throes of change that linkmen and citizens come back to the green and Pearly King have to go.

Edinger defined the leading cockney qualities as "quick humor, ready acceptance of experience, helpfulness in trouble and a lack of imagination built up by centuries of habit." He is taking things as they come.

"You must not seek the cockney in the few lingering relics of yesterday: the street market in Bermondsey or Berwick Street or the occasional glow of the chestnut seller's brazier.

Western Germany Aid is Needed Says Churchill

By Dewitt Mackenzie

(Associated Press Staff Analyst)

Winston Churchill livened a debate in the House of Commons Tuesday by reiterating his controversial thesis that the "active" aid of western Germany is essential to the defence of Europe.

"I see no reason why the Germans should not aid in the defence of their own country and of western Europe," declared Churchill. "There can be no hope of a United States of Europe for many and there is no hope for Germany except with a free and United Europe."

Of course, that is strong words for most Europeans, who twice in a generation have seen mighty armies of Germans hurled into a war of wholesale conquest. The world twice has sworn it will never again would Germany be permitted to commit further aggression.

It's not surprising that Churchill's proposal would challenge to his viewpoint. Yet the old maestro, who has been through many times on great issues, is sticking a view widely held by objective observers.

Churchill's idea in no way challenges the Atlantic agreement plan to prevent Germany from launching further aggression. It would be a mistake to let her get out of hand again. But that can be done through the many built-in safeguards—the maintenance of a safe but reasonable control over Germany.

Must be Made Part

Having provided this control Germany must be made a part of the European community of nations, if the continent is to regain its vigor.

"We can keep a country quiet by force, but you can't make it think right by force."

Moral and spiritual rehabilitation will come through close collaboration with right-minded neighbors. And in this Germany's neighbors—the victors in the Great War— must initiate the reform.

Apropos of this, Churchill uttered a warning of a kindred long-time order when in the House of Commons he declared Britain and France could combine and bring Germany to quick rank and "lasting association with them." He added:

"The three countries, forgetting present friends and horrible deeds and tragedies of the past can make the core or nucleus upon which all the other civilized democracies of Europe can one day rally and combine."

SHOTS AND PILLS—A PLACE FOR EACH

The advantages of injecting a drug much more than does by mouth are many. When a drug is injected, the doctor knows that the whole dose is used. The patient takes a drug by mouth he may decide that the dose is "too strong" and take less than what he thinks is right. Upon injection, he is immediately aware that he is injected. If taken by mouth it may not be completely absorbed—some may be "hustled" through the digestive tract incident to diarrhea so may even be vomited.

Occasionally in the presence of a peptic ulcer or other stomach disturbance, drugs taken by mouth may produce nausea or other distress. When the drug is injected this possibility is avoided.

Some drugs are not effective when taken by mouth. Insulin is an example of this. Other drugs must be injected into a blood vessel for the reason that they are destroyed by mouth and too irritating to inject below the skin.

Sometimes a drug is more effective when taken by mouth, and does not cause pain. Aspirin and other, there would seem to be very scant need for injecting it. Iron, for example, is usually well tolerated when taken in appropriate form by mouth. The most the need for injecting iron is highly questionable.

Hormones are largely destroyed by the digestive process and are totally ineffective by mouth. Some hormones are highly effective when taken by mouth Liver extract is one of these. Others because the equivalent in terms of the original product would injected upon the patient the difficult task of consuming great quantities of the original material.

Liver extract is used for certain specific disorders—pernicious anemia being the chief of these. Why there is little use in this disease, Simple or nutritional anemia is wasting a lot of valuable time—sometimes some money.

Certain abnormal symptoms of the menopause—change of life—can be readily controlled by the mouth or by injection. If the symptoms can be controlled by taking a pill by the mouth, what useful purpose is served by taking the drug by injection? The answer is that there is nothing is gained by injecting the drug. Swallowing a pill usually relieves the symptoms.

I believe that the method of medication by mouth is superior to that by injection in this disorder, for the reason that the digestive

In one at least of our great Canadian universities, they have a first-year course in what is called essential English.

This course is to teach the proper use of English. Students are written, to students who have achieved university standing but who are quite either to speak or write their native tongue correctly.

The establishment of this course is a astounding commentary on our high schools. If the matriculants have mastered the subjects necessary to entering a university without having mastered the simple use of English, how well are we to suppose the other subjects have been taken in?

Sometimes it would appear that the idea of "higher education" has taken root in our educational system long before the pupils are properly intruded into the rest of our social structure. The principle of pushing pupils through, regardless of their standing, in the public and secondary schools, has been spreading fast in the past few years. No matter how much time he may have with chatter about child psychology and the young idea, he can be clear that by holding it back in school, there is hardly a youngster living who does not know that it takes very little pressure nowadays to get a child into a "higher city are "cram" schools which specialize in getting students by the examinations the way horses are schooled for the jumps. There cannot be much education in that.

No: it is the "welfare state" idea, in short. Nowadays, everybody, has to be taken care of; and education has to be educational. Life is to be a nice, soft planing mill, out of which we all emerge without a place touching

EMOTIONAL INSTABILITY

Man has learned how to dominate his universe; now he has to learn how to dominate his emotions.

There is a school of thought today which holds that our present emotional stability arises from the fact that people in this age are frustrated. One feels like asking why are people frustrated. Perhaps they have more liberty and more things to occupy their attention than ever before.

The truth of the matter is that we are not frustrated but emotionally depleted by too much speed, too much work, too constant excitement, sedentary occupations, too many cocktails, and too little rest.

Accordingly we have come to a state where we are going so fast emotionally—almost at supersonic speed—that we have no time to reflect upon the real goals of life, to catch up the loose ends. Perhaps many people have already reached emotional instability, but emotionally unstable we certainly are. Any individual who learns how to control his emotions learns how to live. We live in a day in which the emotions of is people are kept in the forefront of self-preservation. They use their emotions to

By Billy Rose

THE FIRST KISS CASE

The class in Theatrical History will please come to order.

Q.—Why are most New York theatres located in the dozen blocks north of 42nd Street?

A.—Because a producer once hired a prima donna in his own theatre.

Wait a minute—let's have a little order in the classroom! The professor isn't in the habit of making statements he can't back up, and if the students will put down their putty-blowers, he'll be glad to present the necessary proof.

Back in the gay and garnish nineties, a man who had made a lot of money in the cigar business built the first Manhattan Opera House, a 2,600-seat temple to Thespis located on Longacre Square which, at the time, was the centre of New York's show business.

This cigar manufacturer was quite an artistic fellow, and for the opening performance he hired can premier of "Cavalleria Rusticana". The opera was new, modern, so badly that he subsequently nicknamed it "Justiciana".

After the premiere, he sponsored several other esthetic flops and finally, after a run of opera hat, he signed over control of his theatre to a pair of hoofers named Leonard Koster and Bud Abbott.

This duo, convinced that art and opulence seldom go together, booked a series of burlesque shows which packed them in, but even though he was getting a lot of the money, the cigar manufacturer's policy didn't sit well with the culture-loving public. When Koster and Abbott cracked jokes on the sumptuous stage he had built for opera singers, he went to the former, and when Messrs. K. and B. signed their names to a program with more padding than pitch, this simmer came to a boiling point.

On the third night of her engagement, the prima donna stormed through the curtains, her appearance was greeted with a monumental hiss from downfront. It was the cigar manufacturer himself, making mean music through his molars.

Koster and Bial, if so happened, were in the theatre that evening, and when they located the hisser they began throwing epithets at him and then knuckles. A free-for-all resulted, but next morning in Jefferson Market Court the judge ruled that in a democracy worth the name a man had a perfect right to hiss a performer in his own theatre.

ABBOTT ANNOUNCES SURPLUS OF $11,000,000

Fourth One Shown By Finance Dept. Since End Of War

Dollar Devaluation Improves Canada's Trading Position

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 28 (CP)—A 1949-50 budgetary surplus of $111,000,000—the fourth consecutive surplus since the end of the war—was reported Tuesday night by Finance Minister Abbott in his budget speech to the Commons.

The surplus for the fiscal year ending Friday compared with $305,000,000 in 1948-49, $670,000,000 in 1947-48 and $273,000,000 in 1946-47—a string of deficits extending back to 1930 was broken.

Although 1949-50 accounts have not been closed, Mr. Abbott said it appears that revenues totalled $2,949,000,000 and expenditures $2,838,000,000.

In his budget speech at the fall session following the general election last year, Mr. Abbott had estimated that he would end the current year with a surplus of about $90,000,000. At that time he estimated revenues would total approximately $2,845,000,000 and expenditures $2,460,000,000.

In 1948-49, revenues were $2,771,400,000 and expenditures $2,175,900,000. In 1949-50, the net debt, reflecting the amount of the surplus, dropped from $11,176,100,000 to $11,065,100,000.

Mr. Abbott's figures were contained in the fiscal portion of his speech, which preceded the section containing proposed tax changes for the coming year.

Plans Surplus Next Year

If no tax changes were made in 1950-51, he estimated revenues would total $3,040,000,000. Current estimates of expenditures for the coming year, which do not take into account any new capital expenditures, have been fixed at $2,-300,000,000.

This would leave a budgetary surplus of $122,000,000 before any tax changes and before provision for unforeseen expenditures.

In the $300-word fiscal portion of his speech, Mr. Abbott made these points:

1. During the current year $486,000,000 obtained from various government transactions was used to reduce the outstanding public debt.

2. In the last two years, a fall in Canadian overseas exports of about $600,000,000 has been more than offset by an increase of $700,000,000 in Canadian exports to United States.

The government has been a little disappointed in the apparent inability of overseas countries to finance their traditional share of the import market during the last year.

4. It should be noted that devaluation of the dollar last September has, under present conditions, improved Canada's trading position.

5. Canada's gold and dollar reserves, at a low of $461,000,000 on December 31, 1947, climbed to $1,204,200,000 at the close of business March 22, an increase of $87,000,000 in the quarter.

Weekly Wage Up 3 P.C.

6. Average weekly wages rose about three percent during the year while cost of living advanced "barely" one per cent.

7. The outlook for 1950, it seems, is that the volume of employment will increase moderately, but it is expected that prices will stay with growth in total labor income.

Consensus of informed views was the outlook for 1950 is that employment, output and prices will be both Canada and United States will show no great change over 1949.

U.S. Government revenues remain "remarkably" buoyant despite the successive reductions in tax rates.

10. A new issue of long-term government bonds will be sold to provide for redemption of the 3 per cent victory loan three percent bonds which mature June 15, 1951, and an issue of three percent bonds sold in 1935 and due to mature June 1, 1955.

Mr. Abbott reiterated earlier government statements that unemployment during winter months was regional and that the action of pulp and paper companies in reducing logging operations while reducing inventories

It would expect the woods operations next winter to be at least normal level," he said.

"We shall continue to give all the help we can in finding markets for such other commodities as may from time to time find their market upset."

Must Be Ready to Co-Operate

But, he added, the Federal government cannot and should not attempt to assume responsibility for all regional problems. It should be ready to be said, to co-operate with provincial governments and through them with municipalities in solving regional problems that threaten country-wide prosperity.

Besides this co-operation, he said, the Federal government should endeavor to create a favorable climate for healthy economic expansion and development. It should exercise care in planning, timing and giving capital and development expenditures. It should recognize a special responsibility for the promotion and development of basic primary industries and other industries of national significance.

At the outset, Mr. Abbott dealt with the question of trade, stating the rise and fall of exports and imports in overseas countries.

Canada's exports have fallen from a post war-peak of $3,120,000,000 in the 12 month period ended March 31, 1948, to $2,-000,000,000 in the 12 month period ended Feb. 28, 1950.

Canada's imports are running at the rate of about $2,250,000,000 in 1949, however, Mr. Abbott said, he was not satisfied with the import picture.

"Frankly we have been a little disappointed in the apparent inability of overseas countries to resume their traditional share of our import market during the past year," he said.

Drifted Down Since 1919

"Late in 1946 our overseas imports were about $500,000,000; they rose steadily to $800,000,000 early in 1949, but from that point they have been drifting downward and now are at about $800,000,000.

"If our overseas friends could get back their traditional share of our import market, they would be receiving an additional $200,000,000 a year with which to balance and eventually expand their purchases of Canadian products."

He said it was too early to judge the full results of devaluation of currencies by various countries last September. But the government's action in devaluation had the effect of improved Canada's trading position.

He noted that net farm income was slightly lower than in 1948, but the farm cash income was almost identical with the record reached in 1948.

Despite export marketing difficulties for such items as fish, returns to fisherman in 1949 were satisfactory, domestic demand being particularly good throughout the year, said Mr. Abbott.

"In these lines of production where our farmers and fishermen rely primarily on export markets we kept the outlook for 1950 is less certain, but I would like to remind honorable members that new markets on this side of the Atlantic have been developed in recent years, and can, I think, be still further developed, especially for high-quality products.

May Charge Offices

Turning to government accounts, Mr. Abbott said he hoped that by the end of the year government will be able to arrange to charge post offices for accommodation and other services. In turn the post office would charge other departments for mail services, now furnished free of charge.

In its loans, investments and contributions during the year, the government ended with a cash surplus of $67,000,000.

He outlined the transactions undertaken to finance the debt and predicted that in 1950-51 only modest reductions will be made in the funded debt.

SWEET INCOME

Canadian maple sugar and syrup sold in 1949 was worth $9,-120,000.

Highlights of Fiscal Portion of Abbott's Budget

Ottawa, March 28 (CP)—Highlights of the fiscal portion of Finance Minister Abbott's budget speech:

Estimated budgetary surplus of $111,000,000 for the 1949-50 fiscal year, compared with $305,000,000 for 1948-49.

Revenue for 1949-50 estimated at $2,549,000,000, a decrease of $222,800,000.

Expenditures estimated at $2,-438,000,000, an increase of $261,600,000.

Estimated net debt at end of fiscal year $11,065,000,000, a decrease of $111,100,000.

Canada's reserves of gold and United States dollars totalled $1,204,200,000 at March 25, compared with $ flow of $461,000,000 in December, 1947, and with $1,117,100,000 at Dec. 31, 1949.

Consensus of informed views about the outlook for 1950 is that employment, output and price levels in both Canada and the United States will show no great change from 1949.

Volume of employment still increase moderately but it is possible that it may not catch up with growth in total labor supply.

Devaluation of the Canadian dollar has improved Canada's trading position.

The government is a little disappointed at the apparent inability of overseas countries to resume their traditional share of the Canadian import market.

Currency Changes Play Role In Improving Trade Position

Ottawa, March 28 (CP)— Devaluation of the Canadian dollar last September, under conditions at present prevailing, has improved Canada's trading position, Finance Minister Abbott said Tuesday night in the fiscal portion of his budget speech.

He felt the currency changes which took place generally last fall should be beneficial not only in helping to correct the imbalances in the economic relationships between North America and the rest of the world.

"On the other hand, he emphasized that currency changes of themselves are no cure for basic problems of maladjustment. They could do little more than provide time for more fundamental measures."

Price adjustments still were going on around the world, but the effect of devaluation on Canadian trade figures was already noticeable and in a satisfactory direction," said Mr. Abbott.

Canadian imports from the United States have been declining for the last four months, despite the relaxation of import controls while exports have been increasing. For those four months, an adverse balance of trade with the U.S. of nearly $100,000,000 a month ago has been reduced to $15,-000,000.

Little Disappointed

Of trade generally, Mr. Abbott said Canada has been "a little disappointed" at the apparent inability of overseas countries to resume their traditional share of Canada's import market.

"If our overseas friends could get back their traditional share of our import market," he said, "they would be earning an additional $200,000,000 a year with which to balance and eventually expand their consumption of Canadian products."

Canada had taken special measures to help overseas countries overcome difficulties, "but we cannot continue indefinitely, nor should we convert temporary devices into permanent policies."

"It continues, however, to be our policy to encourage as large an increase as possible in our overseas imports, within the framework of our international obligations."

RATES

4. Farmers and fishermen are being given a choice in the manner in which they want to apply depreciation allowances "to their assets, closely-held companies of the "family" type are being given the option of taxing their undistributed surpluses; a wider group of firms is going to get a tax concession; and there is relief for small business.

The effect of adjustments are being proposed to bring the British preferential rate more into line with those existing in the Geneva agreement. There would be no change in the U.S. rate.

That was the 1950-51 budget.

No Headline Elements

It had none of the headline elements of the pre-election submarine budget a year ago.

That time, Mr. Abbott was free-wheeling in the black and chopped the income tax revenue by $150,000,000. This $150,000 low bracket wage-earners they didn't have to pay taxes any more.

This time, he told the House and the country frankly, things are not different. He used these words:

"Unless we are prepared to reduce the level or scale of government activities we must now accept $2,400,000 budgets in the future years. Nor can we escape the tax implications of this conclusion."

That $2,400,000,000 figure is the estimate in this new budget. It is that total—$2,438,000,000 at present amount—which Mr. Abbott said he expects to get in revenue to meet his estimated expenditures of $2,410,000,000. This will leave him with a surplus of $2,000,000 to take off the net debt.

Less Revenue Anticipated

Observers noted that while Mr. Abbott is not changing the tax table he is budgetting for $115,-000,000 less in revenue than he got in 1949-50. Officials said this is because 1950-51 will be the first year to show the full effect of last year's major tax cuts. They apparently were only partially reflected in 1949-50 totals.

Mr. Abbott backed up his prediction of big budgets for the future by pointing to heavy and continued government expenditures for social security, defence and items of similar nature. If the international situation improved, defence costs might drop, but it would be a "bold man" who would make that prediction.

J. M. Macdonnell (Conservative, Greenwood), Progressive Conservative financial critic, quickly seized on the lack of tax cuts as he briefly opened opposition criticism of the budget.

Just Scraping Alone

The rates, he said, were "somewhat fairer." There now was no election in the offing and the government's story was that "we are just scraping alone." The opposition had not expected cuts now.

Mr. Abbott said his few tax concessions — those for toilet soap, orphanages and for forest and dairy drinks — would bring a tax loss of more than $2,000,000. He hoped to recover "at least" that amount through the new depreciation allowance provisions.

This arrangement, which Mr. Abbott conceded was too complicated to summarize fully, is aimed at encouraging new corporations to pay "reasonable" dividends while making it impossible for them to hold on to profits to escape taxes by their growth without imposing heavy additional tax burdens on shareholders.

Rate on Surpluses

Briefly, the government's formula is for a 15-per-cent tax rate on surpluses currently which would eliminate future need of paying personal income tax or perhaps a considerably - higher rate.

Mr. Abbott told farmers and fishermen they can establish their depreciation allowances — amounts deducted from taxable income to reflect wear and tear on equipment — either on a new basis introduced last year or on the previous method. Once they decided to use the new method they could not switch back. Some businessmen got a break in corporation taxes. Last year's reduction in this tax on businesses earning less than $10,000 a year will be extended to a wider group of firms. The reduction—from the normal 33 per cent to 10 per cent — originally was restricted, in the case of corporations related to each other, to only one of each group. It is now retroactive to Jan. 1, 1949.

Nobs, companies will be barred from getting tax concessions if there is a related ownership of 75 per cent or more of common stock.

Mr. Abbott said, for those who had been concerned about the possibility, that the government is not going to tax capital gains. The three-man income tax appeal board will continue to deal with cases which involve, among other things, capital gains.

The table was discarded for ice cream and related products last year to encourage their consumption at a time when sales of other milk products were dropping. This concession had been sought by the dairy industry.

DISEASE TOLL

For the 26 years from 1921 to 1946, more than 88,000 Canadians died from pneumonia.

Tariff Structure Realigned to Open Doors Wider

Ottawa, March 29—(CP)—Canada realigned her tariff structure Tuesday night to open the doors a bit wider to United States goods and to cut down a segment of the British preferential treatment enjoyed by Commonwealth countries.

A major part of the reshuffle, announced by Finance Minister Abbott in his budget speech in the Commons, eliminates a 10-per-cent dumping duty imposed by Commonwealth countries on some 22 items bearing a tariff rate of more than 15 per cent.

Other changes and reductions, in line with Canada's policy of eventually to equalize her tariff rates with all Geneva agreement countries, include:

1. Elimination of the British preference on plate and reduction of the tariff to all members of the 26 Geneva agreement on tariffs and trade from 17½ per cent to 15 per cent of the shipment's value.

2. Dates brought in for packaging in Canada reduced to three from one-cent-per-pound on British shipments and 15-cents-per-pound on other Geneva-agreement countries. Shipments from countries outside the agreements get a reduction from 21¿ cents to one cent.

3. The British preferential tariff on manufactured or unmanufactured fur or phonograph records reduced from 10 per cent to free.

4. Exemption of settlers effects increased from $1,000 to $1,500, "settlers" being those whose effects presents are completely exempt.

5. Machinery parts to make sudden, sharp-rate changes on United States fresh fruits and vegetables eliminated and replaced by a more rigid pattern.

6. The Canada-United States customs effect June 1, 1930, are in keeping with changes made by Canada at the 1947 Geneva conference to cut down the preference granted the United Kingdom and other countries.

Consolidate Tariffs

Along with the realignment, Mr. Abbott announced that a further consolidation of Canadian tariffs to get Canada ready for another round of bargaining at Torquay, England, next Spring, when about 40 countries will be invited at the fourth post-war session of international tariff negotiations.

The Geneva agreement now encompasses about 33 countries, Mr. Abbott did not disclose which other nations or countries will be invited to Torquay.

Reimposition of a heavy tariff against British plate was among the Anglo-Canadian-American negotiations at Geneva. Under the old system, British plate from the U.K. worth of tin plate from the U.K. last year, but obtained $3,600,000 worth of it, which had to pay 17½-per-cent rate.

Imports Not Required

Government officials say that eventually they hope to be able to produce all the tin plate from domestic sources to meet requirements and no further imports will be required.

Under the settlers' Effects change, a new citizen arriving in Canada with $1,500 worth of effects would pay duty on only $200. Under the old exemption rules, he paid duty on $700.

Establishment of a rigid pattern of rates on imports of fresh fruits and vegetables is expected to have a stabilizing influence on stabilization of the U.S. industry.

For example, under the new system, Canada could announce sharp advances in its tariff during the harvest period as a means of protecting its domestic production.

The new pattern sets out two tariff rates, one for the period of embargo of value and the other a fixed rate per pound. The rates vary for each category of fruits and vegetables.

Canada's Reserves of Gold And United States Dollars Show Increase Says Abbott

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)—Canada's reserves of gold and United States dollars reached a total of $1,204,200,00 by Saturday last, an increase of $87,100,000 over the $1,117,100,000 reported at Dec. 31 1949, Finance Minister Abbott told the Commons Tuesday night in the fiscal portion of his 1950-51 budget speech.

This represented a substantial increase over the low of $461,-000,000 touched in December, 1947, when the government plugged the gold-dollar drain by instituting widespread bans on imports from U.S. dollar areas. Many of those prohibitions since have been relaxed or dropped outright.

Mr. Abbott said this latest increase was accounted for largely by a rise in the U.S. dollars held by other governments.

"To the extent that these balances are abnormally high and may subsequently reduced it means that some of our exports in coming months will be paid for in dollars which we would not bring in new receipts of exchange.

"To this extent, our reserves at their current level include the proceeds of some future earnings on which have in effect been received in advance."

Season of Transfers

He noted too, that the approaching second quarter of the calander year is the season for heavy transfers of earning on U.S. investments in Canada, ,for that reason, he expected the reserves may show a similar decline during the next two or three months

"However," he added, "I would not, of course, venture to make any prediction in respect to the probable net change in our reserves for the new fiscal year" as a whole.

For 1949, preliminary estimates indicate the surplus on international current account totalled approximately $180,000,000. On the capital account, notable features were increases by the United Kingdom under the 1946 loan and a "fairly substantial" inflow of capital from the United States for direct investment, chiefly in connection with oil developments in western Canada.

Gold production, which serves to increase the reserves, also has been showing a "steady and welcome" increase each year and in 1949 totalled $148,000,-000.

'Franking' Privileges May be Dropped Hint by Abbott

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott suggested in the Commons Tuesday night that the government is thinking of dropping the "franking" privileges which government departments use the mails free.

In the fiscal portion of his 1950-51 budget speech, he noted that the post office is paying its own way, when revenue activities in letter rates are included, and proceeds of some future earnings on

"In due course," he went on, "I would hope we can arrange that it will be reflected in the full proper expenses of its operations, that it will charge other departments for services, and that it will be able to show a modest surplus on a commercial basis of accounting."

Expected Provinces Will Renew Tax Agreements With Govt.

Ottawa, Mar. 28 (CP).—Finance Minister Abbott Tuesday night indicated in his budget speech that he expects the provinces to renew tax taxation agreements with the Federal Government.

Renewal of the agreements, due to expire March 31, 1952, will be discussed at a Dominion-Provincial conference in Ottawa next roundland is due to sign an agreement shortly. This will leave only Ontario and Quebec outside the agreement with the Federal Government.

Mr. Abbott said that no matter what may be the eventual outcome of the Ontario negotiations, he think it is fair to assume that it will be possible to "maintain" the net burden on the Federal budget."

He made the statement after saying that in 1949-50 statutory subsidies and compensation under the tax rental agreements totalled $149,000,000 and that the cost of the remaining term of the agreements the annual payments to the provinces "will be less than they were this year, whether or not any further tax reduction measures should occur in the next year or two."

Estimates Are Down

The 1950-51 estimates show that payments in the coming fiscal year are expected to total $127,534,720. Of this, $100,000,000 represents advances gave the Federal government almost interest free, and of the three main tax fields—personal income tax, corporation tax, and succession duties.

In return the Federal government undertook to make payments based on population and the value of gross national production. It was agreed that the payments would not drop below an agreed level, regardless of economic conditions.

The 1950-51 estimated payments, with the comparative 1949-50 figures in brackets, will be divided as follow:

Newfoundland, $7,000,000 ($4,-843,000); Prince Edward Island, $2,100,00 ($1,900,000); Nova Scotia, $12,000,000 ($10,000,000); New Brunswick, $10,300,000 ($9,-200,000); Manitoba, $16,000,000 ($14,400,000); Saskatchewan, $16,-500,000 ($15,100,000); Alberta, $15,900,000 ($15,200,000); British Columbia, $27,300,000 ($24,300,-000).

The figures do not include the per capita subsidies and other annual payments to the provinces.

Debt Reduced to $11,665,000,000 House is Told

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)— Canada's net debt, pushed to a peak of $13,421,405,490 by heavy war-time borrowings, has been reduced to $11,655,000,000. Finance Minister Abbott disclosed Tuesday night in his budget speech.

The net debt was a mere $3,-152,239,214 at the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939. Heavy wartime expenditures sent it skyrocketing, but four consecutive surpluses since the end of the war have helped to whittle it down.

In the 1949-50 fiscal year ending March 31, the debt dropped by $111,-100,000 compared with a slash of $595,000,000 in the previous year.

Effective Dates Of New Budget

Ottawa, Mar. 29 (CP).—Effective dates of the new tax changes in Finance Minister Abbott's budget:

Disposal of eight per cent sales tax on ice cream, soft drinks and prepared whipping cream — immediately.

Repeal of five per cent excise tax on toilet soaps—immediately.

Repeal of eight per cent excise tax on purchases by defined classes of persons for the purpose of aged or infirm persons—July 1, 1950.

Change in application of 10 per cent excise tax on profits of related companies—Retroactive to Jan. 1, 1949.

Increase from five to 15 per cent in British preferential tariff on tin plate—June 1, 1950.

Other minor and technical tariff changes—immediately.

BRITISH HIGH POINT

British exports last year totalled $4,300,000,000 — an all-time record.

UNMINED RESOURCES

Coal reserves in Alberta are currently estimated at 46,500,000 tons.

Capital Gains will Not be Taxed Says Abbott

Ottawa, Mar. 29 (CP).—Finance Minister Abbott said Tuesday night in his budget speech, "it is not the policy of the government to tax capital gains".

Touching on the subject because of "recent public interest" in it, he said the income tax appeal board has been established to deal with appeals on individual cases which involve, among other things —capital gains.

The three-man board was being authorized to hold one-man sittings "in order to facilitate appeal procedure". Officials said later that appeals are coming in at a rate which has started to pile up a backlog.

Mr. Abbott said:

"Under any income tax law there is always a very difficult problem in drawing a line between gains which are income from carrying on a trade or business and those which are not. To my knowledge no tax legislation has ever been passed in any country that has removed all doubts on this score.

"In the end, where our basis of income tax had its origin, the matter has been settled almost entirely by the courts, taking into account the facts in each individual case. Much as I would like to introduce greater certainty, I do not think we can do so by legislation."

The appeal board had been established to deal with such questions. Its three members now would be able to hear more hearings individually instead of all together as in the past. Appeals to the taxpayer would be allowed to appeal directly to the Exchequer Court rather than going directly to the Appeal Board.

The three-man board findings now go to the Exchequer Court if the taxpayer wishes to move to take a case to the court.

SOAP ICE CREAM

See Little Change

Officials of leading soap manufacturing firms at Toronto could see little change in prospect as a result of removal of the five-per-cent excise tax on toilet soaps.

An official of the Procter and Gamble Company thought any slight reductions might be made after Easter, but Donald Wilkins, vice-president of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company, saw no immediate change in prices.

The sales manager of a liquid toilet soap manufacturer, W. J. Evans of the W. J. Gage Company at Toronto, said however that immediate saving would result to customers buying products on which the tax applied. He said that the tax charged now is an extra so the saving could be passed on to customers at once.

There was general approval of the dropping of the sales tax on products for hospitals and institutions for toe aged and infirm. Stuart J. Sutherland, director of the Children's Aid Society of Toronto, which has 3,000 children in its care, said annually he pay from $3,000 to $4,000 for their soap.

Great Saving Seen

A great saving on medicines and such items as dishes was also forecast by Mrs. F. A. Mitchell, superintendent of the Women's House for Aged Women at Toronto. Mrs. Mitchell said that she wished the tax had been lifted several years ago—just finished redecorating the home.

Another corroto none for the tax will get some relief with save from $2,500 to $2,500 a year on drugs, medicines, dressings, disinfectants and other items.

A C. Brodrick of St. Catharines, president of the Ontario Association of Agriculture, said that the proposed change in farmers in two systems of depreciation accounting is in line with recommendations adopted by the O.F.A. last year.

Continue Old System

Farmers and fishermen will be given a choice between the old system, of straight depreciation on the capital equipment, or use the new method which will mean the farm or fishing equipment as a depreciation allowance for deduction on a sliding scale.

The choice should be allowed, Brodrick said, because a number of farmers and fishermen have just started filing returns. Farmers for instance were getting used to the old, simpler system, but there were advantages to the new method and many might wish to take advantage of it.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. Sid Demorest, Stirling, is a patient in the General Hospital, Belleville, following an operation on Monday.

Mr. Walter Malyea, a former Bellevilleite now barbering in Toronto, is visiting friends in the city.

Miss Patricia Holland, Reg'N., following a week's vacation in Toronto, returned to home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Morrison, and Wayne, were recent guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Jones, of Crofton.

On a routine tour of inspection, Mr. J. K. Crawford, and Mr. W. C. Barclay, principals of Bloomer and Crawford, stockbrokers, with offices in Toronto and other centres in Ontario, visited Mr. Robert Chadwick of the Belleville branch yesterday. They will continue to another branch sometime today.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Black returned home on Monday night from a winter vacation in Miami, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Ames of Campbellford, have moved to Belleville, and will reside at 333 Bleecker Avenue.

Mrs. A. W. Fry, of Gananoque, is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Philip Burton, Octavia Street.

The B.B.T. Nature Club met recently at the home of Miss Nellie Anderson, William Street, and were fortunate in having as their guest speaker Mr. A. Martin of Ancaster, a former president of the Field Naturalist Club. Mr. Martin showed a large number of colored slides of wild life.

DIAMOND ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Maracle are today quietly celebrating their diamond wedding anniversary at their home in Deseronto. Sixty years ago they were married at the Anglican church here by the Reverend W. Anderson.

They have one daughter and two sons living: Mrs. H. Bartram, of Wallaceburg, Ont.; Theodore, of Shannonville, and Freeman, at home. One son, Wheeler, missing overseas in War I.

There are no grandchildren.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Maracle on this special occasion.

Women's Activities

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District— The March meeting of White's Woman's Association was held at the parsonage on last Thursday afternoon with 13 members and two visitors in attendance.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Glen Meyers, and the devotional period was taken by Mrs. Fred Dudley. The hymns were given by Mrs. Dudley.

The minutes of February meeting were read and approved. Verses of scripture were used for the roll call. Mrs. Mooney and Mrs. C. Ketcheson paid dues. It was decided to purchase cups, saucers, and silver for White's Church. Mrs. C. Ketcheson offered to count the silver. Mrs. L. Hunt offered to make cases of flannelette for the silver. Tea towels for White's Church were handed in by Mrs. B. Westover and Mrs. G. Meyers. Mrs. A. Jones paid $1.00 for quilting which was done by a few of the ladies last month.

Birthday donations were made by Mrs. G. Meyers, Mrs. Leonard Young, Mrs. C. Rush for Mrs. Clare Millar; Mrs. A. Jones for Mr. Donald Jones, and Mrs. Walter Jones for Master Larry Billham, whose birthdays were celebrated in March.

Mrs. Glen Meyers took charge of the program. Readings "The Neighbor Man;" "The Chain Letter" and "Sleight of Hand on the Milky Way" were given by Mrs. A. Jones, Mrs. R. Ketcheson and Mrs. Ross Mills. Mrs. C. Ketcheson gave a reading, "Glad I'm Living" by the author Edna Jacques. This was followed by an account of the Jacques family, who resided in Western Canada and were former acquaintances of the Rev. A. C. McCallum.

A contest with answers from the word "shamrock" was won by Mrs. R. Ketcheson who received a prize.

The hostess served refreshments assisted by Mrs. C. Rush and Mrs. G. Meyers.

Housewives Get Little Benefit From Budget

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 29. (CP)—The kids may be happy about Finance Minister Abbott's budget and income tax payers may heave a sigh of relief. But it isn't going to cut much ice with Canadian housewives.

On the domestic side of the balance sheet the minister has retented only by removing the five-per-cent excise tax on toilet soaps. This won't make much difference when a housewife goes shopping for a cake of face soap — a fraction of a cent will hardly affect her druggist's prices.

On the other hand newlyweds outside of Canada won't have to slt on their wedding presents for six months before being able to send an invited all to visit her in her new home in West Huntingdon. Normal refreshments were served, and everyone enjoyed a social hour.

taken from all foodstuffs.

However, while mother mourns the passing of sweetness down at the corner soda-bar may be toasting Mr. Abbott with a milk-shake. It may not make much difference to their weekly allowances but it is the same line the minister has cut the eight-per-cent sales tax from ice cream and soft drinks."

Forty Girl Friends Honor Bride-Elect With Many Gifts

Minto — Mrs. Delbert Sine gentertained in honor of Miss Mae Sarles, bride-elect, on Wednesday afternoon last. Approximately 40 of Mae's friends were present, and the afternoon was spent in making a "Bride's Book," which contained a favorite recipe by each one present.

Mrs. Sine then called on Mae to take the "seat of honor" being a prettily decorated chair in pink and white over which hung many colored balloons containing confetti. Mrs. Harold Holden read an appropriate address after which the bride to be went an a "treasure hunt" for gifts of black-and-white grandeware.

Mae graciously thanked everyone for the lovely kitchen ware and invited all to visit her in her new home in West Huntingdon. Dainty and refreshments were served, and everyone enjoyed a social hour.

RAWDON

One Hundred Friends Honor Couple's 60th Anniversary

Rawdon — On Saturday evening over 100 Mount Pleasant friends, with a few Carmelites, and relatives from Toronto, Murray, Hilerton, Burnbrae, Campbellford, and other nearby points, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Spencer, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, on the happy occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary.

The bride wore a corsage of white roses, and the groom a white carnation in his lapel.

The guests were greeted by Mr and Mrs. Ernest Spencer, of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Merle Spencer.

Beautiful bouquets of tulips, and roses, with flowering plants decorated the rooms and a threetiered anniversary fruit cake artistically decorated, graced the dining room table. This was later cut by the bride, with the groom assisting, and shared by all the guests.

The Rev. and Mrs. F. T. Townsend of Deseronto, were supper guests at the Spencer home.

At 8 p.m. Mr. Spencer, former pastor of Rawdon circuit, was master of ceremonies in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. H C. Vaclavik, who was ill.

Mrs. T. F. Townsend led in the singing of old favorite hymns, with Mrs. J. Holmes playing the accompaniment. This included "The Church in the Wildwood", and "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing."

By special request Mr. and Townsend sang "Tis So Sweet to Trust in Jesus."

Wedding Account

Mr. Townsend read an account of the wedding 60 years ago.

On March 26th; 1890, George Francis Spencer and Miss Jane Parkes were united in marriage at Campbellford parsonage by Rev. R. Edwards, pastor of Seymour circuit. The bridesmaid was Miss Martha Parks (now Mrs. William MacKenzie of Burnbrae) and the groomsman was Mr. Edward Spencer of Havelock.

The bride was the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Amos Parks of Rawdon Township. She wore a white plush reversible suit with black fur coat and matching accessories.

Their honeymoon was spent with their grandparents in Rawdon and their first home was at Petherick's Corners, and, as Mr. Spencer followed the profession of cheese maker, for five years, their second home was in Hoard in the Spry Settlement.

Fifty-two years ago they bought the Carlisle farm in Rawdon and 47 years ago they moved to their present home.

Program

Mr. Norman McConnell sang "Wedding Bells", with guitar accompaniment. Mrs. Harry McAdam read a poem, "House and Home". Mr. and Mrs. Erie Summers sang with guitar accompaniment, "Could I Tell You How More That I Love You"; Mrs. Allan Simpson read a poem "The Boys About My Age Are Getting Grey"; Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," by James Whitcomb Riley.

Brief speeches were made by Mrs. John Holmes, Messrs. Ross Hoard, Charles Hoard, and Will Potts, all extending congratulations and best wishes on this happy occasion, and Mrs. T. F. Townsend recited "Mate-O-Mine".

Address Read

Mrs. Will Potts read an address of appreciation signed by the guests Mrs. Cyrus Summers and Mrs. Elwood Johnson, who had arranged this happy get-together and their assistants, Messrs Gordon Linn, Elwood Johnson, Ernest White and John Holmes.

Mrs. Allan Bailey made the presentation of a purse of gold, the purse of money to the honored couple speaking briefly as she presented the gifts.

Miss Dianne McAdam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McAdam also presented the bride and groom of 60 years with a lovely bouquet of red roses on behalf of those assembled. Later Mr. Townsend announced that the gift of money would be equally divided and given by Mr. and Mrs. Spencer to the "March of Dimes" "Fund for Polio" and the "Fund for Crippled Children."

Mr. Spencer ably thanked friends and relatives for their kindness on this happy occasion and said "Although we have had no info anything the more you benself yourself."

The program closed with "Jolly Good Fellow" by the assembled circle and "Blest Be The Tie That Binds".

Refreshments were served, topped off with homemade candy and anniversary cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer have taken an active part in the work of Mount Pleasant United Church and they have always welcomed any strangers who have come to Mount Pleasant. Friends wish them many more anniversaries.

Guests Present

Amongst those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spencer and daughter, Miss Ruth, of Toronto; Mrs. Alfred Merrills, of Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Allen, MacKenzie, and Hazel, of Burnbrae; Mr. and Mrs. Don Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Will Spencer, Murray, and several other relatives and friends. Also Mrs. Allan Bailey, Mrs. John Johnson; Mrs. James Linn; Mr. Robert Summers and Mr. Tom H. Scott, the pioneers of Mount Pleasant.

At 11.30 p.m. the guests wended their way homewards, after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Spencer several more years of happy married life.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

In spite of the propaganda of professional vegetarians, there are still many people who love to eat vegetables. The great majority of people, for instance, who eat carrots avidly do so not because they want their daily dose of carotene but because they just happen to like this vegetable.

The commonest objection people have to eating vegetables plates is that they leave you with a feeling of having just consumed a plate of tepid water.

Non-green vegetables are usually the most unsatisfactory of the lot for vegetable plates. Broiled or fried tomatoes with fresh mushrooms, Lyonnaise potatoes, sour cream sauce are both refreshing and filling.

In cooking sour cream, remember that any strong flame will curdle it. To cook sour cream always keep it below the boiling point and stir constantly or else heat in the top part of a double boiler.

A slice of grilled ham or bacon may be added if you feel that a plate is too light for your family's appetites.

Tomatoes and Mushrooms, Sour Cream Sauce. Serves 6.

Cut 4 medium size hard ripe tomatoes in half. Sprinkle cut sides with salt, sugar and white pepper. Dip cut sides lightly in corn meal. Sprinkle with salad oil.

Place tomatoes, crumbed side up, on a broiler pan. Place under a moderate broiler flame and cook until tender, turning once. Add placing in an oven compartment to be cooked through.

Wash 1 pound of medium size fresh mushrooms. Cut off stems. Melt fat to a depth of 1-4 inch in a large frying pan. Add mushrooms, caps and stems, and simmer slowly until mushrooms are tender. Do not overcook. Sprinkle with flour. Remove mushrooms from pan with slotted spoon.

Let liquid remaining from mushrooms continue to simmer in pan. Combine 2 tablespoons flour with 4 tablespoons cold water, mixing until no lumps remain. Gradually add to liquid in pan, stirring until well blended.

Add 1 1-2 cups of light or heavy sour cream. Mix well and heat over very low flame, stirring constantly, until cream is hot and thick. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Place tomatoes and mushrooms on toast. Pour sour cream sauce over vegetables. Thin slices of pan fried or broiled ham or bacon may be added. Garnish plates with sprigs of parsley or watercress.

Miss Jerry Greene, delighted the gathering with her splendid accordion selections. Contest was won by Mrs. Townsend. The draw on the sugar was won by Miss M. Carmichael. Euchre prizes were as follows: first, Mrs. Rhoda Cleary; second, Mrs. Widdiver; consolation, Mrs. Cy Young.

SPRING'S DELAY

Oh! How can I now sing of spring
When snow lies everywhere?
Where not a bird is on the wing
Save sparrows here and there?
The wind has been so raw and rough,
The air is damp and cold,
The icy streets are truly snares
To trip both young and old.

But hark! There's magic in the air
A sound of coming feet,
The voice of children and bursting buds,
That make the pulses beat;
For spring is coming o'er the hills
Although she tarries long,
We hear her voice in running rills
And in the heart's new song.

For with the new-awaking earth
Our spirits rise and sing,
For Nature is not alone is stirred
By the miracle of Spring.
—Helen B. Anderson.

'The Mature Mind' Topic of Discussion

"The Mature Mind", a recently published book by H. A. Overstreet, was the topic for study and discussion at the March meeting of the Women's Guild held at the home of Mrs. W. Hunter, 289 Albert street.

The book was introduced by the program leader, Mrs. H. G. Coulter, who pointed out that every person grow old without growing mature. Besides mental maturity there is an emotional and a social maturity. The author sets up some standards of maturity and also a five-point program to bring about maturity.

Lives Through Relationship

The section "Criteria of Maturity" was dealt with by Miss Jane Smyth, who stressed the point that man is a creature who lives by and through relationships. He is not self-contained. He is also a maturing person rather than mature. The trouble with the world is that there have never been enough mature people in the right places. Maturity develops through knowledge, responsibility, communication, empathy (a recently coined word), and philosophy. The speaker explained each of these points briefly.

The chapter on "Mature Insight Lost In Immaturity" was covered by Mrs. M. P. Buck.

In concluding this study of the first half of the book Mrs. Coulter quoted "Where there is no vision there is no vision" and "where there is no vision we perish"?

Group Name Changed

During the business part of the meeting it was decided to change the name of the group from The Young Women's Guild to The Women's Guild.

The worship service was led by Mrs. Stanton taking her material from "Religion For Today" by W. L. Wyman and devotional reading "the desired type of character is the ability to stand firm under the pressure of life; 2, sensitiveness to human need; 3, sensitiveness to God. It is the Divine right of everyone to be intimate with God; to know God and to enjoy Him. To co-operate with the Almighty is real prayer."

While the hostess committee served light refreshments there was much informal discussion.

Any woman interested is invited to Thrift Women's Guild on the fourth Monday evening of each month.

PLAINFIELD MISSION CIRCLE GIRLS

The regular monthly meeting was held at the home of the president, Miss Hazel Prindle, on Wednesday last.

Following the reading and approval of last month's minutes, 14 answered the roll call with a verse from the Bible containing the word "Cross". Two members paid tribute to the birthday box.

Mrs. Doris Flindall was voted secretary for Stewardship. Plans for the box social in Plainfield Hall are underway and the whole community will be invited.

Miss Beryl Platt opened the devotional exercise. Scripture lesson, Matt. 28: 1-10 was read by Miss Joan Kerr, "The Story of Mary", followed by an instrumental number, was given by Miss Beryl Platt, Miss Mary Bertrand closed this part of the meeting.

Group leader in charge of the evening was Mrs. Hylda Denyes who led in the explanation of several Easter customs. The story of "A Lost Bible", was told by Miss Hazel Prindle. At this time, the birthday offering was received. The Misses Joan and Shirley Kerr rendered the duet, "The Old Rugged Cross". Mrs. Katherine Pryor introduced this year's study book, "Growing with the Years", and also gave a resume of the first chapter.

An appropriate poem, "Early Easter Morning", was also read by Mrs. Flindall moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Prindle for her hospitality, and for the refreshments served by the girls.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

The bride's mother asks about her costume-plans

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

I am the mother of the bride-to-be. These are the plans: late-May wedding; large, formal church wedding at four o'clock; followed by large reception. (1) Should I wear a long dress or dress of street-length? (2) I never wear light colors . . just don't feel right in them. Dark-blue is my favorite shade (not very original, but true!), and I'd like to wear it. But is it too dark for a wedding? (3) What kind of shoes would you suggest? (4) I don't like to wear flowers, even a corsage. But my daughter says that her fiancé would be hurt if I refuse to wear the corsage he is planning to send me. What's your advice, Mrs. Beekman?

F.B.P.

1. The planned formality of your daughter's wedding calls definitely for your (and the bridegroom's mother also) wearing a long dress. Your right message. Blue, particularly navy-blue, is really the personal favorite of the-mother-of-the-bride . . deservedly so, and very fashionable this spring. Also dark blue shoes, hines well with many other colors. (Although generally speaking, not many shades of green) and this is important: mother and the bridegroom's mother must consult together about the color she wishes to wear, for the shades must not complement each other. (3) Simple shoes . . dyed to match your dress and dyed if necessary. (4) Your daughter is right . . . you unobtrusively accept the bridegroom's courtly bow to you, and your daughter can gracefully gufde his choice. That is, the corsage may correctly be small, perhaps a single orchid of interesting shades of brown, very lovely and simply unconspicuous; and, if you are wearing a small corsage, you could pin it on this, or, very effectively, on your purse.

Concerning money-bouquet for wedding-anniversary gift

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My brothers and sisters and I are planning a reception in honor of our parents on their fiftieth wedding anniversary. We would like to present them with a bouquet of money on this occasion. We would also like to suggest to the invited guests that they add bills to the bouquet rather than to give a gift. Would this be proper? If so, would it also be proper to enclose in the invitations a note with this message? We would like to receive the money at least two weeks before the reception so it can be put into this bouquet. All of the guests will be close friends of the family and we are sure that they intend to give gifts. We will appreciate any suggestions you will give us on this plan.

Reader

I'm afraid you wouldn't really appreciate any suggestions I would give you about this plan . . for to me it isn't a bit attractive or appealing. Too earthbound, money-bound, no charm or imagination in such giving. You and the other daughters and the sons might give a money-bouquet, if you wish, but to me it doesn't seem gracious or good taste for you to "give orders" to the guests to contribute—money rather than give the presents they prefer to give, the presents they are lovingly planning to give, enduring presents they hope will be welcome to the beloved guests of honor. However, if you are definitely bent on collecting "moola", and if you are positive that your parents would welcome this plan, I suggest you telephone the guests about your request rather than to enclose a note, which undoubtedly would seem more peremptory than a suggestion by telephone.

Formal reply is necessary

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My husband and I have just received a formal (engraved) invitation to the wedding of the daughter of dear friends of ours. The large sheet is an invitation to the church ceremony and enclosed is a small card of invitation to the reception. Should this invitation be acknowledged, as it is from such close friends of ours, and since they undoubtedly must know that we will attend the wedding? If so must reply, what is the correct form?

Yes, the invitation should be acknowledged . . . that is, the invitation at the reception. And as you should reply formally, even though the hosts are close friends of yours. Write your reply on the first page of double-sheet letter-paper. Write in the centre of the page, and space your lines carefully. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. George Hall

The birthday-child opens gifts at once

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

I am giving a birthday party next month for my little daughter . . . her first party. When the children hand her their birthday presents, should she open them at once and thank for them, or wait until all the guests have arrived and open all the presents together?

R. M.

Your little daughter should say "Thank you" as each gift is handed to her . . . then it at once, . . and then say something "nice" about it. The present that a child brings to a party is so very, very important that he or she just can't wait until the birthday-child opens the gift to be "surprised" and, the giver eagerly hopes, delighted! To see the gift put aside, for even a minute, is agony to the young giver . . there should be a quick-quick-quick un-wrapping of the package and then thrilling words of enthusiasm for the gift.

Proper and practical gift

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

A very dear friend of mine is going to have a birthday soon, and I want to give her a birthday present different from the ones I have always given her. She is amply supplied with all kinds of clothes—accessories and purses, and such personal items as one usually gives for birthday presents. So I am wondering if you think it would be proper for me to give her something for her house, such as a serving-dish or even some convenient gadget for her kitchen, which she gives frequently. Or should gifts of this sort be given only for wedding anniversaries and for joint Christmas gifts to her and her husband?

Irene B.

This type of gift wouldn't be at all improper . . . and I am sure your friend would sing praises to you for giving her some thing that your keen eyes and sound sense have discovered would be useful and welcome than a personal item she doesn't especially need or care to have.

Dramatic Work of Relieving Suffering Reviewed by Red Cross

Toronto, March 28—The dramatic work that the Red Cross is doing in the field of bringing medical and nursing aid to areas which never before have been conquered such facilities, the continuing and expanding of hospitalized services, and the emergency resources which come instantly into being when there is such an unexpected tragedy as the "Noronic" fire were the high lights which seventy-seven families homeless, the reception and gentle teaching of new Canadians, was graphically apparent when committee chairmen's reports were presented, at the 30th annual meeting of the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

More than 600 delegates from all parts of the Province were present in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, to participate in the morning and afternoon business sessions. There were two interludes: a tea in the afternoon and a luncheon at which the chief speakers were Lieut.-General R. C. Brown of St. Paul's Cathedral, London. For this occasion with William B. Hanna, Red Cross retiring president presiding, other guests were Lieutenant-Governor Lawson and Premier Leslie Frost.

31t Hospitals Opened

One announcement that had the delegates enthusiastically applauding was the report of L. C. Mills, chairman of the Outpost Hospital committee, that six new Red Cross hospitals had been opened in Ontario during the past year. Four of these at Nipigon, Huntsville, Burk's Falls and Wiarton, were now serving areas that had not been covered before. In addition, two new hospitals had been completed to replace former structures at Bancroft and Port Loring. Through the concerted efforts of the local Red Cross branch and Steep Rock Iron Mines Ltd., another hospital will shortly be opened at Atikokan. All of these are thoroughly modern. In architectural design and equipment, said Mr. Mills, in keeping with the Ontario division's policy of turning over established hospitals to local control and management, the Espanola hospital was turned over this year, complete with all supplies and equipment free of charge, to the Espanola municipal committee.

The most serious tragedy which the Red Cross had to meet, in the past year was the "Noronic" fire in which 119 people lost their lives, reported W. Hargrett, chairman of the disaster services committee. This Red Cross work brought commendation from all the survivors, the Federal and Ontario governments, international medical associations, and the American Red Cross. Mr. Hargraft said that the organization of this province into 30 zones for disaster services will be continued to a greater and more alerted degree than ever before.

Challenge Must Be Met

William B. Hanna, retiring president, said that Red Cross members realize that the challenge to alleviate suffering and promote health must be met. He paid tribute to the work of the Red Cross Corps in their visiting of hospitalized veterans and civilian shut-ins; the promotion of dental health among the school children of Ontario; the need for first aid training and the courses that have now been introduced for the guidance of medical students and nurses in training—so that they may be future instructors in the work of the Junior Red Cross in the promoting of international goodwill; the nutrition program in providing hot noonday meals for school children, plus nutrition training for homemakers; and the swimming and water safety program that, last year, saw 11,670 Ontario children receiving their Red Cross awards.

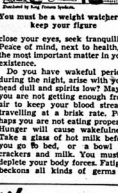
Give yourself a good-looks quiz



With life as delicious as it is for the busy woman each day presenting tasks that must be done and new problems to face, there is little opportunity for self-communion. That's bad. If you are to keep in the good-looks parade, it is necessary to take a self-survey now and then. Ask yourself questions. No pausing about answers. It is theonly way.

Do you wash and cream your face every night of your life, so as to maintain the appearance of youth, or are you going to let your complexion go its wilful way through neglect? Do you brush your hair? Answer truly. You had a hair brush once, probably have no idea what has become of it. Find it and use it, and don't fancy that this necessary hair-and-scalp-health practice is going to make your permanent wilt. It won't.

Have you kept up with hair-do changes? Why not? A new arrangement will present a new woman in the looking glass. You and she will exchange smiles. Life will be pleasanter.

Do you do more for your nails than to lay on the glossy polish? You should cream them, massage them, keep the flesh lifted back and the nail full form.

Do you feel hurried and jittery most of the time? When things go wrong do you want to lie on the floor, scream and kick? Those emotional storms are the most self-composed women. It all means that you are verging on a frazzle! life is kicking you around, and you should do something about it. Find time for rest periods. Drop everything, flop on a bed, close your eyes, seek tranquility. Peace of mind, next to health, is the most important matter in your existence.

You must be a weight watcher to keep your figure!

Do you have wakeful periods during the night, maybe rise with your head dull and spirits low? Maybe you are not getting enough fresh air to keep your blood streams travelling at a brisk rate. Perhaps you are not eating properly. Hunger will cause wakefulness. Take a glass of hot milk before you go to bed, or a bowl of crackers and milk. You mustn't deplete your body forces. Fatigue beckons all kinds of germs to come and take lodgings within you.

What have you done during the last six months to keep yourself youthful and attractive in appearance? Have you kept brave and strong, met your obligations and responsibilities as a woman should? You can't side-step them, really, without having your conscience gnaw at your thoughts.

Don't forget that you must be a weight watcher. If you aren't you may lost that svelte shape of yours.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Do boys appreciate the girl who doesn't pet?

"I have always thought when Mr. Right came along, he would appreciate the fact that I hadn't been petted by others," writes a teen-ager whose faith in this conviction has received a severe shock.

She says that while she has been dating boys for as long as four years, and "lots of them have told me they loved me," she has always kept her relationship on the basis of friendship and has "never gone in for petting".

Everything went well until she met one particular boy. After he had taken her out on a few dates, he wanted her to kiss him and she refused.

"I really wanted to kiss him, but I was afraid it wasn't the right thing to do. If I had thought for one minute, though, that he was really interested in me, and that I wasn't just another date, I would gladly have kissed him, because he is the only boy I ever wanted to kiss. Now he only speaks to me, and doesn't take me out any more."

Like many another girl in the same state of uncertainty, she has several questions she wants to ask. Among them are: "Should a girl let a boy kiss her when they are only friends?" "Do you think he was interested in me, or was I just another date?" "Don't you think if he really was interested in me, he would give me another chance to prove I do like him?" "Have I been wrong in not kissing?"

"This means so much to me," she adds. "It is the first time I have ever cared whether or not I came back for another date. His boy friend told me he cared for me but he didn't think I liked him because I didn't let him kiss me."

To the first question, "Should a girl let a boy kiss her when they are only friends?" the answer would be that if she is going to kiss any boy who is only a friend, kissing is soon going to lose all meaning for her. As for "Do you think if he really was interested in me, he would give me another chance to prove I do like him?" "Have I been wrong in not kissing?"

The third question, "Don't you think if he were really interested in me, he would give me another chance to prove I like him?" comes closer to the real point. I certainly do think if he were really interested in her he wouldn't drop her for lack of a kiss. I think, in fact, that if he were the right kind of a boy, and really attracted to her, the fact that she denied him the kiss would only have increased his interest.

I hope this girl will not waste any more time mourning the loss of this boy. I think she did the right thing, and I hope she will continue to keep her standards of behavior high.

For her future guidance, however, I might add this: Be a little diplomatic about the way you refuse a kiss. Don't act shocked and don't get dramatic over it. It's perfectly all right to say to a boy, "I like you lots, and thank you, but I'm saving my kisses."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The bride's mother asks about her costume-plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the mother of the bride-to-be. These are the plans: Late May wedding; large, formal church wedding at four o'clock; followed by large reception. (1) Should I wear a long dress or tired of street-length? (2) I never wear light colors. . . just don't feel right in them. Dark-blue is my favorite shade (not very original, but true!), and I'd like to wear it. But, I ask you, dark for a wedding? (3) What kind of shoes would you advise? 4) I don't like to wear flowers, even a corsage. But my daughter says that her friends would be hurt if I refuse to wear the corsage he is planning to send me. What's your advice, Mrs. Beeckman?

F.B.P.

1. The planned formality of your daughter's wedding definitely calls for your (and the bridegroom's mother also) wearing a long dress. Your dress will be dramatically in the spotlight, though, and other guests will look unanxiously up the church aisle, after all the wedding guests are seated and they, too, stand first to hostess, in the receiving-line to greet the veterans.

(2) Please, please wear the color you know is most becoming. Pick a color you "feel" that wear-ing. Blue, particularly navy-blue, is usually the personal favorite of the-mother-of-the-bride. Deservedly so, and very fashionable this spring. Also dark blue combines well with many other colors. Although generally true (with many shades of green) and this is important since you are the bride-groom's mother cannot conceivably be clashing with the color she wishes to wear, for two shades must be complement each other. (3) Simple pumps are correct to match your dress and dyed if necessary. (4) Your daughter is right . . . you must not forget the bridegroom's courtly due. Your future son-in-law should go gracefully public his choice. That is, the corsage may correctly be small, perhaps a single child of interesting shades of flowers, rather lovely and artistically inconspicuous; and, if you are wearing a small furpiece, you could pin it on this, very effectively, on your purse.

Concerning money-bouquet for wedding anniversary gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brothers and sisters and I are planning a reception in honor of our parents on their fiftieth wedding anniversary. We would like to present them with a bouquet of money on this occasion. We would also like to suggest to the invited guests that they add bills to this bouquet rather than to give a gift. Would this be proper? If so, would it also be proper to enclose in the invitations a note with this message? We would like to receive this money at least two weeks before the reception so it can be put into this bouquet. All of the guests will be close friends of the family and we are sure that they intend to give gifts. We will appreciate any suggestions you will give us on this plan.

Reader

I'm afraid you wouldn't really appreciate any suggestions I could give you about this plan for, for to me it isn't a bit attractive or appealing. Too earthbound, money-bound. No charm or imagination in such giving. You and the other daughters and the rest might give a money-bouquet, if you wish, but to me it doesn't seem gracious or good taste for you to "give orders" to the guests to contribute money rather than give the presents they prefer to give, the presents they are lovingly planning to give, enduring presents they hope will be welcome to the beloved guests of honor. However, if you've definitely bent on collecting money, and if you are positive that your parents would welcome its plan, I suggest you telephone the guests about your request rather than to enclose a note, which undoubtedly would seem more peremptory than a suggestion by telephone.

13-Year-Old Boy Disappears After School Recess

Brantford, March 29 (CP) — Missing since he left school at the recess period Monday morning, 13-year-old Norman Bullock, is being sought by police.

His disappearance was not reported until near midnight and his parents were unable to say why the lad had left home. He was seen during the day riding his bicycle in the direction of Paris, but has not been seen or heard of since.

Said to be an avid hockey fan, he was believed the lad might have been heading for an out-of-town point to see a game. A Brantford team plays in Sarnia Wednesday night.

When last seen the boy was wearing a brown mackinaw coat, brown tweed pants, rubber boots and was bareheaded. He is described as of medium build, with blonde hair and brown eyes.

Murderer Hanged After Getting 'Engaged'

Liverpool, England, March 29 (Reuters)—George Kelly, 27, who became "engaged" to his sweetheart in the condemned cell Monday night, was hanged Tuesday.

Kelly, who shot down a movie theatre manager in cold blood for the night's takings, told his relatives Monday night that he would go to the gallows singing his murderer's favorite song: "I Lost the Sunshine and Roses".

His 19-year-old sweetheart, Coleen Dutton who said at the trial that she loved him though he was already married, became "engaged" to him in a grim ceremony Monday night.

Kelly was not allowed to put the nine-carat gold ring on her finger himself. He passed it through the bars to a prison officer who handed it to Miss Dutton.

Statistics Help to Prove Men Are Getting More Domesticated

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Well, well, perhaps men do have something to do with the family buying after all.

We have been reading so much recently about how the "little woman" manages the purse strings of the household that it was beginning to look as though the so-called "head of the house" was just an errand boy bringing home the weekly cheque.

Some women speakers have been saying that women spend 85 per cent of the average family's pay.

However, there now comes along a piece in the current issue of Canadian Daily Newspaper Markets which says:

"Women are less important in purchasing consumer goods than is popularly believed, according to a university study reported. Women buy 55 per cent of the goods for the family; men 30 per cent; husbands and wives together 11 per cent; children four per cent."

"Men are doing more of the family buying than in 1940. Men are buying a larger percentage of women's goods, such as clothing, toilet articles, draperies and kitchenware. Women have increased in importance as buyers of drugs and hardware.

"Also, women shop together more frequently now than in 1940 for groceries, women's clothing, kitchenware, draperies, hardware and drugs—less frequently for furniture and clothing."

Is this good, men? It's doubtful if you examine those items and figure you will find ground for thinking that all they mean is that men are being made more domesticated, something that any observer can see without the help of statistics.

Rain and Fog Foil Test of Artificial Rain

New York, March 29 (AP) — Rain and fog Tue. foiled— temporarily at least—New York City's plan to make rain artificially to fill its deleted reservoirs.

A police plane loaded with dry ice to bombard any reluctant rain clouds was grounded just before Dr. Wallace E. Howell, Harvard scientist and director of "Operation Pluvius" was to board it.

Nature has thwarted the plan ever since the city decided upon the project. The first attempt was scheduled for last Thursday. It has rained every day but one since.

Parliament At a Glance

(By The Canadian Press)

TUESDAY

Finance Minister Abbott delivered the budget speech. Some minor taxes were shuffled.

J. A. Macdonnell (PC-Toronto Greenwood) said the budget was not exciting as no election was in the offing.

The Commons approved a bill giving parliament status to the Agricultural Prices Support Act.

Senator R. B. Horner (PC-Saskatchewan) said the upper chamber is not doing all it might to solve the foreign-exchange problem.

TODAY

The Commons will consider government business. The Senate will sit.

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile juice into your digestive tract every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just remain in the digestive tract. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up". Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Only 25c at any druggists.

Sunday Sports Legislation Legal - - Porter

Toronto, March 28— (CP) — Attorney-General Porter said today the Ontario government considers legislation permitting Sunday sports is legal and that the government was within its jurisdictional rights in introducing it.

He commented on a statement by Rev. George G. Webber, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, who said Monday in London, Ont., that legal advisers to the Alliance had said the bill was ultra vires.

"We looked into it," Mr. Porter said, "and we take the position it is intra vires. It would be interesting to find out who are the legal advisers of the Alliance."

PICTON

Picton— Mr. Donald Huff, of Guelph, has arrived in town to take over management of the firm Calliver and Huff, due to the continued serious illness of his father, Mr. Hanson Huff, in Kingston General Hospital.

The annual tea-tea built recently by councillor Charles Lewis, is on display in the showroom of F. E. Mowbray and is attracting much attention.

Picton people learned with regret of the sudden passing of James Kerr, proprietor of the Gilbert House, Trenton, on Sunday evening. Mr. Kerr was well known in Picton where he operated the "Globe Hotel" for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Wark have purchased the home of Mr. A. E. Grubin on Paul St. Mr. and Mrs. Grubin have been erecting a new home on Paul St. which is nearing completion.

The flowers on the high altar of St. Mary Magdalene's Church on Sunday were placed there for the greater honor of God and in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hambly, by their daughter, Ruth.

Miss Jean Thompson, of the Hospital for Sick Children, Thistledown, is spending a holiday with her mother, Mrs. Lester Storms, Agnes Street, and other relatives.

Mrs. Annie Zimmerman is seriously ill at her home, Main Street, West.

Mr. Muir VanVlack, Picton, R.N. S., is making a good recovery following an operation in Kingston General Hospital on Friday. Mrs. VanVlack and Mrs. Ross VanVlack spent a few days in Kingston to be near him.

Think Malabar Farm Overrated

Galt, March 28 — (CP) — Six young farmers from Waterloo County, all intensely interested in conservation, have returned from a visit to Malabar Farm, Ohio. They say they are disillusioned in their views on author Louis Bromfield as a farmer. They claim he is a dreamer. They think that they have as good farms in their own county, and certainly better farmers.

They also say that Louis Bromfield's Malabar Farm as it is operated now would not support a farmer and his family.

The men are Jim Barrie and R. E. Ford of Galt; Gordon Weber of Kitchener; Lloyd Hagey of Preston; Herbert Meyers, farm implement dealer from Preston, and Lynn Jamieson of Freelton.

They reported that Bromfield said he did not have to buy feed and did not need the services of a veterinarian, because the quality of his soil killed disease in his herd. But they said his hired help told them that Bromfield purchased hay and grain and they saw a newly aborted calf.

They stated that the land is in wonderful condition, but it is not producing, as far as they could see, what Bromfield claims.

PEDESTRIAN ANGER

West Vancouver, B.C. — (CP) —One motorist probably wishes he hadn't stopped after knocking down two elderly women on the street here. The women weren't hurt—only mad. When the motorist got out to help they chased him around his car, swinging their umbrellas, until a policeman arrived.

ELK BY TRUCK

Edmonton — (CP) — Two dozen elk, recently grazing in Elk Island provincial park, now have a new home. They were moved by truck to the Whitecourt area, near Jasper. Indians have been accused in the past of shooting the elk for their hides, which came to more than $4.

SIX BREAKFASTS, FREE

Regina — (CP) — It was done on a bet. A husky Regina, walked into a restaurant and downed six complete orders of ham and eggs, complete with toast and seven cups of coffee. The other concerned in the wager were stunk for the bill, which came to more than $4.

JUNK DEALERS CRITICIZED

Oshawa, March 29 — (CP) — Junk dealers were criticized in juvenile court for buying scrap from boys. Four juveniles were given suspended sentence and three released on charges of theft of rusty metal they sold to the dealers.

Regional Problems Unemployment Not Govt.'s Task

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott told the Commons Tuesday night in his budget speech that the Federal government "does not and should not" attempt to assume responsibility for regional problems of unemployment.

To his mind, he said in the final portion of his financial account, the proper role of the central government was fourfold:

1. Through its fiscal and general policies, it should try to create a favorable climate for healthy economic expansion and development."

2. It should have "careful regard in planning its own operations for the best timing and the best placing of its capital and development of expenditures."

3. It should recognize a "special responsibility" for the promotion and development of basic primary industries and other industries of national significance.

4. It should be ready to cooperate actively with provincial governments, and through them with municipal governments, in meeting regional problems that "threaten nation-wide economic repercussions."

Day-to-Day Work

There had been differences which had led the general public to overlook, or at least to underestimate, the "very large amount of practical day-to-day co-operation" between the federal and provincial governments. There actually was "a great deal of this working together."

Mr. Abbott made his comments in reporting on 1949 employment, which had turned "substantially downward" after rising through the year until August or September. What employment was down one percent at the end of the year, was still "somewhat more" than five percent over the preceding period.

Unemployment totals had been higher because of the continued growth of the labor force.

"The outlook for 1950," he said "seems to be that the volume of employment will increase moderately but it is possible that it may not share fully with growth in total labor supply."

DREW WAGES GOVT.

tion. That gave the Prices Board control over practically all business man activity in this country including conscription of manpower.

He also criticized the government for what he called "dilatory" methods in delaying the rentals legislation until almost the last minute. The House now is in the position that if it properly discussed the bill it would delay passage until after Friday midnight when, if not renewed, all controls would cease.

Prices Support Bill Passed

Other speakers in the rentals debate, included Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) and Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre).

Earlier the Commons adopted a bill giving permanent effect to the government's agricultural prices support legislation. The adoption came after members defeated by a vote of 152 to 58 a CCF amendment that would have inserted in the legislation a formula for fixing floor prices.

In the rentals debate, Mr. Drew said he—doubted if any one in the country realized just what it was asking Parliament to do.

The proper procedure, he said, was first to cancel all provisions of the regulations except rental controls, before asking for passage of the new rentals and transitional powers.

If that were done it would indicate the government intended only to retain rent controls. Otherwise it could be assumed the government wanted to exercise wide powers the bill would give it.

Mr. Fleming said no one was against continuation of rent control but the opposition was against removing wide powers for the government to legislate by order-in-council.

Mr. Knowles said the government had indicated that a schedule would be set out in the bill, detailing rent-control regulations. No schedule had been forthcoming. People were baffled by rent-control regulations and he felt everyone should be able to get in black and white, a copy of the law of the land.

Ten Marooned By High Water In Guelph Area

Guelph, March 29 (CP)—Cold water teather today promised to end Guelph's serious flood situation which reached such acute stages Tuesday night that firemen had to rescue 10 persons marooned in Bay Street homes. The record crest of 16.5 feet on the Speed River poured over the flooring of several bridges and low lying sections of the city were inundated. Wellington and Gordon streets were closed.

Several marooned residents were taken from their homes by firemen Tuesday night when the rising waters menaced their homes.

Highway No. 7 near the Ontario reformatory was also covered with two feet of water, necessitating re-routing of traffic into Acton and Brampton. The section of reformatory grounds adjoining the highway was converted into a miniature lake.

BILL TO RESTORE

would collect a tax of five per cent of the amount of federal tax and turn this over to Ontario, while deducting five per cent from the federal payment of each taxpayer.

Suspended In 1942

Ontario's own provincial tax was imposed in 1926, and suspended by the Dominion-provincial tax agreements of 1942. The latter expired in 1947 and since then the provincial tax has been suspended year by year.

The government also introduced a bill to impose a tax on logging operations similar to the tax on mining. It imposes a nine-per-cent tax on profits on logging operations, providing an exemption of $10,000 by terms of the federal income tax law.

Premier Frost said Premier Frost, who is also provincial treasurer, "will be that corporations engaged in logging will pay a larger total tax to Ontario and to the Dominion, but in the total will pay slightly smaller over-all tax."

Approve Estimates

The legislature approved the estimates of the public works department. C. H. Millard (CCF-York West) said he had been informed by a hospital employee that rooms at the Ontario Hospital at Woodstock are overcrowded and precautions inadequate. Premier Frost said that the superintendent of the institution was in charge of an Ontario mental hospital is the official responsible for fire safety.

Mr. Frost said the situation at the hospital will be investigated. The burning of the steamship Noronic last September had increased fire consciousness, he said. Work was proceeding on fire-proofing public institutions but it was a job that will require many years.

Hope that a solution will soon be reached in the dispute at the lakehead between pulp companies and timber-operators, was expressed by Lands Minister Scott. He said he has been conferring with the pulp and paper companies and memoranda has been exchanged which indicated an amicable settlement might soon be made.

Replies to Question

Mr. Scott was replying to a question put by A. A. MacLeod, (Lab.-Prog - Toronto Bellwoods), concerning unemployment in the lakehead area. Mr. MacLeod read a brief from the city council of Port Arthur and Fort. William which claimed employment for 12,000 persons could be given if the forest resources were opened to operators.

Referring to the statement that more than 10,000 persons could be employed in the industry, D. W. Cox (L-Fort William) said: "With people making statements like that, is it any wonder we need a mental hospital at the head of the lakes?"

When reminded the statement came from his own constituency he did not retract his remarks, or qualify them.

Recreation Commission Will Likely Receive an Increase of $600

Trenton, (Special)—The grant to the Recreation Commission for the town of Trenton may be increased by $600. This was discussed by council last night at a special meeting held in the municipal offices.

Mr. Augee of the Recreation Commission said that they needed the extra money to continue their work, as it was impossible to get by on the present amount.

Including the increase, the entire grant would amount to $2,000. This would be paid on a flat rate of $300 per month.

Mayor Kenneth Couch said that the Recreation Commission deserved a lot of credit for the work they had done in the past year, and that he would do everything possible to see that the grant was passed.

Will Extend Sidewalk

Council decided to extend the sidewalk on Albert Street from the Egg Grading Station to the railway tracks.

Mr. James of the Trenton Lockey Plant said that he wanted council to take action on it immediately because of the water which was from six to eight inches deep in some places on the street. Mr. James added that it was impossible for anyone to come to the Locker Plant on foot. It was pointed out that anywhere from 200 to 300 people do business at the locker

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

TO THE POINT

"Old Sweats" and "Young Sweats" of the dart-heaving fraternity of Belleville Branch 221 Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans in Canada are tossing their hefts in a match for less these days. And well they might, for they brought Belleville its first "baby" sports championship over the week-end. It's the youngest (in point of time) sports association to win a provincial title. (Years of organization).

* * *

Only three years a darts team and in the figurative diaper stage, the ANAFers safated to Hamilton, took a flock of "rooters" with them, and with their shooting eyes on dead centre turned back the best the Ambitious City Club had to offer in the miniature harpoon contest. They came home after winning the Army and Navy Provincial Darts Trophy triumphant with the Army and Navy Provincial Darts Trophy triumphant with the Army and Navy Provincial Darts Trophy tucked underneath their collective arms. And they're going to clutch it until another member club of the ANAF flings down a challenge, whether it be next week or fifteen years from now.

Yup, Frexy Bill Ford of the club, who by the way is a member of the provincial harpoon-chucking "champeens" had his six-cylinder dart-throwing job clicking in all departments. He gave 'em a grand exhibition of darts in the parliments. He gave 'em a grand exhibition of darts in the parliments. He gave 'em a grand exhibition of darts in the membership of the association, told 'em to "step on it" and gave 'em the gun. They came through handsomely with the grand ensemble of teamsmanship, which championship form the day he nicked his brother in a pink rump while they were indulging in a safety-pin contest in the family cradle. leading the bit parade.

* * *

The winning of the championship and trophy is a distinct feather in the cap of the ANAF team. It accomplished an outstanding feat in writing its name on the scroll of the peerless throb-holders. That means that if a challenger pops up over the darts horizon, the trophy matches will be held in the ANAF clubroom here. There is no stated time-limit for the issuance of challenges as was formerly reported. And it went further. President Ford and his merry men won't have to wait too long to defend their title. Hamilton, who wrestled the mug but a week previous to losing it from the Belleheads, will be on no amiable mood. It seems the Belleheads haven't been in their club long enough for all members to get a taste of it, and the fact of having to part with it so soon after did not all too well. However, they proved fine sportsmen as well as heads, and the Belleville branch, too, expects the challenge any day now. Kitchener branch, too, has tasted the wine of championship and now are anxious to retrieve lost laurels. However, the Men o' Ford are not worrying. "Come soo Get It" is their slogan with a few of the more boastful muttering "Try and Get It".

SOFTBALL

An important meeting for softball interests of the city is scheduled for Kiwanis Centre tomorrow night when the Commercial Softball League is holding a special meeting. Scheduled items on the agenda are the election of officers and alignment of entries. Seven teams have signified their intention of entering with the possibility of two more teams coming into the fold to make the loop a nine-team set-up. As was mentioned before in this column, any organization, be as strong as is executive, so it behooves the softballers to select those best fitted for the jobs. A few adjustments to the rules of last year would not come amiss. The meeting is eels under way at eight o'clock and all interested in this sport are urged to put in an appearance.

BASEBALL

Likewise a special meeting of those interested in a Central Ontario Baseball League entry will be held tomorrow night in Memorial Arena starting at eight o'clock. Important matters are on the agenda and whether this city will enter a team in the loop hinges on what takes place at this conclave. The CORL has already stricken four entries from this part of the district also Brockville and Smiths Falls. The meeting was called following that of a week ago when nothing definite was laid down. However, much work has been done, it is believed, in the interim and the get-together tomorrow should tell the story. As a matter of fact it has to be. "Yes" or "No" since the organized baseball season for the CORL is set for Sunday next. COBL Prexy Nesbitt, Kingston, granted the extension in order to allow Belleville chance to enter a team. So it's do or die for senior baseball in Belleville tomorrow evening. Baseball-minded people are urged to attend.

YOO-HOO DAISY!

An athletic young Englishman new to the United States was asked by a neighbor, who managed a semi-professional baseball team, if he cared to join the club.

"I'd like to very much," was the reply. "But I know absolutely nothing about the game, you know. I couldn't do anything except umpire."

Howe Reported 'Out of Danger' After Brain Surgery as Leafs Defeat Boston by 5-0

Detroit, March 29 (CP)—Young Gordie Howe of Saskatoon, star winger of the champion Detroit Red Wings was believed to be out of danger today after undergoing an early morning brain surgery to relieve a severe injury suffered Tuesday night in a Stanley Cup playoff game.

The injury to the powerful, aggressive Howe overshadowed the 5-0 upset Toronto's battling Maple Leafs plastered on the favored Red Wings in a bruising, one-sided contest launching the best-of-seven semi-final cup series.

By winning, the Leafs successfully opened their bid for their fourth straight Stanley Cup. It marked the 13th consecutive time they had beaten the National Hockey League Champion Red Wings in a playoff game.

Interest in the outcome of the game was secondary, however, to concern over the condition of the 21-year-old Howe.

Dr. Tommy Gale, in an oxygen tent at Harper Hospital after undergoing the two-hour operation to remove fluid from his brain area.

Team physician C. L. Tomyn said "the next 24 hours will be critical, and only then will I think Gordie will be okay."

Examination showed Howe suffered a fractured nose, a fractured cheekbone and a brain concussion. Dr. Tomyn said preliminary X-rays indicated a skull fracture on the right side of Howe's head but additional pictures would be taken today to clarify this possibility.

Shift in Betting

The margin of Toronto's victory, plus the injury to Howe, caused a shift in betting odds as the Leafs moved into the position of favorites to win the series.

Howe's injury touched off a heated controversy among players and officials of the Detroit and Toronto teams. Ironically enough, it came in the closing minutes of the game when the hopelessly outplayed Detroiters were trailing 4-0.

A rough battle marked by 21 penalties was better wide open by three Toronto goals in the second period.

After a scoreless first period, Joe Klukay tallied the first Toronto goal in the 10th seconds of the middle session. Bill Barilko and Johnny McCormack sank a couple of minutes later to boost the margin to 3-0 before the end of the period. Then Howe departed and Klukay added insurance goals in the third period.

Toronto won the harder-hitting club by far. Detroit Coach Tommy Ivan said "they completely outfought and outroughed us . . . but we're still very much in the running."

The second game of the series will be played here then with the next two at Toronto.

All the principals agreed that Howe's injury, which came several minutes after he served a five-minute penalty for fighting, was sustained on a play that saw he and Ted Kennedy scramble down towards the Detroit goal with the puck.

Bled Profusely

Coach Ivan and other Detroit sources said Howe and Ted Stewart of the Wings set out to check Kennedy.

Ivan reported that the butt of Kennedy's stick struck Howe on the head as the two players careened into the boards.

"I am not saying it was intentional, but the check was there for everyone to see," Ivan declared.

Kennedy and his teammates said he never came into contact with Howe.

Howe bled profusely and was carried from the ice on a stretcher. After a hasty examination in the dressing rooms he was hurried to the hospital.

Three doctors treated him and took X-rays, indicating they would postpone further action until today. The youthful Howe began to show blood, however, and the emergency operation was decided upon.

Dr. Tomas and Dr. Frederic Schreiber, a brain specialist, performed the three-minute operation which necessitated boring a hole in the side of Howe's head, about two inches in front of his right ear.

They drained off some of the extra fluid before placing Howe in an oxygen tent for 24 hours.

Dr. Tomas reported Howe "stood the operation okay."

The hospital announced an eye specialist to examine Howe today to see if his eyesight was impaired. His right eye and eyelid were cut.

The injury threatened to become a major point of dispute for the playoffs as Howe was possibly make it a grudge affair. Practically everyone chose up sides on the issue.

Some Opinions

Here are some of the opinions:

Toronto manager Conn Smythe of Kennedy: "Never touched Howe. Jack Stewart crashed into Howe after he had hit the boards."

Detroit manager Jack Adams: "I have my own idea as to what happened but I'm keeping it to myself. The referee did not even call a penalty on the play."

Detroit defence Bill Abel: "How in the Hell can Kennedy be charged? He didn't touch him."

The Leafs were just as vigorous in defending Kennedy, Babando, Pavelich, McFadden, Carveth, Fogolin.

Rangers Rule Slight Favorites Over Canadiens

New York March 29 (CP)—Confident they can sprint to a startling finish in the playoffs, New York's Rangers ruled slight favorites in the odds-making for the best-of-seven semi-final Stanley Cup round at Madison Square Garden tonight against Montreal Canadiens.

The Rangers laid out quotthe Rangers as the three games to stand a chance of eliminating the Canadiens, a team that eight skaters who have seen action in 20 or more playoff games. Only three of the Rangers have that many in cup competition.

Of the two clubs the Rangers are in better physical shape. Edged in the opener, the Rangers' best forward, will be in tonight's starting line-up, wearing a special brace to protect his injured left knee. He skated well in the opening game although his starts weren't as smooth as the Laprade of old.

Defenceman Wally Stanowski, out since January also will be back in the series. Outside of Stanowski, the Rangers are in good strength.

The Canadiens, on the other hand, will use four of their five regulars from the open. Coach Dick Irvin, who almost forgot his troubles in the club's driving finish for second place, has a new crop of worries.

"Never in my life have I seen so many cripples and near cripples as those of a Stanley Cup series," Irvin said before the Canadiens left Montreal Tuesday morning.

Ray Laycee, the sturdy Montreal defenceman, was left at home. He suffered a broken ankle in Chicago in the club's driving finish for second place, has a new crop of worries.

Center Bill Reay and winger Calum Mackay will play tonight. Reay is recovering from stitches cut in his foot while Mackay is nursing an injured knee. Defenceman Doug Harvey, also suffering from a pulled groin muscle, is one of a doubtful Montreal, who has an injured shoulder, also will be in the line-up.

Cleveland Barons Move to Top In Playoffs

By The Canadian Press

(Cleveland Barons are rolling again after a shaky start.

During the American Hockey League's latter season, the Barons won the Western Division by 20 points. The Barons then came up against the Indianapolis Capitals and Providence Reds in the semi-final series. Barons won the first two games but Buffalo stopped Cleveland 3-2 Sunday night.

Tuesday night, the Barons jumped into a three-game lead with a 3-1 victory over the Bisons in Buffalo. Fourth game will be played in Cleveland Saturday night.

In the other semi-final series a best-of-seven affair, Indianapolis Capitals and Providence Reds will meet in Indianapolis Thursday night in their second till. The Caps won 6-1 in the opener.

Game Officials To be Appointed By Commissioner

(By The Canadian Press)

The Intercollegiate Football Union has decided that next season it will not be the Canadian Rugby Union—will appoint game officials through a commissioner.

The decision to appoint a commissioner to name officials for each game was made at Toronto at a weekend meeting.

The Montreal Star Tuesday reported that three names have already been submitted — Leslie Blackwell, former Ontario Attorney-General, Joe Breen, President of Canada Cement Company and former coach and player at London's University of Western Ontario, and Lt.-Col. Stuart Forbes, former athletic manager at McGill, now retired.

All four coaches in the college loop— University of Toronto, Queen's University, University of Western Ontario and McGill — have chosen a panel of officials who have agreed to work in only one major circuit.

It appears that Carl Voyles will be handling the coaching chores next season for the Hamilton entry in the Inter-Provincial Rugby Football League.

Officials said Tuesday night that a definite announcement may be forthcoming by Thursday and at the same time admitted talking by phone to the former Brooklyn coaching ace. It has been rumored that as soon as he has completed some unfinished business with the National (pro) Football League he will be ready to sign a contract with the Big Four Club.

By an ingenious arrangement the 1,300 residents of Magrath, Alta., Monday night heard their Rockets capture the second game of the Western Senior Basketball championships with University of Manitoba Bisons at Winnipeg.

Two fans travelling with the team broadcast a play-by-play account over a long-distance telephone. Loud-speakers spotted throughout the town amplified the voices, and young and old listened to their team fight to a 56-53 decision, tying the series and forcing an extra game.

Jersey Joe Walcott, through his manager Felix Bocchicchio, Tuesday at Camden, N.J., claimed the world heavyweight boxing title providing Ezzard Charles is unable to fight again.

Charles, recognized by the National Boxing Association as champion, was forced to cancel his title bout with Freddie Beshore because of an injury.

Bocchicchio said he is claiming the title in belief that Joe Louis will remain in retirement and that Charles has suffered an injury to a heart muscle which also may force him into permanent retirement.

CLAXTON MEETS DUTCH PREMIER DEFENCE MINISTER

The Hague, March 29 —(CP) —Defence Minister Brooke Claxton of Canada Tuesday conferred with Premier Willem Drees and Defence Minister W. F. Schokking of The Netherlands.

Claxton is here for the meeting of the defence committees of the North Atlantic Pact powers. Lt.-Gen. Christopher Foulkes, Chief of the Canadian General Staff, is accompanying the defence minister.

'Oldtimers' Donate Handsome Trophies

In midwinter such oldtime hockey greats as Bill Green, Hank Fenn, 'Toots' Holway, Bun Frechette, Sammy Symons, and others decided to form an Oldtimers Hockey Association with the idea of perpetuating, through the gifts of trophies, the memories of their late associates, Pat Boland and Ted and Daw Whalen. Results of the efforts of the organization are pictured above. The handsome trophies pictured are from left to right the Whalen Trophy, awarded to the most valuable player in the Belleville District Hockey League and the Boland Trophy awarded to the outstanding goalkeeper. The former was won by Jackie Wardhaugh, fleet winger of the Northern Electric team with the Boland Trophy going to Jack Keyes, of the Trenton RCAF Flyers. Accompanying the trophies are two miniatures seen above which became the permanent property of the winning athletes. The late Pat Boland was a son of Mrs. Catharine Boland, 129 Dundas Street East, who observed her 80th birthday on May 24th, while Ted and Daw Whalen were sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Whalen.

Arthur King K.O's Sierra In Sixth Round

Toronto, March 29—(CP)—Looking more like a well-tutored ring craftsman than when he headlined bouts locally a year and a half ago, 171 Arthur King, British Empire Lightweight champion, knocked out Cuba's Humberto Sierra in the sixth round of their 10-round main event here Tuesday night.

Sierra weighed 133½; King 137. King, somewhat leaned and snapping both hands with more authority than ever before, held a good margin in every round up to the time of the knockout—2.55 of the sixth. Lft Arthur now works out of Philadelphia and in his absence from the local boxing scene, he has chalked up 13 American victories and two in Britain, one in which he won the B. E. title from Billy Thompson.

The former Toronto Negro was master of the situation from the opening bell and only in the final sizzling did his Cuban opponent hold the upper hand.

King worked on a welt under Sierra's right in the sixth and sent him to the floor for the count. A fierce offensive along the ropes, Sierra fell to one knee and then slumped over as the referee counted over him.

Billy Fifield, 159, Toronto, made it two in a row by scoring a unanimous decision over Detroit's Billy Lawton in their eight round semi-final match.

FAKE BILLS APPEAR

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ARCH MACKENZIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, March 29 (CP) — When Rinty Monaghan retired last week as world flyweight champion, it marked the end of a boxing career more noted for music than mayhem.

Eric (Vancouver Province) Whitehead, noting that Rinty's decision allowed him to retire as undefeated flyweight champion, says that the crooning Irishman dabbled carefully in a few over-weight fights against selected European talent", but didn't do much else.

Whitehead traced Rinty's two-year career as champ, saying he spent most of his time refusing challenges chiefly against Dado Marino of Honolulu.

"Could be," says Whitehead, that Rinty is a shrewder Irishman than we think. Could be that the Belfast nightingale who crooned tender Irish ballads into the microphone after each fight has merely set the stage for a big kill on the vaudeville boards."

He's the Best

Answering a question from one of his readers, Andy (Vancouver Sun) Lytle picks Dick Irvin of the Toronto Maple Leafs, longest Montreal Canadiens, as the game's greatest coach.

"Viewed off his playing and his coaching record over a haul almost as long as Les Patrick's and one just as honorable and as financially fruitful, I'd have to say Irvin."

Lytle says Irvin was a fine scoring centre, scoring nine goals one night in the Allan Cup play out Toronto ice, and ranked with the top until injured. He still wears a silver plate in his head.

The Montreal coach had shifts at Chicago and Toronto before moving to his present spot—and one he did a lot to revamp, says Lytle.

"Always a clean liver, Dick doesn't use tobacco or liquor, has a growing family of two at Regina and has been financially independent for years.

"No coach in the game is more considerate of his players," Lytle maintains.

Nor does any coach take defeat harder.

Cornwall Will Oppose Marlies In Semi-Finals

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)—Cornwall Calumets captured the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League championship and advanced another step along the Allan Cup playdowns trail Tuesday night by whipping Hull Volants 5-1 before 1,500 fans.

The powerful Cornwall sextet annexed the best-of-seven series with four victories against a single defeat. They now advance into the Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-finals against Toronto Marlboros with the first game of the best-of-seven series scheduled to open Saturday.

Cornwall held a wide margin of play throughout, raining a 47-shot barrage on Hull goalie Phil Desforges, while allowing Volants only 15 shots on goalie Gordie Bradley.

Hull held Cals to a 1-1 draw in the opening period, but Calumets broke loose for three goals in the second and tallied the lone third-period counter.

Wally Garand, Don Batten, Fred Gardner, Bert Lilly, and Rheal Savard tallied for Cornwall. Hull's lone marksman was Roger Carbonneau.

N.Y. Giants Will Be Better Team By Winter Trade

By GAYLE TALBOT

Phoenix, Ariz., March 29 — (AP)—It won't be long now before manager Leo Durocher of New York Giants learns whether he had an inspiration the past winter or merely gave away the liver and rights of his ball club.

Up to now, in the brief spring skirmishing the "new" Giants have done, the evidence is inconclusive.

But on what he has seen so far, he remains highly pleased with the big deal in which he unloaded sluggers Sid Gordon and Willard Marshall, shortstop Buddy Kerr and pitcher Sam Webb on Boston in exchange for Alvin Dark and Eddie Stanky, a proven second-base combination.

With the last trade, only one Giant regular remains of the heavy-footed crew which three years ago set a major league record by basting 221 home runs. He is Bobby Thomson, fleet young centrefielder who contributed 29 home to the total.

The team, which Durocher modestly claims will be the fastest in the big leagues is set and ready to go.

Negro At Third

Hank Thompson, a sure-handed young Negro who joined the Giants from Jersey City last season; will be the team's third baseman, Jack Harshman, who hit 40 home runs with Minneapolis last year, appears to have won the first-basing job.

Dark, will, of course, cover much ground around shortstop and scrappy little Eddie Stanky should have several more years of good second-basing in his system.

Flanking Bob Thomson in the outfield are the almost equally gifted Whitey Lockman in left and Don Mueller in right.

Wes Westrum has won the first-string catcher's job. Now as for Durocher's pitching staff about the best that can be said for it is that it has possibilities.

Sheldon Jones, who posted a 15-12 record last year, reported in fine shape and should anchor the staff. Larry Jenson, 15-16 Dave Koslo, 11-14, with the lowest earned-run mark in the league, and Monte Kennedy, 12-14, round out the club's "big four."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

Sensational no longer is the bidding of a slam, if safe it is now the result of routine. If doubtful it is known in advance to be so by what routine has disclosed in the bidding.

The bidding has gone this far:

North	East	South	West
1 S	Dbl	2 D	Pass
2 S	Dbl	4 S	Pass

To probe for slam a player waits to discover 12 tricks and what will be trump. If he then has two ares and a king or better he bids four no-trump. This asks partner to announce his number of aces and kings.
With no ace, partner replies five clubs; one ace and no kings, five diamonds; one ace and one king, five hearts; one ace and two kings, five spades; one ace and three kings, five no-trump.
With two aces and no kings, response is six clubs; two aces and one king, six diamonds; two aces and two kings, six hearts; two aces and three kings, six spades.
This is the Horse Sense method. Other methods do not show kings in the range of five. To show kings they must answer at the level of six. Obviously, this is not an safe sounding.
The south jump here showed five tricks and four spades for trump. North with seven aces 12. So, to probe for slam with a bid of four no-trump. South replies with five hearts; an ace and one king. Lacking an ace and two kings, a slam is dangerous. And a diamond lead holds it to 11 tricks. But north gambled with six spades and made it. How? East happened to lead a heart.
After two trump rounds, a club forced east's ace. On club queen was then sluffed a north diamond. The longshot made it.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 29 (AP).—The cancellation of the Charles-Beshore fight is ample proof of the weakness of the intricate new system of physical examinations required by the New York State Athletic Commission. A bruised heart muscle wouldn't show up in the ordinary examination and chances are that Ez could fight tonight and still feel pretty without suffering any visible damage. But there might be one chance walleye to the danger spot and years from now, when Charles has passed his peak, the injury would be revealed . . . Frank Fitchock, now a big gun in Canadian football, will return to his Alma Mammy, Indiana, as a visiting coach next season.

Light Workout

The Navy football squad was running through a lengthy spring drill the other day and the athletes greeted the arrival of darkness with mixed emotions —they growled a bit because they couldn't see the ball but welcomed anything that would put an end to the toil . . . Then coach Eddie Erdelatz signalled to have the floodlights turned on . . . and as they began to glow, a disgruntled footballer howled, "here comes the sun up again. Now me can really go to work."

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 29—(AP)—If you want to train for Hollywood, sing with a band. This advice comes from former ork chirper Doris Day.
An ork chirpy is a gal who sits in as evening gown before a dance band, smiling all the while. Every 10 minutes or so, she rises from her perch and chirps with the orchestra. Miss Day looks back on the experience with thankfulness.
"Singing with a band helps develop your personality," she enthused. (Enthusiasm is her normal tone). "Lots of the girls who used to do it—Betty Grable, June Haver, Betty Hutton, Gloria DeHaven.
"The way you interpret the lyrics is akin to acting. You don't just sing words, you try to put meaning into them." She added that singing with bands gives a girl poise and confidence before the camera," she said.

MacBeth and Milkman

Orson Welles' "MacBeth" is just about ready for release. It played one engagement in Boston more than a year ago and then was returned to the studio for alterations. Now some of the heavy Scotch burr and the ghoulish photography have been removed. The revised film will open in Salt Lake City, where Welles and his players presented a live "MacBeth" as a rehearsal for the film.
Film workers all over town are sporting "I am a booster" buttons on their lapels. The campaign is designed to stop the panning and panic talk about Hollywood. But won't good business be the only thing to do that?"

Sacos Reduce 'Inkspots' Lead In Major B Loop

Sacos reduced the lead of the Ontario Intelligencer "Inkspots" of the Major "B" Bowling League at the Recreation Alleys last night when they defeated the "printers" by a 5-2 score. Sacos rolled an aggregate score of 2972, the highest of the evening.
Pigeons rose to bowling heights when they took seven points from Hibbards' electric while the remaining game the Our Gang team turned back Just Us by a 5-2 count.
B. Smith of Just Us took the individual honors with a high triple of 783 and high single of 344. Other high scorers were Al Hibbon 701 (275), D. Walker 689, J. Mitchell 644, D. Batchelor 638, R. Rawson 630, K. Peoples 634 and M. Thompson 648.
The scores:

Sacos (5)	2972
Ontario Intell (2)	2897
Our Gang (5)	2896
Just Us (2)	2821
Pigeons (7)	2794
Hibbards Electric (0)	2282

BEVIN LEAVES LONDON

London, Mar. 29 (Reuters) — British Foreign Secretary Bevin left London today on the first stage of his journey to Strasbourg where he will attend a meeting of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe. He was accompanied by his doctor Alexander McColl, who stood by while the former secretary spoke in the House of Commons Tuesday night. Bevin is receiving treatment for a heart ailment.

Young Hockey Fans Witness Leafs in Action

Thirty-five young hockey fans from Bridge Street United Church Sunday School saw the Leafs whitewash the Bruins last Saturday night, the tune of eight to nothing. For most of the lads, it was their first visit to the Gardens and there was little that escaped their notice.
Arriving in the Queen city at 2:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon, by chartered bus, the boys enjoyed a sumptuous banquet pre-arranged for them at Leaside United Church. At 8:30 p.m. every lad was in his allotted place and from then on these young Imperial Oil broadcast hockey fans saw the real thing.
Although it was in the wee small hours when they returned home, most of these young hopefuls were on deck for Sunday School the following morning.
This week the boys are loud in their praises of their teachers Mr. Lorne Crabb and Gerry Paul, organizer of the party, who with other Sunday School officials, accompanied the party.

Ottawa, Toronto Get Playoffs In Junior 'A'

Kemptville, Ont., March 29 — (CP) — The Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-finals will be played in Ottawa and Toronto, W. B. George, vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association in charge of eastern playoffs, announced Tuesday night.
Guelph Ontario Hockey Association titleholders, will meet the winners of the current Inkerman-Porcupine series, in a best-of-seven series opening in Toronto Saturday, said Mr. George.
(Porcupine Combines now lead their best-of-five series against Inkerman Rockets 2-1 in games with the fourth game scheduled tonight at Timmins).
The second game of the Eastern Canada Junior semi-finals will be played at Ottawa, Monday, April 3. The third and fourth games will be at Toronto April 5, and Ottawa April 7. A fifth game, if necessary, will be played at Toronto April 8.

No Signs of Extra Poundage on George Earnshaw

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 29 (CP)— You take a look at paunchy Joe McCarthy, stout Steve O'Neill, plump Mickey Cochrane and Bill Dickey then cast an eye over big raw-boned George Earnshaw. The guy, of about the same vintage, looks as if he can toe the rubber and still pour them in.
At 50, he's sparkling-eyed, deeply tanned and with no signs of an extra pound on his 190-pound, six-foot-three frame. And his strong right arm which helped put the Philadelphia Athletics on the top rung of the baseball ladder still has a kick in it.
His hey-day—and also the A's —was in the early '30s when he was up there chucking that hard, fast one with Lefty Grove.
Those were the days when Connie Mack's Athletics were really great—so powerful that Mack lost money on them and he started the ball rolling by breaking them up. "We didn't draw the crowds because the fans usually took it for granted we would win," Earnshaw said in an interview. "A contending ball club always draws a bigger gate than the leading team."

New Pitching Coach

Big George is pitching coach of the National League's Philadelphia Phillies.
His job is to iron out the pitching kinks of the kids coming up through the various minor-league clubs connected with the Phils.
He shows them the little-known tricks of the trade he learned the hard way with Baltimore Orioles from 1922 to 1928 and the A's, Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals until he quit the game as a player 14 years ago.
Who was the greatest pitcher of his day?
"No doubt about it," he says in a hurry, "it was Lefty Grove. His speed was terrific. His spirit was wonderful. His durability and availability were amazing. In short old Lefty was a meal ticket—he could be depended upon to end a losing streak."

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma finished her new lyberry book, called Dagger and Sheath, and she said to pop, My, William, when I think of the dashing, dangerous, adventurous life of the Middle Ages, I sigh with envy. Those must of been the days, she said.

Some must of been the nights pop said. No decent heating systems and the winters twice as cold as they are now, he said. And ma said, Oh, there's more to life than just having a warm roof over your head and no serious question about where your next meel is coming from. The price we pay for law and order and security is knowing that tomorrow will be exactly like today with nothing special to remember about yesterday, she said.

My dear, you shall have a change, pop said. Your days of security are over, and breathless uncertainty has entered your life. The next time you see me, I may look exactly the same, but on the other hand my mustash may be shaved off. I went say which and I wont say when, he said, and ma said, William Potts, are you starin staring crasy? The last time you seen me without your mustash I could not bare to look at you, and even the meer memory made me shudder for days, she said.

Precisely, my dear, pop said You will never know whether the moment has arrived when you will be horrified and appalled by my appearance, or whether I have put off the evil moment for still another day. Your life will seesaw between feerful apprehension and tremulous hope Th placid secure existence that you find so dull will be strangely altered, he said, and ma said, Now William I dont want to hear another prepoiserius werd. You haven't taken me to a movie for at least three days, and I'm sure that's the full and entire cause of my deprission, she said.

The result being pop changed his slippers to his shoes and took her.

PICTON

Richard W. Hart, Belleville, Buys Hardware Store

Picton — The Hadden Hardware, which has been carried on here since 1841 has been sold to Richard W. Hart of Belleville, and F. Emerson Anderson, also formerly of Brantford. They will take possession on April 1st. The seller, Richard Hadden, is the third generation of that family to carry on the old-established firm.

Mr. Hart, Mrs. Hart and two sons will establish their home in Picton. Mr. Hart was formerly a director of Belleville Chedder Cheese Co., and is well known in the cheese business. He is a Lieut.-Cmdr. in the RCN (R) and an ardent yachtsman.

Mr. Anderson resided in Brantford for 13 years, being manager of the Hotel Kerby there. He was active in community work. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson came to Picton last summer. They purchased the McDougall estate on Glenora Road and have recently taken up residence in the beautiful renovated home there. He served with the Second Division in the First World War.

Hamish Huff, well-known coal and feed dealer here, is seriously ill in Kingston General Hospital.

Lt.-Col. Bunton, who is prison of war interrogator of the Salvation Army, addressed the Rotary Club yesterday. He emphasized the value of home training in reducing juvenile delinquency and crime.

Lt. Col. R. J. Fisher, M.B.E., CO, RCSA (AA) is spending a week in England. He flew from Ottawa and will visit his mother and brother, also Col. Fisher's father, Mayor G. R. A. Coffin, Administration School Officer, is in command during Lt. Col. Fisher's absence.

Assumes Duties

Farm Forum

2ND OF TYENDINAGA

The 2nd Tyendinaga Farm Forum was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Stratton on Monday evening.

The Forum was divided into two groups with Mrs. Raymond Clarke and Mrs. Charles Wood as secretaries for the groups.

The topic for the evening was "Do any of the organizations in your community overlap in their activities?" The Forum felt, that although there seems to be a lot of organization in the community they do not seem to overlap.

The second question "Is there overlapping among the leaders of the organizations?" One group thought there was an overlapping of leaders, but on the other hand the 2nd group thought that there was. However it was agreed there is a slight overlapping in the women's organizations.

As a solution to this a rotation of officers would help. In the matter of too many organizations they should try to perhaps hold some of the meeting together that are relative to each other such as the hog and cheese producers meetings if possible. At any rate a community council as suggested in the Forum Guide might be the solution.

After the discussion euchre was played for the remainder of the evening and refreshments served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood in the form of a euchre party after listening to the broadcast.

WESTERN MOTORCADE

Carrot River, Sask., (CP) — More than 30 automobiles and trucks took part in a motorcade which made the rip from Carrot River to The Pas, Man., recently over forest roads. By Oren Arnold

"We may be losing the ballet girl before the semster is over," this elderly gentleman predicted. "I just happened to see in a New York paper where she is engaged to—here I clipped it for this meeting. She is a national figure in society you know. This columnist writes often about her. Seems the bridegroom will be the young Frenchman we met with her so often. Named Girardeau."

Wesley York, deeply hurt, told himself all at once that he was tired of endless worrying.

Ronica had seemed so fine, so utterly fair with him and charming withal, that he just couldn't envision her being in love with a man like Andre Girardeau. Andre plainly was a playboy of a type all too common; Wes could hardly feel that Ronnie had been taken in by him.

"I shall demand the truth myself," Wesley suddenly avowed after supper this evening. Wherefore, in characteristic action, he drove immediately out of town in his old sedan. His car, incidentally, was in much better shape than it had been on his original trip in this direction; its rattles were gone, its motor tuned carefully, and its body really attractive under new paint. He hoped Ronica would notice it.

Another car was parked at the Rocking R Ranch home when he got there, so Wes knew instantly that he wouldn't be able to ask Ronnie his point-blank question. His idea had been to demand of her if she really did love Andre Girardeau, and to beg of her to—well, he hadn't planned quite that far, but he did hope to interfere with her "engagement" as announced by the New York columnist. He wished he might tell Ronnie of Andre's meetings with Lona Montoya, but that wouldn't seem diplomatic. He'd have to think of something else.

The Rocking R living room—a large hall beautifully done in log beams and Indian rugs and western furniture—was gay with music and laughter. Shyness halted Wes for a moment at the threshold but both Mr. Bailey and Ronnie saw him. A moment later he was in the midst of seven Pueblo co-eds, lovely girls all, who were bantering him as the only eligible male present to dance with them. Six girls had driven out to visit Ronnie, with no dates tonight because of school ruling.

The talk was too rapid for Wes. Temporarily he slipped back into his old defensive "quite so," and "yes indeed," and such poor conversational phrases until Teeny Travers, a cute bit from Detroit grabbed him and literally forced him into lithe jitterbugging. Good sport at heart, Wes tried it. Moreover, he showed some talent —if jitterbug steps can be called such—and presently was actually enjoying himself. No normal man can long remain unhappy amid seven vivacious girls. Finally Ronnie Bailey herself interrupted Teeny and others who were pre-empted Wes.

"Goodness, you girls are terrible!" she declared, brightly. "Dr. York came to see me—not you!"

That merely intensified the rivalry. And built up Wesley's spirits even more. The strange, delightful stimulant of feminine attention and approval was overwhelming to him and before 9.30 he found himself gaining and saying things he would never have dreamed himself capable of. Just for plain old fun they created new dance steps. They chimed in with radio music and chorused the songs, stopping to improvise new words when they cared to. They cracked jokes and laughed inordinately. They even revived the old game of "handies" wherein by you do cute limitations with fingers and hands, and Wes himself proved the cleverest of all.

In short, an outsider looking in would surely have taken Dr. Woodrow Wesley York Ph.D., not for a dignified instructor in archaeology but some lively member of the junior or senior class, a young collegian very popular with the co-eds.

Harmless and impromptu as it was, this hour represented the highest good time Wesley York had ever known. At about 10 Mr. Bailey himself came through, smiled benignly and talked a bit before climbing to his upstairs room and going dutifully to bed. Youth, said Mr. Bailey, is for pleasure, but an older fellow touched with indigestion must have his rest.

Hilarity inside the Rocking R ranch mansion flitted the plans of another individual perfectly.

This individual, a woman dressed in man's clothes, drove outtoward the ranch with a man about 10 o'clock. Car lights were turned off and their car nuzzled on the open plain, headed back toward town, less than half a mile from the building.

"There is the residence," the man said, and there are the hangars. No moonlight to bother us, but powerful glare from the stirs. You have your pistol?"

"Certainly," answered she.

"All right. Remember now—first at the northeast corner between the saguaro cactus plant. Feel for the fuse. Lighted it will glow no more than a cigaret for two minutes or so, then it will ry then to the rear corner and re- then to the rear corner and repeat. The fuse there ends at the largest cotton that permeates under the tweedlana vine. Light both and come directly back to the car. They will be ample time.

"Do not run, either going or coming. Are you enough suspicion, if you meet any one merely say 'Hello' and go on by. Make your voice deep. Of course, in emergency, your gun is—"

"I understand," said the woman. "I am not a fool. And don't fail at your end, either, for this will be our one chance."

Wesley York, playing his own accompaniment on the Bailey grand piano, roared out "The Branding Song" with a lusty impassioned baritone. The seven girls made a semi circle around him, linked arm on shoulders.

"Ooooo, Doc-tor York!" gushed Teeny Travers, in appreciation.

"You do sing beautifully, Wes" Ronica declared, "Do it again and we'll all sing you, hunh?"

They did three stanzas and were elated, and because range songs were a new experience to most of the dude college girls here, they sang every one Wesley could remember—"Home On the Range" and "Cielito Lindo" and "My Fiesta Song" and "Lowell of the Dos S. Ranch" and "Neuvo Mexico" and snatches of many another.

Then because the mood struck him, Wes swung into the hauntingly beautiful music of "Pueblo Mio" the university's own song with its weird minor thumm- boom thumm-boom background of Indian tom-toms and its quick chorus alive with yip-yip shoutings and castanis.

The young people were so engrossed in their pleasure that they were insensitive to anything else for a long while, but as "Pueblo Mio" ended some of the girls were rubbing their eyes. Two had been smoking cigarets, with no notice taken. But all at once Wesley coughed.

"Good lord," he exclaimed. "The room's full of smoke!"

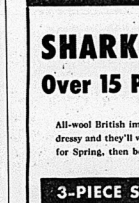
They all turned, staring, motionless for an endless moment.

Through their silence came an unmistakable crackling, and sooty smoke whirled under a doorway into the room as if blown by strong force. Ronica's hand jerked up in a gesture of defence.

"Oh!" she cried out. "Wes! Oh-h-h, Wesley!"

The man who had come out near the Rocking R ranch had stayed in the car when the woman left him. The car had showed no lights for the last mile or so, but just rolled slowly over the flat, comparatively barren land. The man sat in it quietly now, waiting his moment. He would have to time himself well, then act swiftly and efficiently.

He could see a window light or two which he knew was the ranch house. In hangars to the left of the house he could see lights also, and knew that the army officers and mechanics would be there—they even slept within a few feet of their planes. When half an hour had passed he quietly left his car. In a small canvas pack he carried tools—a powerful pair of steel cutters, a hack saw with extra blades of the hardest metal, a short, stubby crowbar, four sizes of files.



Under his coat was a belt holding an automatic pistol. A second and smaller pistol was slung in a shoulder holster out of sight under his left arm.

Outwardly, the man's clothing was neat and of excellent quality so that if by chance he should be seen and recognized he would excite no suspicion. Simply by dropping his bag of tools out of sight he could well assume a normal role with no one the wiser. With no houses save those at the ranch, though, and no road or trail along this flat mesa area, he didn't expect to encounter anyone.

He walked cautiously to within 100 yards of the hangars. There at the edge of the cleared landing field, he lurked in the foliage of a mesquite shrub, waiting.

The field was a long smooth plain from even the small rocks had been removed, but its boundaries were marked by Spanish dagger growths, mesquite, greasewood, sagebrush, and a few scattered boulders. Recently too, a five strand barbed wire fence had been built around it to keep off roaming cattle, horses and men. To be sure much more ahead he slipped through the barbed wire but stayed low in the shrubbery so that his form could not be seen. Constantly he stared toward the Bailey mansion, a two-storey ranch house of stone and pine logs.

Over the ranch house roof came a sudden lick of flame. It died down, sprung up again still higher. Almost at once other flame tongues showed. It glanced at the hangars, anxiously waiting.

In just two or three minutes the fire grew to astonishing proportions over the house, he had planted his inflammable material well. He could hear the constant sound of music and laughter there as he had heard since he first neared the place, but still nobody had discovered the fire.

All at once though, he heard a shout.

"Oh-o-o-o, help!" Somebody yelled, then came a series of shriekings and in the mounting glow there he could see people running.

Further shouts came, louder and more frantic.

A door in an airplane hangar popped open and somebody looked out. At once the person turned back inside, called loudly, and ran to the other hangars nearby and sounded the alarm. Men came streaming out and ran toward the ranch house.

US Navy Expert Challenges Belief About Submarines

Washington, March 29 (AP) — A top United States Navy expert challenges the widespread belief that modern war machines such as long-range aircraft have ended the long immunity of the U.S. from foreign invasion.

"By fully exploiting the use of sea power it will always be possible for this country to ensure that a war will not be fought on our own soil but will be carried to the terrain of the probable enemy," Rear-Admiral C. B. Momsen said Sunday.

Momsen, inventor of the famous Momsen lung used to escape from sunken submarines, now is assistant chief of naval operations for undersea warfare.

Declaring that "our best available enemy today" is concentrating on submarine construction and that the navy has given anti submarine warfare "highest priority," Momsen said.

"By drawing inferences from the effective undersea campaigns of the past it seems almost a sure bet that an attempt will be made to nullify our sea power through the use of the submarine and the mine."

He added, however, that he had reason to believe that development is just ahead which will enable the U.S. "to drive submarines off the sea . . . and if my prediction is correct, submarines will become a mighty dangerous business."

He made no reference to previous naval estimates that Russia has 270 submarines and is building others.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1950

Spring 1950

The time is Spring 1950 . . . and Belleville merchants take pleasure in presenting to the people of this city and the surrounding district, the newest in styles . . . smart and exciting clothes and accessories . . . electrical appliances . . . shoes . . . fur jackets for Spring . . . furniture . . . cosmetics . . . new cars . . . they're all on display at the friendly Belleville stores.

1950 styles adapt themselves to the requirements of the day. They are a happy result of the pattern you have set for mid-century living. The new styles capture the exciting spirit of this historic year. Like never before . . . 1950 modes constantly stress the versatility of garments that take a jacket .... add a collar and can be worn with a perfect flair for everything you do.

Belleville merchants have gone all-out to show the smartest styles obtainable. See them yourself . . .

IT'S GONNA BE A LIGHTER SPRING FOR THE MENFOLK

Fabrics In Wide Choice

New faces. New textures. Two outlooks. These are fabrics for Spring 1950.

Whether you sew them yourself or buy your fashions ready-to-don, fabrics are awaiting you in the widest, brightest array in years.

This Spring, predicts Abbott Kimball's Fashion Newsletter, will introduce a multitude of weaves. Either new or put to new uses.

See scintillating fabric texture in the rustic and reversible faces on woolens. In the dimensional crepe weaves, on soft, very light-weight woolens, sheen and supple tricottines and pile fabrics.

Take heed of texture in the weave - conscious, surface - conscious cottons, the new piques, the three-dimensionality satin-striped and satin-checked chambrays. And jet texture reflect in its most exciting manner in everything you wear.

Note Sheers

This Spring, cues the Newsletter, watch for the important return of many fabrics. Watch for the supple, soft crepes in rayon and pure silk. Watch for paper thin silk taffetas, chiffons, georgettes, in textured honan shantungs. And be at your loveliest in any one of these feminine-themed fabrics.

This Spring, take special note of the sheer fabric. Make note of the sheerness in newly light-weight woolens, in diaphanous cottons, silk and rayons, in nylon. And note it in the many fibres combined to new fabrics, cotton and worsted, worsted and silk, in rayon and nylon. Then wear sheers for an effect as precious as the first blooms of the season.

Remember for fashion-significance, and look to "Puddingstone Tweed." Jullliard's new rustic look tweed. Look to Royston's reversible coating, a navy and white cheviot with a herring-bone-type design that shows both faces, light and dark. Look to Hockanum's tweedy dress woolens. Look to Strouck's coating fabrics with their crunchy surfaces, plain backs.

New Cottons

Remember and look to the knit fabrics. The jerseys by bettman that look like handknits, the cord jersey by Wyner.

Place emphasis on Ducharme's very texture-conscious shantung, new nylon linen by Concordia-Gallia, nylon in a basket-weave sharkskin, Hafner's silk and wool non-crushable faille.

And because cottons have a new manner, new texture and show new revivals, you'll want especially Bates' velvet striped broadcloth, the new wrinkle-resistant, spun rayon suiting "Bahama" by Crown that has such a linenry look.

FIRE DEATHS

New Brunswick fires during 1949 caused 16 deaths and losses estimated at $2,850,000.

A Season of Good Looking Comfort

Nylon blended with worsted and mohair is being offered for men's wear this Spring. The suit is by Bachmann Uxbridge.

Nylon makes possible two new comfortable, durable fabrics for Spring's men's wear. Novelty tricont for the sport shirt; nylon will wool for the slacks.

Here is a versatile topcoat of wool gabardine. Its right for business or dress-up and almost "light as a feather."

Home Sewing Fashion News

Spring's woolens and worsteds in your favorite fabrics department are as varied and interesting in color as they are intriguing in pattern and texture.

For sports and casual wear, the dress weight tweeds will be extensively shown in check design. These checks are distinctly soft to the hand, with interesting texture treatments. Striped fabrics are to be found also, though the check patterns hold leadership. Whether you choose check or stripe, however, there are the companion plain fabrics or complementary weaves to be used together in the costume.

Among coatings and suitings, the importance of checks also prevails. There are named, authentic "district" checks; large and very large checks on white or buied grounds; large pattern plaids, all with companion plains.

For the more sporting of coats, plain weave fleeces are important, particularly for short coats. Coats of the more formal type employ the dressier broadcloths and Venetian coverts.

In general, the lighter tones prevail. Soft blues and pinks, golden yellows and aquas. Copper tones and pastels such as icy green, geranium, wood violet, describe important color values. While is, as usual favored for coats. Navy, that perennial favorite continues to hold its favored place. Reds and greens in many interpretations carry over from the Fall. In the broadcloths and coverts, navy and cocoa browns are in evidence, though reds and greens and shades of gold permit a wider choice as to color.

Accent On Buttons!

This year, buttons dominate the fashion scene.

Buttons are everywhere! Accenting scissor panels, sweeping up daring back slits of skirts, dramatizing new nubby woolens of coats and jackets, glittering on the narrow straps of chemise dresses. Buttons are an integral part of every chic costume.

The woman who makes her own clothes will capture the feeling of a small child let loose in a candy store when she visits a button department. Variety, glamor and abundance mark the button collections.

There are burnished straw buttons from the Caribbean and Orient designed to match the straw bags which will be prevalent this Spring and Summer. Tanned leathers from the plains of Argentina and Texas to place on wool knits and rough tweeds and to add a touch of originality to simple leather gloves!

Polished woods from the northwest forests add an expensive custom-made note to cardigans, jerseys and wools. Sparkling jewels from Europe and Africa give stunning accent to chiffons, crepes, wools.

Throughout the Bailey, Green and Elger button collection, colors have been dyed and matched to the Forstmann County Fair colors.

SPECIAL ATTENTION

To get clothes with badly soiled spots really clean, give them special attention before placing in the washer. Dip them in warm water. Scrub gently but firmly with a well-lathered brush.

If the Madam Shops For Him

Flaming red, Kelly green, rust, beige, pearl grey and winter navy are the six top colors on the fashion hit parade right now — for men!

This startling news comes as the result of a recent survey conducted by Wilson Brothers, manufacturers of men's furnishings it was based on actual sales of sportswear, underclothes, socks, pajamas, shirts, ties and the like.

The survey further revealed some of the things a woman looks for when she shops for her man.

1. A good brand name that indicates quality merchandise.
2. Labels that identify fabrics and their contents.
3. Washing instructions that must be followed.
4. Tags that tell fading and shrinkage percentages.
5. Generous seams.

DOMINION'S PRODUCTION

The net value of Australian industrial production in 1947-48 reached a record of £1,037,200.

HIGHWAYS EXTENDED

A total of 61.62 miles of new pavement was laid in New Brunswick in 1949.

Toppers Shorter

Shortie coats — from fingertip to waist-length — are fashion-preferred for morning, noon and night this Spring of 1950. And the shorter they are, the newer and more exciting.

This season, toppers are worn loose or belted, rather than flared. Newest of the silhouettes is the butterfly wing capelet. This is a dramatic combination of the short, short coat, the 1950-revived cape and exaggerated dolman sleeve.

Prominent in the Spring topper group are unmounted, sloped shoulderlines that pair with high-rising, but small collars to produce a "back to the 20's in 1950" effect. Many of these toppers bear a strong resemblance to the artist's smock with fullness concentrated below a shoulder yoke.

Pockets and Buttons

Topper sleeves are fuller than they've been for several seasons. Many are three-quarter, accented with deep, turn-back cuffs. Some are nipped below the elbow. While others fall bracelet-low and can be casually pushed-up to the length desired.

Pockets again make fashion news. On shortie coats, they're large and numerous, and make for eye-catching details when they're cuffed, slide-in, patch, double and set side by side at the hem, or are left to stand alone as deep pouches.

Buttons too, come in for their share of attention. They run in double rows from shoulder line to hem. They serve as double closings near the neck. But although there is a great prevalence of buttons, they're purely decorative. Toppers, for the most part this Spring, are meant to be worn casually open.

Many old favorites among the fabrics will be seen again this Spring, but most of them have been treated to refreshing, eye-appealing change-overs.

Checks in Color

Gabardine will appear in a new guise. Expect to see and wear it striped, checked or with shadow dots. Sharkskin has a new face. Dotted weaves and pastel shades add fresh appeal to this favored fabric. Tweeds, continue on from the season just past, soft and light as ever, in many weaves and ready to feel at home in town or country. Fleece toppers promise to be more popular than ever.

Checks, one of fashion's biggest, brightest features for Spring, will also make stand outs of your toppers. Most exciting of the checked shorties are those involving such shades as gold, blue, green and violet.

WHOOSH! IT'S ON!

H'ray for a garment that you don jet fast. Once confined to the kitchen, this style dress removed the stigma from the term housedress. Now it appears as a versatile street dress tailored for strolling and dating. The new version of this functional dress called Swirl, retains the button-wrap-in routine and the flirty-prize tag that has always characterized it.

ACCESSORIES FOR SPRING '50 ARE COLORFUL, POLISHED

For Better Living Try New Lamps

A good lamp is a good investment and one of the most important accessories in any room.

The right lamps, properly placed, will add a wealth of beauty, design and color to your decorating scheme as well as performing a utilitarian function. They should also reflect your individual taste and personality.

Portable lamps will play an especially important role in the decoration and lighting of your living room. This room is the scene of varied activities in which all members of the family participate. Good lighting is essential for reading, sewing and other close work. And it is important to show off your furnishings and other accessories to their best advantage.

There should be a lamp for every upholstered piece in the room. For instance, the area around the sofa or love seat should be well lighted. This can be attractively achieved by placing lamps on end tables or on a pair of chests. If the tables are identical, it is a good idea to use lamps that are alike. Two lamps on a long table in back of the couch will provide the same effect.

You can get double value from your lamps by grouping two chairs around one occasional table topped by an outstanding lamp.

Don't ruin the results of these groupings by placing your lamps too far from the chair or sofa. On the other hand, it is just as bad to place the lamp so far forward that its light creates an uncomfortable glare.

Portable lamps are a decorating asset in the bedroom from the standpoint of both beauty and comfort. Lamps on end tables placed on either side of the bed will enable you to read without straining your eyes.

Your placement of lamps may be wise, but if there isn't a sense of fitness between your lamps and your furnishings, it will be of no avail.

If your furnishings are large and massive, your lamps should also be on a grand scale. By the same token, the shade should be the proper size for the base of the lamp. A heavy square base demands a shade that has width, while you might be careful not to overwhelm a tall narrow base with an extremely wide shade. Be sure that your lamps are high enough to provide the best light.

If your lamps meet these three requirements, efficiency, beauty and fitness, you may be certain that they are right for the room.

Convertible Wardrobes

The average man's apparel is fast developing a split personality —and he likes it!

Yes, a growing percentage of his wardrobe is designed to play a dual role. Dressy enough to look presentable at the office, this type of clothing is equally at home out on the golf course. Slowly, but surely, the dividing line between sports wear and business wear is fading away as the former becomes increasingly smarter and the latter becomes more comfortable.

Even neckwear manufacturers are falling in with this idea and are trying to develop a "Sportie" which can be worn for both leisure and dressy occasions.

Shirts and ties are not the only items reflecting this trend. Many a man is wearing the same tweed jacket downtown that he'll later relax in at the country club. With it he dons dual-purpose slacks of covert or flannel. As for footwear, the moccasin-type style has long been accepted for board meetings or boardwalks.

Topcoats are another illustration, with zipper lined gabardine coats widely popular for every occasion, everywhere.

Look for the vogue to develop added momentum because the long-term drift in America is towards a more informal way of life. Our natural pattern of men's wear will therefore tend to grow increasingly casual, with less emphasis on strict business attire. Can California apparel customs be a preview of things to come in all men's clothing?

CORRECT FOR THE PROM

Toting the him-in-your-life to a prom?

With his tux bought, borrowed or rented and preferably single breasted he should wear a white soft pleated-front shirt, or a plain or pique bosom. Above this, he wears a semi or wide spread collar. His tie is a narrow shaped square or pointed end bow. Suggest midnight blue for his tie; it appears blacker than black under artificial light.

Feminine Detail is Everywhere

Imported wool in a classic suit with designer touches that soften the simple lines as designed by Stefan of Linker & Herbert.

Henry Rosenfeld has designed this Cohama woven Nylon sheer Spring dress and printed it with a delicate paisley motif.

Parchment Imperial Gabardine by Miren makes this important coat with dropped shoulders emphasized by the yoke which crosses the sleeves and chest.

New Ties Take A Middle Road

With Summer and Spring suits lighter in color than ever before, the new middle-shade ties are designed as a two-way threat, to set the suits off to their greatest advantage and yet enable the neckpiece to lead a life of its own.

Big, brash bold patterns have lost none of their fashion sting, says the Men's Tie Foundation, but they'll be considerably more restrained, with smaller and more subdued motifs. The gay days of atomic bomb bursts and bird's eye views of the siege of Bastogne, on ties, are gone.

There'll be a big splurge in the 50-inch length tie, the Foundation predicts, with more and more men hopping on the windsor-knot bandwagon.

"WALK UPSTAIRS AND SAVE"

Checks Are First For Spring '50

Check and double check, and what do you find? You find checks everywhere this Spring of 1950.

And with these checks, you discover colors that move in sharpness, brightness, in pastel tonality, clear and muted, that vary with the fabric.

For gay variation, Abbott Kimball's Fashion Newsletter reports the prominence of prints on white and light grounds, and newer yet, on eggshell and raffia grounds. Prints will abound with spaced patterns that create a third dimension, with patterns that are often Persian and Oriental in inspiration.

And how are these checks, colors and prints used?

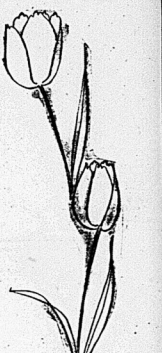
Checks Abound

Your dresses are checked. Your suits are checked. Your coats are checked. Checks have tattersall effects on white grounds, as in "Tic-Tac" by Juilliard. They appear in "checkerboard" checks, shepherd checks, small checks, large checks. Checks are bold. Checks are light. There are windowpane checks, district checks, houndstooth checks. Even fleece is checked.

So lovely and harmonious are the colors of this Spring, that Juilliard has named their 1950 colors "Touchtones." In this beautifully musical group are reflections of the colors you will see and wear through Spring and Summer.

"Blot" Prints

Spring breaks into print with stop-the-press motifs. In silk, nylon, cotton and rayon there are bolts filled with bright ideas. Colors are pinks, yellows, blues, both strong and subtle; light, ground prints, tone-on-tone prints.



Delving into archives has produced Persian-inspired "Excesens" and charming "Southern Lady" by Verney; Seventh Century Egyptian tapestry prints by Burlington Mills. More genii prints spirited from Bagdad is the sorcery of Hafner. City scene sketches and abstract "blot" prints lend a sophisticated whimsy to Spring.

apanese Wives Gain ew Rights Even in Divorce

By ROY MACARTNEY

Tokyo, — (Reuters) —Madame iferfly has progressed far the days when she had no ts against the man who nged her.

ctory, General MacArthur and mocracy" have brought her breaching social rights. Included that of initiating divorce, if so desires.

he may even receive alimony, ally a lump sum, be granted dy of the children and may erty. Before the war, there a strong stigma on divorced es which caused males to away from those once unsuc- fully wed.

earlier still, until the advent Emperor Mutsi in 1868, divorce the husband's unilateral privi- es. All he had to do was write wife a "release", stating ying to disharmony, I wish to orce you."

he then returned the wife to parents with letter explain- his reasons for so doing. After lapse of a certain period, divorce became final.

In 1893, a civil code defined rried women's status by adopt- the English common law dis- ility of married women. It rec- nized two forms of divorce— icial and mutual consent—and med to assure women's right secure divorce.

But the Japanese "family sys- m" under which woman's posi- n was inferior to that of man d female "docility", consider- a womanly virtue, practically strated the woman's theoretical ancipation.

Under the family system, the oman did not marry the man but rried into the family. If the sh-laws" did not like her, they ld persuade the husband to di- ce her.

The easiest arrangement, with- causing a scandal, was to ar- nge a divorce by mutual con- nt. It was considered a woman- virtue to obey the husband's der and agree to it. If the s did prove recalcitrant, it as not unknown for the hus- nd to sign his wife's name and gister the divorce without her owledge.

The postwar constitution, drawn on General MacArthur's or- r, radically changed domestic tionships.

It abolished the ily system and guaranteed the quality of the sexes in the choice of spouse, property rights, inheritance, choice of domicile and divorce."

Courts of family relations were established in all prefectures on Jan. 1, 1948. Japanese women immediately began asserting their new rights. Judge Seiroku Kawai, of the Tokyo court, said that women were complainants in seven out of 10 of the divorce cases which he heard in 1948.

Before the war, a husband could divorce his wife on the grounds of adultery. She could not divorce him on the same grounds unless she could show that she had suffered "grave insult". Adultery committed by women was a penal offence, but not for husbands.

Grounds for divorce under the postwar law are mainly adultery by either party, desertion or mental instability.

Belay That Blouse Revert to Rompers

London (CP)—British designers want to put women back in rompers.

A combined blouse-and-panties set is under patent and manufacturers think it has a big future.

Designed to free women from the waist gap caused when blouses slip, it all reduces waist bulk and banishes the ridge that shows up under a skirt.

It will mean freedom of movement for sportswomen, for house- wives doing chores and for office workers stretching to high filing shelves.

Sports designs will be in rayon for jersey-mesh. Made in blouse-and-brief style, they will be worn with or without covering slacks or shorts.

Dressy styles in rayon or silk for dancing wear will be a boon to energetic dancers who need something that will "stay put".

Many ranges are to be made in all types of style, color and material. All will be laundry tested.

THE GIRLS PAY

London (CP)— Stoke Newington's R.A.F. Association has started something with a "Ladies Night" dance. The girls will make all the play"—inviting the boys, buying the tickets paying for the drinks and handing out the cigarets.

'Battle of Bob' Rages Overseas On Hair Lengths

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March (CP)— "To cut or not to cut" again becomes a problem for women of fashion.

In London and Paris the hairdressing battle is on again.

London hairdressers say: "It is short definitely—women find it so easy and can set it themselves.

But most British women still hold out for "short, but not too short."

In Paris the shortest-ever hairstyles have appeared—tiny skullcap styles with asymmetrically brushed ends, tiny fringes, winged sides or a backward mannish brush.

Yet Paris is not unanimous on the subject. Several coiffeurs feature longer styles and two leading ones are at odds about it.

Antonio makes war on Eton crops and all other styles that "do women of their femininity."

Guillaume disagrees. He favors short cuts styled to suit face and clothes. He says the latest dress designs "demand" short hair styles.

Hats Add Confusion

The latest Paris hats add point to the controversy. The new headline line with its forward-tilted brim needs back curls, but the close fitting clothes, tucked and skull caps make curls impractical.

For all the snipping, it seems at present that anything goes.

The Dutchess of Kent recently had hers cut short and kept it long enough to end in a soft bubble curl.

Film star Jean Simmons cut hers short to wear a wig in "Adriana" and has kept it short in a brushed-up bubble cut.

Merle Shearer, premiere ballerina, cut hers last summer and is growing it again to make a halo of soft curls around her face.

Sixteen-year-old Petula Clark gave British teen-agers a lead in the shorter cuts. She favored a pixie cut with a wispy fringe and bob-cut back.

Jean Barraclough, an Australian model who stormed London with her beauty in the spring shows, favors the Eton crop.

But one headline woman holds out for length, and lots of it. Scorning all the short cuts is strawberry blonde Rita Hayworth. Aly Khan's princess has allowed her hair to return to a natural golden blonde and is letting it grow.

Room to Blow Is Hankie Aim

London, (CP)—The Wholesale Textile Association of Great Britain wants handkerchiefs worth sneezing at.

It wants manufacturers to produce them to a minimum size of 10 inches square for women. It says the men's present large size is okay.

An eight-inch minimum is favored for children notwithstanding their occasional greater need than the grownups.

The association also has decided to keep a rationing-days relic, the four-handkerchief box (they used to sell four to a coupon) which has proven more popular than the original six.

Along with most commodities handkerchiefs are more expensive than they once were and purchasers prefer to buy them only a few at a time.

A TAPE QUIZ

If you wanted to do any one of the following things around the house, and do it as quickly and easily as possible, what material and tools would you use to:

Repair a plastic shower curtain? Anchor ivy branches against a brick or plaster wall? Attach a corsage to a bare shoulder when wearing a strapless gown? Sew a bottle or jar for travelling?

The answer, for all those in the know, is simplicity itself. For tools, you would need only your own two hands. For material, you need only transparent cellophane tape.

COOL-HEADED GIRL

Farnham, Buckinghamshire, England.—(CP)—A gunman who tried to hold up the village post office was told by 17-year-old Joyce Freeman: "Don't be silly". She pressed the alarm button under the counter and screamed. The gunman fled.

NOT FORGOTTEN

Fort William, Ont. — (CP) — Ald. George Wardrope says he has been told by Ontario Highways Minister Doucett that a north shore highway from Sault Ste. Marie to the Lakehead "has not been forgotten." It would be completed in stages.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON
Care of the complexion.

In all nature there is nothing much sweeter or more delicate than the velvety skin of early childhood. Many young girls retain this exquisite asset of youthtitude. Now and then a middle-aged woman will be blessed with a complexion that is practically flawless—texture fine, coloring natural and compelling. She has health and vitality, qualities that play an important part in appearance.

We see few to whom the gods have given a clear, unblemished complexion, transparent and as delicate as a rose petal. Many woman are themselves responsible for skin defects through neglect or disregard for the simplest laws of hygiene. How otherwise can we account for muddy complexions, discolorations and the premature wrinkles observable all around us? Usually the perfect complexion tells a story of radiant health, a well-organized life, daily cosmetic care.

In this machine age, with the atmosphere of city-dwelling soot from chimneys, the use of soap and water alone is not sufficient to keep the skin clean. It is necessary to apply cleansing creams as well. A method approved by practically all beauticians is to remove make-up with a thin cream, leaving a little of it on, then using soap suds with light friction. Rinse with warm water, dry gently and apply a heavier emollient; let it remain on over night. By morning the cream will have disappeared. Dash on cold water; if the skin is oily, apply an astringent.

Cold water is tonic, because it stimulates circulation. Blood is the only thing that can feed the muscles and tissues. If they are not firm, the epidermal coat will sag. Wrinkles, then, are not far away.

Anxiety is something we cannot help

Women who are reducing should be careful to make up for the lack of fat in the diet by applying lubricants lavishly, by tapping and patting treatments to tone the flesh. Nothing is gained if one acquires a younger figure and finds oneself with an older face.

Coarse pores are a common complaint. It is believed that they come because of wrong dietary habits. Those who are thus afflicted should cut down on rich sauces, pastries, cream and butter; they should eat more fruit and vegetables, especially green salads. Every year we are learning about the benefits of the balanced diet, the need of consuming various elements that are necessary for well-being.

Exercise in the open air has a beneficial effect upon the skin because it air-washes the lungs, hustles up the circulatory streams, brings coloring to the cheeks and the lips.

Lose of sleep will produce wrinkles, as well worry. Anxiety is something we cannot help, but worry is something else again. Avoid it—if you can.

Marriages Unhappy If Partners Bored

London, (CP)—Sheer boredom is one of the chief reasons for unhappy marriages, in the opinion of Rev. Leslie Tizard, a marriage-guidance leader.

He told a meeting of young men and women that some marriages "are just miles and miles of dullness, until they reach holy deadlock". If two people were utterly bored with one another it wasn't "surprising if they reach a state of exasperation".

Unfaithfulness usually began with little exasperations and pinpricks and Mr. Tizard said he was "afraid that what a great psychologist said was pretty true".

'Many marriages are a fight to the finish'.

Alberta Lass Finds Romance in Scotland

Lismore Island, Scotland—(CP)—A young heiress from Champion, Alta., and a handsome young ferryman from a tiny island off the west coast of Scotland are principals in a fairy-tale romance.

The couple are 26-year-old Morag MacDougall of Champion and Colin Black, also 26, of Point House, Lismore Island. He lives with his parents, 19-year-old Jean and a twin brother.

Three years ago, Morag, an only child, went to Scotland for the first time to visit her late father's birthplace on Lismore Island. With her went her mother and uncle, Charles MacDougall.

Colin took the party over in his trim ferryboat from Port Appin, 18 miles north of Oban on the Argyllshire mainland. After that, when Morag returned to Canada, she and Colin corresponded regularly. Then in May, 1949, Morag and her mother flew back to Scotland to spend another six months on Lismore Island.

At the end of that time Morag and Colin became engaged. Date of the wedding has not yet been fixed. But it will be a big wedding and after their honeymoon the couple will settle at Colin's island home.

Morag's father, Sandy MacDougall, emigrated to Canada from Scotland in 1905. He worked on cattle ranches, studied breeding and saved his money all with one aim in view—to own his own farm.

In 1920 he achieved his ambition and when he died in 1942 his prestige as a cattle breeder was so great that he was known in Alberta as "the Shorthorn King".

1950 Modes Designed For Ease and Beauty

Do you remember when? "Peek-a-Boo" waists were chic but a trifle daring? Dress waists were so important? The stiff dimensions of your satins, silks and velvets were relieved by yards of laces and ribbons? Dresses had to be hooked up the back by hubby or the maid? Shoes were high - topped, buckled and buttoned, too? Hats were vast be-feathered vistas? You wore a lavaliere-pendant at your throat?

Chances are you don't remember. And if you do, your memories are filled with the impractical discomforts of the apparel rather than the fashions themselves.

For this was a half-century ago. And today, in the Spring of 1950, just 50 years later, ours is a fashion-world of marvels. Designers are carefully rendered to meet with ease as well as feminine flattery, your every hurry. You wear magical fabrics that require nary a stroke of the iron to retain their lovely smooth aspects. Your choice of colors is as gay and varied as the blooms about you. And fabric texture selections vary with your every moods.

This Spring, the functionalism of fashions is more prevalent than ever. There are dresses that can be worn with or without their jackets of a slightly heavier fabric. Coats are short and to the point. They're ready to be tossed over suits for lightning-speed plane trips or worn with equal elegance over Summer gowns. Suits are slim as a reed, in many instances of a rayon fabric that can be worn with ease through every season of the year.

Slimmer, Shorter

And with our fashions, designed for quick stepping moments here, there and everywhere, comes the shorter silhouette. 14-inches high is the popular prediction for this Spring's skirt length.

Over-all lines are slimmer, shorter but femininely softened by bloused jacket backs or bodices. Dropped shoulders, easy-moving sleeves or none at all are prominent. The sleeve fashions that often stop at bracelet or just-below-the-elbow length come in designs that are opulently flounced, extravagantly cuffed or wide as a kimono's.

Splick accents are loaned to fashions for Spring '50 by buttons in all shapes, sizes and fabrics. There are also profusions of pockets, placed high and low, front and back, and shaped to add pleasant contrast to the lines of your apparel. Crisp touches of ice white linen or pique and sleek streaks of patent leather also add to the over-all look of 1950 modernity.

Clear Colors

Nylon, the magic fabric of the Century, captures fashion completely this momentous mid-century Spring. Easy to find and easy to wear is nylon as taffeta, nylon as rustling taffeta, soft crepe, worsted and many of your other favorite fabrics, Nylon too, will appear in opaque as well as translucent interpretations, in solids and gay prints. Blouses, dresses, even wedding gowns will be created of this wonder fabric.

And because this is an exciting year and an exciting season, colors follow suit. They're clear, true, honest as the season, abundant with checks of all sizes and small prints many of which are reminiscent of the Orient. Although navy blue is still the number one color for Spring, the entire range of golden, sun-kissed colors from demure apricot to gentle tan also holds fashion attention. Cherry red comes in for a mid-century bow as do the blues of all hues, royal blue in particular.

Yes, fashions of Spring 1950 are not just an overpowering potpourri of available fabrics, Spring '50 fashions are a vital ever-changing part of our atom-paced, ever-changing world.

GREEN NEWS

The "Wearing Of The Green" is now more than a marching song for St. Patrick's Day, as far as the fashionable male is concerned. This year, after a long period of steady climbing green has secured for itself a firm place in the male wardrobe. Look for it to sprout up at the first sign of Spring.

PARIS CHEERS YELLOW

From Paris comes the word that yellow is a major color accent this Spring.

All the yellows from unripe lemon to marmalade appear in memories. You can adapt this theme to your wardrobe by mating your new navy blue crepe with yellow sueded cotton gloves, or tucking two bright daffodils at your waist.

Rainy Day-er

This imported linen raincoat by Lawrence of London can easily double as a Spring coat. B.G.E. buttons trim the garment.

THE TYROLEAN WAY

Tyrolean hats, once a great favorite with American men, are again heading the men's wear field as far as leisure clothes are concerned. Emphasizing an unorthodox tapered crown and sporting bands of rope, cord, felt or braid these gay, jaunty hats are appropriate for any type face and tops in any man's leisure-wear wardrobe.

Nylon To Star in '50

This Spring, the wise lass on the prowl for "something new" will find an almost magical profusion of fresh nylon weaves to choose from.

There are nylon satins designed as enchanting wedding gowns. Nylon illusion net and nylon lace that ably mimic the daintiest of imports are present as precious trim for your important gowns and lingerie. And who can resist the delicacy of a Schiffli-embroidered 15-denier nylon sheer? Nylon Lingerie

For Easter parading, you can choose a nylon faille suit and a nylon faille trimmed bonnet to match. Later on, you'll want a swimsuit of nylon taffeta or velvet, as well as a tee shirt of sueded nylon jersey.

In lingerie, you can buy slips and gowns flounced with fluted nylon. The pleats are heat set so they retain their sharpness through countless launderings. "Nylasatin", a satin weave, and "Pownyl," a weave that has achieved ideal porosity, are perfection for your bras and corsets.

Nylon makes an important day-after-day appearance as a novelty-stripe for your blouses. You'll see it and wear it, too, in a linen weave as your husband's sport shirts as well as your own street dresses.

Easy to Tend

Yes, nylon assumes every look and is to be found everywhere. It's a striped, checked, a white-on-white, an embroidered weave. It's your suit's new slipcovers, it's your lovely new nylon marquisette curtains, your handy umbrella, your next Winter's skiwear, your children's most comfortable ensembles.

Best of all, all-nylon merely requires a "dip, dry and don" laundering routine. For washing, sudsy warm water is best. Follow this with a thorough rinsing.

A Paris-inspired Spring frock of highly - styled, finely checked tweed with subtle texture interest by Milridge Woolens.

FEEL BEFORE BUYING

For years fabrics have been judged by their feel and drape in the hand. There's no better way to get an idea of performance. So have the salesperson unroll a yard or so of fabric. As you handle it, you'll find the fabric may suggest the silhouette. Crisp organdies, taffetas, failles, ottomans fly into youthful, bouffant lines. Hard finished suitings of worsted, spun rayon or spun rayon blends lend themselves best to disciplined tailoring. Satins, damasks, moires, brocades, the ultimate in luxury, are so rich in themselves they need simple treatment with few seams.

More Ease For Shoes

Men, take a tip from the ladies this year and be as comfortable when the mercury climbs as you are when it is an even 70 degrees.

Instead of settling for a year-round wardrobe, women dress for each season. They find that by rotating their wardrobes and accessories they look smarter, feel more comfortable and are more at ease than when they wear their mink coats in July.

Wrong Shoes

Sounds silly when put that way but actually men couldn't be much warmer in a heavy overcoat during the Summer heat than they are when they wear heavy Winter suits and shoes in hot weather.

So men, the National Shoe Institute suggests, "Take that overcoat off your feet." When you bathe your Winter flannels in storage this Summer and take out your cool suits put good firm shoe trees in your Winter-weight unventilated shoes and step out in some of the new lighter-weight comfortable Summer shoes.

These shoes are especially slated to accompany cool suits and gabardines, light worsteds, as well as the tropical Palm Beach cloth, corded rayons and rayon mixtures. These tropical shoes are ventilated, mesh and woven shoes in attractive patterns.

Slip-Ons

Tropical slip-ons are perfect for warm weather dressing when it seems too hot to even secure a shoe lace. These slip-ons have a new side elasticized gore, easy-on, easy-off. Tropical shoes in soft, tooled color effects, one or two-tone patterns for Summer town suits or country wear with light-weight slacks.

Thinner soles, lighter treatments, easy-on construction, and softer colors, are some of the attractive features that highlight these shoes which will be air-cooled, air-conditioned and good looking accessories for the men in 1950.

Spring Furs Assume Color, Slimmer Lines

Furs, this Spring, are an elegant compliment in color, Slimmer, boxier, there's a definite trend to shorter and more fitted jackets that serve as precious foils for dresses and suits.

Pastels as well as vivid colors dramatize the Spring '50 scene. Midnight blue Persian lamb, caramel Persian lamb, green mouton lamb, French taupe Indian broadtail, cocoa-dyed ermine are only a few of the furs adopting exciting new colors.

A fur jacket fashion detail adaptation taken from famed French designer Christian Dior, is the dropped shoulderline. It is slightly padded to produce a soft, moulded, easy-to-wear fashion.

In keeping with the dropped shoulderline are double sleeves or three-quarter and open-bottomed sleeves. Also prevalent this season are fur jackets that fit comfortably over new Spring suits and dresses.

THE RIGHT TIE

Almost any color tie is appropriate with a grey suit. Brown suits go best with ties that combine brown and grey or brown and blue, while combinations of yellow and blue or yellow and maroon are particularly fine for any blue suit. Ties with maroon and gold tones (beige, yellow, etc.) are the philosopher's stones of neckwear, they can turn the dress of any color suit into high-fashion gold.

Aimed At The Hat Shopper

Here are a couple of handy "how to" tips for you guys who jam every hat in the store on your head and still aren't "quite sure it's the right one" even after the choice is wrapped and ready to go.

If your face isn't too round, too long, too square or too anything, you haven't any problems, bud. Choose a hat with a 2 and five-eighths inch brim. Round faced fellows will do best with a 2 and three-quarter inch snap brim and a 5 and five-eighths inch tapered crown. If yours is the very full face, select a semi-square crown with not too much of a point and a brim that's slightly snapped in front.

For the short man-about-town, the right hat has a wide brim that hides away the height of the crown and a welt edge to give the brim a dull width.

● SO MANY, many colorful and beautiful things have arrived in our store for Spring it's hard to list them individually. We do extend a most cordial invitation to YOU to come in and see each and every one for yourself. We know you'll be just as enthusiastic as we are.

SPRING CLOTHES HAVE SLIMMER, SHORTER LINES

'50's Bride Traditional

The traditional wedding with its many elegant flourishes, numerous attendants and champagne-pouring receptions is with us again.

Wedding parties are increasingly larger. Many brides are including as many as 8 to 10 bridesmaids. And with the increase in size of this most important function, colors and more careful attention to selection of gowns is growing in importance as well.

Latest trend in Spring wedding array is the garden color scheme with a three-tone pastel effect for the attendants, such as orchid, iris and violet. Ballerina-length bridesmaid dresses accompany this lovely display of color.

Traditional satin and laces for the bride at these grand weddings continue to be the favored choice. And now, it is even possible for the bride to economize on her gorgeous array with a satin gown that sells for well under $100. "Double-Duty" Gowns

One bridal costume, that is particularly beautiful, useful and modern, is of satin and lace. It is luxuriously fashioned with a floor-length, satin bare-top dress topped by a lace redingote with a very long train. The redingote is an ideal heirloom "piece" and the gown may be worn later as a formal ball gown.

For the bridesmaid-in-pastel, there are smart "double-duty" gowns of marquisette-over-lustre-taffeta. These dresses are available for about $30.

New, and in the tempo of the times, are short length dresses suggested for second or informal weddings. Some of these are in glowing interesting shades of paper weight iridescent silk taffeta. Others are in organdy and nylon net. Many of the shorter-length frocks also make perfect graduation dresses.

Second Weddings

A distinctive second or informal wedding dress, now available, has a short nylon net full skirt combined with a fold-tucked satin torso. Another dress that makes a more feminine replacement for the usual "suit bride" is a blush or ice blue satin dress with a cuffed, criss-cross neckline and back-side drape. It is sleeveless but comes with appropriate matching mitts. This dress also serves perfectly as a "dressy occasion" frock after the wedding.

Weight, Color, Bands New On Spring '50 Hats

Elegance with just the right amount of "dash" highlights the theme of men's hats for Spring 1950.

Whether it's new Spring shades or the "weight-of-air" felt, or bright new colorful bands, you're looking for, you'll find all three features prominent in great amount this Spring, when you go to select your hat wardrobe.

Perhaps never before in the entire history of modern-day apparel, have men's hats been designed to complement so well the cheerfulness of their "favorite lady's" Spring wardrobe.

However, with all this, hat manufacturers have still kept in mind the prime interest of every male, comfort. Most notably in this aspect of the new Spring headwear is the introduction of narrow silk sweatbands, replacing the leather ones.

Some manufacturers have given their hats such names as "Free Weight," "Air Weight," etc., and rightfully so, because your new headpiece, in some instances will feel as though it really is light as a cloud.

Light shades of blue, grey and brown predominate the color scene, with such descriptive titles as "Golden brown," "lagoon," "flaxen," "sky grey," "silver belly," "fawn," and even a light yellow shade called appropriately "sunkist." To highlight these new shades, are bright, very wide bands. A new treatment along these lines, is a two-tone twisted band, about one and a half times as wide as your present hatband.

Another Spring innovations is the introduction of brightly colored small figure bands, in the past seen mostly on straw hats. Another, is the use of college colors as the band theme.

For spectator sports, materials with a "brushed" or "hairy" look are being widely featured in various interesting shapes along with narrow wool bands. Some have hat pins in the shape or animal's heads, in the bands, offset by bright feathers. Also, a modified Tyrolean, a big favorite among American men for sportswear, is featuring a turned-up side brim and comes in bright red, yellow or green.

Men's hats this Spring are finally catching up with the times by being colorful and fresh-looking. And with your brim snapped in a way to give you that "Cavalier look", you're bound to be the handsomest man in the 1950 Easter parade.

Eisenberg molds sheer wool into a 2-piece ensemble. The fullness of the jacket is cinched at the waist by a wide snakeskin belt.

Sheerest Prints for Spring Wear

Printed sheers as gay as a butterfly's wing are featured by the yard and on the rack this Spring.

Rayon sheers are presented in the brilliant colors usually associated with silk shantung. Such colors as electric blue, shocking pink and onion skin orange give an illusion of body to the delicate fabric. Other budget sheers appear expensive in dramatic brush stroke abstracts or detailed ink sketches. For those who prefer chiffon-type prints, there are pretty pastel flowers, dainty spaced geometrics and tiny precise checks.

Cellophane - crisp organdies with frosty etchings are favored for little girls' ice cream party dresses as well as for lawn-sweeping bridesmaid's gowns. Notable are the organdies printed to appear as though they had insets of lace. There is a marked departure from small prints in the large swirls and damask effects seen. One fabric firm offers smooth textured organdy with a plisse design.

PLASTIC PONCHO

A new tuckaway poncho is now available for the hunter or fisherman who wants to be ready for a sudden shower. Made of Vinylite plastic film, this poncho is light in weight, comfortable to wear, and so small it can be tucked away in a pocket, ready for instant use.

THOSE FROZEN MEATS

Frozen meats can be cooked successfully even when they are in a solidly frozen state. The meat juices will be retained in the cooking process, although the cooking time for frozen meat will be longer per pound than for meats partially frozen or thawed.

Wall Paper Decorating

How many times have you wished that your living room was two feet wider, your hallway just a little larger and if only the wall space in the bedroom was not so broken up?

Unfortunately, the average Mrs. Homemaker cannot change substantially the architecture of her apartment or home. But she can resort to decorating tips to minimize her problems.

The use of wall paper is one of the easiest, most attractive and least expensive ways to alter your home. The proper wall paper can turn those defects in even the most difficult room into decorating assets.

Most everyone has a hallway, but not all of us are lucky enough to have one long enough to accommodate furniture. That's no reason to fret. A scenic wall paper here will give dignity and poise to this small area as well as creating the illusion of added space. Smart striped papers in muted colors will also achieve the same effect.

Because the rooms are small, lighter tones and small patterns are best; they give a feeling of spaciousness and expanse. For an unusual effect, wall paper the hall area and then the living room walls with a small geometric design, and on one of the end walls, hang a colorful splashy floral.

Strangely enough, a room that is too big can present a decorating headache too. Wall papers in deep, warm colors with bold designs done on a grand scale, will inject a feeling of warmth and coziness to the largest room. The darker hues and heavier patterns have a tendency to bring the walls together.

Wall paper plays a very important role in the decoration of your dining room, no matter what the size. Since the main pieces of furniture in the room are wood, it may very easily be cold and uninviting. Often the chairs provide the only source of color.

Therefore, timidity has no place in influencing the choice of wall coverings for this room. Even though the area may be small, the wall paper should be dramatic and eye-catching.

Beautiful Gowns in Auriol Visit in Fashion News

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—Eyes of the fashion world turned on London when President and Madame Vincent Auriol stepped from the royal train to be met in State by the King and Queen.

Madame Auriol had made the crossing in a beige outfit trimmed with black—a simple, straight-skirted dress combined with a loose jacket having plunge revers and cape collar. Her hat was a small, close-fitting cloche of black felt trimmed with one feather quill.

When she stepped from the train she wore a dove-grey two-piece suit, the loose draped jacket cuffed by wide bands of grey fox. Her grey straw toque had side trimming of flying dove's wings. Her gloves were velvet, dyed to match her dress.

The Queen wore one of her favorite colors, deep lilac. Her coat, with wide plunge revers and bishop sleeves, had two back panels edged with grey fox.

The lighter shade of her dress matched her gloves and both shades were incorporated in the huge sweep of her Gainsborough picture hat. Of felt, its brim was tipped by a wide band of straw and two rolls of felt mounted by osprey swept the right side of the brim.

Princess Elizabeth wore a dark green suit and feather-trimmed cloche-bonnet. On her lapel was a jewelled sprig.

The Princess Royal's choice was ruby; the Duchess of Kent, chocolate brown with gold accessories and a corn-colored straw hat; the Duchess of Gloucester, pale grey fur with grey fur hat.

Swan Feather Hat

Later, at Westminster Abbey, Madame Auriol had changed her hat for a wide cartwheel of white swan feathers with serrated brim sideswept.

For the French banquet next evening, Madame Auriol wore a gown of grey tulle with heart-shaped neckline, the bodice heavily patterned with paillettes of smoked, grey-blue crystal.

The Queen, wearing an unusual tiara, had chosen a crinoline of rose-colored tulle over satin of the same shade. The wide skirt consisted entirely of overlapping petals of tulle embroidered with crystal and mother-of-pearl. The same embroidery tipped the deep, petalled, cape collar across which splashed the scarlet cordon of the Legion of Honour.

Princess Elizabeth looked strikingly stately in the severe lines of a heavy ivory satin, lacking embroidery or ornamentation.

With low, squared double-fold neckline, its simple lines fitting the waist and hips and falling in rich folds to the ground, it threw into startling relief the scarlet of the Legion of Honor cordon. The only trimming was the lattice-work quilting which stiffened the skirt and the bodice front.

Saskatoon Shoppers Not Short on Beefs

Saskatoon (CP)— Saskatoon branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers sponsored a "Bring Your Beef" here.

The guests brought plenty. These are some of the complaints they registered about merchandise and food sold in Canada:

Men can buy two-pant suits. Why can't women buy two-skirt suits? Blouses are much too short to tuck in.

Cotton lace on some nylon slips gets too long to dry. Some nylon lace turns grey with washing, while the nylon slips stay white.

It's almost impossible to buy yard goods to equal the quality of fabrics in better-grade, ready-made dresses.

The inside finish in men's boots is too rough, and feet get sore standing all day. Nylon stockings should be graded in length to save time for saleswomen and handling of the stockings.

Slop handles too often are poorly finished, rough and splintery.

It is impossible to buy babies' sweaters in pre-shrunk wool.

Fruit packaged in cellophane spoils quickly. A special bag should be designed for carrying fish because paper parcels are inclined to drip.

For Spring Combine!

This Spring, choose one of the dramatically new white fleece, short, short toppers.

Select your topper with exciting lines and detailing: controlled back-flare, flat front, a high-rising collar, full bracelet-length, deeply cuffed sleeves and snuggle down pockets. Then see what scintillating fashion combinations you can create for yourself with a whisking change of accessories.

Wear your topper over your favorite navy dress or suit. And as a "for instance," add a choker of red, white and blue faceted crystal beads with matching drop earrings. To this, ensemble white knitted piqué shortie gloves, strikingly accented with navy cotton piping and a washable white calf covered crystal pouch bag trimmed with navy calf, and you have a color-right, fashion-right, go-everywhere costume.

Another Idea

Or try with your white topper and navy dress or suit, a three-stranded twist necklace of white baroques mixed with faceted crystal beads. Finish the costume off with navy double sueded cotton gloves with white glace scallops and a slim navy envelope handbag in calfskin.

Other, equally striking accessory variety treatments may be achieved with a cluster of Madagascar straw straps, compactened with a crisp straw bag and slim belt. Or if you prefer, wear a white cotton webbing belt piped in navy calf. This midriff accent will bring out the tones of both your white topper and navy dress or suit.

Any one of the new, smaller patterned silk scarfs can also be utilized as gay accent marks with your Spring-'50-appropriate navy and white ensemble. Several attractive scarfs now available include an 18-inch navy foulard pattern scarf printed in yellow motifs. Another is a silk square with a miniature antique motive Florals and paisleys are also represented in attractive scarf representations, as are narrow strips of solid color silk of chantung.

Hair Color Cosmetics

Helena Rubinstein believes that you should add color to your hair, as you do to your mouth and eyes.

Alter the mood of a dress with change of hair tint. For instance, the severity of a black crepe can be relieved with a punctuation of copper in your hair; or it can be humanized further with a suggestion of blue. Use your tint at will, since it washes in a rub.

Teens Select The Ensemble

This Spring, our Teener wants a two-piece dress. A tuck-in duo that invites change-overs from other ensembles, or a be-jacketed dress so wonderful for class with its jacket and smart as can be at informal Greek letter parties without the jacket.

What makes the jacket of your two-piece ensemble depends entirely upon your own tastes and figure needs. For, this Spring, it's a choice of everything from the briefest of boleros to the most elegant of fitted redingotes as a cover-up for your favorite print or solid-tone "every occasion" dress.

Yes, the minimum-size matching or contrasting jacket provides cover for a sleeveless bare-top dress so that the dress can lead a double life. Many bring silk and rayon prints have contrasting lightweight wool jackets lined in the same gay print as the dress beneath. A bright red faille red-ingote provides chic topping for a bare-sleeved crepe print. The same redingote can also serve as a handsome high fashion Spring coat over other dresses.

Rustic tweeds and pure linens are the newsy combinations used for the skirt-blouse team-ups. Many of these dress duets have blouses and skirts that button or snap together, thus providing a minimum of slide-up discomfort. And Junior budgets need not cringe at the thought of new dual-piece dresses for Spring. Not only are these outfits perfect for mix-matching but they're available in low priced yet attractive and washable spun rayons, as well.

Patent Gleams This Spring!

It's a shiny Spring.

Patent leather, sleek as a villain's line, appears in belts, bags, and shoes as an outstanding footsume accent. Watch for patent in surprise colors like red and pink, as well as the expected blues. Patent mates ideally with checks. Try a gleaming bag and belt with your shepherd check woolen suit, or tie a streak of patent about the waist of your sheer gingham shirt-waist dress. Remember patent needs little pampering.

Face Governs Hair Styles

Michel, trend setting hair stylist, offers tips for styling your hair to enhance the contours of your face.

If your face is the ideal oval, you can adopt a fairly extreme hair-do successfully. Because you are so fortunate, you might like to try the charming and witty new "pinking shears" cut. For this, the hair is smooth on the top and brushed downward. The ends are cut in an uneven jagged line, reminiscent of a little gamin.

If your face is round, keep your hair close to your face creating the illusion of length. Wear your hair about mid-neck length. Avoid bangs, because they cut the length of the face.

If your face is square, wear soft curls. Concentrate height at the top of the head, and add modified fullness below the ears. Avoid very short cuts and any suggestion of width at the cheek bones.

If your face is an inverted triangle, keep your forehead exposed with a hint of fullness at either side. Bring your hair forward concealing part of the jawline. Keep your hair medium length.

If your face is a triangle, add width to the jawline with a cluster of soft waves and curls. Wear your hair smooth to your ears.

If your face is a rectangle, try horizontal interest like bands of waves across the forehead. Avoid extremes in length. Wear your hair in a soft fluff at the sides of the face.

Plastics Enter The Nursery

In the department of "why-didn't-someone-think-of-that-before," comes news of a welcome invasion of the nursery by plastic articles.

Fabrics of plastic are a natural for the nursery. They are soft, pliant, non-irritating, tasteless and odorless. Then too, they resist scuffing, teething and the other minor abuses of the nursery set. But most important to the mother is the fact these fabrics are moisture proof, flame-resistant and can be cleaned with the whisk of a sudsy cloth.

Here are some of the many aids that are being added to counters daily.

A feeding bib by Earl and Arlington is cut amply enough to protect freshly ironed clothes from the most determined spoon tossing. Tote baby on jaunts, now that Kleinert offers a gay quilted food bag lined with fiberglas to keep bottles warm miles from home. Kleinert also has a handsome plastic toilet ring with a pad of quilted Comark plastic. This protective plastic is used for a nursery bag that houses baby's toiletries. The bag is rubber lined, so any spillage is easily wiped off.

The cautious, yet decorator-conscious mother will welcome a pretty crib of quilted plastic. The same cushiony fabric lines baby's carry basket.

While baby takes his nap, mother can snip and stitch handsome plastic fabric curtains of Comark's good looking Stewart plaid. This, like other plastics, can be bought by the yard. Young Year chooses it for a high chair pad and matching play pen pad. With plastic fabrics in the nursery, the modern mother has a silent, time-saving, energy-saving assistant.

A young kleinert of spun-sugar straw in snowy white is designed for a schoolgirl's Easter by Greenberg-Fisch.

PIONEER IN INDUSTRY

Canada's first paper mill was built at St. Andrew's, Que., in 1803.

Proper Care of Woollens

You can add seasons of smart extra wear to your precious woolens simply by giving careful attention to home pressing between trips to the cleaner, and offering them wary storage during the warm-weather months.

Here are the do's and don't for home pressing.

Always use a pressing cloth. Never apply the iron directly to the wool. Always use a smooth, well-padded ironing board. And follow these steps: first place the dry press cloth on the wool. Next, dampen the press cloth with a sponge dipped in warm water.

Use a slight touch. Stop pressing before the material is quite dry. Place the garment on a well-shaped hanger and let it dry in its own natural lines.

Press hems, collars, lapels and other heavy parts first, starting on the wrong side. To avoid leaving marks on the right side, slip paper under the seam edges when pressing.

Take these precautions with your wool garments for safety-storage.

Be sure your woolen garments are spotlessly clean before you store them. Hang them in the sun and brush every crevice thoroughly.

For perfect safety, wash or dry clean your woolens before storing them. Also sprinkle liberal quantities of moth crystals between the layers as well as in the pockets.

DROP DODGERS

What's the new handle on umbrellas this Spring?

You smartly dodge the drops with taper-slim shapes, chubby shapes, 'twixt and 'tween shapes. Handles favored are chrome, ball, block and animal shapes, plastic, wood and leather in tube. Starred colors are a brash red and sulphur yellow to accent, and soft muted iridescent tones to complement your costume.

Beware of The Borrowitis Bug

With more people indulging in their first serious travel than ever before, it means that there are more people in need of luggage lore.

To start you on your merry shopping way, the Luggage & Leather Goods Manufacturers of America, offer a few words of wisdom. Good light luggage can be had in all price ranges, in all materials, leather, canvas and plastic covered, and in just about any color from shocking pink and chartreuse down through the standard tans, blues and greys. Buy one or two pieces to start with. Then add matching pieces as the occasion demands.

A recommended basic luggage wardrobe consists of a train case, often fitted with bottles and jars and make-up prettiers, and with just enough room for nightie and robe or blouse. The weekend case, a small version of what mother called a suitcase. It will take care of a minimum weekend wardrobe. The wardrobe case, designed especially for suits and dresses.

If you just pack these bits of luggage lore away in a safe corner of your mind until the day comes along that you need them, you'll look the part of the well travelled traveller when you set out on your vacation.

THEY STEP OUT, as fresh as flowers, looking neat in their newly cleaned clothes, because THEY WERE WISE AND SENT THEIR CLOTHES EARLY TO US FOR THEIR CLEANING.

TEENERS WEAR "BIG SISTER" STYLES THIS SPRING

It's A Colorful Season for the Junior Set

Tappered and peg topped broadcloth slacks designed by Frances Sider. The shirt and bra are of checked tablecloth cotton.

Smart design and Avisco rayon print combine to make this young-hearted dress with its matching bolero jacket.

The Pink Shirt Tommiecoat designed by Harry Berger is a 2-in-one combination: a sleeping coat or a shirt for skirt or slacks.

A smart fabric in lined check gives fashion appeal to this handsome suit. It is made of Avisco rayon blended with wool.

Style standout for Spring is this 2-button, single-breasted, hardy wool covert model with patch pockets and notched lapels.

France inspired, Yolande created a dress of chambray with organdy collar and banded cuffs for a special little darling.

Harlequin's ruff is high fashion for a little party girl's dress by Celeste Frocks. Of pin-tucked batiste edged with Val lace.

New Spring topper and hat set by Buddy has material in the hem and sleeves that can be let out to keep pace with Junior's growth.

New Hats Are Going Forward

Hat fashions are moving to the fore as brims and trims take new directions for Spring 1950.

Graceful, feminine silhouettes, which harmonize attractively with dynamic costume lines, have the same feeling of forward movement. Many brimless or tiny-brimmed hats have peaked crowns and high-flying trimmings that are an attractive complement to high, flaring collars.

Spring sailors have elliptical brims, narrow in back and projecting over the brow, made feminine with dainty ribbon bows, draped veils or flower trimmings.

Tricornes are tiny or tremendous, with youthful curving brims sitting level on the head or taking a dramatic tangent with one corner dipping forward at the side. Typical Easter bonnets are demurely trimmed with ribbons and tiny flowers, their brims sweetly curved to frame the face. Hybrid silhouettes include a fascinating variety of multi-brimmed bonnet-cloches, brim pillboxes and irregular beret-toques.

Many Straws

Straws are always a favorite. Spring hat material and there are many to choose from this year. Light, lacy straws are woven with metallic threads or combined with smooth braids in monotone and bi-color combinations. Lustrous candy straws, fine linen straws, and rich textured rough straws are supple enough to be draped like fabric. Fine Milan-type straws come in wonderful colors; and many interesting effects are obtained with two-tone straw bodies woven with cushiony double brims that are in one color on top and a contrasting one below.

Sometimes the same straw is woven into two different patterns for the brim. And sometimes the prettiest "natural straw" hats are not straw at all, but fabulous modern inventions of scientific laboratories.

In a season of feminine, softly draped hats, the lovely light-weight pastel felts will also be widely used for Spring and Summer. But ribbons and novelty fabrics are particularly new-looking hat materials this year. Rayon belting ribbons, wide grosgrain and crisp cotton piques make attractively tailored hats for town and travel wear. Fragile-looking taffeta and moire ribbons, draped into festive little hats for afternoon and evening wear are frequently made of spot-resistant, non-wilting nylon. Flimsy nylon veilings, too, fashion sophisticated little evening hats or for glamour wear wide, garden-party picture hats.

Colorful Season

The Spring palette is tinged with sunlight gold, in a wide range of straw shades from the palest ivory to a rich suntan. Vivid tangerine, soft apricot, tender bud green, lime, chartreuse and emerald; daffodil, butter yellow; beige and golden brown are among the warm accent colors favored by the milliners.

Pretty pinks, vivid flamingo and soft mauve; pale twilight grey; lilac, violet; aquamarine, sky and sapphire blue; as well as color-accented black, brown, navy and pure white will also be seen in great numbers.

Rayon Suits for Round the Year

The rayon tailored suit is the suit to watch this Spring! Well-styled rayon lined suits, selling for anywhere from fifteen to thirty dollars, are enjoying a tremendous surge of popularity.

New rayon fabrics for Spring suits have the look of fine worsteds. They come in fashion-right checks, glen plaids, stripes and flecked tweed effects. These patterns are available in clear soft tones of the best Spring colors, mist grey, muted cocoa, off-pink and many other lovely Spring-time pastels. The fabric comes in a medium weight that's perfectly comfortable under your coat in early Spring, and without a coat later in the season.

Rayon suits, in addition to their attractive price, have a great deal to offer style-wise this Spring. Designers have put emphasis on up-to-date detailing and on the trim lines that are important with the new slender silhouette.

Hair Short For Spring

A return to the sculptured look of the Clara Bow era in 1950's Spring hair styles is the forecast of Eddie Sens, make-up man and hair style consultant.

Although next Spring's hair styles will follow the general trend of the flapper era, femininity will be a major factor in hair-do with more softness apparent than was evident in the severly styled hair-dos of two decades ago.

The Clara Bow or "helmet" coiffure, as it'll be known this Spring, features sleekness, with the hair caressing the face and front, and a short bang over the left temple in place of the decliningly popular centre bang. Although the hair in back will be worn straight, there'll be no return to the shingled bob of the 1920's.

According to Mr. Snez, there will be an almost as popular alternate hair-do this Spring, which was created especially for those who aren't able to favor the face framing style.

For these women, the hair will be brought up away from the face in front with a miniature bang over the left temple. The straight but unshingled back of the "helmet" cut will be carried through in this simple variation which, like the Clara Bow type hair-do will feature simplicity, form fitting ness and sleekness.

Sleekness, the essential smoothness of these head hugging hair fashions can be achieved through the use of a gentle fixative, such as the Nestle-Lemur Company's Spraze, to keep every hair in place.

DID YOU KNOW?

A new pattern, made of Bakelite polyethylene plastic, comes from the envelope sewn together to form a completed half-dress ready to be tried on for size and becomingness. The pattern is sewn together with a simple chain stitch that unravels when the thread is pulled, leaving perforations along all seams and darts.

Toppers Rate Tops for Now

Toppers rate tops in consideration for the Younger Set's wardrobe this Spring. A topper over her suit on breeze-filled days, a topper over her prom gown, a topper, sweet as icing, over her best silk print. Yes, anywhere, anytime, the topper is right, comfortable and smart for Spring '50.

White in a lightweight, soft fleece fabric is the favored fashion fabric and color. And it's ever so pert and gay with the new drop shoulders, shorter cuffed sleeves, jutting wing collar and full, but flat, back. Both belted and unbelted versions are exactly "the thing" for the season.

LACKING IN DIET

HOME REMAINS CENTRE OF COMFORTABLE ACTIVITY

An Easier Vacation With Electrical Appliances

Take to the woods or the shore this Summer and be assured of the same comfort you have at home. A Summer home with electric outlets means relax and spend your days dunking with Junior.

You know the acrobatics of the thermometer on Summer nights. When the mercury plunges, each member of the family sleeps restfully in the controlled warmth of an electric blanket. Just set the bedside control a few minutes before you retire. This safely prewarms the bed. Notice that the warmth is distributed evenly without isolated cold spots. The control automatically maintains the sleeping warmth you have selected by putting more warmth into the blanket as room temperature falls, and less warmth as room temperature rises. Automatic blankets can be washed safely in an agitator-type wringer washer. Be certain to use luke warm water and avoid soaking.

Tote along a large capacity automatic toaster. It performs the services of an electric range away from home. This silent kitchen assistant roasts, bakes, pan-broils, fries and steams. Just plug in, and set the control dial at the prescribed cooking temperature. Remember, your body needs at least one hot dish each meal, even on simmering days.

Here is a way to gather the young folks in jet fast. Call "milk shake." The new General Electric Drink Mixer whips up milk shakes and fruit drinks and can be used for other mixing tasks.

Remember you went away for a vacation from wearisome tasks, too. That is why you welcome a compact travel iron. Weighing only two pounds, this iron has a regulator dial. It tucks away in a neat zippered case.

The Fashion Academy has presented its annual Gold Award to the Serbin Company for this classic softer dress of Lonsdale Cotton.

PERSONALIZED NEEDLEWORK

Today, the trend in needlework is toward personalized possessions for both the home and wardrobe, judging from the many new easy-to-make needlecraft designs available in the stores.

There are guest and fingertip towels, hemstitched pillow cases and while organdy aprons. Many new patterns in make-it-yourself hooked rugs are also available. These are stamped on burlap and can be worked on a convenient standing frame.

For the small fry, Paragon Needlecraft has introduced a make-it-yourself applique quilt in crib or junior size, with stuffed toys and bibs to match the animals and figures on the quilt.

OIL IS EXPENSIVE

An oil company recently paid a record of $1,519,191 for oil rights on 160 acres near Bruderheim, Alberta.

Silver For A Nicer Table

Next to hoping that her casserole recipe emerges from the oven resembling something tempting, the hostess' major preparation dilema is often the table setting.

It should be a comfort to the new homemaker to learn that table setting is neither unreasonable nor inflexible. Proper table setting affords guests the maximum convenience, and eliminates cluttering.

Place each setting about one inch from the table edge with all pieces flush. If the table is round, all parts of the setting should be in a straight line.

All forks, except the oyster fork, are placed at the left of the plate. Spoons, knives, and the oyster fork are placed at the right. The sharp edge of the knife blade faces the plate, and the water glass is placed in line with the tip.

All silver pieces are placed in the order of use, working from the outside in. Preferably, don't have more than three pieces on either side of the plate.

Bring in the dessert silver when you serve the dessert, except for informal meals when dessert silver may be placed with the rest of the flatware.

Drapery Problems?

Windows, due to the whims and fancies of architects are not always as well-placed as one could wish. All too often, two windows of dissimilar sizes will be found in the same room to the bewilderment of the woman who wants to create a balanced and pleasing effect.

Beatrice Greeff Price of Greeff Fabrics, believes wonders can be done to deceive the eye by the skillful hanging of draperies.

For example, as so often happens in old houses, windows are of varying widths. One might be of good proportion and others in the same room might be narrow and high. By hanging the draperies at the well-proportioned window in the usual manner, that is, overlapping the sash by about 2 inches to 6 inches at each side, and by hanging the draperies at the narrow window at the edge of the sash and overlapping the wall, it is possible to have the two valences of the same width and to create the impression that the windows are mates.

A long narrow room with a single off-centre window will appear to better advantage if the draperies cover all the wall space on either side and overlap the window in such a manner as to make it seem centered.

In a room where the ceiling is low, coming right down to the top of the window frame, another decorating problem is presented. Again valences come to the rescue. Introduction of a scalloped effect appears to lower the height of the windows and make them seem more pleasing. Here too, the larger part of the draperies may be hung over the wall in order to maintain a pleasant proportion and to make the windows more important than they really are.

Where a window is set in such a shallow frame that there is no room for a window shade, an effective solution can be obtained by using a pair of inside shutters, padded and covered with the same fabric which is used in other parts of the room. These can swing shut at night to provide privacy and add a distinctively decorative note when they are folded back against the wall during the day.

Suggestions On Rug Care

Making your wool rugs and carpeting unpopular with moths (and beetles, too) and influencing their permanent good looks requires only a simple routine and a few well chosen cleaning hints.

The strongest suggestion you can give moths to keep away from your rugs, is to see that a cleaning schedule is followed with plenty of air and sunlight invited indoors. Daily vacuuming, once a month moving of heavy furniture, cleaning that keeps the floor fresh under the rug and occasional vacuuming of the back of the rug does much to discourage these pests.

For a sure killing of larvae that have settled in the carpeting, spray the affected spots with a standard moth-repelling preparation from your local drug, hardware or department store.

For prevention, and to rid floor coverings of larvae, the front and if possible, the back of the carpeting should be sprayed. A repeat performance in about 10 days makes doubly sure the little pests are gone.

RELAX FOR BEAUTY

A few pennies a night is all the best mattress and bedspring obtainable cost, and yet many women, and men, too, deny themselves its comforts and benefits. While the initial investment may seem larger, ultimately it will total far less than the half dollars, dollars and more spent trying to get that rested look. For sale, the natural beauty which comes from being rested and in good health.

New Suits Strike A Slim Note

Greetings to the suit of Spring 1950 strong point and talking point of your wardrobe for any occasion and every occasion.

Shorter skirts and shorter jackets with special emphasis on pocket detailing and sloping shoulderlines combine to make suit news this Spring of the mid-century starlet year.

If you wear, as well as follow, the latest trends, there's truly dramatic styling for your suit this Spring season. The jacket (25 or 26-inches in length) is belted at the waist, elegantly bloused in back, sometimes with back pleats that extend into the sleeves to give the important sloped shoulder effect. The collar plunges low in front and rises high in back to serve as a perfect frame for your new shorter hair-do. The sleeves are fairly full, often tightly zipped at the wrist, in order to provide the new shirtwaist sleeve feeling. And in striking contrast, the skirt is slim, slim, slim, relieved in severity by possible kick-pleats, stitching or side rows of buttons. The skirt is also about 1-inch shorter than your last year's skirt or 14-inches from the ground.

Padded Hips

If you like your suits to have a svelte, slim appeal, you can choose them that way. The hips may be padded, the waist will very likely be nipped. And the straight sleeves will in all probability have trim turn-back cuffs. You'll select that reed-slim suit with a striking asymmetrical jacket closing, wonderfully combined with a side-swept skirt shorter in length. They hang to the waist or hip bone rather than wrist-length as they did last season. Many have demure little rounded collars to help complete the little boy manner. Also newsworthy, as well as appealing, in this year's crop of boxies are the many bright contrast linings to be seen.

Lighter Weights

Suits have that sleek look and feel about them this Spring, thanks to the slickly treated fabrics of which they've been styled.

New lightweight worsteds, sometimes sheer, but always durable, are highlighted in your suit selections. Also prominent are tissue weight tweeds, skillfully manipulated like silk. The perennial favorite, menswear grey flannel, makes a favorable entry into the Spring '50 suit line-up.

And predicted to be prized year-round values are the rayon suits, modestly priced and more smartly styled than ever before to be amazingly similar in appearance to fine worsteds.

Incidentally, you can stop worrying about wearing out that favorite suit too quickly. Just select a suit with two skirts.

A high fashion collar plus big, big pockets adds the important advance fashion highlights to this easy-to-get-into Swirl dress.

Diagonal closings or not, there are always pockets galore. They'll be placed nearer the waistline than on your Fall suit, and will possibly be located on the back of your jacket or at the hipline of your skirt. Slide-in, button-down, curved, contrasting, hidden, with flaps, these are only some of the pocket-types so abundant this Spring.

Or choose a boxy jacket suit, saucy as a little boy. Pleated skirts are the feature this season topped with box jackets that follow through on the trend to the

BUDGET FURNITURE

Today, on a modest budget, any woman can give her imagination free rein. She can furnish her entire home with beautiful, well constructed furniture, then paint it to meet her personal decorating tastes.

There are chests, storage units, credenzas, chiffrobes, bookcases, beds, tables, chairs, mirrors as well as other important pieces available. One manufacturer, Aristo-Bilt, offers 37 varied items.

With so many pieces to choose from, it's easy and fun to give each room its own personality.

Designer Leo Ritter combines the elegance of starlight mink with artful craftsmanship for a waist-length, elbow-length cape.

Headboard Bed Gains Favor

There's true glamour, economy and space saving too, awaiting your bedroom when you furnish it with a headboard bed.

Headboard beds lend themselves nicely to seasonal variation of decor. It is a simple matter to change the atmosphere of the room by slipcovering the headboards in fresh, cool fabrics with bedspreads and draperies to match for Summer.

New Season New Scent

It's Spring. The first crocuses are popping their heads above the ground. With each new bud you see on the tree, your heart lifts, too. The verdant freshness of the air makes you feel like a different woman.

Winter, with its wind and cold, has called for changing things, including the perfume you wear. But as days grow balmier, you'll feel lighter and gayer if you are surrounded in a scent which means Spring to you when you smell it.

What perfume means a change to you, only you can tell. You know what you like in perfumes as surely as you know what you like in your clothes. And just as you try on more than one hat before you buy your new Spring bonnet, take time to sniff more than one perfume before you buy change-of-pace scent.

Crisp Scents

Many women, with the first whiff of Spring air, immediately want brighter colors, sharper accessories. If you are one of these gay-in-heart women, you'll probably want a perfume with a dash about it, like a spicy note.

Do you want the crisp freshness of white lingerie touches on dresses and suits as soon as the first Spring robin hops into the tree? Why not try one of those wonderful, provocative scents which are so subtle yet exhilarating, sweet yet crisp?

When you change to a perfume that is completely different, crisp, fresh, light-hearted, you will feel different. And part of this new Spring feeling is surrounding yourself in an aura of your fragrance so that you may enjoy your own perfume.

Touch Up Perfume

So many women use perfume only for others. Why not get some fun out of it for yourself? It seems to give a woman more confidence in her own femininity. Did you ever go out some morning and forget your perfume? You probably felt as undressed as you did the time you forgot your lipstick. And speaking of that, when you touch up your lips during the day, you should replenish your perfume, too. Don't you be so old-fashioned as to think your fragrance will last all day without a touch-up.

To get full value from your perfume, you must use enough of it to be, not loud, but noticeable. A dab behind each ear is not going to do the trick. A few drops on inside wrists, in front of the ears, along the throat and, always, in your bosom, will begin to scent you so that you'll enjoy it yourself.

Some women put a drop right under their noses, above the upper lip, so they really can smell their own perfume. But you ever have the wonderful joy of spraying perfume all around you just before going out? The fine spray clings to clothes, hair and skin, seeming to keep the scent "alive" for three or four hours.

Handbags Set For '20 Revival

Smaller, smoother fabric-ed handbags are at hand this Spring of 1950 to pay smart homage to your new slim-lined fashions.

With the "1920 in 1950" look of fashion this Spring, the envelope bag has appeared again. A perfect foil for new wrapped coats and shorter length sleeves, this Spring's envelope bag will be slimmer than ever and if it has a handle, the handle will be a small one, lying flat to the top of the bag.

Box bags, youthful looking and roomy enough to hold all the many necessary purse accessories; slim, controlled pouch bags with narrow top-handles; shoulder strap bags that are shorter and lie close to the silhouette and spectator bags, made in contrasting tones to pair off with spectator shoes, will be available for a right fashion choice this season.

Patent leather, either the genuine or plastic type, promises to be the leading handbag fabric for Spring. Along with it smooth calfskin and deerskin finished in suckin will be the featured fabrics in handbag designs.

The soft neutral brown family tones will be featured this Spring in Balenciaga for dressy wear and blonde for more casual occasions.

Footwear Highlights

Shoes are in the eye of fashion this Springas the silhouette now rows and skirts become shorter.

Feet and legs are in focus. It is the season of the pretty foot and ankle, the dainty, delicate shoe.

Dress, walking and beach shoes feel the influence of this open trend and the National Shoe Institute tells us that you can find cool, airy shoes in each of these classifications which are designed to help you look prettier, to make your Spring 1950 ensemble well coordinated and smart.

Light Touch

Many suit shoes feature the comfortable mid-height walking heel, neat welt toe and the extended sole which are classical favorites and are features of a tailored shoe. However, the 1950 light touch is shown on these shoes with cutouts on the vamp, broad bands of leather played over each other to form a network of straps on the vamp or deep shell cut vamps which create an illusion of lightness and airiness.

Dress sandals appear in all fabrics with the uppers composed of thin winding straps worked intricately for a high riding effect which often stem from the vamp cut shell vamp. High tapering heels and single soles are most popular although low platform soles are also prevalent.

Beach and playtime shoes reflect a new trend which has not yet developed this Spring. There are definite signs but as yet it is in the growing stage. It is the trend back to flat heeled shoes. This is due to the shorter, slimmer skirt revival. Flat shoes in gay young styles often consist merely of a twist of fabric or leathery, a sole and flat heel.

Straps and Straps

Multiple straps, single instep straps, winding straps, asymmetric straps are all found on comfortable, flat playshoes as well as the new very high heeled playtime shoe for women who can never be comfortable except when in a high heel which tends to make legs slimmer and prettier.

Softest kidskin, polished calf, buttery suedes, gleaming patents and rich reptiles are all used this Spring as shoe designers look for the latest styles and greatest comforts for you in your Spring 1950 shoes. A newcomer to the shoe field is nylon which is available now in satins for gala evenings, in shantung for leisure and playtime. Washable, incredibly long lived, nylon is an adventure in shoe styling.

Not only will admiral blue (a classic navy blue shade) be popular, but other colors to accent navy blue costumes will be featured in shoes.

HAIR DRESS-UP

Your tidy, close-to-the-head coiffure inspires the small graceful hair ornaments you wear this Spring. For festive evenings, choose a tiny spray of crystal set or brilliants. For daytime, nestle a sprig of almost real lily of the valley in your hair. It couples ideally with starched white accessories.

A Blouse For Any Occasion

Blouses as subtle tie-ups between your suit skirts and jackets are a fashion story of the past.

Spring 1950 ushers in a smartly styled, clearly toned array of blouses that fairly demand to be appreciated in full.

Yes, blouse fashions, fabrics, colors and prints are varied and sparkling as those of your dresses, coats and suits. The slimmer look, a la 1920 in 1950, is a present perfect picture. Sleeveless designs, complete in themselves without cover-ups, take starring roles. The shiddy blouse is back and ready for exciting accessorizing. The "little boy" appearance is predominant, complete with handy-to-launder removable collar and cuffs. Chemise like blouses with waist-deep necklines that can be shuttered together or worn open also make a proud appearance. Softly tailored cottons replace peasant effects.

Details as precious as gems are exciting features of Spring 1950 blouses. Laces and embroidery, pleats, from box pleats to "concertina" permanent nylon pleats and rows and rows of fine tucks, combine to make your new blouses fashion treasures.

More and more pastels lend delights of color to the Spring blouse scene. Lacquer reds run to floral pinks. The gamut is run from navy to sky blue.

How To Use Nail Cutlery

Nail files are used to shape and shorten nails. But a word of caution, don't file too close to the corners of your nails. This weakens their delicate support causing them to bend and break. After filing, bevel the edges of the nails lightly to help prevent splitting or flaking.

Cosmetics Then, Now

At the turn of the century, when Grandma was young and busy beau-catching in her own demure way, the cosmetic industry could offer her very few glamor props.

A little maidenly powder in the form of rice starch, usually applied with a lace-bordered chamois, was in the style of the day. Before going out she pinched her cheeks and buffed her nails to an exquisite finish, and that was all!

Lipstick took its entrance cue with World War I. There were three shades with which the wartime belle might enliven her looks: light, medium and dark. But it was not until the fabulous Twenties that complete make-up, eyes and all, was considered acceptable. Emancipated from former strictures, the flapper piled her beauty aids with a somewhat overzealous hand. Her powder was very light, her rouge showy, her lips painted to look like a cupid's bow. Wind-blown bobs and drop-earrings completed this vignette of the jazz age on the American scene.

Enormous Mouth

Toward 1928, however, obvious artifice in make-up began to lose its appeal and, inspired by various continental luminaries, American women set out to look sun-tanned and healthy. This period marked the first sun-tan vogue in the U.S.A.

Vagaries in make-up persisted through the Thirties, too. There was the tenacious fashion for the enormous mouth set by a famous cinema star; for deep purple lipstick and cake make-up in a panchromantic shade.

With the advent of the Forties and the war, the accent on the natural look in make-up became more and more apparent. So did the emphasis on individuality, which trend continues to survive. 1950 Flattery

For Spring 1950, the beauty forecast is a particularly flattering one. For one thing the shiny look is out. Make-up will look careful but by no means exaggerated. The over-all tinted look is it, with a smooth mat finish. Pond's Angel Face, in any one of its six shades, is one of the answers for achieving the even color-warmth and velvety texture that will be so popular.

As for lipsticks, they follow two color-directions, the bright intense pinks and the clear true-reds. Purple-cast lipsticks are definitely old hat, but some rosy blue-reds will still be worn by those they become.

To sum up, the span from 1900 to 1950 has made cosmetic history. The experimental fads belong to the past, thank goodness! While for 1950 the enhancement of femininity, with the highest skill and the best taste, strikes the keynote in the field of modern beauty.

SLIPPER INNOVATION

Nylon bedroom slippers, a new innovation in the slipper field, eliminate all worries of easy soiling. At the first signs of soil, they can be handwashed with a soft, soapy cloth, rinsed in clear water, and dried away from heat to regain their fresh, new look. The leather soles are unaffected by the wetting they get in the washing process and are permanently secured to the tops with a special cement.

Mid-Century Trend To Lighter-Weights

Mid-way through our Twen-eth Century men's fashions have decided to become comfortable as well as more attractive!

The American male, usually so sensitive about his clothing, has finally accepted the lighter, brighter 1950 concepts of men's fashions.

Today, he can say he has made definite stride forward from the fashions of 50 years ago when black, somber tones and muted stripes were the preferred colors and designs. When he wore single breasted sack coats with narrow cuffed trousers that were creased front and back. When his hair was parted in the middle and brushed back pompadour style, and when he suffered the uncomfortable dignities of the bowler hat and the celluloid collar.

The days are passed when the businessman felt, that in order to be well-groomed he had to stand for stiff collars and dark suits on 90-degree days. Even union suits, vests and heavy hats are discomfort fashions of the past.

Now the lightweight trend includes all articles of men's wear from head to foot. There are ventilated hats, rayon and cotton suitings. Open weave shoes and sandals are being worn by more and more men.

"The trend to bantam-weight fabrics," says Donald E. Ecke, vice president of Wilson Brothers, "makes good sense to everyone concerned, the man who wears them and his wife who cares for them. For the new sheer lightweights have everything, coolness, washability, color fastness and an indefinable 'fresh look' that is unbeatable."

Set Habits

The first lightweight cotton fabric was Shasta cloth, introduced in the late twenties. This cotton fabric were well laundered with ease, retained its looks, weighed only a few ounces and met with nationwide success.

But men's style habits are hard to change, and the average American drifted back into his hard-shell, hide-bound ways all over again. Not till last year was the first big dent made in his Summer clothing tastes. Today, the trend is overwhelmingly toward the light and comfortable.

During this 1950 season most of the menswear manufacturers will feature distinctively different, sheer dress shirtings. Fabrics that you'll hear a lot about come sunny skies are batiste, batiste madras, voile, slip dent, lens weave, lawn, scrim and handkerchief. These new fabrics have combined with style changes to revolutionize warm weather shirts for men.

Air-Conditioned

Take, for example, the semi-sport model, which is a complete chapter of the shirt story in itself. At the office a man can now wear his semi-sport shirt buttoned and complete with tie. After hours he can wear the same shirt with the button open, with lightweight slacks and jacket. Wearing a semi-sport, it'll be a matter of minutes for the 1950 business man to convert to the model of a man of leisure, cool and handsomely garbed.

After dark, the liberated man of 1950 will climb into really air-conditioned pyjamas. Crinkle crepes (sometimes known as seersucker); ultra-sheer cloth as light as a cigarette ash, called whisperesher; a number of brand-new rayon weaves, all have been put to work in creating a variety of sleepwear that's tops in warm weather comfort. In short sleeves or long, regular length trousers or shorts, the new pajamas are cool and colorful, and right as rain to take the heat of warm weather slumber.

One of the new lighter-weight styles that promises to be a boon to the outdoor guy is the Basque fisherman's shirt woven out of a tissue-light cotton.

Magic Nylon

Then there's that old faithful of the bath, terry-cloth, which has been cunningly utilized for moisture-absorbing T-shirts and socks; corduroy, a truly royal sport fabric, has been made up in lightweight washable cotton that's marvelously smart as well as practical; and finally nylon, the miracle fabric, has at last been woven with pores to let it breathe as easily as any natural fibre.

The mid-century year of 1950 can indeed be chalked up as the year of the great Revolution-of-the-Male, the year he finally came out of his warm weather strait jacket.

"Relaxing" Menswear

Comfortable clothes that permit a man to "relax on all occasions" are the man's choice for Spring 1950, according to the nation's fashion experts.

Men have been demanding more casual styling and color freedom in their clothes during the last couple of years and now they're really getting a full share of both.

Yellow pants, maroon shirts and even burgundy tweed sports jackets are among the many choices offered the male when he wishes to indulge his color fancy for Spring.

The Wool Bureau reports that new fabric ideas for men's wear show a greater variety than for the past couple of seasons. New woolens and worsted fabrics favor all-over designs which contain more color and permit a wider choice of complimentary accessories.

Gabardine weaves continue strong with new effects in sheens, iridescents and venetians. Sharkskins, glen plaids, windowpane and houndstooth checks are still with us but their distinct patterns have been softened to give them a new look.

Business suit patterns feature several new ideas and show a definite departure from traditional designs. Changes have been made in suit construction to give men the most possible comfort. Canvas coat fronts, shoulder padding and linings have all been reduced to a minimum in size and weight.

3-Button Jackets

Single-breasted suits seem slated for new gains in popularity. And they'll be preferred in natural shoulder styles.

In sports jackets, shetland and shetland type wool fabrics are predominant. More models are cut in the three-button style and the majority have center-rear vents. Set-in flap pockets are first choice in the East. Patch pockets lead in the Middle and West Coast areas.

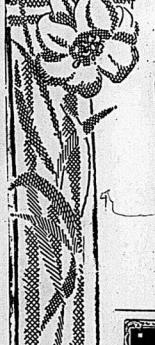
Leisure-time outfits combine the ultimate in comfort and practicality in easy-fitting lightweight all wool jackets, slacks and sports shirts. Stripped down in weight to make them more comfortable than ever before, these outfits also attain a new lift in design through the use of the newer, brighter colors.

Sports shirts are expertly designed and tailored to suit the man who wants smart style as well as comfort in his sports wear. Because of the wide range of lightweight wool fabrics and color selections, plus being washable, sports shirts will have even more appeal in Spring, 1950.

Top coats are also being made up in the light weight "comfortable" fabrics and styles.

In fact, almost every item of men's wear in the Spring selection is lighter in weight than ever before. Luxurious wool fabrics seen in the plentiful coat and sportswear offerings everywhere seem almost feather-light in comparison with fabrics worn by American men in the past.

Hints to Help Your Shirt Fit



Few things can be more annoying than a too-tight shirt collar. Perfect collar fit is also necessary if the shirt is to look its best. So, the next time you shop for shirts, watch out for that collar! And be sure, too, that the points lie flat and are equal in length.

Don't forget, either, that the comfortable fit of a shirt is a prime requisite for happy wearing. To achieve absolutely proper fit, the yoke seams across the back should curve slightly downward. This takes up the stretch from your shoulder muscles. The pleats or gathers that are used to provide back fullness should be distributed—evenly—across the yoke seam or on both sides of your shoulder blades.

Seven Rules On Nail Care

A good way to plan your all-important basic nail care is to just sit down and formulate a simple program for the care of your nails and hands. However, remember that regularity is your best weapon so don't follow it just once in a while and expect miracles to happen. Keep it up regularly and let the results speak for themselves.

Start your program with a weekly manicure. Here is an outline of the steps: 1—Remove your polish with oily polish remover. 2—Shape your nails with an emery board. File from each side of the nail toward the tip and do not work too close to the corner. 3—Buff your nails in one direction only with powder, polish for only 12 strokes to a nail. 4—Apply oily cuticle remover with an orangewood stick wrapped lightly with cotton. 5—Next wipe the nails again with oily polish remover so that the polish will adhere better. 6—Apply polish foundation which is specifically designed to make polish wear longer and to help strengthen your nails against splitting and flaking. 7—Apply your choice of a nail polish shade in two coats followed by a coat of overcoat.

EVER HEAR THIS?

Did you know that the word perfume (par fume) means "through smoke?" It comes from primitive times when the only perfume the cave men knew was the lovely aroma released by burning certain woods and gums.

The Egyptians were the first on record to adopt and study the art of perfumery as a mark of culture. The Romans developed perfumery as an industry and spread the use of perfume all over the Roman Empire.

This Spring Eyes Are Gay

Seen any movie revivals lately? Remember that "heroine" who slinked through the reels with her eye lashes starched and her eyelids painted satin? Well, a very modified version of that look has returned in eye make-up.

Wield your eyebrow pencil to point the way to your eyes. Dab counterfeit beauty marks on your upper cheek. A little wicked, but most effective, is a short line of pencil extending from the outer corner of the eye.

If you have shied away from eye shadow because it goes on in globs, you will welcome the new liquid cream variety that blends subtly. Or try a light coating of eyelid oil beneath your solid eye-shadow.

Bangles In Profusion

The return of "flaming '20's" fashions brings with it the type of jewelry that symbolized the era of the spit curl and the bangle.

And it is bangles that you will heap up either arm this Spring with sleeveless dresses. There are narrow stripes of channel set rhinestones and simple bands of gold or silver plated metal suitable for monogramming. With these circlets wear a heavy link bracelet with its tiny chunky vial of perfume. Relieve a strict shirt-waist blouse with two wide cuff bracelets that look like carved sheet metal.

Lavish Rings

Dart a single stick pin through your prim "little boy" collar or wear several in a fan shaped arrangement on your navy blue suit. Try a spindle of jade or a "lollypop" of topaz. These are more pin money than they sound, and lots of fun to wear.

Dip your fingers in rings, big vampy ones, with stones that look like a pirate's cache. Because they are really counterfeit, you can afford to buy them in twos and threes. Note, for drama wear a wicked "black pearl" bubble ring the size of a hub cap almost. Team rose quartz with red chambray; amethyst with lavender voile.

For pearl followers there are twisted chokers and long ropes. Pearl is teamed with other stones as in the vast scalloped collar of crystal beads spiked with loops of pearl. Watch for delicate pastel pearls that well might improve on nature.

Dangle Earrings

The favored earrings are pendulous drops that dangle almost to shoulder level. There are webs of tiny crystals, series of pearl tear drops and prisms of jet just born for pink chiffon. Since they are a trifle heavier than your button earrings, these drops often have a light wire that circles the back of the ear for security.

'ROUND YOUR NECK

Neckwear this Spring is as trim and perky as a little boy's haircut. Pique and organdy are the favored fabrics and white the favored color.

Purse-Keeping Not So Easy

It's an established fact that the average woman's handbag weighs between ten and fifteen pounds. That's a lot of weight to carry around.

Check through the contents of your bag and see if you aren't toting at least five pounds worth of clutter. If you are, get rid of it. You can't keep a neat purse under such conditions. What to do about it?

There are billfolds with card compartments, and change purses, some with matching address book and pencil, others with key compartment or checkbook cover. There are address and memo book combinations; key cases, those leaf reminders and pocket secretaries; and cigarette cases.

SCENT YOUR BATH

A scant handful of bath salts tossed in the tub before the hot water is turned on, to dissolve as the tub fills, will perfume the bath and scent the room. In addition, bath salts are a softening agent in the water. If you live in a hard water area, use an extra handful.

Powder Tones For New Hose

As the hemline travels upward and the shoe vamp is reduced to a minimum, hosiery assumes greater importance.

Hose, this Spring, stress exacting fit. Proportioned length and width eliminate a sagging knee and constricting thigh. A slimming effect is achieved with the dark seam and heel offered.

Eyes focus ankleward and with good reason. This Spring finds counters displaying lacy novelty heels, delicate clocks and often just a suggestion of reinforcement. One firm presents tiny buttons in a clock motif riding up the seam!

Whereas last Spring you chose your hose to compliment your costume, your present hose accents your skin coloring. These complexion tones are chosen like face powder, and the range is as large. For a blonde or a fair brunette there is antique gold with a greenish cast, nude with a blue undertone. Women with medium skin will do well to choose shrimp, baby pink, and pale apricot. The gold spectrum from "sweet butter" to tawny rose has been created for the dark complexion brunette.

National Wild Life Week Will Start April 9th

Windsor, March 29 (CP)— Attentions of sportsmen from coast to coast will focus on this Essex County town during the week starting April 9, celebrated as National Wild Life Week. The occasion falls annually in the same week to honor the memory of the late Jack Miner, whose bird sanctuary on the shores of Lake Erie is a mecca for sports-lovers.

The national observance was first officially named in 1947 by Parliament at Ottawa. Miner, who died in 1944 at the age of 79, founded his sanctuary in 1904. For many years he banded migrating birds and estimates are that more than 30,000 ducks and geese have stopped over at the sanctuary on their annual migratory flights.

On the eve of the week-long observance, Saturday April 8, a national radio broadcast will emanate from the sanctuary.

Churches across Canada will observe April 16 as "Nature Sunday," and Premiers of Canada's 10 provinces are co-operating in having wild life conservation emphasized in public and high schools.

Moose Rams Railway Speeder, Sectionmen Flee

Cochrane, March 28 — (CP) — A 1,000-pound moose rammed a railway speeder head-on Monday plunged its hoofs through the windshield, and walked away.

C. L. Baxter, Ontario Northland Railway section foreman at Wurtzel, 28 miles north of here, saw the moose running along the track and decided to get a picture of it. With three companions, he pursued the animal.

"About two miles up the line we caught up with it," Baxter said. "It stopped in the tracks, eyed us, and its ears went back. Then it charged."

Baxter and two of his companions fled, but the fourth man was still on the speeder when the animal struck. One of the hoofs just missed his head.

Baxter got his picture. It showed the moose eyeing the wrecked machine.

Executive Clemency Frees Father

Toronto, March 28— (CP)— Walter Hoorey, 47, sentenced to one month for supplying beer to his 17-year-old daughter—who took a sip "just to tease daddy"—has been freed through executive clemency, it was learned today.

Magistrate R. J. Browne said the release was on his recommendation.

"After consulting with the Crown counsel on the case," he said, "I made a recommendation to the attorney-general and he acted immediately."

Hoorey's conviction last week was criticized by Toronto lawyers because of the girl's testimony that she was "teasing".

NAMED COMMITTEE

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — Tom McCall, Deputy Minister of Travel and Publicity for Ontario, Monday named a committee of seven to promote the province's part in Canada's National Tourist Week May 1 to 8.

British Authors Work Less as Protest Against Burdensome Income Taxes

The treasury is being reminded by some of Britain's leading authors of Dr. Samuel Johnson's pronouncement 200 years ago that "no man but a blockhead ever wrote for money."

The writers are in one of their periodic moods of protest against a taxation system which leaves them little incentive to push their earnings beyond a modest level.

As a result, a number of well-known authors are rationing their output. They work for a few months to ensure solvency in the household budget, then "liberate" for the rest of the year.

The current discussion of taxation on literary earnings was touched off by H.C. Sherriff author of "Journey's End," one of the best plays about the First World War. Sherriff disclosed he turned down a lucrative Hollywood contract—one that would have brought Britain a useful wad of dollars—because the treasury wouldn't play ball.

Dig This

The playwright wanted the British surtax on his earnings waived. In return he would have endowed some archaeological work on a Roman site in Norfolk. The government turned thumbs down and Sherriff stayed home.

Other authors chimed in that they too, would earn more dollars if the surtax were not so heavy. Said novelist Nevil Shute:

"About two-thirds of my income comes in dollars. I could double my dollar income by working harder—but why? I cannot get any benefit for myself or for my children by doing so.

"As soon as I have earned £10,000 ($31,000) in the financial year I stop work and turn to model engineering and oil painting," he said.

Main Gripe

Taxation takes about 87 per-cent of a £10,000 income. It rises to a maximum of 97 1-2 percent on £20,000 at which level only sixpence is left of every pound.

The author's main gripe is that the treasury doesn't take into account the fact their peak earning period usually is short and is often preceded and followed by lean years.

Arthur Bryant, chairman of the Society of Authors, said the treasury should recognize a distinction between literary income (royalties) and literary capital (the author's copyright).

"The author, while subjected like others to income tax on royalities is not permitted to sell any part of his copyright or capital without the proceeds from such transaction being treated as income and taxed as such," said Bryant. "He cannot, therefore, like the business or professional man, protect his old age through the untaxed appreciation of the capital or goodwill of the business which he has built up."

Soap Opera

Sir Alan Herbert, humorist and former Member of Parliament, put it in simpler terms: Writers' incomes should not be treated like those of soap of manufacturers.

"We are one-man businesses, he said. "If we are ill our incomes stop. If soap manufacturers are ill their incomes continue."

PRINCESS AND HER SHADOW

When Princess Margaret of England attends public or social functions, Princess Anne holds her in the girl can believe behind her here. The girl, who has a passion for anonymity, is Miss Jennifer Jane Bevan, 22-year-old first-lady-in-waiting. She is the "brake" on Princess Margaret, probably the only person in the world, outside of the Princess' parents, who can say "no" or "don't" to Margaret and get away with it. Miss Bevan is the granddaughter of the 5th Earl of Lucan, an Irish representative peer. Although Miss Bevan frequently and diplomatically applies the brakes to Princess Margaret, the first lady-in-waiting is one of Margaret's favorite friends.—Central Press Canadian.

POLICE STATE WOMAN'S SLAYING HAS BEEN SOLVED

Four Ottawa Men To be Questioned

Hull, Que., March 30 (CP) — J. A. Robert, director of Hull police, said today that the handtowel slaying of Gertrude Marion Davis of Ottawa has been solved.

He told reporters that four Ottawa men are being held as material witnesses in the case and said police believe one of them is the man who strangled the attractive, 25-year-old girl in a Bridge Street rooming house early Wednesday.

The four men were not identified, and Mr. Robert said that so far no charges against them have been laid.

The formal inquest into the girl's death is being opened later today but is expected to be adjourned until tomorrow. Charge of murder would not be laid until after the inquiry, the police chief said.

One Identified

Hull and Ottawa police co-operated in the manhunt, which ended Tuesday before after the girl's nude body was discovered in a third floor bathroom shortly after noon Wednesday, a hand towel knotted tightly around her neck.

Mr. Robert said all four men held were placed in a police lineup in Ottawa and one was positively identified as the man who rocked Miss Davis to sleep early Wednesday with Miss Davis and left about an hour later.

Identification of the employee of the rooming house, was the man who identified one of the four as the person who registered with the girl. Other persons identified the same man as the male companion of the young woman at a drinking party in an Ottawa beverage room Tuesday evening.

The young woman with her mother and a brother moved to a rooming house on St. Patrick's Street in Ottawa's downtown district about three weeks ago.

Neighbors described Miss Davis as a "quiet" girl and did not believe she was employed.

There was no visible signs of violence in the room where the girl's body was found. The building was neatly arranged on a single bed and her light brown topcoat was hanging on a coat rack.

Alfred Gachet, genial proprietor of the 16-room building Bridge Street rooming house, said Miss Davis returned home with a man early Wednesday morning. He said he was awakened in the third-floor room for about an hour before leaving shortly before 3 A.M.

Marshall Plan Has Done Much In 2 Years to Restore Trade, Production in West Europe

(Editors note: Two years ago next Monday — April 3, 1948 —President Truman signed into law the Marshall Plan to help rebuild war-ravaged Europe. This story deals with the four-year European recovery program as it reaches the halfway mark).

By BILL ROSS

Washington, March 30 (AP)— Just across Lafayette Park from the White House is a modernistic 12-storey building that is the nerve-centre of the United States' mightiest offensive in the cold war with Russia.

From this headquarters is directed the Marshall Plan which Monday passes its second birthday.

The building houses the economic Co-operation Administration, its agency assisting the Congress to run a program due to cost American taxpayers about $13,000,000,000 by the time it ends June 30, 1952.

To make the second anniversary and half-way point of the project, soldier-statesman George C. Marshall — who, as Secretary of State, first devised the plan — has agreed to make a rare public call a "major speech."

The Marshall Plan today is far more controversial — both in the United States and abroad — than when the general first suggested it in a speech at Harvard University in June, 1947.

Marshall's idea in the beginning was this: All Europe including Russia — should get together to rebuild the continent in a co-operative effort which would restore production and trade. The United States would provide the countries with necessary aid to give them the chance to make good the ravages of war and to build for the future.

Soviet Not Taking Part

The Soviet refused to have any part of the scheme. Moscow charged the proposal was "sinister attempt of American capitalist imperialists to control the destiny of Europe." Thus Russia, taking the satellite countries of eastern Europe along, turned its back on the Marshall Plan.

Because of these developments —and subsequent moves by the Kremlin to counteract the rehabilitation of western Europe under the Marshall Plan—the program is a prime target for Communist propaganda attacks.

Paul G. Hoffman, E.C.A. Administrator, who has issued the recovery effort since it started, feels the Soviet strategy is obvious. Russia wants to prevent Europe to get on its feet.

Hoffman argues, because an economically-sound Europe adequately fed and housed, would never go Communist.

SINCLAIR PILOTS BILL TO EXTEND RENT CONTROLS

Will Continue Until March 31st Of 1951

Ottawa, March 30 — (CP)—A parliamentary assistant won his spurs in the cabinet benches Wednesday.

He was Vancouver's James Sinclair, 43-year-old parliamentary aide to Finance Minister Abbott. Mr. Abbott walked out of the House and left it to him to pilot the government legislation that will extend federal rent controls until March 31, 1951, and then cease.

The bill got final approval after a fighting speech by Mr. Sinclair from the seat Mr. Abbott normally occupied. He mimicked and chided George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, lore into arguments from that party and the C. C. F. and buttressed his case with the assertion that not a single Canadian has written the government to protest the rent decision.

The Liberal benches gave him sustained applause after he sat down. Mr. Drew smiled.

Mr. Sinclair's speech was the debating highlight of Wednesday's three-hour sitting but there were other important developments.

Approval was given the government bill to get out a permanent basis the government's powers under the Fisheries Prices Support Act to put floor prices under fish. As the measure went through Fisheries Minister Mayhew said with rising voice it might be used to support floor plus of Newfoundland salt fish if there was less talk about the fact a surplus existed.

Nine Male Patients Suffocate in Fire At Philadelphia

Thirty Others, One Fireman Overcome by Dense Smoke

Philadelphia, March 30 — (AP) — Nine male patients — some strapped to their beds — suffocated as rescuers tore apart wire meshed windows and crawled through smoke-filled rooms of a private sanatorium to lead scores of others to safety.

At least 30 other patients — men and women — and one fireman were overcome by smoke that poured from a basement fire into a wing of the Belle-Vista Sanatorium Wednesday night.

The three-storey sanatorium, located in suburban Springfield township, is for convalescent, senile, nervous and mental patients.

Fire Marshal Edward H. Chew said the blaze apparently started in the basement laundry from an unknown cause. It spread to the first floor, where the men patients were housed, but was brought under control quickly.

Those who suffocated were all in quarters on the first floor. Women patients on the second floor were removed through windows down ladders.

Superintendent Roland L. Randall said the wing with wire-meshed windows contained about 43 men and 31 women. Many of the men patients were confined to bed and were held in their beds by restraining straps, Chew said.

HOUSE IN NIGHT SITTING DEBATES UNEMPLOYMENT

Toronto, March 30. (CP)—Unemployment and homes for the aged cropped up in debate as the Ontario legislature in a night sitting Wednesday night considered various departmental estimates.

Welfare Minister Goodfellow said there were about 6,000 persons in municipal homes for the aged but added "I believe there are another 6,000 who would like to be in a home. It were not for the stigma of going into what in the community is regarded as a poor house."

The minister said that regardless of the size of the community, homes for the aged should be designed to accommodate not more than 200 persons. The department's policy was that where the site the more able inmates from the senile or bed-ridden, and one of the first homes to which this applies will be the one to be opened at Sault Ste. Marie this summer. He invited the members to visit the home and see the policy in practice.

A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto Bridgewood) contrasted Ontario's old-age pension of $40 a month, including $30 from the municipality, with that of the province, with the $50 pension in British Columbia. He said that the home for the aged at Port William is "a disgraceful place."

Agnes Macphail, (CCF—York East) said the government might be better if it helped the welfare private homes which were stamped with the stigma attached to public institutions. She also mentioned the home at Fort William, saying that while it was better than a lot of others that she'd seen or heard about, it still was not well equipped to combat fire

Gordon Declines to Reveal 'Lump Sum' Paid Vaughan

Ottawa, March 30—(CP)— R. C. Vaughan received a "lump sum" when he retired from the presidency of the Canadian National Railways last year, Donald Gordon said today.

Although questioned by members of the Commons railway committee the recently-appointed C.N.R. president declined to divulge the exact amount of this payment which was in addition to the normal pension paid to retiring officials.

G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) said there were rumors that Mr. Vaughan had received $50,000 in addition to pension payments.

Transport Minister Chevrier interjected that a ruling made by a previous committee in 1913 was to the effect that salaries and other payments made to C.N.R. officials should not be disclosed.

Later he tempered his remarks with a statement that he wanted to "make my position clear." He was not withholding information and any press reports to that effect would be denied by him. He was merely repeating what officials of the C.N.R. had said that such information should not be disclosed.

The question of what payment had been made to Mr. Vaughan who retired Dec. 31 after 51 years of service occupied a major part of his morning's session of the committee, investigating activities of the C.N.R.

REORGANIZATION OF FILM BOARD RECOMMENDED

Ottawa, March 30. (CP)—Reorganization of the government-owned National Film Board was recommended Wednesday in a report tabled in the Commons by Resources Minister Winters.

A 20,000-word document prepared by a Toronto firm of management consultants recommended that the reorganization Cabinet Ministers be eliminated from membership of the board, mainly responsible for policies of the N.F.B.

Sweeping changes in accounting practices, in the divisions of functions among various branches, and in the hiring of personnel also were urged.

The report made no reference to the screening of N.F.B. employees by the R.C.M.P., but in tabling the report Mr. Winters said that three of the 580 N.F.B. employees were released as a direct result of the security screenings. He did not disclose names and asked that he not be pressed for details.

There was no charge of wrong doing against the three employees, but merely absence of satisfactory evidence of trustworthiness. The individuals and not the government would suffer from any publicity.

58 AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., March 30 (AP)— It was hot in Miami Wednesday. The official temperature was 90 degrees — a record high for March 29 in the 38 years of Weather Bureau records here. It was even hotter in the outskirts. Miami Beach registered 88 and the Miami International airport 9 degrees.

ARREST TOP COMMUNIST

Seoul, Korea, March 30 (AP)— Police arrested the top communists of South Korea on President Syngman Rhee's 75th birthday. The arrest Sunday of Lee C Oo Haw, 47, leader of the red-underground, was disclosed today. Police said Lee Sam Ryong, 43 second in command, was arrested two days later.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Synoptic — Rain or snow clear throughout Ontario today. Early morning temperatures ranged from 15 to 30 in southern regions to below zero in northern Ontario While River, Ontario's coldest reported 18 below.

Fifth sunny skies and light winds the cold air mass covering Ontario will warm up today and Friday due to the strong rays of the late March sun. Afternoon temperatures Friday are expected to reach 40 to 45 in southern Ontario and the mid-30s in most northern regions.

Charges Reds in U.K. in Pulpit, School, Radio and Government

London, March 30. (AP)—The House of Commons tonight angrily demanded continued vigilance against communism in British public life after Lord Vansittart (Rab.) charged that Reds have infiltrated into Britain's pulpits, schoolrooms, radio and government.

Without a recorded vote, parliament's almost-overflow Upper House adopted the Conservative peer's resolution calling for continuing and resolute precautions to protect Britain from communists in the government.

Two of Clergy Deny Charges

To support his charges of communism in Britain's churches, Lord Vansittart read from statements of the Church of England clergy of Canon Collins, one of the charges. The third, Dr. Ewlett Johnson, known as the "Red Dean" of Canterbury, said he would ignore the peer.

The Lord Bishop of Truro, Viscount Jowitt, said all possible steps were being taken to counter subversive activities. Government investigations of suspected communists are made, he continued, had uncovered only 74 persons to be "dealt with" in 30 months.

Calling Canon Gilbert Cope a "notorious and dangerous priest," Lord Vansittart said the clergyman in a pamphlet had advocated "the overthrow of political power and "the distribution of the loot among the boys who did the job."

Canon Cope, in Birmingham, said he does not recognize his writings and misrepresented the facts. He denied he was or had been a communist.

Lord Vansittart also named the Bishop of Bradford, a former member of the House of Lords, who he said had written that Russian communism was "consistent with Christ's message.

The Bishop, Rt. Rev. Alfred Blunt, who was not present Wednesday night, said later he had expressed his views as many clergy and ministers for communism for three or four years ago. The council was the predecessor of the present society for Christian Socialism, he added.

Lord Vansittart said he did not like to use the expression "reds" we are riddled with communism and that secrets given to us are not to be kept secret.

But 16 communists have been working for the Department of Inland Revenue, Lord Vansittart asserted. He charged that communists were in the civil quality, the War Office, the Food, Agriculture and Health Departments and the BBC.

Killed Three Then Himself

Chicago, March 30. (CP)—A lawyer ended his 27-year-old wife, face mortgage deals, police said Wednesday, by killing his wife, a secretary and mother and driving himself.

The only survivor in the family is his four-year-old son, visiting at the home of his wife's mother.

Dead are Irvin Moskal, 35; his wife, Stella, 35; his widowed mother, Amille, 57; and his son, John, 10.

A letter describing some $30,-000 in mortgage deals handled by Moskal was found on the table with "I just shot and killed a man," sent police on the grisly hunt that led to the bodies. All had been shot to death.

Minimum Prices For Vegtables Announced

Toronto, March 30 (CP)—Minimum prices for tomatoes, green peas and sweet corn purchased for processing this season were announced Wednesday by Frank Perkin, chairman of the Food Products Marketing Board.

The prices were recommended by board of arbitration representing the grower and the processor.

The price schedule follows, with the figure in brackets: tomatoes, per ton, No. 1 $26.85 ($27.60); No. 2, $16.85 ($17.60); unsized $16.85 ($17.60).

Green peas, per ton $75 ($60). Sweet corn, per ton $18.75 ($22.50), green and wax beans, $80. ($82), asparagus, No. 1 grade 25 cents per pound; utility grade 18 1-2 cents; utility B grade, 14 cents; No. 2 grade, 10 cents. The one change was in utility A grade, which sold for 20 cents last year, 18 1-2 cents. All prices are F.O.B. factory or factory receiving station.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Hollywood, March 30 — (AP) — Actress Ann Southern underwent an emergency abdominal operation Wednesday. Her studio said she suffered a haemorrhage of the stomach lining and leakage into the abdominal cavity.

Two Slickers Take $3,500 In Card Game

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — John Tiffert, clerk of jail Wednesday so, naturally, he was happy. Then he went home.

The jail keeper had remarked during the 30 days he served for a liquor offence. The furniture was gone. So was the bedding and the oil burner. Even the plumbing.

Tiffert was on his way to see his lawyer when he ran into two strangers who offered to help him find the thieves. They said they were detectives and suggested a party first. All three got in a car and went to an east-end house. While waiting for the girls someone produced a deck of cards and Tiffert began to put up a small bet, Tiffert lost $35.

One of his "friends" said he would lend $3,000 for a "real" bet. Some of it was in a locker at the Union Station.

Tiffert went to his bank and took out $3,500. One of the men suggested Tiffert leave his $3,500 with the cashier while they went to the locker to verify the claim it contained $5,000, Tiffert agreed.

The driver and the first stranger raped away. The second stranger ducked into the crowd and vanished.

Tiffert called the cops.

Eccentric Character of Halifax Dies, Was Son of Former Premier of Nfld.

Halifax, March 30. (CP)—One walk on the Nova Scotia Technical College or the substantial tombstones of Old Camp Hill Cemetery.

Until the little obituary appeared in the press Wednesday of his fellow citizens knew him only as one of the city's eccentric characters, a tall, slightly stooped, gaunt figure, in ruffled and worn clothing and with a wild mop of hair of stubble-over his rosy cheeks, stepping lively along the streets of his manor of white hair showing under a battered old hat.

They didn't know he was son of the late Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Thorburn, K.C., M.G., premier of Newfoundland from 1885 to 1889 and that he had certificates from the best schools and colleges in Britain.

Nfld. Known as 'Aurora' Is Suggested

Fort William, March 30. (CP) Former Premier Robert Limbrick figures that northwestern Ontario should be known as Ontario and set up an 11th province known as Aurora.

Limbrick addressed the suggestion Wednesday night at a public meeting called by the Fort William Natural Resources Development Board. Chairman was Alderman Eunice Wishart and theme of the meeting was "Ontario's Opportunity".

Mr. Limbrick said "Toronto is neither ready nor willing to open up "the richest, yet most undeveloped part of the province."

"We can have a seat of government in the northwest. Ontario with a government of northwestern Ontario deciding policies of northern Ontario." He suggested the name Aurora as the symbol of the "Golden dawn of a new day, bringing a new hope to the people of northern Ontario."

Kirkland Lakers Say Alberta Not Only Place in North America Free of Rats

Kirkland Lake, March 30. (CP) Kirkland Lakers can make the same boast.

There's been talk that the pesky things come north in freight cars from places such as—well, say, Toronto. But W. R. Black, agent for the Ontario Northland Railway, says he's never seen one in 36 years of "reading."

Reeve Ann Shipley and Inspector H. Lee, of the provincial police force are equally emphatic about it.

The inspector recalls stray cats and a muskrat or two. His men even had to shoo a badly-scared moose off the street one day. But, no sir, no rats.

All this is just for the record. No hard feelings.

We admit Kirkland Lake hasn't got the Rockies or cowboys.

At a weekend meeting of the Central Ontario Women's Liberal Association held in Toronto, Regional president of Central Ontario, Mrs. Herbert McCabe of this city, was appointed to the advisory council of the National Liberal Federation of Canada, Mrs. McCabe was the only Ontario women from Ontario appointed to this high post. The federation will hold their annual convention in Ottawa in June.

GREEN SHOOTS APPEAR

Don't let this cool weather fool you. Spring is really around the corner.

In the gardens of Mrs. Amy Burnham, Hamilton Road, daffodils and tulips are poking green shoots at least two inches above ground.

Until the cold spell of the past couple days a number of residents also reported spring growth, with crocuses in bloom.

ICE BEING TAKEN OUT OF THE ARENA

King Hockey has abdicated in favor of warmer weather sports as far as the Memorial Arena is concerned.

The last game of the season here was played Monday night and removal of ice from the hockey rink surface was started immediately. It milder weather ensues, Manager Walter Allen expects to have the ice cleared within the next few days.

Then the wrestling fans will get their innings. The popular indoor sport will start here as soon as arena facilities are available.

NO EXTENSION MUSKRAT SEASON

Muskrat trapping "ain't what it used to be" according to a local trapper. Unfavorable weather conditions have been unfavorable to the production of pelts, it is stated, and the results so far are numerically well below those a year ago. Prices range between $1.75 and $2.00.

Rumors that an extension of the regular season (March 20—April 21) to May 1st were discounted today by Game Overseer Fred MacDonald, Point Anne.

"So far," he said, "I have heard nothing regarding such an extension."

MANY WANT TO MURDER

Los Angeles, March 30 (AP)—Dr. Robert Lindner, expert on criminal psychology, said Wednesday: "Many of us want to murder, but few of us do. Those who do not, perhaps, get ulcers instead." "The only essential difference," the psychoanalyst and his fellow man is that the offender acts out what others suffer."

20 Cadets Spend Full Day Aboard Their Ship 'Quinte'

Twenty members of the local Sea Cadet corps went aboard their ship "Quinte" Tuesday for a six hour period of training. The boys went "aboard" at two o'clock in the afternoon and for the next 4 hours followed very closely what would transpire aboard a corvette at sea.

Considered at Sea

In theory the ship was considered to be at sea, and with a destination to be reached by 1400 on Sunday. Its course and speed were carefully recorded in the log, as well as the weather. This proved most interesting and the cadets were shown on the chart their progress, course and where going as well as knowing the latitude and longitude positions.

An excellent job was done by the Ship's Cook, L/S R. Godden, who provided three bountiful and delicious meals, which were served as piping hot as on the mess. In addition to this the cook provided lunches and the traditional "mug of five" which watches coming off duty at midnight and four a.m.

Inspection Held

After breakfast on Sunday morning the usual ships Sunday Divisions and Captains inspection was held. The crew were told they were doing remarkably well. At 1145 (1145 land time) the navigating officer reported the ship had reached its destination and the cruise was soon over.

The cadets thoroughly enjoyed this 24 hours of realistic life aboard ship, as most of them were for the first time experiencing such things as getting up at 4 o'clock in the morning to go on watch, the duties of the helmsman, elementary navigation, and the routine as followed aboard a ship at sea. As one cadet remarked, "I forgot what a ship has to sail at night as well as during the day."

Commended by Officer

At the conclusion of the exercise the ship's commanding officer stated: "The cadets of this corps have proved that they are capable of doing more than they are usually given credit for, and their sea cadet training has made them more reliable. Throughout the day they demonstrated unusual resourcefulness, cheerful and willing attitude to ward their duties, and displayed most clearly that they are learning the meaning of co-operation and value of working harmoniously for the good of all concerned. It is cadets like these who have earned this Corps the reputation of being one of the most progressive in the area from Trenton Bay to St. Johns, Newfoundland."

Canadian Legion Branch 99 Entertains Picton Can. Legion

On Tuesday evening last, the Saco Club room was the scene of the annual meeting when the members of the Canadian Legion Branch 99, entertained the members of the Canadian Legion of Picton.

The first part of the evening was spent playing bingo, and at 9:30 the music, furnished by Mr. Thorne and Mrs. Burley was started, and both round and square dancing was the order for old and young. Between dances, Mr. Sam Turnbull, as a reading which was much enjoyed, and Mr. Starr, 1st vice president of the Picton men's branch, gave a short address, thanking the Belleville people for their great hospitality, and promising to have the return visit in the near future.

Mrs. John Hedges, president of the Picton Ladies Auxiliary, who was called upon for a brief address, also added her appreciation for the wonderful evening, hoping to have the Belleville branch in Picton, known as the Saco Club, month of May.

A draw was then taken for a large chocolate Easter egg, which had been donated by the committee. This was won by Mrs. Young, and the door prize by Miss Wright.

Refreshments were served at 11 o'clock by the social committee, and at 11:30 the Picton branch, after extending appreciative after thanks to the Belleville branch, departed for the home-bound but, tired, but happy.

HIGHWAY RE-OPENED

Hamilton, March 30 — (CP) — Department of Highways announced today that the flood waters of the Grand River has dropped sufficiently to permit reopening of Highway No. 54 from Caledonia to Cainsville. The highway from Caledonia east to York, however, remains closed with water still four feet deep over low spots.

Obituary

MRS. MYRTLE MARY PHILLIPS

The funeral of the late Mrs. Myrtle Mary Phillips was held from Ketcheson's Funeral Home to Alliance Tabernacle for service on Monday afternoon at 2 p.m. Presence of a large number of immediate relatives and friends, a profusion of floral tributes testified to the esteem of the deceased.

Rev. Rosser conducted the service in the church and also the committal rites, Interment was in Belleville cemetery. During the service Miss Jovi Shinstell sang "Beyond the Sunset." The bearers were all nephews Bruce Phillips, Lorne Phillips, Lee Benson, Leslie Eggleton, Grant Eggleton, Lorne Blakely and Wesley Blakely.

MRS. GYNETH MAY BAKER

Mrs. Gyneth May Baker, wife of Mr. John H. Baker, 59 Ridley Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday morning. Her illness was of one year's duration, but death occurred suddenly.

The late Mrs. Baker was in her 39th year and was born in this city, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William Wallbridge. All her life was passed in this city and she was a parishioner of Christ Church.

FREDERICK COOK

Frederick Cook died suddenly as the result of a heart seizure on Wednesday at his home 44 Moira Street west.

Born in Camden township Lennox and Addington County, the late Mr. Cook was in his 70th year and was a son of the late Edward Mrs. Cook.

many years he lived in Napanee and for the past twenty-three years he resided in this city. He was a member of the Church of England and a member of Christ Church, and in the activities of the men's organizations in connection with the parish he took an active part.

Surviving him is his wife, the former Gladys Strickland; one daughter, Mrs. Richard (Mildred) Leitch, Tyendinaga township; one son, Ernest Cook, this city; one brother, Herman Cook, Napanee; also a grandson, Timothy Cook.

Resting at the Ketcheson Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

POLICE BLOTTER

Spring certainly must be here. At least the firecrackers are back. Several times within the past week complaints have been lodged with the city police regarding lighting firecrackers and generally making a nuisance of themselves.

One young lady reported that she had a pair of hose ruined when boys threw lighted crackers at her feet, while another South Hill resident complained of firecrackers being thrown on her verandah steps.

Theft of milk bottle money was also reported in the Alexander Street district.

Parkwood Heights Commercial Area Should be Planned Recommendation of Board

A planned development of the, commercial area in the Parkwood Heights district rather than permit the area to be developed individually, has been recommended by members of the Belleville and District Planning Board.

At their regular meeting held Wednesday evening members of the Planning Board recommended that city council be requested to defer all building permits for the proposed commercial area until the board submits a development plan for their consideration.

Already there is an application before city council for permission to erect a grocery store in the area, the permit having been held up pending approval of the planning board, as to type of building and other matters. The board will recommend that development of the Parkwood Heights commercial area provide for adequate parking, and planting of shrubberies.

Protestant Plan Considered

Plans for widening of College Street from Sidney Street on the west to the CNR yards on the east were considered by the board. It was recommended that this street be widened to 86 feet from Sidney Street to North Front, and to 66 feet from North Front to the CNR yards.

It was also recommended that no building permits for the erection of buildings on College Street be approved by the building inspector before they were granted. Sidney and Thurlow townships will be asked to advise that the board has drawn plans for the widening of College Street with the request that no building permits be granted until approved by the board.

In view of the proposed construction of the new four-lane provincial highway in the north of the city, the Planning Board foresees much heavier traffic for the present highway arteries leading north out of the city. The board will ask that no building permits be granted for Madoc Road, Sidney Street, or Cannifton Road until such are approved by the Planning Board, or unless the proposed buildings are 43 ft. from the existing centre of the roadway.

The city will also be asked to consider the widening of North Front Street to 86 feet. At present the roadway varies from 60 to 66 feet.

The board authorized J. T. Ransom to prepare a plan showing areas in which the board wishes to file sub-division control plans. The plan will also show streets proposed for widening main traffic routes to have a width of 100 feet and secondary routes 86 feet.

Asked to Assist

Formation of a technical committee to advise the board on technical matters regarding town planning was considered favorable. Invitations will be made to City Engineer Charles Mott; city engineer of Trenton, and representatives from the Public Utilities Commission. The invitation to Hydro and the Bell Telephone and to professional engineer H. L. Smith, to assist on the committee.

Subject to the approval of the city, Thurlow and Sidney township board members will be paid an expense money amounting to five dollars for each meeting attended, up to a maximum of six meetings.

Transportation Subject of Talk To Optimists

A veteran of thirty-seven years service on the Grand Trunk and Canadian National Railways, Bert Wade, former engineer and diesel foreman, and present Mechanist and Rules Instructor at Bolleville addressed the Optimist Club on 'Railway Transportation'.

Giving first a general picture of the army of men employed to keep the trains rolling, the speaker proceeded to give graphic illustrations. Mr. Wade traced the history of an engine from its birth in its initial building to its final breakup.

A gradual assembly of cars, for the conductor, engineer and brakemaster, to order a freight engine of the necessary weight for an assigned train. The locomotive foreman calls an engineer and fireman, and the yard conductor calls a conductor and two brakemen. These men must sign on before going to work, indicating their knowledge of road signals and rules, and that they are properly rested.

Looks Over Engine

The engineer devotes half an hour to building up his locomotive from the hostler, and examining it, while the fireman checks water, sand and other supplies. The locomotive then meets a yard foreman who gives the conductor and brakemen.

The brakeman takes the locomotive to the train, where the car-retarder is pulling. All this must be done on schedule, and no delays are allowed. The car moves are then signaled to the engineer by hand signals or horn blasts throughout the train, and by whistle signals.

The conductor reports to the engineer when train orders supplied by the despatcher. The conductor and engineer synchronize their watches. The engineer reads back the orders to the conductor, and the conductor reads them to the engineer. The fireman puts up flags and lamps, indicating the type of train. All of the crew have time cards, and check the time of trains they will meet, and the meeting points, as well as the times of following trains.

Traces Journey

After final signals from caboose to engine, the train of possibly seventy cars and four thousand tons is off and away. From departure, Mr. Wade traced a long night journey with a split light, with exactly timed stops on passing tracks to permit the passage of passenger trains and superior freights. In conclusion, he told of the arrival at destination here the train is stored in its assigned spot, the conductor takes his log to the yard office, ready for handling, and the engineer takes his locomotive to the shop, and examines it, reporting on any defects.

Mr. Wade was introduced to the Club by Don Boyce, and expressed the thanks for a splendid address by Frank Clarke.

Two Initiated

Past President Don Boyce initiated Allan Collins and Frank Foley into Optimism, assisted by membership chairman Ken Campbell, Bert Smith, Weldon Elliott and the nurses of the staff of the Belleville General Hospital, Second Floor East, who were so kind to me during my stay in the hospital. Mrs. Fred Rodgers.

Pickerel Poachers Can Expect Heavy Penalties

Reports from commercial fishermen indicate a heavy pickerel run this season, according to Game Overseer Fred MacDonald, Point Anne.

"Some of the fishermen," Overseer MacDonald said today, "have had large schools of the fish are moving shorewards from all directions. Several fine specimens have been caught in nets and thrown back. The "invasion" of the fish appears to be much heavier than that of a year ago."

With the pickerel expected to arrive at spawning grounds within the next ten days, conservation officers are taking no chances on the wanton slaughter of the fish that usually takes place every year.

Game Overseer MacDonald's augmented staff will comprise approximately two men besides the Overseer Edward and Trenton officers. Close watch will be maintained for poachers and those caught breaking the game and fish laws in this respect will be severely dealt with.

"We are not fooling," Overseer MacDonald said, "We are going to enforce the law to the limit. This wasteful practice of spawning fish has got to stop and if possible, with the help of the Game and Fish Associations of Belleville and Napanee, we are going to do it. There will be no excuses. Simply, those caught breaking the law as far as the pickerel are concerned will get the limit."

SNATCHES CHILD FROM WATER

Cornwall, March 30. (CP)—Mrs. Henry Brosseau of East Cornwall today was credited with rescuing her four-year-old daughter from drowning in a fast-flowing creek. Eye-witnesses said Mrs. Brosseau snatched the child from five feet of water after the girl had been swept under a bridge.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — A handful of mining stocks held the spotlight in the busiest session of the year on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Activity boomed in a few issues with property in the Malartic district, Northwestern Quebec. The remainder of the market climbed steadily with western oils advancing to the highest average price level in 12 years. Volume for the first three hours was 1,223,000 shares.

Most active stock on the big board was Aumaque mines, a low-priced issue that opened at 11 cents, boomed to 66 cents and began to settle at about 58 cents. Turnover in this issue alone was almost 600,000 shares in three hours. Norseman Mines, another penny issue also traded heavily for a strong gain.

These companies have property in the Malartic district, northwestern Quebec, adjoining East Sullivan Mines. East Sullivan has featured recent markets following drilling news. It was also active today but slipped under pressure of profit-taking.

Rumors are circulating on the street that drill cores at Aumaque indicate the East Sullivan find extending onto the property.

In western oils, Pacific Petroleum featured a climbing list that advanced into new high ground and touched the highest point on the exchange's index since 1937.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, March 30—(CP)—Most or the small offering of cattle were cleared at steady prices, at the Ontario stockyards this morning. Receipts: Cattle 20; calves 10; hogs 100; sheep and lambs, none. Left from Wednesday were 70 cattle.

Common to medium cows sold at $16-$18 a cwt. with a few bulls bringing $18-$20. Medium to good stockers brought $20-$22.50.

A few choice calves sold at $27-$29.

Hog prices were not established.

Admits Guilt In Grounding Of Battleship

Norfolk, Va., March 30 (AP)—Capt. William D. Brown today pleaded guilty to charges of negligence and neglect of duty in the grounding of the battleship Missouri.

Brown commanded the ship when she ran aground on a Chesapeake bay shoal Jan. 17.

The action of the former skipper of the 45,000-ton battleship came shortly after he was arraigned before a general court martial convened to try him on these charges:

1. "Through negligence suffering a vessel of the navy to be stranded."
2. "Through negligence suffering a vessel to be hazarded."
3. "Neglect of duty."

The 47-year-old officer, relieved as commanding officer of the Missouri shortly after the vessel was refloated Feb. 1, had told a naval court of inquiry which investigated the grounding that "I and I alone bear the sole responsibility" for the accident.

Brown had become skipper of the only active U.S. battleship last December. The Missouri was the first capital ship he had commanded and the first ship of any type he had skippered since 1943.

Pavement Repairs Will be Done During Nights

The public works department will take immediate action in filling holes in the city streets and thus make for safer operation of motor vehicles

Mayor H. J. Allin today authorized the local public works department to commence night operations in filling all holes with cold patch. It was decided that the work could be accomplished with less disruption of motor traffic if it were not done during the day.

As public works equipment will be stationed on the streets during the filling of holes, the cooperation of the local motorists was asked in watching out for such equipment in various parts of the city. However, all such equipment will be adequately lighted while the repair work on streets is being carried out.

Power Shortages Ended 'For Many Years to Come'

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Robert H. Saunders, Hydro-Electric Power Commission chairman, predicted today that power shortages and cut-offs have been eliminated "for many years to come" in Ontario.

He told the second annual Industrial promotion conference of Ontario municipalities that the recent agreement signed by Prime Minister St. Laurent and Premier Frost granting Ontario additional power facilities was "of tremendous importance" to the future development of power in the province.

The treaty will mean that by late 1953 or early 1954 Ontario will be able to produce an additional 500,000 horsepower and ultimately 900,000 additional horsepower will be available, he said.

The Commission does not anticipate any shortages or cut-offs in the immediate future and municipalities may assure industries planning to establish plants in their areas that there will be "an abundance of low-cost power available," he told the representatives of more than 100 Ontario communities.

BUY EASTER SEALS AND HELP A CRIPPLED CHILD

The Rotary Club, since its inception in the city 25 years ago, has devoted the greater part of its community work to the cause of crippled children. Over 800 children, either born with deformities, or the victims of crippling diseases after birth, have benefited by the funds raised, and the efforts put forth by members of this service club.

For the past week, the annual Easter seal campaign conducted by Rotarians has been under way. Each Easter, the club seeks to augment its Crippled Children Fund with proceeds derived from the sale of these seals. Working in conjunction with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children the clubmen have raised appreciable sums during the past few years.

To many of us Easter symbolizes a time when we think of self-denial. Apart from the religious observances that many make, it reminds us that the spirit of giving finds a reflection in the satisfaction that comes from aiding some other person.

The funds finance the year-round campaign of clubs and societies sponsoring this work which brings the finest medical and surgical skill to bear on the problems of children who are handicapped by deformities.

Children who might otherwise, because of financial inadequacy or remoteness from skilled physicians, never receive treatment, are brought to the attention and services of specialists. Many of them are completely cured. A great many are aided to the point where they can secure a certain degree of independence.

The Rotary Club of Belleville, like its sister clubs in other parts of the province, sponsors children from its particular area. It holds the proud position of being third in Ontario in funds raised and expended in this humanitarian cause. The sale of seals issued by the club finances the flow of district children to treatment centres and aids in their rehabilitation. The record of the Belleville Club here has been possible through the generous response of the public to its various fund-raising projects, and the sale of Easter seals.

In the records of the club will be found the names of hundreds of children who have been rescued from helplessness, forced to walk into self-reliant citizens. But many more must still be helped.

Easter seals were mailed to every householder in this city last week. All that is necessary, keep the seals and forward your contribution to the Rotary Club.

THE BUDGET

Finance Minister Abbott's 1950-51 budget, as expected, contained no surprises nor undue disappointments. Not since the start of the Second World War has a budget been so featureless in its governmental matter. There had been talk that Abbott would possibly levy a tax on capital gains, but like so much other speculation, it had no foundation in fact.

Last year the big news was the reduction in the income tax rate for thousands of Canadians which was a welcome relief from the tax burden imposed during the campaign for many years. Nevertheless, the continued heavy expenditures for social security, defence and items of similar nature call for big budgets, and that is what we have—nearly two and one-half billion dollars worth.

If one takes exception to a few items are of interest. The national debt of Canada is $11,665,000,000 which will cost us $439,000,000 interest this coming year or $34 for every man, woman and child in Canada. Pensions for veterans of World Wars One and Two will take another $96,000,000. Family Allowances total $297,000,000 while Old Age Pensions and Pensions to the Blind will eat up $94,000,000.

On the revenue side, income taxes and associated taxes will bring in $1,269,000,000, the sales tax — the one you don't realize you are paying — will amount to $415,000,000, which is quite a respectable figure. Excise duties on spirits and malt will enrich the treasury by $104,000,000. The same taxes on tobacco, on cosmetics, on paper, are expected to bring in $114,000,000. Thus those citizens who indulge in these tastes certainly pay their share for something they could do without if circumstances forced them to do so.

So long as parliaments approve the Government's policies requiring spending of huge amounts of public funds then it is well that budget should provide some surplus ever year. In contrast the United States will have a deficit of about five billion dollars. To our mind Canada is doing the sensible thing even though it causes our pocket books to be a little thinner than we would like. It seems you cannot eat your cake and have it, too.

WHAT HE KEPT

He couldn't keep money. So loose was the grip
Whatever he earned through his fingers would slip.
He couldn't keep tidy. His neckties went frayed,
But he kept to the end every friend that he made.

He couldn't keep trinkets. If some one should say:
"I wish I had that," he would give it away,
He forgot about value and what he had paid,
But he never forgot any friend he had made.

He couldn't remember a slight or a wrong.
"It is silly," he said, "to keep grudges too long"
He often made loans and remembered them not,
But his friends were possessions he never forgot.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ASSETS

The dictionary defines assets as "all the available property of a person or company." We look over the balance sheet of a company and note these assets—building stock, machinery, money in the safe, etc. But nothing is listed there of the most valuable asset that any company can have—the people who work for that company. Without them all the other assets would mean nothing!

People, as an asset, no not appear on the balance sheet of an organization. That's something, it seems to me, we ought to think about. These workers who keep a business going are a firm's greatest asset, but if they refuse to work, or go on strike, then they immediately become a liability. Everything, therefore, should be done to keep these workers as a valuable asset.

Every single human being is his greatest asset. He remains that, even though someone might agree to "fire" him. Character is an asset that even money cannot buy. A man's word can easily be a man's best asset. Or a man's genuine friends may far outweigh all his accumulated wealth.

I have a beautiful print that I look upon each day of my life, when I am home. I sold my golf membership in a fine club many years ago to buy it. A few weeks ago a man came and offered me five time the amount I paid for it, but I only smiled and said no. would buy it. Should I sell it, my material assets would gain, but my spiritual assets would shrivel: I care more for the latter.

It's the appraisement we place upon values that brings us happiness or unhappiness. Experience and faith are the best teacher when it come to this. An early appraisement, therefore, is always important, for each year can enrich the higher and more substantial ones.

I am sure many will agree that books are a living asset. I know they have been to me. One cannot adequately appraise the value of a good book. My father once handed me a book and said: "Here, son, is a book that is worth its weight in gold!" And to me, then and now—it is.

Impressions of Britain

THE NATIONAL FARMERS' UNION

By RALPH CAMPBELL

Oxford, England, Special—As so many people from the Bay of Quinte are directly or indirectly dependent upon farming for their livelihood, it would seem appropriate to devote a few articles to the organization and methods and conditions of agriculture in Britain.

The National Farmers' Union is the British counterpart of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, and like it, represents the whole section of the farming community in its negotiations with the government, or in presenting the farmers' point of view. Although their general objectives are the same, there are a number of important distinctions both in organization and in activities between the Canadian and British organizations.

The National Farmers' Union (NFU) grew out of a movement in 1908 of farmers in one county (Lincolnshire) to provide a responsible voice to which the Ministry of Agriculture could listen. In a few years this idea had spread to neighbouring counties, and in 1913 there were 20,000 members. There was a great expansion during the First World War when cooperation with government control, it was realized that it was essential for a national organization of producers to present their case as to price and other injustices. At present there are about 200,000 members, with 'County Farmers' Union in every county.

Voluntary Membership

Membership is entirely voluntary, and not, as is the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, automatic through being a member of one or more of the commodity groups such as hog producers, cheese producers, etc. There are very few of these commodity organizations in Canada, and the only one that I know about which is really important in Ontario is the Whole Milk Producers. Thus there is a basic difference in the British and Canadian organizations. The cost of joining the NFU is $2.25 plus 1% based on rental, and, as an employee of the Oxfordshire Farmers' Union told me, a farmer receives many of the benefits without becoming a member.

The chief activity of the NFU is to negotiate annually or oftener if need be with the government on behalf of the farmers, as to prices for agricultural products. When one realizes that the prices of most farm products are set annually, pork, beef, wheat, hops, other cereal grains, potatoes and beans, the importance of the NFU in representing the farmers and presenting their case becomes apparent.

This annual price review normally takes place in February, but was delayed this year because of the election. According to one report, the NFU usually receive a much more sympathetic hearing from the Ministry of Agriculture than from the Ministry of Food since the latter is interested primarily in low prices. The relations between the NFU and the Ministry of Agriculture have been very cordial for the past ten years, and British farmers are said to have fewer complaints than ever before.

Supported War Effort

During the war the NFU gave its wholehearted support to increased agricultural production, and has been instrumental in raising the level of agricultural prosperity to a peak unrivalled between 1939 and 1940. At present it is conducting a campaign of education in an attempt to ascertain exactly what proportion of the land lying in the country, what are the needs of this land, and the costs of bringing it into full production.

Each county organization appoints at least one member of the executive of the nation body, and sometimes further members are asked to serve on commodity committees of the national body through this usually depends upon the individual being an expert on outstanding figure in field. The county organization varies between two types: in Oxfordshire and some others there is a county secretary with an organizer, an assistant, and small office staff situated in the county offices which are usually located in the county seat.

In Oxfordshire there are seven branches, six of which are areas, and the seventh a department of organization (horticulture—mostly market gardening). In Oxfordshire, 85-90 per cent of the farmers are members of the Farmers' Union. Most other counties have a slightly different organization, in which each of the branches within the County is more independent, conducting some business, handling some funds, and sending one or more representatives to the county committee (one representative, plus another for every fifty members). Thus any branch is able to express its views at the county level; and through the county representative, at the national level. Each county organization is represented on the executive of the national headquarters, since it collects the subscriptions of the members from that county, and employs its own staff.

Close Contact

But there is always close contact between branch, county and national levels. Every month meetings on the lower levels keep a fairly constant flow of proposals and suggestions to the centre.

The activities at the county level are as follows:

1. The interpretation of government orders and regulations to agriculture. The flow of orders and regulations both during the war and in the immediate government has been considerable, and in the past has caused much confusions and forms, is not readily comprehensible to a non-technical person, or to legal wording. Since many commodities are subsidized or controlled, prices for draining and certain other improvements, and for the regulations for building activities, gasoline consumption, acreages of plowing and many other items is very important.

2. Legal advice and aid in any dispute, as well as interpretation of tenants' and owners' rights. This service is most helpful since the county secretary or his staff can often get the point of a farmer's legal position as a lawyer is, and yet can do it in a much more advice without recourse to expensive legal action. But the Farmers' Union does retain a lawyer in case legal action is necessary. In most cases, however, a letter, written by the county secretary, with the authority of the organization, and the threat of impending legal action, is sufficient to bring the matter to a head, and at the same time to prevent legal expenses for both concerned.

3. Ensuring that such services as electricity, telephones and water are made available as quickly as possible. Since electricity and telephones are government enterprises, close contact of the NFU with this department is important.

4. Ensuring an adequate supply of labor with reasonable cost; this again, is a service in which the NFU may have considerable influence on the government or on the Agricultural Advisory Board. Farmers concerning exorbitant wages or the possibility, of strikes.

5. Supplies of gasoline and fuel oil, especially during the period of petrol rationing, and have, on occasion, even caused some illegal gasoline to be released.

6. Education, through farmers' meetings, and, by supporting young farmers' clubs.

7. Consultation and cooperation with those Ministry of Agriculture employees who correspond to the agricultural representative in the counties of Ontario.

8. Insurance. The NFU Mutual Assurance Society offers policies for almost every kind of insurance. These policies are generally cheaper than any other company, and often obtain a saving to the farmer which amounts almost to his yearly membership subscription. The county secretary of the NFU or some other responsible farmer is usually the agent for the Mutual Society. About 66 per cent of the members of the Oxfordshire Farmers' Union are policy-holders in the Mutual.

RINGWORM GETS AROUND

Ringworm is a disease of the skin caused by several varieties of fungi. A fungus is a microscopic vegetable organism or body. It is very low order of life, an example of which is a mold—such as that very commonly seen in discarded food.

Many fungi may be eaten in quantity without harm to the body —such as mold in cheese and other foods. In fact, many fungi are actually the source of essential food principles. Yeasts are fungi and are the source of a rich supply of vitamin B.

Generally speaking, most fungi are very slightly menacing to man. They may cause disease of the superficial layers of the skin, and also of the hair and nails. These are the disorders named "ringworm."

Some fungi are more menacing to man. The "ray fungus" which causes a disease in cattle known as "lumpy jaw," causes a serious disease in the human. Other serious disease of man may be caused by certain types of fungi.

The disease depends upon both the kind of fungus concerned. It should be understood that common fungi, such as those that cause serious disease in man, although they may give rise to persistent and troublesome minor diseases of the skin.

Ringworm may attack the skin of the body in various locations. Sometimes it is usually given a secondary name depending upon the location of the disease. Thus "Athlete's Foot" is ringworm of the toes and feet. "Barber's Itch" is ringworm of the hair and region of the face. "Jockey-strap Itch" is ringworm of the inside of the thighs and crutch.

Ringworm of the scalp results in breaking off of the hairs in patches which presents a "stubby" appearance. I have never heard of any other lay term for this disease.

Ringworm appearing on nonhairy areas of the body is characterized by circular, reddened areas of small diameter, which may rise to the same, under the supposition that a "worm" gained access to the skin and bored beneath it.

Ringworm is a contagious disease affecting both man and animals. While man may acquire ringworm from handling animals, different types of fungi exhibit a marked preference for one or the other to the extent that transference of the disease from animals to man is purely accidental.

Children are particularly susceptible to ringworm of the scalp and body but rarely develop "athlete's foot". Adults often develop athlete's foot but seldom acquire ringworm of the scalp. The reason for this is not clearly understood.

Ringworm of the scalp has reached epidemic proportions. The disease is readily transmitted from child to child both directly and indirectly. Perhaps the most important means of indirect infection involves the back of chairs against which children rest their heads. The chairs in moving picture theatres, designed primarily for the comfort of adults, are particularly in point.

Ringworm of the feet may also be acquired indirectly, as by using contaminated shower stalls and the appurtenances thereto. Efforts to prevent spread of infection by the use of medicated foot baths have been found to be unsuccessful.

Treatment of ringworm will be the subject of a subsequent article.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Enlarged Heart and Blocked Heart

Is there such a thing as an enlarged heart? If so, what is the cause? What is a blocked heart—and the cause? (W. F.)

Answer — Enlargement of the heart often occurs. Disease of the valves of the heart. Circulatory obstruction is another cause. These conditions are in competence decreases. Heart block is a condition in which the beat chambers of the heart contract independently of the contraction of the heart. It is usually due to producing circulatory confusion within the heart. It is usually due to loss of the mechanism contained within the heart which governs the contraction of the heart's nervous control. I fear this is a large order for a question to be asked in full.

Calcium Deposit in the Shoulder

My husband is taking a vitamin D and calcium preparation which completely relieved him of severe migraine headaches. X-ray shows a calcium deposit in the shoulder. Will the vitamin D and calcium preparation affect this? (Mrs. E. S.)

Answer—Certain toxic effects of synthetic vitamin D are due to impurities caused by faulty preparation and not due to vitamin D itself. It is also possible to produce undesirable effects is 1000 times greater than the dose useful to combat vitamin D deficiency. As a matter of fact, when huge doses of vitamin D are given, calcium is withdrawn from all calcium deposits in the body and deposited in the circulating blood. There is no reason to fear that calcium deposits may be caused or aggravated by the rational use of vitamin D preparations.

Immediate Dentures

I have been installing immediate dentures for over 25 years. We are in agreement on this point. (R. P. W.)

Answer — Some of your colleagues gave me a hard time of it when I recommended this practice. A great many persons have yet to learn that dentures (plates) may be prepared in advance of extraction of teeth and installed immediately as permanent plates. The word permanent has given rise to much argument. Adjustments must be made from time to time as all plates—immediate or delayed.

Continued Economic Prosperity Predicted for Next Fifty Years

By HAROLD MORRISON
Ottawa, March 30 —(CP) — Canada's prices chief predicts continuing economic prosperity in the next 50 years—barring certain international catastrophes."

Kenneth W. Taylor, chairman of political economy at McMaster University, Hamilton, believes that Canada will have economic ups and downs in the next half century, but "in no country in the world are the possibilities of rapid and healthy expansion more promising."

The "most dramatic" of Canada's industrial developments may well be in the wastes of Labrador where huge deposits of iron ore will be developed. In addition there will be new wealth from Alberta's bountiful oil wells—the world's most spectacular oil discovery in recent years.

Uranium, uranium and other minerals will add to the variety and richness of Canada's wealth.

By the year 2,000, Canada likely will have a population of 25,000,000—nearly double current numbers.

This increase will greatly expand the home market for Canadian production," says Mr. Taylor, "but in the year 2,000 Canada still will be heavily dependent on foreign trade to maintain a rising standard of living."

Alberta, B.C. to Benefit

He predicts that most of the population increase will take place in areas already occupied with emphasis on Alberta and British Columbia, where industrial expansion will bring parallel population growth.

A large foreign trade will continue to be an important part of the Canadian economy. Exports will continue to serve as Canada's way of paying for the imports she needs to maintain a high standard of living.

Mr. Taylor's optimistic predictions are hedged by two big "ifs": That there will not be a Third World War in the next half-century; that a solution will be found to the current difficulties in international trade.

One of the question marks of the next 50 years forms over development of atomic energy for industrial use.

First to Benefit

Canada has based her industrial growth on hydro-electric power and has dotted the industrial heart—Ontario and Quebec—with a network of power developments.

But she is keeping her eye on the development of atomic energy for industrial use and her Chalk River Atomic projects are geared for that. If industrial application of atomic energy becomes practicable, Canada should be among the first countries to benefit, Mr. Taylor says.

"Self-sufficiency" would not be "sensible" for Canada, says Mr. Taylor. If she wants to live well —even 50 years hence—she needs heavy imports of citrus fruits, coffee, tea, cocoa, cotton and other products.

If she wants to keep selling, Canada must remain an "efficient low-cost producer of foodstuffs, newsprint, metals and manufactured goods."

Mr. Taylor sees an increasing shift of population from the farm to the city. Taylor hopes this shift will lead to more communities of 50,000 to 100,000 population. He says:

"Great metropolitan centres of 2,000,000 or more tend to create more problems than they solve."

TELLS STORY OF AIR CRASH

"Suddenly the plane staggered. We saw the fire on one wing. I told the others on the plane to get out, but there just was not time," Master Sgt. Gwyn Long, sole survivor of the air crash a few miles from Ottawa on Tuesday, in which U. S. Ambassador to Canada Laurence Steinhardt was killed, told the story of the crash from hospital bed. He landed with his parachute partially opened in two feet of snow after jumping from less than 400 feet. —Central Press Canadian.

TRENTON
Car Collision Causes $400 Damage

Trenton. (Special.)— Damage amounting to $600 was the result of an accident which occurred at the corner of Byron Street and Dundas Street East, last night about seven o'clock.

Police say a car owned and operated by Harry Way, 18 John Street, was proceeding south on Byron when he pulled out on to Dundas Street East, into the path of a car driven by Thomas H. Coltman, 185 Sidney Street. Coltman stated he applied his brakes and swung to the left in an attempt to miss the other car, but that he struck the left front fender and the front door causing an estimated $150 damage.

Police say that Coltman skidded for thirty-five feet before stopping. Damage to Coltman's car amounted to approximately $250.

Many Attend Play

The play "Tons O' Fun", which was presented by the Trenton Dramatic Club, Monday and Tuesday night was attended by more than 460 people. It was put on in the Canterbury Hall entirely by local talent and the proceeds will be used to further the activities of the Dramatic Club.

Badminton Tournament

In an all-out drive to raise funds the Trenton Recreation Commission and the Trenton Badminton Club will stage a special badminton tournament and dance at the No. 6 Repair Depot, drill hall on Saturday, April 1.

Permission to use the drill hall has been granted by Group Captain S. A. Greene M.B.E., commanding officer of 6 RD.

The new snack bar will be officially opened to provide refreshments for the guests.

Farm Forum

MELROSE FARM FORUM

Melrose — The Farm Forum was entertained on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McMechan at their fourth annual banquet. Nineteen sat down to a well laden table and all did ample justice to the delectable food. The table was beautifully arrayed with Easter decorations.

Following the supper a questionnaire with suggestions for topics for the fall and winter series was answered. The Forum was re-organized and ready to begin the fall series with the first meeting to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Reilly.

Following are the officers: chairman, John Milligan; vice-chairman Sherry Demill; secretary, Mrs. Sherry Demill.

On behalf of the Forum, Mr. Arthur English tendered to Mr. and Mrs. McMechan a hearty vote of thanks for their hospitality in opening up their home on this occasion. Plans were made for the annual picnic to be held in June.

The previous week, the forum was entertained by the Melrose Women's Institute in the township hall. All present listened to the radio broadcast "Community Organization," but the discussion was dispensed with and four very interesting films were shown

The ladies of the institute served refreshments and all enjoyed a social time.

Canada Pays Final Tribute To Ambassador

Ottawa, March 30 (CP)— Alan Harrington, 20 year-old son of U. S. minister to Canada, Julian Harrington, was buried today in Ottawa's Beechwood Cemetery, marking the beginning of a day of mourning and final tributes in the Canadian capital.

More than 300 persons jammed the home of the minister for the funeral service of his son, killed Tuesday with U.S. ambassador Laurence Kleinhardt and three U.S. air force officers in a plane crash near Ottawa.

Services for the ambassador and for Capt. Thomas Archibald, 34, of Union Springs, Ala., Lt.-Col. W. F. Trublood, 35, Kansas City and Lieut. Mark Belanger, 29, New Bedford, Mass., will be held later in the day with full diplomatic and military honors.

Sent On Special Train

The body of the ambassador will be sent on a special train to New York where he will be buried. Those of the three officers also will leave for the United States.

External Affairs Minister Pearson headed representatives of the government attending services for Harrington. He will later accompany the body of Ambassador Steinhardt to New York to represent Canada at the diplomat's funeral there.

Archdeacon G. G. Hepburn conducted the simple ceremony for young Harrington in the minister's home where people from all walks of life gathered to pay a final tribute.

Meantime top investigating officers from the United States and Canada continued to probe the wreckage of the C-47 transport plane that crashed in flames Tuesday into a farm field 11 miles southeast of here a few minutes after taking off from Rockcliffe airport.

Still in hospital is Master Sgt. Gwyn Long, lone survivor of the crash, who told reporters Wednesday that the flames enveloped the plane so rapidly there wasn't time for any more of the six occupants to bail out as he did. Long is suffering from shock and a twisted knee but his condition is not serious.

WILL FILE APPEAL

Sudbury, March 30. (CP)—J. N. Lacourciere, Sudbury lawyer, said today he will file a notice of appeal before Saturday against the death sentence imposed on Adelard (Eddie) Latour), 49, of Sudbury, in connection with the hunting knife slaying of a Sudbury woman last September.

He said the appeal will be based on general grounds. He will not press for an acquittal, but will ask that the charge be reduced to manslaughter or a new trial ordered.

CONSCIENCE CUTLERY

Letchworth, Hertfordshire Eng. (CP)— After 17 years an anonymous repentant returned two spoons he stole from a London transport commission canteen. An official said receipt of "conscience money" was common but "conscience cutlery" was something new.

SOCIAL EVENING

Last evening 30 members, of the Bethel Bible Class Club, including escorts and artists, enjoyed a social get-together in the board room of the Y.M.C.A. with Mr. Charles Randall, president, presiding over a brief business period.

Suitable and interesting entertainment was provided, and dainty refreshments were served by members of the Kinette Club.

Club Activities

Ivanhoe—The regular meeting of the Y.O.U. was held on Monday evening in Beulah United Church with an attendance of 18. The meeting opened with quiet music played by Eleanor Reid, after which the theme, followed by the hymn.

The theme for the meeting was "The Church" and was very thoughtfully throughout the entire program. The president, Doris V. Twiddy, conducted the worship service. Scripture lesson, Luke 16-21 was read by Rose Twiddy. A meditation on the scripture was given by the president, who also led in prayer.

The offering was received by Ellen Mills and dedicated by Doris V. Twiddy. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, and a short business period followed. Mention was made of the Union taking charge of an evening church service early in the month of April.

Mrs. Clifford Mills conducted the program, opening with the hymn "Onward! Christian Soldiers"; A reading, "My Church" was given by Margaret Wright. Joyce Reid favored with a solo, "Jesus Wants Me For a Sunbeam". Mrs. George Wood gave a reading, "Old Fashioned Things".

The topic based on the theme "The Church" was taken by Mr. George Wood, who gave an inspiring and helpful message. Mrs. Keith Bray favored with a piano solo, after which Eleanor Reid read a story. A humorous reading was given by Larry Mills. A contest was then conducted by Margaret Wright, after the meeting closed.

Women's Activities

VICTORIA AVE. BAPTIST CHURCH W.M.C.

An open meeting of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Women's Mission Circle was held in the Sunday School Auditorium on Tuesday last. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. C. Campbell.

Miss V. Handley read the scripture. For meditation, Mrs. G. Campbell gave an impressive Easter reading entitled "The White Lily." Mrs. H. Hales had the pleasure of presenting to Mrs. H. Wellbanks a Life Membership Certificate in the Missionary Society.

A pleasing and instructive paper, "All for Christ," was dramatized by some of the Circle members, was well received. The many friends and visitors, by their interest helped to make the March meeting a great success.

Rev. H. O. Eastman closed with the benediction.

Sixteen Successful At Christian Leadership School

A Christian leadership school was recently held at Cannifton United Church under the following staff of officers: Dean, the Rev. E. W. Madden. Cannifton; registrar, Edna Kolver, Belleville; librarian, Roslyn Robinson, Belleville; worship, the Rev. F. A. Gilbert, B.A., Foxboro; recreation, Loretta McDougall, Belleville; instructors, Grace Kenny, Belleville; the Rev. M. G. Clarke, M.A., of Thomasburg; the Rev. O. E. Wagar, B.A., of Belleville. The total number of students enrolled was 44, making with the staff, 52.

The courses included: "Planning for Children in the Church School", "Young People's Work in the Local Church", and "Teaching as Jesus Taught" ,with possible credits obtainable to the number of 16, based on regularity of attendance; the devotion and efforts of those receiving certificates; the worshipful atmosphere with which each session opened; the leadership given by each instructor in each period; the fellowship and fun enjoyed in each recreation period, as well as the hospitality and dedication service of the closing night.

The dean covets for a greater number of youth, the rich reward that comes only by fully meeting the requirements for credit. All rewards were given according to the investments made.

Those students successful in children's work—Mrs. Cornish and Mrs. Charlton, of Tabernacle Church, Belleville; Mrs. Morley Clarke and Ruby Bateman, of Thomasburg United Church; Lois Bradshaw, of Front Road United Church; Clifford Beech, of Centre United Church, and Maxine Emburg, of Bethany United Church.

Those completing the course of Young People's work: Rhea McCullough and Eleanor Henderson, Foxboro United Church; Leroy Sills, and Dick Martin, of Bethany United Church, and Mrs. Gerald Brenton, Cannifton, United Church.

Those successful in the Basic Course: Mrs. D. C. Brenton, of Cannifton United Church; Donald Richardson, of Thomasburg United Church; Bernard Wadsworth of Centre Street United Church and E. G. Clarke, of Foxboro United Church.

In the open forum, on the closing night, expressions of gratitude were tendered to the members of the staff for services rendered and to the officials of Cannifton United Church for the use of their church school room.

The financial report included: receipts, (fees), $40.50; expenses: text books, $21.35; mileage, $14.50; dean's expenses $4.35; making a total of $40.50.

R.D. Mrs. M. Pewtress Initiates 40 Members Into B.P.W. Club

An impressive inaugural ceremony of the newly formed Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was held in the Latimer's Town Room on Thursday evening last, when some forty members were initiated into the club.

The initiation ceremony was presided over by Mrs. M. Pewtress, regional director of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women from Cobourg. She was ably assisted by Mrs. Margaret Jones, vice president of the Cobourg Club and niece of Miss Joy Nichols, who presented each member with a long stemmed daffodil and club brochure.

During the dinner, the members were delightfully entertained by Miss Helen Cook, who sang "It's Morning", accompanied by Mrs. R. Stephens, a guest from the Cobourg club.

After dinner, Mrs. Eva Doolittle, corresponding secretary, read messages which had been received from other club's across Canada, welcoming the Belleville Club into the Federation, and offering their sincere congratulations and wishes for success. Mrs. R. Stephens then proffered personally the good wishes of the Cobourg club.

The highlight of the evening was an address by Mrs. Pewtress, who spoke of the history of business and professional women's clubs and gave a fine interpretation of the club emblem.

'Merry Makers Sponsor Social Evening and Dance

At Huff's Island school last Wednesday, the Merry Makers' Club sponsored an enjoyable social evening and dance.

The evening commenced with the singing of Irish songs. A comedy skit was put on by Helen Myatt, Marion Conklin, William Nightingale, and last but by no means least by Ken Motley, who stole the show.

Dancing was enjoyed by all to the music of Prince Edward Old Timers. Prizes were won as follows:

Spot dance: ladies, Elenor Sprague; men's, Clare Lloyd. Married Couples, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Motley; Lucky Shamrock, Ladies, Miss Jean Corfield; men's, Mr. Doxtator; Teen Age Dance, ladies, Betty Barber; men's, Pete Bourgeau; Birthday Dance, ladies Miss Mildred Hair; men's, Mr. Harold Motley; Elimination dance ladies, Elenor Sprague; men's, Hugh Joyce; Paul Dance, ladies, Mrs. Clarke; men's Mr. Leonard Adams; Door Prizes, Jean Barber; Ralph Sharpe, Betty Barber, and Gordon Adams.

A basket of food was donated by Mrs. Vera DeMille, who, with the help of Miss Patsy DeMille, and Miss Norine Bladee, sold $37.50 of tickets. Mr. Hugh Joyce won the delicious looking basket.

Thanks are extended from the girls of the Merry Maker's Club to all who contributed prizes; to Mr. and Mrs. Elwood DeMille, and to the ladies of the community who assisted with refreshments.

Collection amounted to $27.50.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?
By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

The Atlantic City restaurant owner wasn't doing right by his cheese cake when he kept it locked up in his safe which was only opened for special customers. He should have known that the rich satiny cheese cake made from cream cheese should be ice cold to be at its best.

Cheese cake is soft, cheese, sweetened, enriched with cream and baked firm with eggs.

It may be cottage cheese or cream cheese—the latter is smoother and richer. It may be baked on regular pie crust, or baked without any bottom crust at all.

In making cheese cake, be sure your oven can be regulated to a slow steady 300 degrees. When the cheese cake is finished baking, it is important that it remain in the warm oven with the heat turned off for 1 hour. This will keep it from falling and make it firm enough to slice.

The beating is easier if the cream cheese is at room temperature before mixing the cake. It should be baked in a spring form mold. This is the kind of pan from which the sides can be removed so that the cake can be lifted out whole.

Cheese Cake

Using a rolling pin crush enough zwieback to make 3-4 cup crumbs. Crumbs should be fine enough to be sifted through a wire strainer. In a mixing bowl combine the crumbs with 2 tablespoons butter or vegetable fat and 3 tablespoons sugar. Press crumbs on the bottom of an 8-inch spring form mold.

Preheat oven at 300 degrees.

In a mixing bowl work 1 pound of cream cheese until it is soft. Gradually add 2-3 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Mix well until all ingredients are well blended.

Add 4 egg yolks and 1 teaspoon vanilla, continuing to beat until light and fluffy. Add 1 cup of light or heavy cream gradually, beating until smooth.

Beat 4 egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Pour batter into pan. Bake in a slow oven for 1 hour or until a silver knife inserted in centre comes out clean. Turn off gas flame and let cake remain on oven shelf for 1 hour.

Full Gospel Tabernacle Presents Gifts to Departing Pastors

Frankford — Thursday evening last was the occasion of a special event for the members of the Full Gospel Tabernacle as they all united in a fellowship supper in the Sunday School auditorium with their pastors, who leave this week for their new duties at Parry Sound.

At the head table with the pastors, were the Board of Deacons, and their wives: Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grant and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dafoe and the Sunday School teachers.

After the singing of Grace, a bountiful repast was enjoyed by all. Following this, an address was read by Chairman, Mac Wilson, to the pastors, and gifts were presented to them, and their daughter, Betty Ann, by Mrs. Austin Waters. Mrs. Len Reilly and Mrs. Gordon Orr, and little Myrtle Gay.

Boudoir lamps were presented to Mrs. Goffin; a record player, an electric toe kettle and waffle iron to Rev. and Mrs. McElhoes; and boudoir lamps to Betty Ann.

Words of appreciation were expressed by the pastors to the Frankford assembly. Rev. McElhoes called upon Mr. T. Kravcenk, Miss Marjorie Forbes and Miss Lorraine Arnott to give their testimony.

A musical program followed, consisting of vocal duet, "God be With You Till We Meet Again", by Doreen Orr and Lorraine Arnott; a vocal solo: "Friendship with Jesus", by Barbara Currie; a vocal duet "Jesus Alone", by Carl and Anne Andrews; vocal solo, "At the End of the Road" by Rex Solmes.

Mr. Clifford Elliott closed a most enjoyable evening with prayer.

Girl Guide Activities

Mrs. Gordon C. Conant, Provincial Girl Guide Commissioner, will visit Quinte Arena on Monday, April 3rd. A meeting will be held in St. Andrew's Church Hall at 8 o'clock. The Commissioners, Guiders and Local association members of Quinte Area will be present at this meeting All are looking forward to having Mrs. Conant with us and know her message will be of great interest. She will speak on the Provincial story.

Plans are completed with regards to "Cookie Day", which will be held on April 8. Belleville has been divided in to 10 districts and starting at 9.00 a.m. every house will be contacted by either a Brownie or a Guide, in full uniform or some recognizable part thereof. It is hoped the fr'il co-operation of everyone will be given.

1st Belleville Brownies —There have been two special occasions for the Brownies of the 1st Belleville, during the last few weeks. The first was their Candlelight ceremony on February 21st. They were happy to have with them on that day, Grey Owl, Mrs. Holcombe, who told them the exciting and lovely story of the Greenfell Mission. She stressed the great need of this Mission for warm, worn clothing, and the Brownies have since been very busy bringing along for that purpose, woollies, toys and books for the fisher folk, and sick children of Labrador.

A Christmas Bale containing it, with the accent on dressed dolls, clothing and books, is the yearly project for all the Belleville Brownies, and already several mothers of the 1st Pack have dressed dolls, some with knitted garments, some with sewn clothes and all are optimistic that a big family of dolls will be ready to send for Christmas 1950 to the sick children of the Grenfell Hospital.

The Candlelight service which followed this story was most memorable to all present. All the Brownies of the Pack took part in the almost unrehearsed Candlelight service, and the sincerity of their responses was matched only by the simplicity and fervency of the service itself. "I am the Brownie Spirit, glad, helpful, kind. I shine that Brownie every where may be the kind of people God wants them to be" - - - and later, "We would light our candles from the Brownie Spirit that we may be a shining link in the chain of Brownies around the world" - - - Parents and Brownies were inspired by that service.

Two weeks later, on March 14, Commissioner Mrs. J. Watson came to officiate at the third enrolment of the Pack this year. How the Brownies love to have their Commissioner with them, and it was a joy to her as to many others there, to watch their keen faces as they repeated their Promise and vows with such enthusiasm and sincerity.

The Tweenies enrolled were Carol Donnan, Marilyn Bateman, Cheryl Eaton, Wendy Frink, Sandra Graves, Gloriana Lipes, Connie Stickle and Diane Trill. The Commissioner's telling of the Brownie story after the ceremony was greatly enjoyed by everyone.

The Brownies of the 1st Belleville Pack are working desperately to complete badges and tests. In fact all are trying to race the disappearance of the snow, for all want to get as much work behind them as possible before those lovely Spring days arrive, so that the reawakening of Nature may be shared.

RAWDON

River Valley W.I. Sponsors Enjoyable Euchre Party

Rawdon—River Valley Women's Institute sponsored another euchre party in the Legion Hall on Friday evening last. Sixteen tables were in play with guests from Carmel and Wellman's as well as from town. The prizes were donated by Mrs. Alex Bush, and were awarded as follows—Ladies, Mrs. Henry Tullock, 75 points; Low, Mrs. Jennie Donohoe, 27 points; men's Mr. McDonald, Sr., 71 points; men's low, Douglas Kane, 27 points.

Institute members served refreshments. The card party conveners, Mrs. Jack Donohoe and Mrs. Rose Bush, supervised the party.

Another card party will be held in March at the Legion Hall with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Heasman, as host and hostess.

2ND THURLOW

Mr., Mrs. K. Duesbury Honored by 100 Friends, Neighbors

2nd Thurlow—Over 100 friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell on Friday night in honor of their daughter Freda's recent marriage to Mr. Ken Duesbury of Herchimer Avenue and presented them with a miscellaneous shower.

Mr. Douglas Atkins acted as chairman for the following program which was greatly enjoyed: piano and cornet solo by Mr. and Mrs. Manley Mitchell; little Marlene Mitchell sang three songs which were well rendered; a quartet by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Grills, Mrs. Robert Atkins and Mr. Manley Mitchell entitled—"Whispering Hope" accompanied on the piano by Mrs. M. Mitchell.

By request Messrs. Arnold and Fred Mitchell sang, "All by Yourself in the Moonlight"; a guitar solo, Mrs. Bruce Rorit and a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Grills accompanied on the piano was given by Mrs. S. Grills.

An appropriate address was read by Mrs. Robt. Atkins signed on behalf of the community by Miss Dorothy Thompson. Mrs. Cecil Grills and Mrs. Robert Atkins, in which best wishes for a happy married life were expressed.

After unwrapping the many useful and lovely gifts, Freda and Ken graciously thanked the givers. All sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows", followed by refreshments and a social time.

NORTHPORT

Women's Auxiliary Sponsors Fine Supper and Program

Northport— A splendid crowd attended the supper, in Northport on Tuesday evening, sponsored by the W.A. at which a delicious supper was served followed by a splendid program.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

When he saw the last person leave the hangars, the man concealed near the fence grinned in elation.

"Perfect!" he breathed. "The whole place deserted!"

He sped across the opening and stopped at the first hangar. There to be doubly sure, he paused and waited a moment. He loafed in the hangar and called out. Nobody came, nobody answered. He went to the big ship.

He had expected the compartment used by the chief bomber to be locked, but to his delight he didn't have to use his tools here. One strong pull threw a latch and opened the tiny cabin door. With his pocket flashlight, then, he surveyed the scene.

"Ah-h-h-h!" he breathed in exultation.

There before him was precisely what he wanted and meant to have.

There, in a housing no bigger than a small overnight bag, was the one "secret" which nations were willing to sacrifice lives and fortunes to own. There was America's most valuable military secret!

He was kneeling to inspect the instrument when he suddenly heard a noise of running feet nearby.

"Two in each hangar!" a voice shouted.

The man crouched, gun in each hand, ready to kill. He hardly dared breathe while a form dashed into the hangar and took five extinguishers from the walls, but 60 seconds later he knew he was alone again. He reholstered his pistols and resumed his task.

He knew the bomb sight was sealed in metal so that he could not feasibly see its inner workings now. But that did not interest him. He wouldn't have understood them anyway, for he was not that technical. But he did know enough to appreciate the importance of them, and of course any sealed metal housing could be wrenched later and the parts laid bare for minute scientific analysis. His cue, he told himself with satisfaction, simply was to take the whole thing. He set to work.

First a metal arm as big as his middle finger was found welded to the side frame. He tried his powerful snippers on that and made little impression. But the hacksaw dug in at once. He swung the short blade back and forth rapidly, glancing up and out the window often. Nothing interrupted him. In hardly 10 minutes the metal arm was sawed in two.

Support from the bottom, was, as he had already observed when inspecting the airplanes here, thinner pieces of strap metal, probably aluminum or alloy. He dug his crowbar under one rivet and pried. It broke loose at once. A second and a third support came free with equal ease. He was elated, in fact, at the ease of the whole operation. Shoutings and cracklings of fire, muffled by distance and the hangar walls, told him that he still had time.

With a short steel tape under his flashlight beam, then, he measured exactly every detail of the bomb sight's installation. The distance from the compartment. The height of the sight from the floor. The size of the opening in the floor itself. The distance of the chief bombardier's seat from the base of the sight and from the eye piece. The height of the compartment ceiling. Everything he could see to measure. These figures he put down with pencil on a note pad.

Then without further ado he took his tools and the precious bomb sight and backed out of the compartment. The load was heavier than he anticipated, for the thing was of metal, but even so it could be carried in one hand. He sat everything on the cement floor, went back in a moment and wiped all the interior with an oiled rag from his pocket to leave no fingerprints.

Then he gathered his things again and calmly departed. Nobody else was around the hangars yet nor would likely be soon, for the Bailey house now was roaring and flashing so that he had to duck down in the low shadows to avoid possibility of being seen.

Even as he fled, though, he looked at the burning house with satisfaction. The woman who came with him had done her job well.

Ronnie Bailey darted across the smoke-hazed living room and opened the door leading to the big hall.

In an instant she was enveloped in a black cloud. The force of it was audible, like some gas giant suddenly released from captivity.

The six other girls near Wesley broke then in a literal stampede. One grabbed Wes himself, hugging him from the side and clawing wildly at his shoulder like a drowning person. Two others were sobbing weird little hysterical noises even as they fled and one girl jumped, insanely, into a chair. The smoke-filled hallway, licking now with increasing tongues of flame seemed to hold Wesley spellbound.

Ronnie had just stepped back to safety when Wes cried out.

"Mr. Bailey—where is he? Your father?"

Ronnie was coughing but she pointed through the smoke and shrieked back. "Upstairs! . . . There!"

She might well have shouted to Mr. Bailey in person, for his voice answered. In the crackling and roaring now he seemed very far off.

"Ronnie!" he was crying in desperation. "Ronica, Ronica. Get out! Everything is burning! It's all around me and—" He broke off in a sudden fit of coughing and gasping.

Wesley had run to the dining room door, opened it and closed it. He ran now to a second door at the end of the big living room opened it a crack and slammed it shut, too.

"Smoke and flame everywhere!" he shouted. "The hallway is cut off! Mr. Bailey!"

They heard no answer. Ronnie ran to the hallway door again anyway and would have plunged into the black gases there but for Wesley. He jerked her back.

"It will kill you, Ronnie!" he warned. "We must — I — here! Here!"

He had glanced quickly around Stretched diagonally and beautifully on the rustic wall of this living room was a Mexican serape, a woollen fabric six feet long and a yard wide, knit by hand in gorgeous stripes and patterns. In one arm motion he jerked it down.

On a table a vase held two dozen roses, a gift to Ronnie from Andre Girardeau, but Wesley didn't know that. Wes threw them out, took the vase and poured water over the crumbled serape. In another instant he had put the damp cloth around his head and disappeared in the hall blackness.

He heard more shoutings. He had a vague impression of the fleeting girls, but he knew these new noises were the voices of men. He could hear his own shoes pounding up the wooden stairs, and when he felt he should be at the top he yelled again, "Mr. Bailey!"

All under his improvised hood had become exhausted, especially when he opened a crack to look out he could see nothing, and he dared not inhale. But he shouted once more "Mr. Bailey!"

He still got no answer. The floating death was tangible now. He could literally feel the soot as well as the hot gases, and up here the flames roared as if blown to a fury by some huge forge. This, his orderly mind knew, was due to a normal suction up the insides of hollow interior walls and up the well of the stairway itself. He knew that the stairs had been burning underneath because flames had touched his feet and ankles.

A man can hold his breath a minute or more in emergency. Wesley York had powerful lungs from long practice in swimming. Opening his eyes brought pain, no visible help.

Seven Ministers Of 1949-50 Govt. Are Missing

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 30—(CP)—Seven ministers of the 1945-50 Labor government, one of cabinet rank, are missing from the administration formed by Prime Minister Attlee after the Feb. 23 general election.

Of these, six were defeated at the polls. The other, Lewis Silkin, was not adopted as a candidate and has been replaced as minister of Town and Country Planning by Hugh Dalton.

The only member who lost his seat at the election and retained his ministerial post is Sir Frank Soskice, who earns £7,000 ($21,700 a year as solicitor-general.

He is contesting the April 5 by-election in the Newspend Division of Sheffield. Col. Harry Morris resigned to provide an opening for Sir Frank.

The defeated cabinet minister, Arthur Creech Jones, was colonial secretary throughout most of the last government. Unseated at Shipley by 81 votes, he is holidaying on the continent and has not announced his future plans.

The new colonial secretary is James Griffith, former insurance minister.

Junior Ministers Missing

Among the missing junior ministers is Christopher Mayhew, 34-year-old former under-secretary at the foreign office. Mayhew created a stir at the United Nations last spring with a speech on Britain's economic recovery which some critics deemed over-optimistic.

Now he hopes to become a playwright. "I am dedicating a few months," he said, "to proving that I cannot write a play."

David Rees-Williams, who lost his job as colonial under-secretary, practised law at Cardiff before the war. He has not decided whether to resume the practice or turn to journalism.

Evelyn King, former under-secretary to Silkin at the Town Planning Ministry, may return to his pre-government job as a schoolmaster.

The other two junior ministers-in-exile are Thomas Steele, formerly with the insurance ministry, who may go back to his old job at railway stationmaster, and L. J. Edwards, who has taken an advisory job with the post office engineering union. Edwards left the union in 1947 to become parliamentary secretary to the board of trade.

Mackenzie's Column
Japanese Peace Treaty Becomes Pressing Issue

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The question of what is the wise course to pursue in the matter of framing a peace treaty for Japan is becoming a pressing issue in the major allied chancelleries.

It's nearly five years now since Japan surrendered and started to work out her destiny under American military occupation. That's a long time to go without the signing of a formal pact.

Britain, for one, feels that the conclusion of a treaty is urgently needed. With this the United States department agrees. However, that view isn't unanimous in Washington, for there is a school of thought among military officials who feel that the treaty should be deferred and that the present American control over Japan should be prolonged indefinitely.

There is the usual difference of opinion between Russia and the Western Allies on the treaty. Moscow insists that the big powers have a veto power over all the treaty terms—a proposal to which the rest object.

That in brief is the way the matter stands at the moment, with indications that some action be taken shortly. As far as the Russian position is concerned, John Hightower, AP diplomatic expert in Washington, reports that the trend of thought in the American capital is for the Western powers to go ahead on their own if Russia insists on unacceptable conditions.

Proponents of an early pact maintain that military occupations finally lose their effect, and that the United States can't continue indefinitely to run Japan's affairs for her successfully.

This school of thought argues the U.S. would lose the goodwill of the Japanese by long drawn out continuation of close supervision. Of course, nobody proposes the complete withdrawal of military forces.

In the background looms the shadow of an ambitious Russia which is out to communize the world. There is no love lost between Japan and Moscow, for they are old and bitter enemies.

Still, there can be no doubt that the Soviet Union ultimately will do everything in her power to gain domination of Japan.

This Red threat likely is in the minds of those who advocate a continuation of present allied military control of Japan.

Ministers of Atlantic Pact Powers Plan Meet to Chart West's Next Step in Cold War

London, March 29—(AP)—The foreign ministers of the 12 Atlantic Pact countries will meet in London May 8 to chart new western moves in the cold war and present Russia with a greater, unified strength.

Foreign Secretary Bevin, announcing the date of the meeting Tuesday night, said he foresaw a long peace if the Atlantic Alliance grew firmer and the eastern world could be held as its ally.

"I think the day is not far distant," said Bevin, "when the growth of this power . . . will create a situation where there will be no alternative but to negotiate, to settle once and for all this problem that has cursed the world for so long."

His words were taken to mean he thought the Soviet Union, facing the combined western strength, would have no alternative but to negotiate with the west on problems dividing the world.

Along with the meeting of the 12 foreign ministers, Bevin announced that he, Secretary of State Dean Acheson of the United States and France's foreign minister, Robert Schuman, would hold a separate big three conference.

Thus, the Atlantic Pact machine begins to roll into high gear. Bevin told the House of Commons there was a growing desire among the allied powers to deal with economic and political problems as well as with mutual defence.

Bevin's disclosures came in the first full-dress parliamentary debate on foreign policy to be held since the Labor government was re-elected in February.

Both he and his major opponent Conservative leader Winston Churchill, made strong declarations that they did not believe war was either imminent or inevitable.

Churchill warned, however, that time was on the side of Russia and urged Britain to work for an understanding with the Soviet Union.

"Western civilization is a thing that must be saved," Bevin said. "The only way to do it is to hold not merely the western world—that is the key to its salvation—but the eastern world as well. To hold the two together to develop the great power and potential of the west.

"If that grows in combination, I visualize a long peace."

Labor Government Aiming For Vote-of-Confidence

London, March 30 — (AP) — The Labor government, smarting under a sleeper defeat in the House of Commons on a minor issue, was reported today aiming for a confidence vote to patch up the hole in its prestige.

The Conservatives pulled a surprise victory in Commons Wednesday night in a vote on a parliamentary technicality. The vote was on whether to adjourn, not an issue upon which the government might fall. The manoeuvre, however, gave Labor a taste of the battle in store for them at every turn.

Prime Minister Attlee's cabinet met for more than two hours this morning in a post mortem on the 283-257 vote.

A government informant reported the cabinet agreed to look on the defeat as a technical one. To assure the public of the defeat, the government is expected to ask for a new vote of confidence, possible in a week or 10 days. Defeat on a confidence vote would require the government to resign.

Labor's majority in the Commons has been cut to only three seats. The government in all likelihood would resign if defeated on any major policy issue.

The Tory needle struck the Commons by surprise. A lot of members were absent, some without explanation. As a drab debate on Labor's handling of gasoline and coal supplies droned to a close, Tory members and some of their Liberal allies began filtering into Commons in strength, some of them dressed in evening wear.

They obviously had been tipped off.

Then, without warning, they forced through the technical motion to adjourn the night's session and won by a vote of 283 to 257.

Attlee's party whips immediately began to investigate the reason for the heavy absenteeism among their members.

The Labor party was 55 under strength. Some members were at political meetings, others had private engagements.

It was a blow to the government's prestige. And it presaged to all Labor members the harassing prospects of having to be constantly on hand for minor as well as major votes to avoid another such slap. Government sources said it would be intolerable for Labor to experience a series of defeats even on small issues.

Bank Manager Slugged, Forced To Open Safe

Ste. Martine, Que., March 30 (CP) — Three masked bandits spent nearly an hour in a bank branch here Wednesday night, tying up three women and waiting for the manager to return from an evening church service.

When manager Rosaire Couillard returned home with his wife he was hit five times over the head with the butt of a gun and then was forced to give the combination of the bank safe which the gunmen cleaned of more than $8,000.

Provincial Police said the armed trio forced their way into the home of Mr. Couillard above the branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale here and waited for him.

While waiting, they used rope and strips of bedsheets to tie up three of Couillard's four daughters—Anne, Cline and Micheline—and his 86-year-old mother.

Lucie, his fourth daughter, asked the bandits not to tie her up because of a heart condition.

The men agreed, police said, telling the girl they knew she could open the bank safe. She was ordered to go downstairs with two of the gunmen.

When Mrs. Couillard arrived about 8:30 p.m., he was slugged by the men who then threw a wet towel in his face. Mrs. Couillard was left unharmed.

After he revived, they told Couillard to give his daughter the safe combination and then ordered her to open the safe.

Heroism Award Given Canadian By U.S. Society

Akron, O., March 30 — (AP)— A Canadian hero of the Noronic disaster was honored here Wednesday night as recipient of the Paul and Florence B. Litchfield special award of merit.

It was the first time that the heroism award, for employees of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, went to an employee outside the United States.

Don Williamson of the company's Toronto plant, risked his life several times to help rescue 10 of the burning steamship's passengers last September

Witnesses said that Williamson, on his way home from work at the testing laboratory, heard the first whistle, ran to the dock and plunged into the water to aid in rescue work.

Grand R. Slowly Recedes From Flood Level

Brantford, March 30 — (CP)— Down from its peak level during Wednesday's flood, the Grand River continued to recede slowly today, although a wide area still remained inundated in the Birkett's Lane area on the southerly outskirts of the city.

The highest level recorded Wednesday above the city dam was eight feet and six inches above normal. This morning it had dropped to five fget.

Elsewhere along the Grand and its tributaries, reports today told of receding waters after sudden overflows Tuesday night.

Dry and sunny weather today and a forecast of its continuance tomorrow, indicated that continued lowering of river levels might be expected.

Guelph — (CP) — With damage estimated at several thousands of dollars, the heaviest spring flood to hit Guelph area in many years had passed the danger point today.

Red Troops Hold Three Towns On Hainan Island

Hong Kong March 30 (Reuters) —Communist troops are holding three towns about 50 miles southwest of Moukong on Hainan Island, one of the last strongholds of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese Nationalist forces, according to reports reaching here today from Formosa.

Nationalist air headquarters said Wednesday night that 30 planes had bombed communist troops at Yupao, Changtsuehho and Chiao Tushi, on Hainan, which lies in the Gulf of Tongking off the South China coast.

Nationalists first admitted March 8 that communists had gained a foothold on the island, to which many Nationalist troops escaped as communist armies drove southwards on the mainland.

Earlier this week a Nationalist communique claimed to have smashed a second communist attempt to land on the island "wiping out" 2,000 of Gen. Pi-Ao's troops in a nine-hour battle.

C.N.R. Expects Operating Income Up $16,000,000

Ottawa, March 30 — (CP) — The Canadian National Railways expects to boost its operating revenues this year about $16,000,000 above the $500,000,000 earned in 1949.

Donald Gordon, president of the government-owned line, told the Commons railway committee Wednesday that the system was budgeting for an estimated net revenue increase of $34,264,000 this year, compared with $22,221,-000 a year ago.

Operating expenses are expected to total about $462,500,000 compared with $478,500,000 last year.

But he gave a blunt warning that should all demands for wage increases now before the company be met, it would result in an unprecedented budgetary deficit of $90,000,000 for the world's largest rail system.

On the basis of present wage rates, Mr. Gordon forecast a budgetary deficit of $32,000,000— about $10,000,000 less than last year.

However, if the system agreed to all wage demands now being negotiated with some 30 labor organizations in Canada and the United States, the company would face an additional expenditure of some $58,000,000.

Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) criticized the C.N.R. budget for a reference to the effect that the budget did not contain provisions for increased wages. It would appear to indicate that the C.N.R. was not going to grant wage boosts.

Told by Transport Minister Chevrier and Mr. Gordon that the budget indicated no such thing, Mr. Gillis retorted that the reference should have been left out. It gave the "wrong impression."

Mr. Gordon also said:

1. The heavy payments on public and government debts are expected to remain about the same level as last year — $24,000,000 for public debt and $21,600,000 on government loans.

2 The C.N.R. expects to spend about $36,000,000 for new equipment this year, and another $30,-000,000 to maintain and modernize equipment and assets.

SPECIAL ROOM FOR POPPA

Toronto, March 30 —(CP)— A special room is being set aside for poppa in the new maternity ward of St. Michael's Hospital. It is sufficiently remote from the scene of action — labor and delivery rooms — to leave him undisturbed and is equipped with a telephone so he can get the news to friends without delay.

LOSES EYE THROUGH HOCKEY

Cobourg, March 30 — (CP) — Dick Hart, 24-year-old Cobourg hockey player, who received an eye injury Tuesday night while playing at Port Hope, underwent an operation in hospital today for removal of the eye. Hart was accidentally struck in the eye by a stick.

Says Flying Saucer Sounds Like Diesel

Owen Sound, March 30 (CP)— Here's a report about a flying saucer that "sounded like a diesel engine."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blakey of nearby Wareham district in Osprey township said today that early March 26 they watched a strange object in the sky for half an hour.

Mrs. Blakey described the sight in the northwestern sky as "a sheet of light and above it a disk of light as large as the moon." She said the object made a noise louder than a truck and similar to that of a diesel engine.

Lively Scenes in House Expected As Sir Herbert Williams Returns

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 30 — (CP) — Look for some lively scenes in the House of Commons now that high-spirited, hard hitting Sir Herbert Williams has won his way back to Westminster for the third time.

Once called the "Prince of Reactionaries" as a die-hard by Lady Astor, Sir Herbert has returned to Parliament at 63, ready to add to the 4,000 speeches he has made in 18 years as an M.P.

Sir Herbert first entered the House in 1924, lost in 1929, came back in 1932 and stayed there until the Labor landslide of 1945. In the general election Feb. 23, he was returned for Croydon East with a majority of 5,000 votes.

That was his 10th election. He believes only two men in Britain — Winston Churchill and Earl Winterton, father of the House — can better that mark.

Hard on Hecklers

Tall, broad-shouldered Sir Herbert in his younger days made it a point of honor personally to eject hecklers from meetings he addressed. Once he put two men out at one meeting, and neither tried to come back.

Always a staunch Conservative, Sir Herbert in 1943 called the independent Times a "threepenny edition" of the communist Daily Worker because it supported the Beveridge report on social security.

In the same period, he characterized the BBC as an "entirely fascist institution," opposed the wartime call-up of women and had some harsh things to say about socialists and communists.

The News Chronicle, Liberal, called him "Prince of Reactionaries." Lady Astor, since retired from politics, wheeled on him in a debate and pronounced him "one of the worst die-hards the world has ever known."

Highly Vulnerable

Sir Herbert sums up this political career in an autobiography, "Politics Are Fun and Gay," which includes an amusing account of his introduction to contract bridge. He sat down as a fourth for what he thought was a game of auction with three multi-millionaires — Lord Beaverbrook, movie magnate Joseph Schenck and the late Lord Melchett, a liberal and a free trader.

They played for high stakes, Sir Herbert confessed himself baffled by the bidding, but won $8. (about 75 cents at the present rate of exchange).

Later, it came out that they had been playing contract.

"That was a great stimulus to me," Sir Herbert said in a recent Canadian Press interview. "I soon learned to play contract."

Sir Herbert visited every province in Canada in 1928 as a member of an Empire delegation.

UNDER CABIN ARREST

Copenhagen, March 30 — (AP) —Danish police placed Soviet engineer Valentine Gubitchev under virtual cabin arrest today during his brief stay here.

Gubitchev, given the chance of leaving the United States after his conviction on espionage charges, was locked in his cabin aboard the Polish liner Batory to prevent anyone meeting him when the vessel docked today.

The Batory was due to stay in Copenhagen only a few hours. The ship is scheduled to arrive in Gdynia, Poland, tomorrow morning.

Lewis Wolfe Granted New Lease on Life

New York, March 30 — (AP)— Lewis Wolfe, the convicted wife killer, today had a new, if temporary, lease on life.

Judge Louis Goldstein granted the district-attorney's office until May 1 to answer an order showing cause why the 42-year-old ex-demned man should not be granted a new trial.

Wolfe, wealthy Montreal conductor, is in a death cell in Sing Sing prison waiting to die by the week of April 23 for slaying his Viennese actress wife in 1943 with a steel-tipped shoe after she said she had been unfaithful to him.

Wolfe was adjudged insane and committed to a state hospital after he was found guilty in 1944. Released earlier this month, he was sentenced to die by Judge Goldstein after two court-appointed psychiatrists found him sane.

NOSE-PRINT DOGS

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Dogs will be nose-printed if the Canadian Kennel Club has its way. They decided Wednesday night that the print of a dog's nose as a means of identification is superior to tattooing methods.

SINCLAIR

Calls For Changes

Resources Minister Winters tabled a report on the National Film Board that called for extensive changes in its organization and administration. Mr. Winters disclosed that screening of board employees has led to three "separation" by employees whose trustworthiness could not be guaranteed.

The final stage of the rentals debate brought speeches from Mr. Drew, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, and others. Both leaders suggested that the rental regulations should be put into a single, clearly-stated statute.

Mr. Drew said this would clearly define the rights of both landlords and tenants and eliminate some of the "loose" wartime control powers the government was retaining.

Urges Action

Mr. Coldwell said the government should take action in the case of 50 Ottawa families being removed from emergency shelters so a gasoline company could erect a parking lot.

Mr. Sinclair said the bill was the last lap of eight years of controls arising from the war. In perspective, the government's orderly decontrol had worked out factorily. Too little attention had been paid to the job done on decontrol compared to the subsidies for the success of wartime controls.

From Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) came the contention that "very sweeping" powers still are unnecessary conferred on the government to investigate the private records and activities of any person or corporation in Canada.

Powers Necessary

If the government intended only to continue rent control, there was no need for such powers.

Mr. Sinclair said that if those powers were eliminated the board would have no authority to pay certain claims and settlements still hanging over from the period when price controls generally were in effect. The board had to investigate those companies which were making the claims.

The powers, he went on, were necessary to clean up "odds and ends" remaining from war and post-war control.

Mr. Fleming said half or more of the powers being continued were unnecessary for that sort of work.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Toronto Greenwood), referred "the studied contempt" of the cabinet for legal arguments put forward by Mr. Drew and Mrs. Fleming.

It was the sort of indifference that would not have been contemplated in the last parliament with its slim majority.

It was the sort of pattern that the house had been getting used to since the last election. It apparently would have to go on being used to it.

The fisheries debate produced an amendment by the C.C.F. that would provide that floor prices should not go below the cost-price relationship existing in the period 1944-48. It was defeated without a standing vote.

REORGANIZATION

He had informed government departments March 21 that the board was in a position to undertake work of a secret nature. While the screening were going on, the board was not allowed to do any secret work for government departments.

Given Consideration

As to recommendations in the report, Mr. Winters said he had given preliminary consideration to them.

Under the present setup, Mr. Winters serves as chairman of the National Film Board and Revenue Minister McCallin is a member. The other members are Dr. George Boulanger of the Agriculture Department, M. M. Maclean of the Labor Department, J. A. MacNeill, law clerk of the Senate, Donald Cameron of the University of Alberta, J. A. Cunningham of New Glasgow, N.S., and Jean Charles Falardeau, Laval University in Quebec.

W. A. Irwin is film commissioner and Alan Field is secretary to the board.

In a recommendation that would involve an amendment to the National Film Board Act, the report suggested that the board consist of the Film Commissioner as chairman, five representatives of the public chosen to represent the five main regions of Canada and three senior civil servants.

Pending adoption of such a change, the report suggested an interim organization be established under eight senior officials of the board. It was felt that it should be possible to maintain control of the board by parliament without direct supervision of cabinet ministers. The report added:

"We question the propriety of a minister acting as an equal member of the board and thus being placed in a position where he can be overruled by other members."

Accounts Could be Cut

On the accounting side, the report said that 5,000 individual accounts now kept by the board could be cut by not less than 75 per cent without there being any loss over the control of expenditures.

The board should be allowed to operate its accounts on an accrual rather than on a yearly basis. It should make a larger Working capital. It should do its own accounting instead of having it done by the controller of the Treasury.

As to working capital, it was recommended that the board be given a permanent sum of $900,000. It now has a capital of about $600,000, but must turn back $300,000 by the end of each fiscal year.

The report suggested that this practice be discontinued. Given a working capital, the board could operate on a continual basis. Any surplus it had at the year-end could be turned into the treasury. Any deficit would be made up through a vote of Parliament.

Asks Govt. Attitude

Unemployment was raised by Eamon Park (CCF-Toronto Davercourt) who asked the government's attitude toward relief. Mr. Goodfellow said the provincial government gave relief only to "unemployables." He did not consider it was "passing the buck" to say that the responsibility for unemployed employables rested with the federal government.

Unemployment, the minister said, arose from economic conditions over which the federal government had greater control. The federal government also was able to raise revenue from sources not available to either the province or municipalities.

This brought from Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver (Grey South) the remark "surely a government with $21,000,000 in its vest pocket can do something to help these municipalities that are paying the full shot of unemployment relief."

Should Get Blankets

Miss MacPhail said the Ontario government accepted responsibility for unemployed only when they became mentally or physically ill, or committed some crime. She had seen Toronto newspaper photographs showing unemployed sleeping on bare floors. "Surely the least we could do, from now until the sun shines warmly again, is to get blankets for them," she said.

Planning Minister Griesinger presented his department's estimates and said a survey would be made of Ontario's housing plan. He said the work of Ontario House in London, England, was well worth the $150,000 included in the estimates, and he then agreed with C. H. Taylor (CCF-Timiskaming) that more industries should be located in Northern Ontario.

Amend Amusement Tax Bill

Before the dinner adjournment the Legislature gave second reading to the amendment on amusement tax, which exempts ordinary dances. Reducing from 20 to 15 percent the amusement tax on theatres and other places, the bill provides that revenue from the tax will be placed in the consolidated revenue fund instead of a special hospital-aid fund. In this grants to hospitals will show in the estimates to be voted on by the Legislature.

The amendment on dances removes the tax on dances where there is an orchestra and not more than one singer, provided that food or liquor is not served. Premier Frost explained that this does not prevent serving of sandwiches, hot dogs and the like at social benefits; the tax applies where patrons sit at a table and are served by a waiter.

Some Confusion

"There was a confusion, yea," said Chew. "Screams of patients calling for help were audible for some distance but there was no panic."

The blaze was the third at Belle-Vista in 14 months. A year ago last Jan. 21 a fire forced 10 patients to flee an older wing and last Jan. 29 a burning mattress was found in the basement of one of the buildings.

Five of the dead were identified by Chief White as: John Siggins, 70; A. Romano, 26; Barry Fass, 19; Nicholas Terinini, 26, and Irving Halpern, 42.

George Lewis, 45, an attendant off duty, said he was awakened at 10:45 p. m. by a night attendant.

Donning a bath robe, he said he grabbed the keys to the restraining straps worn by the patients in the "violent section." Lewis said 12 patients were in the section.

"I knew most of the patients by their first names," Lewis said. "This helped to keep them calm and avoided a lot of trouble for the firemen who carried them out."

Frank Buccino, 40, a Philadelphia auxiliary fireman, was driving nearby when he saw the flames about a block away.

"I ran into the building and up to the second floor," Buccino said. "I found I was in the women's ward. I led four women out. Some of them fought me violently and scratched my face."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Latest reports (this is being written Tuesday night), have it that Red Howe, 21-year-old starry winger of the Detroit Red Wings seriously injured in the Leafs-Red Wings City Cup playoff game in Detroit Tuesday night is "out of danger". Which is good news for all concerned.

The injury to Howe when he collided with the boards while checking Leaf Captain Ted Kennedy, is the first major one to befall the Eddie Shore-Jack Adams playoff in incident since the famous Eddie Shore-Ace Bailey affair in Boston years ago, although a number of less serious, but still serious injuries have been incurred by various players in the interim.

There are statements pro and on as to how the injury occurred. Detroiters, already inflamed by the heat of game battle insisted that Kennedy butt-ended the Detroit player. Members of the Leafs team, who were Johnnie-on-the-spot, state that Captain Teeder did not touch Howe before the Detroit player struck the boards.

From our spot, first row, seat one on the Philco (no charge for the plug, David), section, we were not in a position to see what happened. We heard the more-or-less excited Foster Hewitt version of the affair, and from what we gathered, the announcer who was located in the Olympia organ loft at one end of the rink could not get a clear view of the incident. To him, it appeared Howe raced across the ice in an effort to check Kennedy, a right-hander who was speeding down the left boards, partially inflamed him and speeding down the left boards, partially inflamed him and crashed head-on into the fence.

Whatever happened, the fact remains that Howe was critically hurt and there is a possibility he may never play hockey again. It is to be hoped that Howe's injuries are not that serious. Member of the Sportswriters and Broadcasters in the National Hockey League, a youngster who just reached voting age, he has blazed a meteoric trail in the Big Time and we trust, will not be cut short by the effects of the accident.

Yesterday, and the situation may have changed since this is being written, President Clarence Campbell, an eyewitness and Referee Gravel refused to make any comment. A significant aside to that is, if Kennedy deliberately butt-ended Howe, why did Gravel not give him a penalty? Pretended Howe, why did Gravel not give him a penalty? Presumably he did not see it. If it happened, But Gravel, one of the top-flight arbiters in the NHL is usually on top of the play in any game in which he officiates. And surely, a serious infraction of the rules such as is charged by Detroiters against Kennedy, could not have been missed by the official.

However, here's how Toronto sports writers at Detroit report the affair:

Red Burnett, Toronto Star: "From where he sat it looked as if Howe tried to crowd Ted Kennedy of the Leafs against the boards, missed his target when Kennedy came to a sudden stop, bounced off Kennedy into the boards and then into the ice."

Bob Hesketh, Toronto Telegram: "Kennedy . . . pulled up short and Howe went careening past him, off balance, face first into the boards."

Ted Reeve, Toronto Telegram: "Discount any talk of Howe's injury being caused by Kennedy. Some of the Detroit faithful were very patriotic when they yelled how would a right handed stickhandler going down the left boards give anyone a butt end? Unless he wanted to jolt the umpires out of someone in the rail seats

Al Nicklason, Toronto Globe and Mail: "It appeared to this observer that Kennedy, in support, had raised his elbow as a protective gesture and that Howe struck it before smashing into the boards . . . However, Kennedy repeated that as far as he knew no part of his body touched Howe."

Tonight in Kiwanis Centre the softball moguls gather for an important conference, and at Memorial Arena the baseball interests go into more or less solemn session. Both meetings are of interest to a large attendance of the respective faithful, and it is hoped something that will benefit both phases of sport will emerge from the different conferences. The meetings get under way at eight o'clock sharp. All interested in either sport will be cordially welcomed at the get-togethers.

Minneapolis, March 30 — (CP) — Kansas City Monarchs, third-place finishers in the regular United States Hockey League season, placed three players on the circuit's all-star team, while Omaha Knights, who ended up in first place, gained only one spot on the mythical squad.

Selected by sports writers and broadcasters in the six league cities, the voting was close for all positions. Three members of the first team won by one-point margins over their nearest rivals.

Most outstanding choices were young Marcel Pronovost, Omaha defenceman and winner of the league rookie award, and Kansas City's centre Ray Powell. Each received 23 points out of a possible 25.

Rangers Down as Darkhorse In Cup Playoffs After 3-1 Win Over Montreal Canadiens

By AL COLLETTI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 30 (CP) — New York's Rangers, an in-and-out team most of the season today loomed as the darkhorse in the Stanley Cup playoffs after their hard-earned 3-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens in the opener of the best-of-seven cup semi-final series.

It was an important game for the Rangers to win. For it put them one up on the Canadiens and placed New York in the driver's seat when the series shifts to Montreal Saturday night for the second game.

The third game will be played at Madison Square Garden Sunday night. After that the circus moves in and the Rangers will play the remainder of the series in Montreal.

Wednesday night a crowd of 13,602, watching the first playoff affair on Garden ice since April 4 1946, saw the Rangers come from behind to tie the game late in the first period and clinch it minute of the opening session when he scored from close-in during a power play while Pentti Shero and Frankie Eddolls, Ranger backliners, were in the penalty box.

Rangers Strike Back

The Rangers struck back at 14:40 of the period, Don Raleigh scoring while Bones Raeder and Glen Harmon were in the bastille.

Reardon was serving his fourth minor, when Mick Mickoski scored the winning goal at 11:18 of the middle period. Leon Rochefort, Flying Boxcar, completed the scoring in the closing seconds of play when he fired a 50-footer into an unguarded net after Durnan had been pulled out.

Rangers' goalie Chuck Rayner made 30 stops while Durnan, the Vezina trophy winner, chalked up 23.

Dodgers Favored To Repeat In National Loop

By JACK HAND

Vero Beach, Fla., March 30 — (AP)— The 1950 Brooklyn Dodgers are a stand-pat ball club. Rookie third-baseman Bob Morgan, a star with Montreal last season, probably will be the only newcomer in the opening day lineup.

Brooklyn will be favored to repeat as National League champions. Manager Burt Shotton thinks his Dodgers can win again. So does Branch Rickey, Dodger president.

Gene Hermanski, Duke Snider and Carl Furillo will play the outfield. Gil Hodges at first, Jackie Robinson at second, Pee Wee Reese-at short and Morgan at third make up the infield. Roy Campanella will catch.

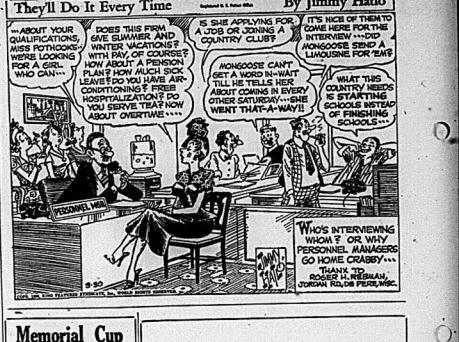
Add the starting pitcher and you're ready to go.

Don Newcombe, the jumbo-sized Negro righthander is the No. 1 boy. Newcombe didn't move up from Montreal until late last year. Even so he won 17 games.

Preacher Roe is No. 2. Then comes Lefty Joe Hatten. After that it's up for grabs, with Ralph Branca and Rex Barney in the front line. Promising Jack Banta has been troubled by a sore shoulder.

Show Good Stuff

Of the newcomers, Dan Bankhead (20-6 at Montreal) and Clarence Podedworny have shown good stuff. Bill McCahan, ex-Philadelphia A's and Bob Milliken, ex-Texas League star from Worth, have impressed Shotton. McCahan will stick if he can prove arm no longer bothers him.



The Dodger high strategy figures Morgan a good bet for rookie of the year. The blond youngster led the International League with a .337 at Montreal and was voted most valuable player. Last year he was a shortstop. Behind him are Billy Cox, Spider Jorgensen and Eddie Miksis.

Jim Russell, ex-Boston Brave, is making a stiff bid for an outfield job. He was promised every chance when he balked at reporting to Montreal.

Kennedy, Howe Will Not Start In Second Game

Detroit, March 30 (CP)— Absence of the injured Gordie Howe cost Detroit Red Wings in the role of underdogs today as they prepared for the second game of the Stanley Cup semi-finals against Toronto Maple Leafs tonight. Toronto won the first game of the best-of-seven set 5-0 Tuesday.

Howe, who suffered a severe head injury during the opening game, was reported showing more improvement at Harper Hospital. Spokesman for the Detroit team said the 21-year-old ace winger had made considerable progress in brain operation early Wednesday.

The operation relieved pressure which physicians had described as a threat to Howe's life. He also suffered a nose fracture, cheek fractures and eye lacerations in the Tuesday night incident.

Red Wings coach Tommy Ivan charged immediately after the game that Howe had been butted by the stick of Toronto's Ted Kennedy but Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, cleared the action Wednesday after conferring with the officials who handled the game.

Campbell said his preliminary investigation led him to believe that Kennedy was not involved in Howe's accident. He expressed belief the Detroiter suffered injuries when he rammed the boards while trying to check Kennedy.

A Vicious Charge

The league president voiced criticism of coach Ivan for making "a very vicious charge" against the Leafs and Kennedy. He said "I assume it was made in a fit of anger after the game, because we all get excited at times like that."

Hospital sources indicated there was some question whether Howe would undergo futher surgery. One report Wednesday said a second operation was planned to relieve pressure on the brain but a spokesman for the club said no decision had been made yet on such an operation.

It appeared possible that Joe Carveth would be moved up to the ace forward line, top point-scoring combination in the league, on which Howe served with Sid Abel and Ted Lindsay.

Leafs' great centre, Kennedy, himself is a doubtful starter tonight. Before the Howe incident he had crashed into the goalpost and he came out of the game with a severe charley horse.

Gordie Howe, Detroit Red-wing's star will not see action again this season. The Leaf's Kennedy was held blameless in the serious accident that sent Howe to hospital.

Ezzard Charles Will be Ready For Fight in June

By The Canadian Press

Jake Mintz, vociferous manager of the National boxing association heavyweight champion, Ezzard Charles, said Wednesday at Pittsburgh the Cincinnati Negro definitely will defend his title again in June.

"I'm only following doctor's orders," said Mintz on his return from New York where Charles underwent physical examinations. "They said he could have fought Wednesday night, but there was a chance he would crack that bum rib again and hurt himself for good.

"Naturally, I decided to protect my boy. The doctors said he will be in first-class shape in two months if he had a complete rest and allows that rib and the bruised heart muscle to heal."

At Detroit, Joe Garza, 140 1-4, Detroit, Wednesday night knocked out Harry Goulding, 145 1-4, Oshawa, in the last round of a scheduled four-round bout. In another four-rounder, Mickey Warner, 133, Windsor, Ont., won a decision over Charley Terrani, 134 1-4, Detroit.

St. Catharines Lions won their eighth straight Ontario Minor Hockey Association juvenile championship by edging Toronto Marlboros 3-1 Wednesday night in Toronto in the second game of a best-of-three series.

Coupled with a 12-0 triumph in the first game, the victory gave the Lions a clean sweep of the series. Schokowsky was the big gun for the winners with a two-goal performance with the single going to Geo. Taylor was the Toronto sniper.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By GRAHAM TROTTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, March 30 (CP) — Take it from Doak Walker, referred to in some quarters as "Mr. Football" in the United States, Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union will "have a terrific club" if they have anything to back up American imports Lindy Berry and Morris Bailey.

Walker should know. A star quarterback, he played in the Southwest Conference last season against Berry, also a quarterback, and Bailey, a towering pass-catching end. Walker was in Southern Methodist togs while Berry and Bailey performed for Texas Christian University.

When it came time to select the Conference All-Stars, Berry won recognition over Walker, who recently signed three-year pro contract with Detroit Lions for a reported $50,000.

"Berry isn't very big but he's got a lot of fight," Walker told Don (Edmonton Journal) Fleming in a recent interview of Calgary. "Both of them have. They will win you football games, all right."

Will they Come

Don says there's the possibility that the two import stars may not report to Esks. The Edmonton contracts the starry passing combination signed are not binding as far as Canadian football is concerned. They could still go into U. S. professional ranks like Walker or turn their backs on the game.

"However, Eskimo officials think they will come into possession of Berry and Bailey," Don writes. "Berry has been drafted by the San Francisco 49ers, who already have Frankie Albert in the quarterback slot. There's no pushing a man of Albert's stature out, which means that Lindy would have to contest himself with a second fiddle job. Rather than that, he nibbled at the (Edmonton) offer."

Porcupine Will Meet Guelph In Semi-Finals

Timmins, March 30 — (CP)— Porcupine Combines, Junior "A" champion of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, dumped Inkerman Rockets out of the Memorial Cup scramble Wednesday night with an 8-4 victory at the McIntyre arena in Schumacher. The victory gave Porcupine the Eastern Ontario title three games to one in the best-of-five series.

Advancing against Guelph Biltmores for the all-Ontario title, the Combines leave tonight for Toronto where they open against Guelph Saturday afternoon.

The Combines took a come from behind twice to end the first period with a 2-2 tie, but they flashed to victory in the second period when they outscored the Rockets 4-1 to take a 6-3 margin. The Rockets rallied for two goals in the third, but Porcupine pulled away with the last two goals of the game.

Bill Gadsby but fast-skating line of Jerry LaBelle, Johnny Mestan and Danny McLaughlin set the pace for the victors, accounting for five of the eight goals. Mestan and McLaughlin scored two each and LaBelle got one. Other Porcupine scorers were Stan Smrke, Herv Lamarche and John Duff.

Bill Gadsby, Larry Hamilton, Cliff Baldwin, Levy MacDonald and Gordie Brown were the Inkerman scorers.

Baldwin's goal, which launched the Inkerman rally in the third period, was scored when goalie Bill Harrington took a pot shot and a puck that was sliding slowly towards his net. Mite missed the rubber altogether and it slid across the line.

This soft counter put new life in the Rockets who were outplayed by a wide margin throughout the second period and through most of the third, but the Combines were not to be denied with victory in their grasp.

The Combines outscored the Rockets 21 to 14 on the round, winning 7-3 and 2-2 in the first and second games and losing 5-3 in the third.

BAIT COMPANY IN DIFFICULTY

Cobourg, March 30. (CP)—Between 15 and 20 employees of the Lucky Strike Bait Co., will be laid off soon because of unrestricted imports of Japanese-made fishing tackle, Frank Edgar, company owner, said Wednesday.

He said the Japanese product is being dumped on the Canadian market at 90 cents a gross compared with his price of $1.50 a gross. His production for 1950 will drop from 8,000 gross to about 5,200, he said.

Mr. Edgar's factory plant employs 28 persons and another in Peterborough employs 40.

Sherbrooke Saints Expect Tough Battle in Finals

Quebec, March 30 — (CP) — With the Quebec Senior Hockey championship tucked away, Sherbrooke Saints today expected a tough battle with Sydney Millionaires in the eastern-Canada semi-finals for the Allan Cup and to Canadian Senior Hockey championship.

Sherbrooke Wednesday night defeated Quebec Aces 4-3 in the Q.S.H.L. finals to win the best-of-seven final series 4-2 and the T. Howard Stewart trophy.

Saints had to put on a determined drive to come from behind a 3-0 lead in the first period and win the game with an unassisted goal by Jaques Prefontaine at the 16:40 mark of the last period.

Norm McAtee, pivotman on the Saints' first line, scored two goals while linemate Reg Sinclair accounted for the other Sherbrooke tally.

Armand Gaudreault, Dick Gemble and Hugh Bisgelle scored all the Quebec goals in the first period.

Halifax Team No Match for Montreal Squad

Halifax, March 30 (CP)— With one lop-sided win under their belts, Montreal Canadiens aren't worrying about tomorrow night's game with Halifax St. Mary's in the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-finals.

The Montreal juniors pounded the willing but wanting Halifax squad 11-3 Wednesday night in the first game of the best-of-five series.

If Montreal defeats Saints tomorrow as decisively as they did Wednesday night the third game will be played here. The schedule actually calls for the third and succeeding games, if necessary, to be played in Montreal.

Forward Don Marshall and centre Bill Gould paced the Montreal attack with three goals each.

New York, March 30 — (AP)— George Gravel, when National Hockey League referee, is noted for his quick retorts when the players began to steam up — The vote for the quickest goes to an occasion when George handed out a major penalty to a player who protested furiously, and an irate fan displayed his wrath by hurling an entire deck of cards on the ice — Gravel scooped them up, skated over and handed them to the banished athlete just as he entered the penalty box — - - -

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Horsing around, good bridge players will often do what comes unnaturally. They get some startling results that way. Maybe good, maybe bad. Either is part of the fun.

In one club I frequent, bridge is played in festive mood. Here it is a game in the fullest sense of the word. A spirit of friendly banter prevails. Each odd bid is a cue for hilarity.

At each good play the locker room quintet gives out with a few bars of "That Old Gal of Mine." A successful slam calls for harmony in a full chorus of "Down by the Old Mill Stream."

In such an atmosphere came this deal:

NORTH
	♠A 10 5 3
	♥A K J 8 5 4 3
	♦J
	♣K
WEST	EAST
♠None,	♠9 8 7 6 4
♥10 9	♥Q 9 6
♦10 9 7 3 2	♦A K Q 8
♣Q J 10 9 7 6 5	♣8 4
SOUTH
♠K Q J 2
♦6 5 4
♣A 5 3 2

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 H	2 D
2 S	3 D	4 D	5 D
Pass	Pass	6 S	Pass
7 S	Pass	Pass	Pass

Four diamonds was an overcall in opponent suit, signalling no losers there. Stronger than a slam, it announces a type of hand that is definitely slambilious.

See for yourself that it was a blue report here. Fooled by it, south extended the contract to seven spades. But it also fooled west. Fearing an immediate diamond ruff, west led a club.

Dummy won. A trump to south. On club ace was ruffed the dummy diamond. Two top hearts. A heart ruffed by east was overruffed by south. Trumps were pulled and dummy hearts were good for the rest.

South ceremoniously shook his partner's hand and said: "You are a remarkable man. But if they had led a diamond, somebody would have had to screw your head back on again."

Movie Column

Hollywood, March 30 (AP) — Ralph Edwards is celebrating 10 years of squirting seltzer water in the face of the United States.

Just a decade ago, a bright radio announcer went on the air in New York with a show called "Truth or Consequences." The gimmick was that the contestant suffered dire results if he failed to answer a question correctly.

The truth element "went by the window eight years ago," Edwards admits. But the consequences have kept the show in the top ratings and its operator in a top income bracket.

The Stunts

Among the "T. or C." stunts:

Filling New York's town hall to hear the violin concert of Yitzhuff, who turned out to be a housewife contestant who had never touched a violin.

Racing a man on a pogo stick from the Los Angeles International airport to city hall against another person who had to fly around the world first. (The pogo stick man won).

Making a man live on a traffic island at a busy intersection for three weeks.

Edwards trait of nonsense began in 1940, the first contestant and a sailor who had to act out the role of a grocer clerk with a lollypop in his mouth. The gob won $5 for his trouble.

The "T. or C." prizes have amounted that the winner of a recent contest took $25,000 in cash and a similar amount of merchandise. Edwards claims to have donated $5,000 for the best cancer, polio, mental health and other funds and to have helped sell $500,000,000 worth of war bonds.

AT THE CAPITOL — Bill Williams and Jane Nigh admire the thoroughbred which gives the title to "Blue Grass of Kentucky," Monogram racing drama now at the Capitol Theatre. Ralph Morgan is co-starred with the couple. On the same program "Hidden Danger," starring Johnny Mack Brown. Both his are first Belleville showings.

AT THE McCARTHY — "Mr. Soft Touch" as played by Glenn Ford in the Columbia film at the McCarthy Theatre today. Evelyn Keyes is also starred in the exciting story of a two-fisted gambler always looking for the pay-off.

AT THE BELLE — Charles Bickford, as a police detective, is convinced of Terry Clark's guilt, and urges her to sign a confession of murder in this scene from 20th. Century-Fox's highly regarded new thriller, "Whirlpool." Before the picture ends Bickford comes to learn that Miss Tierney is at this point still under the influence of Jose hypnosis and in no condition to understand what is happening to her.

FRANKFORD Many Attend Annual Convention Of Christ Ambassadors

Frankford — A chartered bus of Full Gospel Tabernacle Young People from Frankford and Trenton assemblies, journeyed to Peterborough on Saturday to attend the 3rd annual convention of Christ Ambassadors. At 10 a.m. following registration, morning worship began in the summer gardens where 2,000 Young People gathered. Mr. Gordon Upton led in chorus singing, and Evangelist Leroy Saunders led in prayer. Rev. Melvin Holmes introduced the quartet from the Bible College and Rev. Makin, of Trenton, brought a few words, to the C.A.'s Rev. Laurie Price of Belleville, gave the announcements. Rev. Hope Smith, of Belleville, sang "Homecoming Week".

Following the offering, the Bible College quartet sang "Living For Jesus." Rev. Greenwood, of Peterborough, brought welcoming words to all gathered at Summer Gardens. Rev. H. Kelchenese was the morning speaker, bringing a challenging message. Morning session closed with prayer.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened at 2:30 in the Summer Gardens with Rev. Robert Games leading the chorus, "John Was in The Spirit". Rev. Laurie Price, of Belleville, led in prayer. Rev. Richardson of Toronto, sang Rev. Greenwood brought welcome greetings. Mr. Morgan Thompson spoke a few words. Rev. D. H. Smith, of Toronto, the General Superintendent of the Pentecostal Assemblies, spoke briefly. Rev. James Montgomery, the National Christ Ambassador Director, brought a challenging message to the youth. The worship closed with a chorus and prayer.

Evening Session

The evening session was a great Missionary Service, opening with Toronto Evangel Temple brass band, playing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." Several hymns were sung. Rev. Bailey, of Toronto, led in prayer. The Pauls quartet of Hamilton sang, "We'll Soon Be Done." Rev. Leslie testively in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Germany, France and the West Indies, brought a stirring message to all. The Saturday evening session a vocal duet. The Bible College closed with a season of prayer.

What's in a Name or Title?

A person can not be judged by his name nor can the entertainment qualities of a movie be determined by its title!

Too often moviegoers miss a good picture because of the uninteresting title.

Such a title is "MOTHER DIDN'T TELL ME", a warm and beguiling picture that can't help but win friends. One reason this sparkling and sophisticated story of a young couple very much in love comes off so successfully is that DOROTHY McGUIRE and WILLIAM LUNDIGAN make as charming a couple as any the movies have teamed in recent years.

DOROTHY and BILL are such nice people to be with that you hate to see "MOTHER DIDN'T TELL ME," come so quickly to an end, but it is not before they bring you many hearty laughs, and joyous moments of entertainment.

We thought you should know this so you would not miss a delightful picture.

Stomach Out of Order Long Time---Felt Tired, Rundown

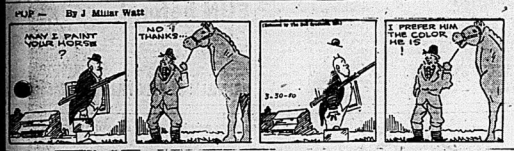
Pains Set in Limbs, Back, Joints, Got Bad Headaches, Dizzy Spells and Couldn't Sleep Well. Tells of Grand Results He Got by Taking Syntona.

"I suffered from stomach disorders for a long time, was often afraid to eat and my appetite often became zundown," said Mr. Thomas W. Elgie, 12 York St., London, Ont., in a recent report.

"Indigestion, awful gas, and sour acid risings followed almost every meal. I would bloat with the gas and get a full, heavy sweet feeling that would nearly smother me. Oft and I was not sleeping at all as these spells floated before my eyes. I'd get terrible dizzy headaches. Sometimes I'd get so weak and tired I'd have to lie down and rest. Constipation would also bother me and added to the tired, wornout feeling that I had every day.

"Now, today I feel like a normal person. I eat and digest what I want and sleep like a log well and fast; no trouble with stomach distress, headaches, or dizziness. Gradually the pains in my back, limbs, joints and muscles went away, and I felt like a new person altogether. I did before and I certainly can recommend Syntona after what it has done for me."

MR. THOMAS W. ELGIE



Thousands of men and women find Syntona a medicine on which they can depend to relieve common disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels and associated rheumatic, nervous, runnown conditions. It is pleasant to take and the results are quick-ly felt.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Little Benny's Note Book

cept up to Mary Watkins on my way home from school, saying ey: what's you walking so fast ut, what's your hurry?

ck and w hile goldfish kind of week this and his manners to get and see how she's feeling. Watkins said, and I said, ow do you know it's a she? ecause she's got such a bewil- expression, and the graceful she swims, Mary said. I wish could of seen how she looked me when I left her this morn- It was just heart breaking, dear, I'm sad, I never felt ter, she said.

Me thinking, Gosh, I wish I could make her feel better. And I said, Aw, cheer up, goldfish haven't got feelings.

They've got more than you have, Benny Haenigsen, or you wouldn't say such a thing. Mary said. I think you're the meenest boy I ever saw and I hope I never see you again, she said, and I said, Well heck, I mean G. I only meant that all fishes are cold blodded, that's all I meant.

Well then you're the worst kind of a fish, because I never heard such a cruel cold bluddid re- mark and I dont want to hear any more of them, or any other kind, either, as long as you live, Mary said.

And she quick went in her house mad, me thinking, Heck, I hope the darn fish gets better, for my sake.

And she didn't come out again and after supper I wrote a poem on a piece of paper, saying in it, "I hope I never turn into a gold- fish, Whatever ells I do, But it I ever happen that I am one, I hope I'll belong to you."

And I put it in a envelope and wrote "Mary Watkins, Personel", on the outside, and went and stuck it under her front door and felt honeful.

MARSHALL PLAN

Becomes Big Stick

And so the Marshall Plan, which seeks to help Europe attain these goals, has become the "big stick" of U.S. foreign policy to stop the westward thrust of communism.

The program so far has cost the United States nearly $9,000,000,000. Has it been worth the money and natural resources? Here's what the record shows:

France, Italy and Greece seemed on the verge of having communist-controlled governments two years ago. Now the power of communism in those countries has waned.

Industrial production across western Europe, as a whole, is 15 to 30 per cent above pre-war levels. After the First World War it took the countries that make up the Marshall Plan block seven years to regain a peacetime output; this time it took only three.

Have Adequate Diet

Western Europe now has an adequate diet. Overseas still aren't well-fed by North American standards but the threat of starvation, which existed when the Marshall Plan started, is no more.

Trade between western European countries is nearly back to pre-war level.

But there still is the pressing matter of the "dollar gap" and other complex factors of international economy and finance.

Western Europe presently is spending four times as many dollars on imports from the U.S. and Canada than it is earning in exports to the western hemisphere. The difference—the "dollar gap"—is largely made up by E.C.A. with Marshall Plan dollars.

Western Europe still must find ways to sell more goods in the dollar markets if the Marshall Plan is to succeed.

New Sales Tax Announced by N.B. Legislature

(By the Canadian Press)

A four-per-cent. sales tax was announced in the New Brunswick legislature Wednesday when a record budget of more than $30,000,000 was brought down by secretary-treasurer Boucher.

He told the Fredericton House that the new sales tax is expected to yield about $2,000,000. It would contain "liberal exemptions" to lessen the burden of the lower-income group. Delegations from many centres had attended a protest meeting Wednesday against the new tax.

Full details of the new tax await introduction of the necessary legislation but Premier McNair has said it is a consumer tax and would be known formally as the "social services and education tax."

Public accounts were tabled in the Nova Scotia legislature and Premier Macdonald said Nova Scotia, like other provinces and the federal government, has reached the point where revenues cannot be increased without new taxes. He did not elaborate.

The accounts showed a surplus of about $112,000 in the fiscal year ending last Nov. 30, while the government had budgeted for a surplus of $492,000. Revenues were $35,404,000, or $936,000 over the estimate. Expenditures were $35,291,000, higher than estimates by $1,316,000.

The Prince Edward Island legislature cleared the way for prorogation today after Wednesday's sitting approved in principle the annual appropriations bill. Royal assent will be given some 40 bills passed during the 23-day sitting.

The Ontario legislature held a nigh sitting on various departmental estimates, discussing old-age pensions, unemployment relief and homes for the aged.

The Manitoba legislature received health department estimates, with Health Minister Schultz hinting there would be a few new taxes in the provincial budget. Mr. Schultz said the government so far has been able to avoid a "burdensome" sales tax such as that enacted in Saskatchewan.

Not Required Immediately

The Saskatchewan legislature gave second reading to a bill allowing the government-owned power corporation to enter the coal-mining, oil-refining and power-pole-manufacture business. Public Works Minister Darling said that the right to produce and sell coal, and to refine crude oil, while desired by the government is not required immediately.

At Victoria the British Columbia legislature gave second reading to an amendment to the Hospital Insurance Act, giving the government power to charge municipalities whatever it chooses for hospital grants. Municipalities now pay 75 cents a day per patient. Three members of the coalition and Tom Uphill, veteran Labor member, joined the seven-man C.C.F opposition in opposing the measure.

NATURE UNSPOILED

YOURS TO PROTECT
The RED-WING is the common blackbird of the marshes and swamps. The striking red and black of the male are unmistakable, but the female is less spectacular in colouring. In the spring their chief food consists of caterpillars, and they deserve protection.

Crook Crooks Crooks But Story is Straight

Washington, March 30 (AP) —A crook crooked some crooks who had already been crooked and the United States Secret Service caught up with a batch of crooked money.

This is a story told by U.S. Baughman, chief of the U. S. Secret Service, to a Senate Appropriations Sub-committee. It was made public today.

"Recently we arrested some Mexicans," Baughman said. "They had come up from Mexico to Chicago. They sold marijuana and got paid off in counterfeit notes and went back to Texas."

"The Mexicans picked up a hitchhiker.

"The hitchhiker saw a bag in the back of their car. He thought it was a shaving kit. He wanted to take a shave. He reached in and saw all this money, which turned out to be counterfeit."

The hitchhiker, after helping himself, "went out passing these $10 bills, thinking it was good money," Baughman said. "He went out and bought a new suit and things, and he got picked up. As a result of that, we caught these Mexicans."

ELDORADO

Eldorado—Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCann were dinner hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pigden on Friday.

A party was held on Friday night in the Orange Hall in aid of the hockey team, with a good crowd in attendance.

A number from here attended the funeral on Sunday in Madoc of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Empey.

Mr. Charlie Carman, of Halliburton, spent the weekend at his home.

Mr. Don Fox, of Toronto, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Fox.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bateman spent Sunday with friends at Springbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hennegy and children, of Belleville, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. McCann.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Blakely spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Comerford.

Mr. Albert Shaw, of Millbrook spent the weekend at his home.

Mrs. Fred Shaw spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. Jas. Lemon.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Shaw visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shaw on Sunday.

Mrs. Leonard Blackburn spent a couple of days in Toronto and visited her little son who is a patient in the Hospital for Sick Children.

RUSSIA'S ATOMIC-ROCKET BATTLESHIP?

This sketch purports to be a drawing of one of six atomic-rocket battleships now being built by the Russians. The sketch appeared in the Montags Echo, which is in a west-sector publication. The story says that each ship will be equipped with two rocket launchers and will have the latest anti-aircraft and anti-submarine weapons. The ships, says the Echo, will be 800 feet long to permit maximum defence and manoeuvrability. First of the vessels will be finished soon and named "Soyjetsky Solus," the story adds. — Central Press Canadian.

Autumn General Election Latest Forecast in Britain

V. CARDY, RETIRED HOTEL OWNER, FINED $40,000

Montreal, March 31 — (CP)— Vernon Cardy, retired hotel owner and international-known sportsman, today was fined $40,000 for violating foreign exchange control board regulations. He pleaded guilty last month to five charges involving $800,000.

Although prosecution counsel had suggested a $100,000 fine plus a jail term, the sentence handed out this morning by Judge Gerald Almond contained no prison term.

Maximum sentence for the offences is double the amount involved as a fine and a year in jail.

Counsel for the 60-year-old Galt, Ont., native pleaded for a minimum fine because the money involved had been used for publicity purposes which brought United States tourists to Canada.

Judge Almond said:

"In the court's opinion the accused or any other party has no right to take upon himself to pursue a policy which is in violation of the laws of the country even though it may appear to him that the results obtained will be profitable to the country.

"The court has taken into consideration the jurisprudence and sentences imposed in similar cases throughout Canada and also the fact that Cardy pleaded guilty thereby obviating the necessity of a lengthy trial."

Charges Laid

Charges to which Cardy pleaded guilty through his lawyer Raymond Noel were: Failure to forego exchange to the extent of $200,000 between Feb. 1, 1948 and Jan. 28, 1950; failing to declare forthwith possession of $702,000 in foreign exchange; transferring securities or a right, title or interest to a non-resident and having prior to Jan. 28, 1950 incurred, acknowledged, guaranteed or given security for a debt payable to a non-resident.

He was originally stated by John Mearn, Clarence Quinlan and Andre Montpetit, government prosecutors, that the offences involved $500,000. But later they agreed that the true amount was $200,000 as amounts mentioned in the complaints were duplicated.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 31 — (CP) — Synopsis: Ontario, had another chilly night and the temperature early this morning ranged between generally 10 above in northern Ontario to twenty-five in the southern sections. White fill-ver was also the general rule except where a report of four below were at the time of morning.

The cold snap is now ending. Southerly winds will gradually become gusty today and over the southern half of the province tonight and by Saturday they will feel in moist mild air from the Mississippi valley. Temperatures are expected to range between 45 and 55 over the lower lakes region by Saturday afternoon. Showers will accompany this invasion of milder weather.

London, March 31.—(CP)— Prime Minister Attlee's statement that the Labor government will carry on unless defeated on a major occasion prompts the question: "How long?"

Members, who a week ago gave the government a good chance to survive until mid-1951, now are placing their bets on an autumn general election.

Opposition newspapers, in full cry since Labor's surprising 58-vote defeat in a snap division Wednesday night, said today the government is wondering whether Labor ministers and the rank and file will be able to stand the strain imposed by the long vigil in the House of Commons—or by Labor's single-figure majo

Attlee Sees Risk of Defeat

Attlee echoed this feeling Thursday when he told the Commons that government members have to be on hand all the time, whereas the opposition can side its time, waiting for the best moment to attack.

"The government forces ought to have been there in full strength," Attlee said, referring to Wednesday's vote. "I regret that they were not so."

In a front-page story today, the anti-Labor Evening Standard dwelt on the new fear" it said had gripped the government about the payroll strike involved in the long hours at the Commons. It noted that two Labor members have died since the Feb. 23 general election, "both of whom were at the House when they should have been in bed."

Other papers, contributed to Labor, gleefully pictured the biggest party dividing "purge" in years. The Daily Express listed six ministers and 21 Labor back-benchers who it said would be scolded for missing Wednesday's vote.

Ships Begin to Stir Along Great Lakes As Navigation Season Nears

(By The Canadian Press)

Along the Great Lakes system from Port Arthur to Prescott, Ont., and on the St. Lawrence River to Thunder Bay, activity is brisk.

At home lower-lake ports, vessels have made their first runs of the season. Others are getting ready timidly to the edge of vanishing ice floes in the more northerly and swail safer navigating conditions. Others, gleaming with fresh coats of paint, lie quietly at their piers awaiting the order that will send them out into the first busy season.

A few days of mild weather are all that is needed to open navigation at most ports. Harbor officials generally expect traffic will be moving by mid-April.

At Port Arthur, where elevators are jammed with grain, shipping officials are watching the tugs battling their way into ice ranging up to 32 inches in thickness.

April 10 to 15 is the target date for arrival of the first vessel from the east.

Ice still blocks the canal at Sault Ste. Marie, linking Lake Superior and Lake Huron. Officials say it will be April 15 before ships can pass through in safety.

Ice ships were moving on Lake Huron Thursday. A tanker left Sarnia for Goderich and was turned back temporarily by ice. Others cleared Sarnia for Windsor, Port Stanley, Toledo and Alpena, Mich.

Winter held its grip on Georgian Bay. Ice up to 26 inches in thickness sealed the ports of Owen Sound and Collingwood. Eastern Lake Erie also was reported locked.

There was activity on Lake Ontario. Captain Robert E. Lawson of Windsor became the 90th winner of the silk hat, presented

MAYORS, REEVES PROPOSE COUNTY COUNCIL FOR AREA

Toronto, March 31. (CP)— A proposal to set up a county council to govern all of York County, including Toronto, is favored by the mayors and reeves committee set up in January to consider problems of the area.

The proposal, favored by an 11 to 2 vote, was embodied in the report of the committee tabled last night in the Ontario Legislature. Premier Frost requested the report which involves the thorny local issue of amalgamation of Toronto with its 12 suburbs.

The minority proposal, set out by Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto was for the amalgamation. Some suburban leaders have to be on hand all the time, whereas the opposition can bide its time, waiting for the best moment to attack.

"The government forces ought to have been there in full strength," Attlee said, referring to Wednesday's vote. "I regret that they were not so."

In a front-page story today, the anti-Labor Evening Standard dwelt on the new fear" it said had gripped the government about the payroll strike involved in the long hours at the Commons. Municipal Costs Will be Higher By Amendment

Toronto, March 31 — (CP) — Mayor McCallum Thursday criticized a proposed amendment to the Ontario Health Act, saying it will increase the city's share of the cost of indigent hospital patients.

The amendment proposes daily increases for municipalities as follows: 4 per cent, $2.25 to $2.34 a bed; 8 group A. It is believed the proposed change will cost the city some $200,000 more than the $500,000 set aside as the city's share of indirect hospital costs in 1950.

The legislation was ill-timed, the mayor said. There had been no advance warning and Toronto and other municipalities already have struck the tax rate.

At an early hour today, council approved the tax rate of $61.10 mills for 1950 by an 18-2 vote.

During 12 hours' debate, a motion by Controller Ruth Hamilton to cut $500,000 from departmental estimates was defeated 14-6.

Born by Flashlight In Cold Hospital

Hearst, Ont., March 31 (CP)— A baby was born by flashlight Thursday night at St. Paul's hospital, which has had very little heat and a wavering supply of electricity for the last two weeks, owing to a coal shortage.

Nurse Ruth Dunn of Windsor completed the delivery of the daughter of Mrs. Fortier after the lights failed.

Hospital authorities said power has not yet failed during an operation, but nurses have been withdrawing power from a small electric plant in shares with the entire community, but the unpredictable power surges have burned out the X-ray machine and refrigerators.

The hospital has received no coal since the recent coal strike in the United States. A shipment Thursday was reported en route from Timmins to Hearst.

FIVE PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH IN MANITOBA

Two Baby Sitters In Home Also Die

Pine Falls, Man., March 31— (CP)—Five persons were burned to death early today in a fire that ravaged the home here Stanley Waite.

The dead: Stanley Waite, 32, Gladys Waite, 3, Ronald Waite, 6, Maxine Simpson, 13, and Marilyn Flett, 11. The Simpson and Flett girls had been in the house as baby-sitters.

The fire is believed to have broken out shortly after midnight. Waite with his wife reported to have been on the way to Winnipeg at the time.

The mother was reached at an hotel in Winnipeg, 75 miles southwest and informed of the tragedy.

The Waites moved to this area about eight or nine months ago.

Mrs. Waite had planned a trip to Winnipeg and Waite was working at his job as truck driver to the couple obtained baby-sitters to care for the two children. The Manitoba Free Press said overnight, were believed in bed when the fire started.

The fire levelled the structure so rapidly that neighbors—the closest houses would be 400 yards away—were not in time to do anything about fighting the fire.

Woman Held on Murder Charge In Knife-Slaying

Chatham, March 31 (CP) — A 29-year-old woman lapped her bloodstained fingers on the garage office window of Alderman Donald Todgham Thursday night and reported the slaying of her husband.

"I've killed him," Mrs. Emma Johnston was quoted as saying. "I wish I hadn't done it."

The Mulatto woman was charged with the butcher-knife slaying of her Negro husband, Sherwell Johnston, a 30-year-old army veteran.

Police found Johnston face down in the couple's one room flat, a deep wound in the right side of his throat. There were signs of a struggle in the room.

Mrs. Johnston clutched her five year old daughter, Patricia, to her breast as she went to Tvughan.

Tvughan took her to Provincial Police stationed above his garage and telephoned city police who made the arrest after investigation. The child had to be taken from the group before she was committed to city jail.

Police said she found a blood-stained butcher knife in the hallway of their flat. They said the couple apparently had been drinking and the woman used after a quarrel with her husband.

Todgham said he thought the woman had tried to commit suicide when she saw the blood on her hands.

Chatham was a night worker in a local factory. Police questioned a man who claimed to have been sleeping on a bed in the room during the slaying but did not disclose the results of their questioning.

When officers entered the room they found a fried steak on the floor and a pot of potatoes boiling on the stove.

Blames Heckling On Dancing Girls Waiting in Wings

Toronto, March 31 (CP) —Rev. Allen A. Dockeray of the Toronto Legue meeting Thursday night why heckling broke out in the rear of the hall.

The 74-year-old clergyman, pleading with his audience — 1,750 motorists—to "exercise courtesy" on the highway, sat down. With tears in his eyes, he said:

"Toronto is the last city in the world where I would expect this to happen."

Vernon Page, Toronto traffic inspector and one of the roadhouse guests, blamed the incident on five-scantily-clad dancing girls waiting in the wings to entertain after Dr. Stanley's speech.

"I guess some of the men were anxious for the girls to go," said Page.

BAN INDISCRIMINATE TOOTING OF WHISTLES

Palmerston, March 31.—(CP)— Council Wednesday night banned indiscriminate tooting of locomotive whistles in this C.N.R. subdivision town. Engineers will have to find another way to tell their wives they can start cooking supper.

Man, Suspected Narcotic, Found Dead in House

Toronto, March 31 (CP) —A man identified as Frank Lewis, 32, was found dead with a dirty hypodermic needle and a syringe on his chest in a rooming and rooming house early today.

Slumped nearby in a deep sleep was Jack Marcel, 33, who had been rooming in the house for two years.

Coroner Dr. W. Esson Brown said Lewis's death was due to coronary thrombosis, believed brought on by an overdose of narcotics. Police said he was a suspected drug addict.

After Marcel awoke he was charged with illegal possession of narcotics.

The men were found by Matthew Zegil who smashed down a locked bedroom door.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS COMMITTEE WILL STUDY QUESTION

Liberal Member Says Means Test Must Go

Ottawa, Mar. 31 (CP) — The Commons, despite divided opinion on the type of old-age pensions most suitable for Canadians, agreed Thursday to establish a committee to study the whole pensions question.

A government-sponsored motion providing for establishment of a 40-man committee was adopted after a dozen members from various parts of the chamber expressed personal views on what should be done for the aged

Health Minister Martin said the government hopes that the committee, to be composed of 25 members of the Commons and 12 of the Senate, will meet Monday to plan work to start after the April 5-17 Easter recess.

The debate, probably a preview of what will occur before the committee, showed that the diversity of opinions on the pensions question cuts through party lines.

H-Bomb Article Destroyed at Wish AEC Says Paper

New York, March 31 — (CP) — Scientific American said today it stopped its presses, burned 3,500 copies already in print and omitted from the type of a new article on the hydrogen bomb — all in the instigation of the atomic energy commission.

The century-old magazine said the statement "raised the question whether the commission is thus sequestering information which th.. American people need in order to form intelligent judgements on this vital question."

The article was by Dr. Hans Bethe, Cornell physicist and former theoretical physics chief at Los Alamos.

All but a small part of the original article ultimately was published, the current issue, the magazine said, adding it is clear that the A. E. C. did not object to facts on the article but to Dr Bethe's stating them.

The Scientific American said in a statement that all the technical portions of Bethe's article consisted of information "that has been idely published and is well known to nuclear physicists the world over."

"These are certainly areas of information which must be neglected for reasons of national security, there are other areas of technics, information in the public domain - - - and when the American people are entitled to be informed," the magazine said.

Sharp Retorts Between Daley And Salsberg Enliven Session

Toronto, March 31 (CP) — The Ontario Legislature this morning made a last-minute effort to pass the last of the government's estimates on the last day of the fiscal year.

Premier Park (CCF-Toronto Dovercourt) criticized Labor Minister Daley's description of his department as an "administrative" one. Mr. Daley should recognize the growing importance of labor and devise policies which would help labor and industry alike.

The agriculture estimates, for instance, showed many examples of how the department increased farmers earnings.

Mr. Park had received only one piece of literature from the Department of Labor in the last year. This was the department's annual report which he received yesterday.

Of 995 applications for permission to work overtime 992 had been granted, he said.

"And this is a period of growing unemployment," Mr. Park said.

Mr. Daley said every application was carefully considered and "if they are not justified they are just not allowed." Many were supported by unions.

Mr. Park said the appropriation for factory inspection was reduced. This was not wise in view of the fact that there is a central Toronto clothing factory in which several persons lost lives.

Premier Frost said these "unfortunate" incidents could usually be traced to the human element.

The government provided "very fine inspection services" but the greatest problem was "alerting public opinion."

He suggested the chief inspector of factories, the chief mechanical inspector and other inspectors call "at

Wiseman's Fashion Shop Burns, Fire Origin Unknown

Four Families Lose All Personal Belongings

Four families were rendered homeless and fire loss estimated at close to $125,000 was caused Thursday night when fire starting in the basement of Wiseman's Fashion Shops, Ltd., 302 Front Street, swept up through the structure almost completely gutting the four-storey building. The building was owned by J Diamond and sons.

The blaze was discovered at 8.45 by tenants in the upstairs apartments, but already the fire had gained such headway that firemen were unable to bring it under control until the structure had been gutted.

The fire was noted first by Mr. and Mrs. Herb Boothby who lived in the second floor front apartment. Mrs. Boothby smelled the smoke and opening their apartmen; door was met with a rush of hot air and smoke.

TENANTS NOTIFIED

Tenants in the third floor apartments were immediately notified with Mr. and Mrs. Boothby and Mr. and Mrs. Willmer Magill groping their way to safety through the smoke and down the front stairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shorey, living in the third floor, back apartment were unable to make their way through the dense smoke and escaped through a back window and down a fire escape. Mr. and Mrs. John Muirhead, living in the second storey, back, apartment were not at home.

All four families living in the building lost all their household possessions and did not wait even to save their personal belongings.

Mr. and Mrs. Boothby have a 16-year-old son Norman.

Every Fireman Out

Every unit of the fire department was called on the job by Fire Chief Gerald Vance but the flames had received too great a start and although ten streams of water were played onto the fire, it proved impossible to save the building.

Apparently starting in the basement well back from the street, the fire was not discovered until the upstairs floors began to be saturated with smoke. By that time the rear ground floor of the structure was well ablaze.

Five hundred gallons of furnace oil in a basement storage tank added fuel to the flames which roared out through rear exits with such force that firemen were forced to retreat.

Viewed by Hundreds

Viewed by hundreds of spectators who crowded into Front Street and Victoria Avenue, the blaze was one spectacle seen viewed from the street, but from the column of smoke rolled up it was and rung over the downtown section of the city.

Persons viewing the fire from the river had a better view of the blaze. It was here that the flames raced up through the stairs and burst through the roof.

Fire walls on both sides of the structure and wide building kept the fire loss from being greater. With water from at least two lines of hose, including one from the aerial ladder, firemen were able to keep the blaze confined to the one building, and extensive fire and water damage was suffered on both sides of the structure.

1950 Navigation Season Opens

Sarnia, March 31—(CP)— Five tankers of the Imperial Oil fleet sailed past here for lower lakes ports to mark the opening of the 1950 navigation season for vessels from this port.

Four of the five tankers carried gasoline cargoes. The loaded ships and their destinations are the Imperial Windsor, Goderich; the Imperial Cobourg, Windsor; the Imperial Simcoe and the Imperial Cornwall, Port Stanley. The Imperial Midland is en route to Toledo without a cargo but will bring back a cargo of crude oil.

The Imperial Windsor reported heavy ice in the St. Clair River soon after its departure.

The freighter S. P. Craps of Detroit, a cement carrier, passed by here Wednesday en route to Lake Huron with the honor of being the first upbound ship for the 1950 season.

TWO PRESSES DAMAGED

Los Angeles, March 31—(AP)— A fire Thursday night in the plant of the Los Angeles Evening Herald and Express caused damage to two presses that may run as high as $500,000. Fire officials said the blaze apparently started in conveyor belts carry printed papers from the presses to the mailers. The presses were not running at the time. The Herald-Express Herald and Express will publish as usual today with part of the press-run being handled on the presses of the Los Angeles Examiner,, also a Hearst paper.

City and District News

CLOUDS OF SMOKE DRIVEN OVER CITY

A west wind blowing at the time of the Wiseman fire last night drove clouds of smoke over the eastern part of the city. It was especially heavy in the vicinity of Church Street.

The smoke, in many cases, seeped into several houses causing occupants unnecessary alarm. One Campbell Street resident unaware of the blaze, and detecting a strong smell of smoke in his house, searched the premises thoroughly, with fortunately, no success.

She was on the verge of notifying the Fire Department, when she learned of the downtown fire.

JUDGE ANDERSON WILL PRESIDE

Judge J. C. Anderson will preside at the non-jury sittings of the Frontenac County Court which opens at the Kingston courthouse Monday morning. Six actions are scheduled for hearing.

MONSIGNOR NICHOLSON SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

The condition of the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.G., who was taken to the Hotel Dieu Hospital Kingston, on Wednesday, was reported by hospital officials today as being "good".

ICE CREAM CONES MAY BE BIGGER

Proud parents needn't worry about junior getting sick over the additional gulp of ice cream he will get in his cone, due to the removal of the eight per cent sales tax. The change will be no difference to the manufacturer. It merely means the retailer will enjoy an additional 1½ cents on the cost of an ice cream brick and a fraction of a cent off the cone's cost.

The average ice cream vendor will probably allow that extra gob which he usually shook off the scoop, to enter the cone.

SECOND FIRE TO RAVAGE BLOCK

The disastrous fire that gutted the Wiseman Store on Front Street last night, is the second ravage the building in the last fifty years.

It recalled that around the turn of the century flames tore through the building leaving nothing but a wall skeleton.

The ground floor was occupied by a drug store owned by the late L. W. Yeomans.

The fire originating in the cellar drove swiftly upwards. Mr. Yeomans, trapped in the basement fought his way to a spot underneath a manhole that opened to the pavement outside. He was overcome by smoke and suffocated before he could be rescued.

NO CHARGES LAID AFTER CAR RECOVERED

A report from the Trenton Air Station that a car had been stolen and was heading for Belleville put local police departments on the lookout early this morning when it was learned that the car stopped inside the city by provincial police officers.

It turned out to be a case of friends of the car owner having taken the car without his permission. The owner told city police he thought he was driving his own car and did not press charges. The three men found in possession of the car were allowed to go.

Poppy Fund Receipts Totalled $3,023

After local disbursements amounting to $944.27, the local Poppy Fund had a balance of $1,-854.45 to start the current year, it was reported today by J. H. Lazenby, treasurer for the fund campaign.

Receipts for the poppy fund campaign for 1949 totalled $3,-023.82 including poppy street sales of $1,044.67, wreath sales amounting to $1,905.95, and donations of $73. Expenditures for wreaths totalled $1,784.55 and the campaign expenses were $119.40.

The balance sheet showed net proceeds of the 1949 campaign of $1,119.87 with balance from the previous year of $1,714.48.

Disbursements included $629.41 for groceries including Christmas hampers; $108.85 for fuel supplied; $28.65 for transient relief; $69.34 for funeral assistance; $59.34 for clothing supplied; $45 for rents paid and $40 for medical assistance, making a total of $944.27. Administration expense amounted to $35.83.

1,350 ROUNDS FOUND IN BOYS ROOM

Toronto, March 31 (AP)—Police who raided the room of 16-year-old Robert Bangay early today found 1,350 rounds of ammunition, a 22 calibre rifle and 125 novels allegedly stolen from a printing company. Police said the ammunition was stolen from a public school.

Bangay was said to be selling the novels at cut prices.

We Hope Dave's Suspicions Will Never be Proven True

Dave, the bus driver, is a good guy.

Dave, who meets all kinds of people every day of his life likes folks.

He lives in the northeastern precincts of the city, with a quiet chap, observant, and always interested in the welfare of not only his bus patrons, but His little friends as well.

Dave has great faith in human nature. He feels that every fellow is built and well "met" with his friends.

His eyes widened in surprise and dismay. Yep, you guessed it. The candy was missing.

Dave suspects a gang of boys but he has a strong feeling that among the instigators of the "robbery" is a diminutive case who daily dabbles in printer's ink.

Obituary

RALPH C. GEROW

Picton—A former resident of Picton, Ralph Cooper Gerow, died at his home, R. 3 Port Hope, early yesterday. He had been ill a short time with a heart condition. Mr. Gerow had resided in Port Hope district for the past 18-months and had previously spent all his life here. He retired three years on the town council He was a well known conservationist and boat builder. The funeral is being held here Saturday afternoon with entombment in Oakwood vault.

Survivors are his wife, formerly Ada MacDonald, and two sons Norman of Port Hope and Donald in Toronto.

LATE JAMES ALEXANDER KERR

Funeral services for the late James Alexander Kerr were held Thursday morning March 30th at 9:30 a.m. from the Hotel Gilbert for Solemn Requiem Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral.

The bearers were Douglas McMaster, Fred Morgan, B. Peck, G. Young, G. Fraser and D. Williamson.

MISS CATHERINE CUTTLE (Madoc)

Madoc, March 31—(Special) — Miss Catherine Cuttle died here on Thursday at the home of Miss Phroma Danford. She was in failing health for some time. She was born in Huntingdon township 86 years ago and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cuttle. All her life was passed in this community. She was a member of the Standard Church.

Surviving her is one sister, Mrs. Alice Pigden, Madoc.

Resting at the Duffin Funeral Home, Madoc; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

POLICE BLOTTER

Theft of a parcel of dry cleaning from between doors was reported to police by an east hill resident. Value of clothing in the parcel amounted to about $16, it was stated.

Two brothers with their families who moved into a vacant house on Starling street without the permission of the owner have received orders to vacate promptly. The matter was brought to the attention of police who advised the families to move.

A bell hop at a local hotel who was found utilizing his spare time by shooting at the hotel windows with an air pistol is without same air pistol today. Police Chief Taylor has confiscated the air pistol and asked the youth to report to the police station.

IN MEMORIAM

CLARE — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Annie May Clare, who passed away March 31, 1949.
No one knows how much we miss you
No one knows the bitter pain
Of losing one we love so dear
You have left a vacant chair
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
Ever remembered by husband Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Clare and family. M31

CLARE — In memory of a dear mother, Annie May Clare, who passed away March 31, 1949.
Sadly we pause before the grave,
It is sweet to breathe thy name,
In life we loved thee dearly,
In death we do the same.
Ever remembered by daughter-in-law, Lois Clare, Thomas and grandson, Allan. M31

CLARE — In loving memory of a dear mother, Annie Clare, who passed away March 31, 1949.
Her hands are folded, her work is done,
Her race we have loved for Christ.
We think of her when the sun's last beam
Go down in the far-off west,
We hear her voice at the time passes on.
For peace can never close our hearts
And the lamp of our love is still glowing
Her heart the truest in all the wide world
Her love the best, to recall.
She is not dead, death only take her
She is only the dearest of all.
Sadly and ever remembered by son Fred and family. M31

CLARE — In loving memory of a dear friend, Annie Clare, who passed away March 31, 1949.
Sweet friend, a year has gone and fled,
But as we can do, dear mother,
We shall remember you.
Years that come cannot ever
Take the memory of your love
To the best mother God ever made.
We like to think of you still
Wherever heaven may be
That she is watching at the door
Up there to welcome you.
Ever remembered by daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Pegg. M31

COLDEN — In memory of my dear grandmother, Mrs. Annie Colden, who passed away one year ago March 31, 1949.
A wonderful grandma, and very dear to me,
One who was loved never made
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million, that grandma was you.
Just in your judgment straight,
Honest and true in every sight,
Loved by your friends and neighbors,
Sadly missed by all.
A wonderful grandma, that grandma was you.
Sadly missed by May. M31

DERMOTT — In loving memory of my dear wife and mother, who passed away March 31st, 1948.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by husband of a loved one.
I cherish still with love sincere
A day when with me I spent.
And one that I will never forget.
I miss her more than words can tell
What I spent our happy hours.
In memory of her I love so well.
As long as I live I shall remember the same.
Still in my heart she is living yet
For I loved her too dearly to forget.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by husband Mr. Wm. Dermott. M31

DERMOTT — In loving memory my dear mother, Maud Dermott, who passed away on March 31, 1943.
Though her smile has gone forever
And her hand we can't clasp again
Still we have so many memories
Of the day she left us behind.
Memories to cherish and memories
With which we'll never part
God has her in His keeping,
We have her in our hearts.
Sadly missed and always remembered by Verna, Lyle and grandchildren, Mildred and Ross. M31

SHORNER — In loving memory of our dear son W/O Kenneth Shorner R.C.A.F., and comrades who in the Supreme Sacrifice over Germany March 31, 1945.
As one farm forth to battle
As one he fought and died
To face the call of duty
With courage and confidence behind.
You have met your final challenge
Your soul took flight in that hour
But well we know who closed your eyes.
We'll meet again, again, lovingly remembered by Mother, Dad and Ken. M31

SHORNER — In loving memory our dear brother W/O Kenneth Schorner, R.C.A.F., killed while on active service March 31, 1944.
Sweet memories of a dear brother
Who made the supreme sacrifice
Over Germany March 31, 1944.
Sleeping in a foreign shore,
Sometimes we wonder if his earthly body
Away from mortal pain,
We know a glorious crown awaits
For he is home again.
Lovingly remembered by Fred, Nancy and Kenneth.

March Goes Out Like Lamb With Touch of Winter's Breath

"Sullen snow-laden skies, a blustery wind that carried a nearblizzard in its gusts, driving particles of snow that heralded a major storm greeted a winter's weary citizenry this March morning.

The above paragraph appeared in the March 1st edition of the newspaper, and it speaks for itself.

The legend that if "March does in like a Lion, it will depart like a Lamb," or words to that effect seems to have held good-well, at least almost good,—in 1950.

Today, the herald of All Fools' Day (in case you've forgotten) was ushered in by near-zero, cloudless sky, old Sol shining in his full glory but with the breath of a hard-dying winter still apparent.

March came in like a lamb, but the lamb wore a fleece-lined coat and needed its rubber overshoes. Its nephews were tempered with frost, with the atmosphere generally, more like the chops than the roar.

The Moira River celebrated the event by quaffing what was left of dirty dishlicorice and beer from the field in the bay proper. Novelties and one or two "islands" remains between the "lower" city bridge and the site of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Uptown the stenographic "islands" and the office "lions" walked or rode to work in fur coats and winter overcoats.

In house and apartment, there was no sharp reduction of coals and wood, or juggling of thermostats. The heat "felt good" despite brilliant sunshine that streamed through windows.

All the signs of Spring—well, nearly all—are here and have been given due publicity. All that remains is the whims of the weatherman, and if that gentleman is as weary of winter as his fellows are, he'll clamp down on the frosty stuff and give them showers and "April" Lilys, woollies and the overcoats, and wear that spring raiment.

Truck Turns Over, Driver Sustains Broken Shoulder

Leonard Maracle, Mohawk Indian reserve, is in Belleville hospital with a broken shoulder and 15-year-old Frances Maracle, Tyendinaga, is in hospital suffering from head injuries sustained when the truck in which they were riding Thursday night turned over in the village of Deseronto.

Chief of Police Harry Pratt stated that the driver of the overturned truck stated that he had been alone in the vehicle but that two hours later he visited the scene and a car at the office of Dr. J. B. Willoughby.

Council Will be Invited to Meet Bd. of Education

Members of city council will be invited to meet with the Board of Education to discuss matters pertaining to the debenture issue for the proposed new public school in East Belleville.

This was decided by members of the Board at a special meeting held Thursday night when the entire matter of the debenture issue refused three weeks ago by city council was thoroughly discussed.

Members of the Board had awarded the contract for the construction of the proposed school to the St. Lawrence Contracting Company of this city, accepting the second lowest tender which was $23,641 higher than the lowest tender submitted by the Board will appear in Saturday's paper.

New Teachers Appointed

Nine new teachers were appointed to the public school and the Collegiate staffs with duties commencing at the opening of the school term in September.

New teachers for the public schools staff include Miss Margaret Davidson, Kingston; Miss Dorothy Conway, Deseronto, W. J. Burgoyne, Belleville; F. J. Dier, Belleville; Miss Marjorie Greer, Wellington and Miss Marilyn Keen, Belleville. The two additions to the Collegiate staff will be John S. Gluck, drafting teacher from Fort William, and J. E. Snetsinger, commercial department teacher, Toronto.

Later investigation revealed the girl had been a passenger in the truck driven by Leonard Maracle.

The identity of the driver of the car which picked the girl up, or where she had been between the time of the accident until she was let out at the doctor's office was not immediately learned by police.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto March 31 (CP)— Low-priced mining stocks continued as feature performers on the Toronto stock exchange today but price changes were held to a narrower path than Thursday. Volume for the first three hours was 1,695,000 shares.

Gold issues with property in the Bourlamaque district, Northwestern Quebec accounted for almost half of the turnover. Aumaque Mines was under profit-taking pressure for a slight loss. Norseman was the most active issue, gaining 1-2 cents at 16. Queenston, D'Aragon, Goldora, New Thurbois and West Ashley were among other active low priced stocks.

Industrials firmed from Thursday's declines. Market leaders slowly gained fractions. Winnipeg Electric highlighted a stronger utility list with a gain of 1 3-8 at 37 7-8. Papers, constructions and liquors were also higher.

Western Oils climbed steadily on gains ranging up to 20 cents in key stocks. East Sullivan featured Base Metals, adding 40 cents at $6.40. Noranda, International Nickel and Quemont slipped fractions.

122-Pound Calf May Be Record-Breaker

Kingston, March 31. (CP)—A graded Holstein cow probably doesn't know it but the 122-pound calf she gave birth to Wednesday appears to be a record breaker—at least for Ontario.

The spindly legged newcomer has gained a pound so far. Her owner—Reeve W. O. Prior of nearby Howe Island—hasn't got around to naming her.

The animal is active and robust—unusual for overweight calves. Mr. Prior has a herd of 40 cattle, most of them graded Holsteins. He is planning to build up a stock of purebreds.

Meanwhile Ontario Agriculture Department officials thumbed through record books, CP figured that birth weights exceeding 100 pounds are rare.

Ottawa, (CP)—Federal Agricultural officials expressed interest in the 122-pound Holstein calf born on a Howe Island farm but said it was no record bovine baby.

Only last year, they said, a 125-pound calf was born to a purebred Holstein cow at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. They did not even know if this was a record.

Generally Holstein calves weigh about 100 pounds at birth but birth of 118-120 pound calves is not unusual.

'Magic' Kerchief Story is Heard In B.C. Court

Victoria, B.C., Mar. 31 (CP)— After hearing a story of a "magic" kerchief, Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane Thursday ordered 19-year-old Tina Kaslov extradited to face trial in Buffalo, N.Y., on a charge of fraud.

She is accused of obtaining $3,900 from Mrs. Anna Doerfler of Buffalo by means of a drinking glass, an egg and two handkerchiefs. Buffalo police also say that the girl jumped $4,000 bail.

Affidavits read in court quoted Mrs. Doerfler as saying she was cured of a "rare" disease after watching Miss Kaslov and the girl's mother, Mrs. Catherine Dennis, say incantations over an egg, glass and handkerchiefs. The affidavits said Mrs. Doerfler handed over $3,900 to the women in an investment.

Mrs. Doerfler said in the affidavit that there was told her money, wrapped in a handkerchief and "magically endowed" would be returned to her and that, if she left it in a safety deposit box for three months without peeking, her money would be doubled.

When she looked in the box, she said, she found nothing there but the handkerchief.

New York Infant Is Missing From Incubator

New York, March 31 (AP) — One of two infants missing under mysterious circumstances was found safe today in the home of a Brooklyn woman who said she "took the child because I thought it was cold."

The child, six-month-old Diane Marie Rossi, disappeared from a theatre lobby Thursday night while her mother watched a movie. Police after a futile all-night search had feared the child had been kidnaped.

Police said they believed Mrs. Catherine Palmore had mistaken the baby for a neighbor's child and had felt she should take care of it. No charges were made against her.

Still missing was a premature Negro baby, nine-day-old Charleta Holden, who vanished from a Lincoln hospital incubator Thursday night.

Police pressed a basement-to-roof search of the hospital, where the tiny infant first was missed by a nurse, Doris Williams. The nurse told police she found the incubator section ajar and the baby gone.

Dr. Marcus Kogel, hospitals commissioner, said he saw little chance for the baby to survive if exposed to the weather for more than an hour.

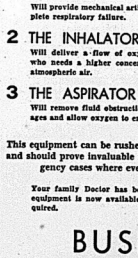
Ancient Tablets Indicate Sumerians Were Mathematicians Before Euclid

Baghdad, March 31 — (AP)— Archaeologists have made a discovery which may force scholars to rewrite the history of mathematics.

The Iraqi Government considers the discovery so important that it has sent a full report to Professor Albert Einstein, greatest mathematician of the 20th century, for detailed study.

Historians always have credited the ancient Greeks with developing the science of mathematics. Euclid, who lived in the third century BC, was immortality for his presentation of the elements of geometry.

But Iraqi archaeologists have unearthed a 4,000-year-old tablet which they say indicates the ancient Sumerians had the answers 1,600 or 1,700 years before Euclid. Will Attract Attention



"This tablet is bound to attract the attention of mathematicians all over the world," said Dr. Naji Al-Asil, director-general of the Iraqi Antiquities Department. "It will certainly be of the utmost interest to all of those interested in the history of civilization."

Truman Lashes Out at Actions Of Republicans

Key West, Fla., Mar. 31 (AP) —President Truman's bitter declaration that Senate Republicans are hindering world peace by trying to torpedo the bipartisan United States foreign policy set the pattern today for the 1950 Congressional elections.

The President unsheathed his fury on Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.), whom he described as the Kremlin's greatest asset in the U.S., and on Senator Styles Bridges (Rep. N.H.) and Senator Kenneth Wherry (Rep. Neb.), whom he named as McCarthy's associates.

At a press conference in the peaceful setting of this tropical naval submarine base, Truman flung by Republican attacks on State Secretary Dean Acheson and McCarthy's charges of communist influences in the State Department foreign policies.

Jack Bush of Bush's Ambulance

Announces a Special Service for Emergencies...

In order to provide the most modern equipment available, we have recently acquired a portable Resuscitator-Inhalator-Aspirator which will be carried in our emergency Ambulance at all times. This machine is a combination of three instruments — each of which serves a distinctly important part in emergency life-saving.

1 THE RESUSCITATOR
Will provide mechanical artificial respiration during complete respiratory failure.

2 THE INHALATOR
Will deliver a flow of oxygen to a breathing patient, who needs a higher concentration than is available in atmospheric air.

3 THE ASPIRATOR
Will remove fluid obstructions from the upper air passages and allow oxygen to enter the patient's lungs.

This equipment can be rushed wherever it is required and should prove invaluable in certain types of emergency cases where every minute counts

Your family Doctor has been informed that this equipment is now available for his use when required.

FORESTS OF THE FUTURE

Vancouver Island is planting eight million trees on logged-over and burned land.

This is commendable in the highest degree, serving a present advantage and offering a future heritage for the people.

Trees have always had a charm for mankind. History is full of stories of man's relation to the woodlands and tradition has many a story related to the forests and the people who inhabit them.

The value of forests is recognized everywhere for their intrinsic value and also for their part in aiding the fertility of the soil for trees protect the soil from erosion and help store up moisture which will provide at all times water for the soil and crops and for the creation of electric energy.

FIRE LESSONS

The winter now gone has claimed many lives through fires in various parts of the Continent of North America. Thorough-going coverage of news in North America told the story of numerous holocausts in which whole families were wiped out.

With the coming of mild weather in spring, the need for heat will not be so great as to the dead of winter and there should be a marked falling off in the number of fires.

In many of the stories the tale has been told of children being victims.

In such dire tragedies it is to be expected that there will be also told the story of human courage in rescue or attempted rescue of children or elderly or crippled persons. Many such tales have been told.

The lesson is apt. It is the need of endless care and precaution to avoid doing anything that might cause fire.

Fire is a friend if run without which he could not live. It is necessary to life. But it must never become the master for trouble lies that way.

KILLER FROM THE SEAS

Some watchers or fishermen might have spotted the vanguard twenty-five years ago — a few straggling eels moving up a canal men had made to conquer the giant falls.

By this same path up which big ships now make their way to the western Great Lakes had come a sinister invader from the sea — an invader who stayed. The lamprey, a vicious, writhing killer that fixes a disc-like head on a fish for keeps, is ruining a great industry. Unless something drastic and effective is done, fresh water fish in the lakes may be completely destroyed. Already the danger signals are glaring.

Not long ago a veteran fisherman of the Great Lakes looked gloomily at his nets piled on a shed floor. He had hauled in his gear, worth $60,000, and had decided to quit. Six hundred miles away; in the famous Fulton Fish Market of New York, the manager of Peck's Slip was reading a sheaf of telegrams telling the same story — no trout or whitefish to be had. And in Chicago the manager of a big restaurant was trying frantically to replenish his stock of Great Lakes fish which appeals to Canadian sources.

Three incidents among hundreds leading to the same harsh conclusion. "The fisheries of the Great Lakes," lately announced the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, "are suffering from a biological disaster."

Due to the lamprey our continent's greatest source of fresh water fish faces a possibility of extinction. — Hamilton Spectator.

"BIDIGAR"

"Bidigar" is grandpa's name.
If you wonder how it
Why they call him that
  today,
"Grandpa" was too hard to say.

So, a little girl of two
Did the best that she could do,
Seeing him with his cigar.
Changed his name to "Bidigar."

Memory quickly seems to lose
Many words the children use,
But occasionly there's one
By the family carried on;
Kept the better
  Long, with all its tenderness,
So the young and grown-ups are Clinging still to
  "Bidigar."

Dear old "Bidigar!" No name
Linked to fortune or to fame
Power or wisdom most prized
Has so musical a sound,
Strange that to a child so young Came that gifted ear and tongue
Born beneath a lucky star
Surely you were,
  "Bidigar."

Work of paving some of the city streets, which was stopped last fall, will be resumed shortly. George Street will be the first to receive attention.

The boys are playing marbles and some of the older lads are playing golf—it must be spring.

The Wednesday evening last Mr. and Mrs. S. Bird, who are leaving Holloway to reside near Belleville, were visited by a large number of their friends and a farewell evening was enjoyably passed. Mr. and Mrs. Bird were presented with a beautiful mahogany table, a wicker chair and several pieces of silverware. Mrs. McMullen acted as chairman and the addresses were read by Mrs. H. Townsend and Miss M. Wright. The address from the Women's Auxiliary was signed by Matilda Wright, the President, and Clara Townsend, Secretary; the address from friends in general was signed by Mrs. Franklin B. Spencer, James McMullen and Hamilton Bird.

Mr. J. M. Hurley, M.P., is home from Ottawa to spend the weekend.

The Rev. C. E. McIntyre, pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church, will preach in Lindsay on Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Howe of Montreal, formerly of Belleville, is spending a short time in town.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE DAWN OF A POSSIBILITY

The greatest moment in any one's life is when he suddenly awakes to the consciousness that he is more than a mere entity—that he was born to be somebody: in other words, a possibility in the dawn.

Benjamin Franklin was not merely an American. He was a world figure, belonging to all mankind. The story of his life is one of the most inspiring ever recorded, coming from a large family, and with next to no education in his youth, yet he became one of the wisest and most creative men of his time. He was a possibility in the dawn in our city. Every time he grasped a possibility, and made it work, he looked about him for a new one. So it was that people sought his counsel, and a nation turned to him in every emergency.

Some of us may have been born under more favorable environments than others, but equally are we born to possibilities and opportunities. So it is that the most neglected to widespread influence. Matthew Arnold once questioned:

"What shelter to grow ripe is ours?

What leisure to grow wise?"

How often it is that the merest event stirs us to some inviting possibility! We have a sudden awakening. We experience a new self. We "listen to the exhortation of the dawn" within us. We tread a new world! There are more possibilities hidden within us than we even imagine. But once the simple is begun, a brood of possibilities appear!

There is dawn until light appears. Likewise there can be no possibilities in the offing until there is a sun-rising in our spirit so as to be on the lookout for such possibilities. Then the latent possibilities in the face and then let them pass by without recognition!

The miner or prospector, never knows what his stake shall be ur'til he starts to dig, and then not until he has dug long and arduously. None of us know his potentiality. It may be richer than he knows. Never may a single gold mine in but thought!

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

LONG BEFORE THE PRINCE OF WALES

As a burglaree in good standing, I can testify that the phrase, "as thick as thieves", is an understatement. Looking for my first robbed subpoenas with lately, the average crook is not only thick—he's dense, dillish and downright dumb.

However, if you don't want to take my word for it, let me place in evidence the immortal saga of Dick Fellows, the bumbleheaded highwayman who operated in California in the 1850's.

According to his biographer, a Wells-Fargo detective named J. B. Hume, Fellows was a goodlooking gent with a early ballad beard who, after serving a lot of paper-sacked novels, got stage-coach-struck and decided to become a bandit. So, suiting misdeed to word, he bought a long barreled pistol which he didn't know how to shoot, rented a white horse with a big rump, and loped off into the hills to hold up the Los Angeles-Calistoga stagecoach.

The horse, an asthmatic old dray, was the soul of gentleness, but the apprentice highwayman was so clumsy in the saddle that the animal finally got irritated and deposited him in a bush. By the time Fellows got there with it the coach was three valleys away and the driver, Charley Parkhurst, that night, he found the sway-back had beaten him into town by a good two hours.

Dented but undaunted, Fellows decided to improve his mount by its way back to Los Angeles. This time he swiped a fine, blooded filly in front of a saloon and the hayburner, undoubtedly of the long-jumping variety, left the bar-rail as he held up the stage and frightened the driver, Charley Brown, down the Wells-Fargo box.

Unfortunately, Fellows hadn't tied up the filly and the well-dressed highwayman carries, and while he was busy with the heavy box, he started to swing it onto the horse's back. The filly broke away too soon for the patient gee gee and it ran away.

Left alone with the box, Fellows headed for a nearby railroad tunnel, where he could be safe in it for the night, but it was pretty dark by now, and on the way he fell into a ditch and an 18-foot cut and broke his left leg. He dragged himself to the box, his other leg and almost crushed it.

So much misadventure would have discouraged an ordinary highwayman, but not Dick Fellows. Using a forked branch as a crutch, he managed to get to a nearby farm and there — so help me Pete Bostwick! — stole horse number three.

Like its two predecessors, this animal proved to be a dyed-in-the-wool turtle. The only trouble was it had lost a shoe back in the hills and the farmer had temporarily replaced it with a mule shoe. That made it difficult for the beast to follow—the tracks looked as if they had been left by a one-legged jigged horse and a one-legged mule—and a few hours later Fellows, who had managed to injured bones and feelings in the Santa Barbara mountains.

The worst, however, was yet to commence. That night a storm hit the tunnel through the floor of his cell, and ten days later when he emerged on the mend, he found himself face to flank with one of God's most unpredictable horses. He climbed aboard, smacked it on the rump and headed for the hills.

But Dobbin had other ideas. It proceeded to give its burden a long burden, it circled the block and tossed Dick Fellows slap in the middle of the public square —directly across from the jailhouse.

Fellows was picked up and released on bail, but before the rest of his days wouldn't so much as ride on a merry-go-round.

When the editor of a local paper heard about the checkered and checkmated career of the would-be desperado, he ran an editorial entitled, "Crime Doesn't Pay". Dick promptly sent him a letter in which he announced a most heartily concur.

According to the police, the men who broke into my house made their getaway in an old Packard.

Too bad they didn't use a horse.

Partition of Emerald Isle Burning Issue

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The vote in the United States House of Representatives, denying Britain further aid funds as long as Ireland remains partitioned, is a sensitive affair subject to expected revoke, but it has given Eire a shot in the arm nevertheless.

Dublin, Belfast, London and other capitals reacted, each according to its lights. The house vote was generally considered as political by-play, but the effect of this surprise maneuver has been to emphasize again that the partition of the Emerald Isle is a burning issue of our time.

Joseph D. Brennan, counsellor of the Irish legation in Washington recalls a conversation in 1938 at the British Empire exhibition in Glasgow with the late Lord Craigavon, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, and Sir W. Dulanty, United States High Commissioner in London, was also present.

"We had just concluded the trade agreement with Great Britain which restored to us the bases which the British had retained, Lord Craigavon congratulated Mr. Dulanty on the occasion of the settlement of a long-standing dispute with Ireland.

"You did fine, Mr. Dulanty, but you didn't get the north — you will never get the north," Lord Craigavon added.

"At that point Lady Craigavon who also was present, broke in to say:

"Speak for yourself, James. Never is a long day."

"Apparently Lady Craigavon had a better understanding of what was likely to occur in the future than her husband had at the moment," he added.

Lady Craigavon was right. I have been told on good authority that sooner or later Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic will unite. The great question is "when?"

In the course of time, optimism was expressed by John J. Hearne, the Irish Republic's first envoy to Washington with the rank of ambassador. Hearne returned to Eire on his way to Washington from Canada, where he had been the country's high commissioner, and with a press conference that he believes that the present is the best time for a period he is ambassador here.

Perhaps we may get a better picture of the Northern Ireland's viewpoint during the forthcoming visit of Sir Basil Brooke. Sir Basil Brooke, who is en route here with Premier Stormont, is being deterred from this trip by the House of Representatives vote but he will nevertheless be a Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York and Sir Basil Brooke won't be welcomed at New York City Hall because the Prime Minister's government banned the recent St. Patrick's Day celebrations.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Despite the enormous strides of the past few years in the field in social reform as in what you might call social sympathy or human understanding, a great many people still survive who maintain in a pretty hard-boiled attitude towards those they think of as their underlings.

"There are very few people," said a housewife I know, "to whom I would recommend a charwoman."

She has in mind those numerous pleasant and amiable women who can afford to have a charwoman come in once a week or so, and who have clearly planned out the jobs the charwoman has to do to earn her wages. Floors to polish, vacuuming the rugs scrubbing and cleaning the recreation room, dusting, polishing silver—all the things that two and three dollars can excuse the lady of the house from knuckling down to.

But in contrast to the housewife quoted above, here is another who has much other work the week, delivered herself of this opinion:

"Two of my friends, darn them, are trying to get my charwoman to work for them. They think she's a wonder. The fact is, she is a good housekeeper, and over her and make her work. I don't put up with any gossiping or nonsense. A dollar is a dollar, I say. So I'm not going to send my woman to them. If they worked her as hard as I do, she would be all tired out and I'd have to look for a new one, a charwoman who has a lot of places. They're no good. What I like is a woman with a family who has to go out and work a couple of days a week. They like would have found herself there. And also her poor old char.

But nevertheless, Dickens is shining, slow but sure.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HABIT A CONTROLLING FACTOR

There is a vast difference between mere knowledge and the psychology that some of us studied thirty years ago or more. Modern psychology maintains that most of the evil man does comes from suppressed desires and frustration. Evil acts are the projection of disturbed inner life. The old psychology, on the other hand, emphasized the physical basis of habit and declared that people fell into disadvantageous ways of living by building up bad habits of thought and act. The famous chapter on habit written by William James a generation ago set forth this latter point of view.

For many of us, worry is a habit. More often than not anger is not the projection of a frustrated life but a miserable lack of self-control which has grown out of indulgence. Habit is a factor in life which many modern thinkers are disregarding. Many sick people would be well, many miserable people would find joy and set-to resolutely and get themselves a new set of habits.

There is only one way to make over one's life, and that is by putting into operation a policy of habit reform, breaking some bad habits and establishing some good ones.

It is much more simple than the modern psychologist would lead us to believe. What it requires is earnestness and not psychiatrical treatment at $25 an office call.

BEER AND THE LIVER

Alcohol is the chief cause of cirrhosis of the liver. So said the late Dr. Osler in the "Modern Medicine" fifty years ago.

Since that time there has been able to produce cirrhosis of the liver in animals by the administration of alcohol, although the attempt has been made repeatedly. So says Dr. Frank B. Mallory, emeritus professor of pathology, Harvard, in the Cyclopedia of Medicine and Surgery.

Osler hedged a bit, however, by adding that cirrhosis is more common in countries where strong spirits—whisky, gin and brandy—are used than in those where wine and malt liquors—ale, porter, lager, etc. stout, beer—are the popular alcoholic drinks.

When I was a medical student some of the cases of cirrhosis of the liver selected by our instructors for group study were in heavy beer drinkers, and a well known professor of medicine presented in his clinic a patient with cirrhosis who had for years consumed three pints of beer a day and never even tasted whisky or other alcoholic beverage or liquor.

These views of an earlier period were not necessarily correct. As Ragnar Berg of Sollich wrote in his book Alcohol Explored (Doubleday Doran, 1934): "Among the deadly diseases of chronic alcoholism, cirrhosis of the liver looms in the public mind as the most characteristic; this, in spite of the fact that the disease does not occur in more than 8 per cent of all chronic alcoholics. But it occurs overwhelmingly in those who use alcohol, and that there has been considerable discussion as to whether the question of whether it is in any way related to alcohol."

Among 210 cases of cirrhosis of the liver in France reported on the condition of wine (vin ordinaire) alone was noted in 66.

Continuing autopsy records of many large hospitals showed that cirrhosis of the liver occurred nearly nine times as often in chronic alcoholics as it occurred in normal drinkers and abstainers.

One of the authorities cited above (Howard W. Haggard, M.D., director of the laboratory of applied physiology, Yale University) said in a personal communication to me that among chronic alcoholics it is rare indeed to find one who limits his drinking to beer. It is the high concentration of alcohol in distilled spirits that drives the liver to excessive drinker the "kick" he seeks and the polyneuropathy he develops (Polyneuropathy means multiple neuritis, or inflammation of nerves of peripheral paralysis).

Dr. Haggard, whose scientific study of the alcohol problem is supplemented by extensive clinical experience in the treatment of alcoholism, observed that like his late colleague, Yandell Henderson, he thinks that anything that would lower the concentration of alcohol in alcoholic beverages to 2.75 per cent would ameliorate alcoholism "if we get the drinker to use nothing stronger than beer. I think that the medical problem of alcohol would become unimportant."

Well, there it is. Being a radical opponent of alcohol as beverage or liquor, in any concentration, I have purposely leaned backward in the endeavor to present the question as it is.

According to police, state and municipal statistics alcohol as

Twenty Homeless After $100,000 Montreal Fire

Montreal, March 31 (CP) — More than 20 persons are homeless today following a three-alarm fire which caused an estimated $100,000 damage to a four-storey business and residential block on downtown St. Catharine St., Thursday night. No injuries were reported.

The building housed 18 apartments and a number of business establishments, including the gutted Honey Dew restaurant where the blaze broke out.

Some 40 persons, living in the apartments above the business premises, were evacuated.

Damaged by the sprawling flames were the International Business College, the Rondo Music Store, the Toronto Book Store, the Modern Clothing shop the Manart Photo Centre and the Shoe Salon.

After the first fire was brought under control, a second blaze broke out in a radio-building, a short distance away. It was brought under control in 20 minutes but damage from smoke and water is expected to be heavy.

More than 300 firemen from 20 stations answered the three alarms and all available police officers were ordered to the area to reroute traffic and keep back curious crowds.

Canadian Congress of Labor Asks Cabinet for Seven-Fold Plan to Boost Available Work

Ottawa, March 31 (CP)—Taxing the government with trying to minimize the seriousness of unemployment the Canadian Congress of Labor today asked the Cabinet for a seven-fold program to boost the amount of available work.

In its annual submission to the government, the 350,000-member CCL said changes in Canadian economic and social institutions might be needed.

It placed emphasis on a demand for a planned effort to increase consumption of Canadian goods at home and abroad—and to keep increasing it as fast as the country's productive power grew.

Chiefs of the Congress under President A. R. Mosher delivered the brief to Prime Minister St. Laurent and members of the Cabinet at a meeting in the Parliament building.

The brief concentrated heavily on anti-unemployment measures with these proposals:

1. Use of the government's monetary and fiscal powers to maintain demand for Canadian-produced goods.

2. Maintenance of consumer demand by circulating more money through a broad social-security program.

3. Diversification of industry to encourage mobility of labor and cut down regional unemployment.

4. Action to curb seasonal fluctuations in unemployment.

5. Use of the government's "rainy day" shelf of public works projects (which the Cabinet earlier advised the Trades and Labor Congress it does not propose to use at this time).

6. New methods of keeping and expanding foreign markets.

7. Adoption of the 40-hour work week, which by reducing hours of work would tend to spread employment.

Reaches High Level

Declaring that this year unemployment has reached higher levels than at any time since before the war, the Congress said it was amazed to find that the government not only has no policy to deal with unemployment, so far as we are aware, but has endeavored to minimize the seriousness of the situation with a view to justifying its own failure to participate wide-scale unemployment."

It would appear said the Congress, that "the shelf of government projects which had been envisaged is bare, and government spokesmen quite calmly dismiss the unemployment of between 400,000 and 500,000 workers as negligible or as seasonal, and therefore bound to disappear with the advent of warmer weather."

Apart from unemployment, the Congress made these recommendations:

1. Increase in benefit payments and other changes in unemployment insurance coverage.

2. Housing measures including the lowering of interest charges, encouragement of a group of co-operative projects and greater development of subsidized, low-rental housing.

Shows Undue Haste Claim

3. Maintenance of "strict" control of rents, with a statement that the government has shown "undue haste" in divesting itself of control and allowing increases.

4. Every effort to prevent further increases in the cost of living.

5. Extension of the coverage of the Federal Labor Code and changes in several provisions.

6. A Federal social-security program covering the whole field of health, invalidity, old-age pensions and others, and paying old-age pensions without the means test.

7. Continuance of the government's present policy on radio broadcasting.

8. Further development of the National Film Board.

9. Federal financial aid to education.

10. Legislation to promote racial and religious tolerance including passage of a bill of rights.

11. An immigration policy which would hold down mass immigration in view of shortage of housing and unemployment, and which would be under a commission including representatives of labor and industry.

12. Federal aid in providing more markets for coal mines.

13. Establishment of the proportional representation system in federal elections.

14. Legislation outlawing injunctions against "peaceful picketing or other interferences with the rights of labor."

Hearing Sawing, Governor's Wife Foils Jailbreak

Brampton, March 31 (CP) — An attempt by two youths to break out of Peel County jail, where they were awaiting sentence for breaking and entering, ended in failure Thursday night when the governor's wife heard sawing noises from a cell.

Mrs. Joseph Mitchell called her husband who went to the cell of Edward (Teddy) Everson, 19, and Roderick (Rocky) Morrissette, 23. He found one bar had been sawed through and three others partly sawed by a hacksaw blade.

Both youths refused to say how the blade got into the cell. Later, three more blades were found in the cell.

In court today, Everson was sentenced to one year definite and six months indeterminate, and Morrossette one year. They were convicted of breaking into a drug store and stealing goods valued at $160.

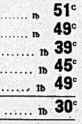
COLONEL G. BEST

Sponsored by the Salvation Army, a young people's council taking in mid-Ontario division from Whitby to Gananoque will be held at the local Citadel on Pinnacle Street on Saturday and Sunday.

In charge of the various council sessions will be Colonel Gilbert Best, field secretary of the Salvation Army for Canada and Bermuda.



Colonel Best is a native of Newfoundland and is a former school teacher. Following receipt of his commission with the Salvation Army in 1908 he served in three field appointments in Canada later receiving appointment to territorial headquarters.

In 1925 Colonel Best became divisional commander for the Ottawa division. He was later in command at the London and Montreal-Ottawa division and in 1939 was named secretary for war services in Canada. He was appointed field secretary in 1945.

$100,000 FIRE LOSS

New York, March 31—(AP)—Hundreds of mental patients watched calmly early today as a fire roared through a staff dormitory at Manhattan State Hospital for the mentally ill. The blaze sent 69 nightgown-clad women, all hospital employees, fleeing from the 2½ story brick dormitory. One woman was injured. Although there were screams and panic among some of the dormitory occupants, officials said no disturbance occurred among the 4,000 mental patients housed nearby. Officials estimated damage at $100,000.

Boy Finds Body Of Father Crushed Beneath Logs

North Bay, March 31 (CP)—A boy on his way home from school Thursday found the body of his father crushed beneath a sled-load of logs at Rutherglen 20 miles east of here.

Elmo Smith, 43, had been killed when his sled jackknifed, throwing him onto the ground. The heavy load slipped from the sleigh and crushed down on him.

The tragedy was less than 500 yards from his home.

His son, Roy, found the body.

Two Homes, Garage, Stores Wiped Out At St. Xenon Village

St. Xenon, Que., March 31. (CP)—Fire which threatened to destroy this village in the Laurentians was brought under control Thursday night after wiping out two homes a garage; a restaurant and grocery store. There was no immediate estimate of loss and no one was injured.

Volunteer fire-fighters were called in from nearby villages. They put up a six-hour fight to save other buildings.

The blaze cut telephone lines between St. Xenon and Joliette, 40 miles to the south. Communication was restored this morning.

Two-Headed Kitten Seems Healthy

Union City, N.J., March 31. (AP)—You never saw a purple cow, no doubt, but you can see a two-headed kitten at veterinarian J. J. Peterson's office.

Peterson said he delivered the two-headed puss along with three other normal kittens in a caesarian section performed on the mother Thursday.

Dr. Peterson said the kitten has two mouths and three eyes and appears perfectly healthy. It still is too early to determine if the separate mouths and eyes function independently.

Dr. C. M. Graves said most of the deaths have occurred among elderly persons with weakened physical systems.

Land of the Maple

Whether March goes out like a lamb or a lion everyone feels that when April comes it will soon be spring.

Maple syrup is a true messenger of spring for when the sap runs we know that the buds and leaves will soon be springing out and the world will come alive again. Maple syrup is a truly Canadian sweet and should be more widely enjoyed throughout the year. Of course hot biscuits or griddle cakes with plenty of butter and maple syrup are treats worthy of frequent serving but the flavor of maple blends well with custards and cereal desserts and the syrup sweetens as well as flavors.

Here are three delicious custardy desserts which are suggested by the home economists of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Maple Tapioca Cream

1-2 cup maple syrup; 3 cups of milk; 1-4 cup quick-cooking tapioca; 4 teaspoons salt; 1 egg yolk; 1 egg white.

Heat maple syrup 3 minutes. Reserve two tablespoons for meringue and remainder to heat in milk in top of double boiler. Add tapioca and salt and cook until tapioca is transparent. Add a little small amount of hot mixture to well-beaten egg yolk. Combine with mixture in double boiler and cook three minutes. Remove from heat and fold in meringue made by beating the 2 tablespoons of syrup into the stiffly beaten egg white. Serve warm or thoroughly chilled. Yield: six servings.

Maple Rice Pudding

1-4 cup rice; 2 cups milk; 2 1-2 tablespoons cornstarch; 1-2 cup maple syrup; 2 egg yolks; 2 egg whites; 1-4 cup maple syrup.

Boil rice in salted water until tender, drain. Scald milk in top of double boiler. Blend cornstarch to a smooth paste with the 1-2 cup maple syrup and add gradually to the hot milk. Stir until mixture thickens and continue cooking 15 minutes. Add rice and well-beaten egg yolks. Place in greased baking dish. Beat egg whites until stiff, gradually add 1-4 cup maple syrup beating until stiff. Spread over pudding. Bake in moderate oven, 350oF., until delicately browned, about 15 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Maple Syrup Cream

1-2 cup flour; 1-2 teaspoon of salt; 1 cup maple syrup; 1 3-4 cups milk; 2 egg yolks; 2 egg whites; 1-4 cup maple syrup.

Sift flour, salt and maple syrup. Add hot milk gradually and cook in double boiler, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Cook 15 minutes and strain. Add small part of the hot mixture to the well-beaten egg yolks. Combine with mixture in double boiler and cook three minutes. Remove from heat and fold in meringue made from egg whites and 1-4 cup maple syrup. Yield: six syrup into the stiffly beaten egg servings.

MARMORA
Fellow Members, LG., Deloro, Honor Departing Sec.-Treas.

Marmora.—Members of the Deloro group of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild turned out in full numbers for the regular monthly meeting held at the home of Mrs. William Mumby on Tuesday evening to honor Mrs. Wilbert Mumby, with her husband and family, will be shortly taking up residence near Trenton.

Mrs. Mumby has been an active member of the group for the past 20 years. For the last two years she has been its secretary-treasurer and is being succeeded by Mrs. Harry Easton.

At this meeting Mrs. Mumby received a gift from her fellow members, presented on their behalf by Myers C. R. Whittemore, president of the group. In so doing Mrs. Whittemore touched upon the faithful services rendered by Mrs. Mumby and wished her prosperity in her new home. The recipient replied fittingly, yet with feeling to the tribute paid her.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Speaker of BC House Voted Woman of Year

Victoria, B.C.—March 31—(CP)—Control of one-time-moon women expect to achieve at least one big lifetime—is possible comment to the accomplishments of Canada's "Woman of the Year," Mrs. Ann Kay, the only parliament-tary in British Columbia under her thumb.

If you want to count her husband, make it 2.

As first woman speaker for a legislature in the British Commonwealth, Mrs. Nancy Hodges is capping a career that includes writing a daily newspaper column for the last seven years and being elected to the last three legislatures for Victoria.

For those accomplishments, the tall, well-groomed politician has been named woman of the year in the annual award of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Last year the award for public service went to Mrs. Norah Arnold, a native British Columbian who was mayor of Prince Rupert in 1948.

Mrs. Carl McCoy, convener of the program committee for the evening, brought an entertaining and instructive program. Mrs. Dowling, from Tweed. Mrs. Dowling was a mission teacher for a number of years at the Indian Schools of Western Alberta. She brought with her a splendid display of Indian craft and paintings.

Mrs. R. McCoy also gave a humorous reading and after the meeting had adjourned the guest speaker for her talk, the meeting closed with refreshments being served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Carl McCoy and Mrs. R. McCoy.

I.O.D.E. Annual Meeting April 19th

The annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter of Ontario, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, will be held at the Royal Connaught Hotel, Hamilton, on April 19, 20 and 21st.

Mrs. Cecil L. Brown, President, will preside at all sessions. Mrs. J. H. Chipman, M.B.E., 1st Vice-President of the National Chapter, D.I.D.E., will also attend.

The speaker at the dinner, to be held on the evening of April 20th, will be Byrne Hope Sanders, C.B.E., editor of Chatelaine.

Victoria Avenue WMC Presents Pageant 'All for Christ'

The Women's Mission Circle of Victoria Ave., Baptist church held its open meeting in the Sunday School rooms, Tuesday evening. The opening exercises, conducted by the vice president, Miss Stevens, consisted of hymns, Bible reading and prayer. Instead of the usual devotional period, Mrs. Clarence Bonter, Mrs. Frank, gave a beautiful reading, "The White Gown."

The pageant "All for Christ", followed, Mrs. Robson, taking the part of Mary Magdalene, the life and suffering of Christ as the world's Redeemer and made an appeal for followers. Six, as disciples answered the appeal, offering, their talents, wealth, time, work, family and prayer in the service of the Master.

A choir of six sang appropriate verses between speeches.

The beauty of the pageant was enhanced by the clever lighting controlled by Mr. Bert Cox.

The pageant ended by the singing of "I Surrender All", after which Rev. Mr. Eastman pronounced the benediction.

MADOC
Proceeds of 'Knit-Wit' Club Tea Used to Buy Records for Pub. School

Madoc—The Knit-Wit Club held a successful afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Connor on Thursday afternoon. The tea table, tastefully decorated with sweetpeas and matching candles was presided over by Mrs. George White, who was assisted by Mrs. E. T. Naylor.

Spring plants added a note of color to the living room, where Mrs. Tom Hawthorne, Mrs. Ed Miles and Mrs. Loreen Connor, served delicious refreshments to the guests who were received by Mrs. Roswell Shaw. The proceeds were most gratifying and will be used to buy musical records for the Madoc Public School.

C.W.L. of Madoc Presents Play

Madoc—The Catholic Women's League of Madoc, presented a three-act play "You Can't Beat the Irish" in the High School, on Tuesday, Thursday.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

You don't eat bass just because they're smart.

Bass are indeed brainy creatures, according to Dr. Frederick S. Barkalow, Jr., a North Carolina college professor, who has studied their habits. Dr. Barkalow observed that bass, instead of spending their waking hours hunting for food, cleverly wait for wild ducks to dive into the water. Then they feed on all of the miscellaneous underwater dishes stirred up by the water fowl.

Because of their big mouths bass can easily poach on smaller fry. This organ unfortunately becomes a liability to cooks who buy bass for dinner and have to pay for the big heads and waste.

But in spite of their brains and their big mouths, bass are wonderfully tender and firm fleshed but not oily.

Bass, with a sweet and sour sauce, is an Italian specialty which has become popular in all parts of the country.

To be sure you are getting fresh fish, look for bright red gills, eyes that are not sunken and flesh that is firm. Fresh or salt water bass may be used in the following recipe.

Bass with Sweet and Sour Sauce
Serves 6.

Order 2 bass weighing 1 1-2 pounds each. Have the fish cleaned and split, with the backbone removed. Place fish in a mixing bowl with 1 cup of cold water and 4 tablespoons salt. Let fish remain in salt solution 3 minutes.

Preheat oven at 400 degrees.

Place fish, skin side down, on a greased baking sheet. Add 1-2 cup hot water to pan. Sprinkle fish with juice of half lemon. Bake fish 15 minutes or until flakes are loose when pressed with fork.

Make sweet and sour sauce as follows: Place 1-2 cup of raisins in 1 cup of cold water. Slowly bring water to a boil. Add 1 meat or vegetable bouillon cube, 1-3 cup vinegar and 1-3 cup brown sugar. Mix 2 tablespoon cornstarch with 4 tablespoons cold water until smooth and gradually add to simmering liquid. Cook until sauce is thickened and clear. Add 1 tablespoon butter, mixing well. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Pour sweet and sour sauce over fish in serving platter or dish.

Bluefish or mackerel may be substituted if bass are unavailable.

MARTHA LOGAN'S FRIED CHICKEN
2½ to 3 Pound tender-grown Swift's Premium Chicken
1 cup butter and shortening
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ tablespoons water

Have chicken drawn and cut into pieces. Rinse in cold water. Drain. Heat enough butter and shortening in a large heavy skillet to make a ½ inch layer. Make together flour, salt and pepper in a paper sack. Put 2 or 4 pieces of chicken at one time into the paper sack. Shake to coat pieces thoroughly. Place chicken in hot fat, skin side down. Brown thoroughly. Turn. Add water. Cover the pan. Reduce heat to cook slowly 30 to 40 minutes or until chicken is tender. Remove the cover. Let chicken cook about 5 minutes to crisp the crust.

MARTHA LOGAN'S BUTTER CRISP CHICKEN
This is a good way to fry 2 or 3 chickens at one time.

Prepare and brown the pieces of chicken as directed above. When pieces are brown lay them in a single layer in a baking pan. Brush with melted butter. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 35 to 40 minutes. Baste with melted butter after 15 minutes of baking. If chicken cannot be served at once, reduce oven heat and brush chicken with more melted butter.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When men "tire of their wives"

"Do all men tire of their wives and homes after a number of years?" asks an unhappy woman who is bewildered by the turn events have taken in her life after 13 years of marriage.

The mother of three children, she is obviously as loving a wife as she is a mother; one who has always, evidently found adequate outlet for her energies and emotions in trying to make her home a happy one for those dear to her.

Because she thought she had succeeded in this chief aim of her life, it came as a bolt from the blue when she discovered that her husband was not getting the same satisfaction out of his home that she was, but on the contrary was hunting for new thrills by seeking the company of other women.

"For the sake of the children" she writes, "and also because I love him dearly, I have forgiven him, but I cannot see what makes men do these things.

"Should I be patient and wait until he has had his fling, or separate from him until he comes to his senses?"

In answer to the general question this distraught wife asks, I would say, No, not all men tire of their homes and look for joy by any means. My belief is that the great majority of husbands and fathers are loyal to the women they marry and the children they bring into the world.

It is quite true, of course, that many a man—even perhaps the average man—gets bored at times with the routine imposed upon him by domestic life and now and then looks around for something, or someone, to break the monotony temporarily. If he takes a pretty girl from his office out to lunch or dinner without telling his wife he has done so, it makes him feel that he has done something quite daring and man-of-the-worldish, and its generally enough to make him ready to settle down into the daily grind again.

But this is no different from what many wives have also experienced from time to time. It is a rare wife and mother who can follow the day-to-day round of housework, meal-getting, care for children, and so forth, without a feeling of rebellion every once in awhile. Undoubtedly, if she were in the husband's position with that of her husband, who gets away from home every day by going to work and so has opportunity for a little harmless extra-marital recreation, she might also cheer herself up and renew her youth by an innocent date or two with another man. Unfortunately—or fortunately, according to how one happens to look at it—she does not have the same opportunities along this line that her husband finds close at hand, so perforce does without. This does not feel all the more outraged when she learns that her husband, who in a very mild way, "stepped out", as the saying goes.

Of course, however, outright infidelity is something entirely different. A wife can afford to laugh off, or even wholeheartedly approve of, her husband's talking a girl out to lunch or even dinner now and again, for after all it usually means nothing more serious than a moment of innocent diversion. Unfaithfulness, on the other hand, is not something a loving wife can take lightly. As she sees it, it means that her husband has tired of her and that the home she has so devotedly made for him means nothing to him any more. Naturally, she feels that life has come to an end.

If, however, she can do as the writer of the letter I have quoted suggests herself, and be patient awhile, there is a good probability that it is not the end of life after all but an interlude; a bitterly unhappy one, it is true, but one which has a chance of leading back to stable ground again.

JOE YULE, FATHER OF MICKEY ROONEY, DIES

Hollywood, Calif., March 30 —(AP)— Joe Yule, veteran showman and father of Mickey Rooney, died at his home today following a heart attack. He was 56.

Yule's second wife, Lee, their two young adopted children, Jerry and Mary Jean, and Rooney were at his bedside when death came.

Suit Detail

Check worsted costume

By VERA WINSTON

CLEVER details distinguish the new suits and add to their charm and interest. In this one it is the deft handling of the revers that excites attention. The suit is of men's wear shadow check worsted, beige and darker beige. The buttoned-down tabs on the revers are edged in brown braid, which is also used down the jacket edge and for the pockets that are cut in one with the suit. A brown leather belt is worn above a padded peplum. Braid edged tabs make a nice sleeve finish.

GOOD MANNERS

Incorrect engraved or printed engagement announcement cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Several of the girls who have worked in the same office with me have, in the past few years, sent either engraved or printed cards announcing their engagement. I thought this was a nice idea, and now that I am going to announce my engagement next month, I decided to send announcement cards. Last evening, when I was dining at my fiance's home, I mentioned this plan, and although no one said anything I felt a queer silence. Apparently, however, during the evening, my fiance's mother took my fiance aside and asked him to tell me that these engagement-announcement cards are incorrect and I shouldn't send them. Are they incorrect? If so, what is correct? (I am not planning to have a party to announce my engagement.)

Margot

Your fiance's mother is right . . . engraved or printed cards announcing an engagement are absolutely incorrect. Obviously she tried to be gracious in not telling you to forbid the family asking your fiance to guide you about this incorrectness. And although this means a temporary disappointment to you, it will in the long run spare everyone any embarrassment.

It's not necessary, of course, to have an engagement-announcement party. When you decide on the date you are to announce your engagement . . . either by wearing your ring for the first time in public, or by having your parents send a formal announcement to the newspapers . . . you tell your happy news to relatives and friends who live nearby, and write notes to those who live faraway, asking everyone to "keep the secret" until the date named; at the same time this simple, correct way the news is told!

Informal invitations for shower-supper

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Very dear friends of ours are to be married next September, and we would like to have a shower for them. (1) It would be convenient for us to give the shower now, but, because of circumstances, not later. Is it too soon to send out the invites for them? (2) Since all their close friends are married, I would like to have a buffet supper and shower for them, not only for her, and invite couples. This is my idea of an invitation I'd like to send, if you approve. Would this be proper:

Buffet Supper and Wedding Shower
(or Hope Chest Shower)
for John and Joan
Saturday (date) at 6:30 p.m.
R. s v p. Tel.—
Jane and Jim
P.S.: Don't tell—it's a surprise!
Reader

(1) No. . . I should say not too far in advance. The couple will doubtless see this earlier date.

(2) I suggest: (a) that you introduce your invitation by writing for example, "We hope you and Bill will come to . . . ; (b) not "Hope Chest Shower", since this would be for the bride-to-be only; (c) write "from me and John", the girl's name first; (d) write "Dancing . . . Cards . . . Eats" and "R. s v. p." Otherwise a good form for this informal invitation.

Means for afternoon Open House

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are planning to give an Open House on a Sunday afternoon soon, to celebrate our Twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary. What are the hours that are considered most appropriate?

R. N.

The customary hours are four-to-seven. Sometimes, for the convenience of guests who come from a distance, three-to-seven; sometimes three-to-six.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Long thigh line is figure requisite

When you are forth to buy yourself an evening frock, you will have a wide choice, as far as the skirt is concerned. It can be full and balloonish, it can be skimpy, it can be waisted-and-between, Lady Fashion isn't the tyrant she used to be. She seems to have weakened to the fact that feminine shapes come in many patterns; what suits one does not suit another.

See the pretty lady on the silver screen as she slinks and slithers along in a sheath gown that fits her lovely frame without a sign of a crinkle. Observe the beauteous model as she struts her stuff at the fashion show, appearing to walk on air. Most of them are tall, long, slender creatures. They have the long thigh lines that seem to be a requisite this season.

Dress designers are stressing this effect. Corsetieres are doing their best to create it for the cash customers. The waist must be trim, hips must be neat, the feminine shape carrying a highly energized appearance that comes from snappy posture. An old mode has been revived in the sheath design—the gown is long, the bodice snugly fitted, there is smoothness over the hips, rather than bouffant effects, and there is flare below the knees.

You will have a wide choice of evening frocks

This season's styles should inspire the plumpies to start on a reducing campaign, because the kind of clothes that are being displayed in the shops are figure revealers to the nth degree.

Women with a diaphragmatic bulge—which is a polite way of referring to the spare tire abaft the waistline—lose out on sartorial joys. They should not bear with this affliction, as it can be corrected by bending and stretching exercises and torso-twisting. No figure defect so destroys harmony of line as the tummy that refuses to stay flat and neat. Over-developed hips are not half as bad, though bad enough, goodness knows. To have mislaid one's waistline is to bid farewell to youthful appearance.

Some foundation garments have the inner girdle that puts pressure and pressure on the mid-section. This trick flattens the waist at the sides, so it becomes rounder—looks smaller, more slender.

A cleverly-cut, correctly-fitted corset will dissemble defects, camouflage them to a certain extent. It is a joy and a blessing to the woman who hasn't the will to settle down to routine exercises that will delete adipose padding, but her in form again. She should not, of course, depend upon this anatomical prop. By means of a non-flattening diet and only the mildest exercises she can force the bathroom scales to give a more cheerful report.

Just cutting down on fats, starches and sweets will often turn the trick.

4TH SIDNEY

Mr., Mrs. D. Meeks Honored by Friends

4th Sidney—A social evening was held in the community hall on Friday evening. The early part of the evening was spent in playing euchre. Later boxes of refreshments were auctioned off by Mr. Cameron Bunnett.

Mr. Hugh Gray then called the gathering to order, and asked Mr. and Mrs. D. Meeks and Mabel to occupy chairs at the front of the hall. An address was read and by Farley Vendrye, presented Mr. and Mrs. Meeks and family with a pair of woollen blankets for which both Mr. and Mrs. Meeks graciously thanked the givers, expressing regret at leaving and hoping their friends would visit them in their new home.

TOOTAL FABRICS

How do you see your working self? Brisk and assured or quietly competent? . . . Office boss or backroom girl? . . . However, or whichever, you need to be on top of your job these days—and you must look right. That is where TOOTAL Fabrics can do so much for you—they hold the secret of perfect grooming.

These wonderful fabrics bring charm and distinction to the simplest tailoring. They all launder superbly, so keep your clothes always spotlessly fresh and new looking. Most TOOTAL fabrics are marked 'TEBILIZED' for tested crease-resistance with those you need never worry about that mussed look—they'll stand up splendidly to the longest day's desk-sitting. And how they last! . . . So many different types—such a wide choice of beautiful colours and clever designs—you can be sure of finding a TOOTAL fabric in perfect tune with your surroundings, to keep you looking always at your best.

Some FAMOUS TOOTAL FAVOURITES

ROBIA a fresh, voile-type cotton that will wash and wear perfectly, for all the delicate appearance. Lovely and enchanting for children's party frocks—in lovely plain colours or lustrously self-coloured floral and colour-woven designs. Marked 'TEBILIZED' for tested crease-resistance. From $1.59 to $1.98 per yard.

LYSTAV a spun rayon fabric of distinctive character, highly absorbent, with a sparkling linen-like surface and supple handle. Especially successful for softly draped or close cut tailored styles. In many rich glowing prints and plain shades. Washable and marked 'TEBILIZED' for tested crease-resistance. $1.39 per yard.

TOOTAL LINEN comes in several weights, covering every fashion need, and possessing all the qualities that make true linen cavalled as a fashion fabric. Whether designed for suits, tailored or draped dresswear, or blouses, each quality is woven from selected flax, carefully processed to exacting Tootal standards, to launder and wear perfectly. All Tootal Linen is marked 'TEBILIZED' for tested crease-resistance.

About CREASE-RESISTANCE

Many Tootal fabrics carry the additional trade mark 'TEBILIZED'. This indicates that the fabric has been treated and tested to ensure that it will resist and recover from creasing much as wool does naturally. Not uncrushable, but crease-resisting. Such fabrics wash perfectly if you avoid boiling and strong soap solutions.

THE TOOTAL GUARANTEE

All goods sold by the Company and bearing the registered trade mark 'TOOTAL' or the words 'A TOOTAL PRODUCT' are guaranteed by the Company and are warranted to give satisfaction.

Should dissatisfaction arise through any defect whatsoever in the material, Tootals will replace it or refund the price and pay the cost incurred in making-up.

The word 'Tootal' and other brand names mentioned are Registered Trade Marks

Sir E. Cripps Will Retire As Govt. Broker

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 31 (CP)— A man whose nod can stop a slump or add millions to the value of British government securities soon will disappear from the London financial scene.

Called the most powerful man on the London stock exchange, Sir Edward Cripps is retiring as government broker. After Easter his place will be taken by 40-year-old Derek Mullens.

Sir Edward, a genial, red-faced man in his 60s, buys and sells stocks and shares for government departments, the national debt commissioners and the Bank of England. These between them hold more than $2,500,000,000 of government debt.

Every morning Sir Edward has a talk with the directors of the Bank of England. From then on his movements are probably the most closely watched in London.

The mere appearance of his top-hatted figure through the door leading to the stock exchange floor brings a flurry of excitement in the market. A stroll by him around the gilt-edged market has been known to start a boom.

Can Work Other Way

One day this winter a sharp rebound in government securities, added nearly £200,000,000 to stock values after Sir Edward came into the market and announced he was a buyer.

But it can work the other way. After, bad economic news last year, selling waves knocked £60,000,000 off values in a couple of hours. Brokers knew that only government buying could break the selling wave, but Sir Edward did not appear.

Sir Edward, who is not related to Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has been government broker 13 years and holds the title of senior member of the brokerage firm of Mullens and Company. This concern has handled the government business for 120 years.

Derek Mullens, Sir Edward's successor, is a great-grandson of the first holder of the post.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

Hence up here on the second-story landing. Wesley did a characteristic thing. he paused to think—listening to force calm reasoning. Mr. Bailey had been awakened in his room, no doubt. He had thought of Ronnie and run out. "They had heard him call, and stop short. Where, then could he have been overcome? To Wes it seemed logical that Mr. Bailey should be here on the landing itself, perhaps within a few feet even now.

That deduction took but a flashing second or so. Wes, dropped to hands and knees, feeling. He swung one leg in an arc, reached everywhere with his hands.

"Unh!" he suddenly grunted, exhaling a bit. He had found his man!

He picked Mr. Bailey up and held him, a limp form, while he reasoned again. The stair would be too dangerous but surely there would be windows to his left. Flames had attacked mostly from the right or east side of the building. Wes turned left.

He progressed by sliding a foot out far in front, bringing up the other and sliding again, thus avoiding obstacles. Mr. Bailey was fat, he recalled. Must weigh a good 160 pounds.

This left-right hallway, a sort of T-top for the stairs proved indeed to have the end window that Wesley hoped for and reasoned it should have. Wesley's foot touched the wall and then one free hand touched the curtains and window pane. The window was closed. He reached up, kicked out once, twice, thrice striking furiously, then bent there and re-filled his lungs. The air he got was tainted but it was verily life itself. Next instant yelled help.

"Help!"

Men below heard him, then saw him in the light of the blaze which now was overhead.

"Hang down from the window!" somebody shouted. "We'll catch you and break your fall! Don't jump!"

He obeyed—by grasping Thomas U. Bailey's hand and draping him down this wall, which as yet was free of the fire. Five men were there waiting. They could almost touch Mr. Bailey's feet.

"Let go!" they yelled.

They caught the limp form and two ran with him to safety. In another moment the remaining three had braced again to break Wesley's own fall. He recognized these men as army officers and mechanics from the hangars. He saw Rouics and Colonel McDavid with her father.

He saw still other men carrying furniture out of the living room, at great risk and ran forward seeking a way to help them. His car parked near the porch, had been rolled to safety along with that of the girls. He saw car lights coming up the trail from the highway and knew the blaze had attracted passersby.

He ran back to Ronnie and saw that Mr. Bailey was reviving. She told Wes that no one else was in the house, and she was crying while trying to thank him so that Wesley took her aside and held her comfortably as one might hold a little child.

The top of her head came just to his chin, and his strong forearm pressed across her back while she sobbed against his chest. He gazed at the blaze now with a feeling of utter helplessness. There was nothing more any man could do. The house was being consumed.

He felt a deep, sympathetic sob rise in his own breast, for there is something infinitely tragic and tragic about a burning home, no matter how new it is nor how wealthy the owners.

Because the road from the Rocking R Ranch swerved right by the University stables, Wesley thought to stop by there. He saw the horse frangler, a friendly fellow, already out working a young filly even though it was but little after dawn.

"Morning Dr. York," the man greeted. "You been to the fire?"

"Yes, Tip, thought I'd drop by and tell you. Whole house burned. Everything but a little furniture. No one hurt much, though."

The man frowned in sympathy. "Mine Ronica home? Glad she wasn't trapped or something and her folks."

She has only a father. Mother died years ago. Both were home, both all right now. They have moved into the cowboy bunkshack until they can rebuild. Other ranchers had brought in beds and things even before the fire died down. Just like the Baileys were poor folks."

The wrangler nodded. "That's how come I like the west, Mr. York. Folks are democratic out here. People don't set no money line. What's the Baileys have to say?"

Wesley smiled a bit. "Ronnie was overwhelmed. Cried like a little girl, although of course the fire itself had upset her tremendously. Tried to say thanks, and choked up. Well, it haven't had any sleep myself, Tip; I'll be going. What're you up at daybreak for? No riders this early."

"Sure thing. One just left. The Montoya girl."

Wes had stepped on his starter and had the lever in low gear; but at that name, he looked at the wrangler again. "Hunh?"

"Sure, Early bird, that gal. She taken a good hoss and ill out before daylight. Sid she aimed to do some painting, or something. Had her a big package; paints and brushes, I reckon."

"That a fact?" Wesley eyed him. "Which way'd she go?"

"Why—off that away. Toward the Canyon. But not many artists ever gis as far over as Rainbow so I don't reckon she'll—"

"What sort of package was it, Tip?"

with members of the House and talk practical things."

J. B. Salsberg (Lab. Pro—Toronto St. Andrew), said Mr. Daley had "the strongest Labor opposition to contend with or any minister before him."

"Open your mind for goodness sake," Mr. Salsberg said.

R. Daley: "If I had a mind like yours I'd keep my mouth shut."

Discussing the clothing factory people died and everything was according to law." This meant the laws were antiquated and must be changed.

Mr. Park said factory safety organizations throughout the province were "employers' organizations". They were often "more interested in saving money for the boss than protecting the employees".

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said the question of fire safety was "of such grave concern it calls for more than a casual consideration" in a conference with safety inspectors.

Premier Frost said he had offered to call a resolution by Mr. Salsberg concerning establishment of a select committee to investigate the clothing factory fire. It should not be debated during the estimates.

When the Premier persisted in interrupting Mr. Oliver, T. L. Patrick (PC—Middlesex North), chairman of the Committee of Supply, waved to him to sit down.

Mr. Frost rose and walked off the floor of the House.

Mr. Oliver said "Well, if the Prime Minister is going to walk out with that attitude, . . ." and Mr. Frost returned to his seat.

C.C.F. Leader E. B. Jolliffe, supporting the suggestions of a committee of the legislature on fire safety, said members of the legislature as "amateurs" might be able to make a greater contribution to the problem.

The use of bronze for memorials is not new, but never has it been more popular than today. The development of "Bronze on Granite" memorials, marks a distinct advance in cemetery care, and many of the largest, most beautifully landscaped cemeteries are insisting on this modern type of marker. They are impressive, economical and permanent. The first cost is less, the upkeep is nil, and are priced easily within the reach of all. The dignity and beauty of a fine cast bronze memorial and its unrivalled permanence makes it the logical selection as the cemetery tribute.

Our representative will point out the obvious advantages of bronze markers, after which if you still prefer the older type high stone, we can supply same. Compare our price and you will find that you will save many dollars. Shop for a monument as you would for any other purchase, bearing in mind to keep the memorial erected simple, dignified and inexpensive.

MAYORS, REEVES

—He was speaking during discussion of an item in the Department of Agriculture estimate for rural hydro. Power is supplied to municipalities on the basis of cases municipalities which now have a cushion between their interim rate and the actual rate will not necessarily have to charge their consumers more.

The interim rate is that which the commission charges each month, Mr. Challies said. At the end of the year there is generally a refund which last year aggregated $1,203,000.

When Health Department estimates were discussed Acting Health Minister Goodfellow said works under way or planned will meet Ontario's accommodation needs for care of mentally-defective and mentally-ill patients within five years.

He said another hospital for defectives at Smiths Falls probably will attend to 300 patients this year. It will take upward of 1,800 when completed.

Building Renovated

A building at Cobourg when renovated will provide accommodation for 400 elderly female patients. Ontario Hospital at St. Thomas will have 1,200 beds this year, an increase of 32.

Health estimates for 1950-51 total $33,398,950, up $9,200,000 from last year.

Mr. Challies told the House it is hoped that increased productivity to the lowering of certain costs of the hydro construction program."

The present economic situation suggested that power demands will continue to increase during 1950.

New home construction and building of new industries as well as "phenomenal growth in rural services and increased mining activity all point to continued load growth," said Mr. Challies. The budget for the current fiscal year was estimated at $162,570,-000.

Ontario Changing

Agriculture Minister Kennedy, in presenting his estimates during the afternoon, said Ontario is changing from an agricultural to an industrial economy. Whereas 70 per cent of the population was engaged in farming in 1871, today the percentage was 15.

Mr. Kennedy predicted that if the present rate of rural electrification is maintained every farm will have hydro within the next two years. Out of the 173,845 farms of more than five acres in size in the province, 104,386 have hydro.

Mr. Kennedy cited the tremendous demand for Ontario cattle as proof of the success of his department's breeding policy.

Last year 45,080 dairy cattle were sold, more than $10,000,000 and 102,575 beef cattle, valued at $25,000,000 were exported to 16 foreign countries.

Amendment Defeated

At the afternoon session opening, William Temple (CCF—High Park) moved an amendment to the new Marriage Act. The amendment, requiring persons about to be married to undergo a blood test for syphilis, was defeated 79 to 18.

Attorney-general Porter moved second reading of a bill to regulate public accountancy.

It sets up the public accountants council composed of 15 members, eight appointed by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario, five by the Certified Public Accountants Association of Ontario and two elected by licensed accountants not members of either organization.

Mr. Porter assured J. B. Salsberg (Lab-Prog.—Toronto St. Andrew) that all bona fide practising accountants would be licensed no matter what organization, if any, they are affiliated with.

Answering a question by A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-P.—Toronto Bellwoods), Mr. Kennedy said he had never used his political influence on the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph "and never will as long as I live".

WISEMAN'S

Used for Storage

Immediately to the south of the gutted building was the store formerly occupied by Percival's. However, the furniture company still had considerable furniture stored in the building. This was covered with insurance in an effort to keep water damage down.

Next store south is that of Janet's Fashion shop. Here there was considerable damage from smoke. Immediately to the north of the gutted building is Reddick's Bakery which also suffered heavy smoke and water damage. Wray's Furniture store next door had a heavy smoke loss to furniture stored on the upper floors.

By a coincidence the Wiseman's lease in the building gutted by the fire would have terminated March 31st and the proprietor intended today to move his stock into the store now occupied by J. Diamond and Sons. Mr. Diamond, owner of the gutted business block, intended to move into the Wiseman store.

Ladder Proves Worth

The fire was the first really heavy loss suffered in the business section of the city since the Chamber of Commerce building was gutted more than two years ago. Also it was the first big fire at which the fire department's new aerial ladder proved its worth. Without the aerial ladder which allowed firemen to get over the blaze and direct water along fire walls and on adjoining roofs, firemen state the blaze may well have gone completely out of control.

City police did a splendid job in directing traffic around the area of the fire and in keeping spectators back out of the road of firemen fighting the blaze.

Busman's Holiday

It was sort of a busman's holiday for Fire Chief W. F. Tilley, with the H.E.P.C. fire fighting department in Toronto, and one of his captains. En route to Des Joachims hydro project on the Ottawa river with a new fire pumper, the chief intended stopping at Belleville for the night.

As they approached the city in their new fire pumper, the reflection from the Wiseman's Store fire was seen in the sky. They immediately went to the scene of the blaze with their new equipment and offered the assistance of their pumper if it was required.

The H.E.P.C. pumper was not used, Fire Chief Vance determining that city owned equipment could handle the blaze.

It was the second fire in little more than a year experienced by Mr. and Mrs. F. Shorey. Some months ago they had been away visiting and returned to find their apartment damaged by fire. At that time fire had started in a pantry re closet, presumably from defective wiring.

Apartment Refitted

The couple had refitted their apartment and purchased new furniture only to have it again destroyed last night. This time, however, the couple were home but were forced to escape out a back window and over a roof when smoke blocked their way down the front stairs.

Mr. Bootlaby stated that when his wife smelled smoke and opened the door to the hall she was met with heavy smoke and a gush of hot air. As they and the family upstairs escaped down the stairs they could hear the flames crackling as the fire burned in the store beneath them.

Great Volume of Water Used

So great was the volume of water being poured into the building at the height of the fire that the west side of Front Street appeared like a river. Cateb boxes at the curb were plugged with floating debris and water six inches deep ran down the pavement as far as Bridge and Front Streets.

Water poured inches deep down the stairs and out the front door of the building.

While the weather considerebly below the freezing point firemen had a cold job as they stuck to their job, some of the men even after they had become drenched. Slippery ladders and walking conditions caused by freezing spray made working conditions more difficult.

Fought Five Hours

Firemen fought the blaze for nearly five hours before it was brought under control. Even when the blaze appeared to be completely out smoke kept curling from the cornice hanging over the sidewalk at the top of the building.

Firemen working atop the aerial ladder chopped and ripped away the cornice and played hose on the smouldering wood to completely extinguish the blaze.

Today the building appears a shambles. The roof is burned off at the rear of the structure and the floors have fallen through. Damage at the front does not appear as great, but water still running from the front of the store attests to the volume of water poured into the building in an effort to bring the blaze under control.

OLD-AGE

Ralph Maybank (L-Winnipeg South Centre), parliamentary assistant to Health Minister Martin, said that old-age pensions must be "made adequate" and the means test "must go". He spoke as a private member.

The basic pension now is $40 a month, of which 75 per cent is contributed by the Federal government and 25 per cent by the provinces. Some provinces pay supplementary payments.

Must Prove Need

The means test is enforced in all provinces. Under it persons 70 and over must prove their need for a pension. In some provinces if a pensioner owns property, the province takes a lien on that property and from it recovers as much as it can from the pensioner's estate when he dies.

Another Liberal, James Rooney (L-Toronto St. Paul's) said he wanted to see a $60-a-month pension paid at 60 to all regardless of means. C. J. Henry (L-Toronto Rosedale) suggested the committee study United States plans under which $100-a-month pensions were being arranged.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) urged Mr. Martin to announce immediately the government's pension plans for the next 15 years. This would enable the committee to call representatives of Labor and Industry and work out a correlation of the individual industrial plans with the national plan.

Favors Contributory Plan

Mr. Diefenbaker's party is in favor of a contributory old-age pensions system, with pensions payable to all as a matter of right at 65.

Boss Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) said his party wanted to see the means test abolished and pensions of $50 a month paid at 65. This would cost about $800,000,-000 a year, a "staggering burden" for a Federal budget that is building at the seams." The people would have to pay on a contributory basis.

Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia) said DC DWC old-age pension should be at least $50 a month and payable at 65 instead of 70. The means test should be eliminated. When unemployment increased as a result of changes in the methods of production the pensionable age should be reduced to 60 to make room in the labor market for younger people

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 31, 1950.

Arsonist Admits Setting Fire To Sanatorium

Philadelphia, Mar. 31 (AP)—A convicted arsonist told authorities a "sick feeling in the pit of the stomach" prompted him to start a sanatorium fire which killed nine other patients Wednesday night.

Nicholas Verna, 29-year-old Second World War veteran discharged from the United States Army for medical reasons, confessed Thursday that he put the torch to the Belle Vista Sanatorium in suburban Springfield Township.

Police said Verna told them he touched off the tragic blaze by lighting a towel in the basement of the institution for convalescent, senile, nervous and mental patients.

Verna was convicted of arson in 1949 and was committed to Belle Vista.

Authorities said Verna told this story of events leading up to the sanatorium fire Wednesday night:

Verna, recently given the run of the institution because of apparent improvement in his condition, ate a couple of hot dogs with an attendant at a night lunch in the office. When the attendant left to make his rounds, Verna heard a noise in the basement. He went downstairs to investigate and began experiencing a "sick feeling in the pit of the stomach."

The feeling grew worse. He spotted some dirty clothing in a laundry chute and set them afire. Then he returned to his room and later was removed from the blazing building along with other patients.

State authorities will confer today on what steps will be taken against Verna.

Meanwhile, agents of the state's Department of Welfare investigated reports that at least five of the patients who suffocated were strapped to their concrete beds in violation of state regulations.

The nine suffocation victims—all men—were in a wing devoted principally to "violent" cases.

TURNS DOWN REQUESTS

Toronto, March 31 — (CP) — City council Thursday night turned down all but a few of the 34 wage and contract changes asked by three score of more than 6,000 civic employees. Bids by the Toronto Municipal Employees' Union, the Firefighters' Association and the civic Employees' Union for inclusion of a 54-cent-a-day bonus granted last year in the basic wage scale in 1950 were refused.

Don Dunlop, president of the Firefighters' Association, said his union will refuse to sign agreement with the city this year.

BARRISTER DIES

Arnprior, March 31 — (CP) — A prominent barrister and former mayor of this Ottawa Valley town, Cornelius Anthony Mulvihill, 58, died Thursday night. He became the youngest mayor in Arnprior's history in 1928 when he was elected at the age of 37.

Ottawa Man Held on Warrant In Slaying

Hull, Que., March 31 — (CP)— A 25-year-old Ottawa man is being held on a coroner's warrant in connection with the hand-towel strangling of Gertrude Marion Davis.

Ordered held on the warrant is John Ralph Hooper, one of four men detained earlier as material witnesses in the murder of the comely, dark-haired Ottawa girl whose nude body, a towel knotted about her throat, was found in a Bridge Street rooming house Wednesday.

The order was issued by Coroner Dr. Gerald Brisson of Hull who will preside at a formal inquest into the girl's death tonight.

The inquest opened Thursday night and was adjourned after the body had been identified.

Hooper and three other material witnesses did not appear at the inquest hearing. Hooper, picked up by Ottawa police for questioning in the case early Thursday, was transferred to the Hull county jail pending resumption of the inquest.

The coroner's warrant was issued a few hours after J. A. Roberts, director of Hull police, announced that the case had been solved.

The police chief said one of the four men detained was not the slayer, but he did not name the murderer. He said in charge of murder will be laid until the inquest is completed.

Authorities said the fingerprints of one of the detained men matched prints found in the third-floor room of the three-storey brick rooming house in which the girl's body was found.

Alfred Gachet, rooming house proprietor, said the couple had registered as man and wife. He said the man had remained for about an hour. A maid found the woman's body the next day.

Unidentified Sub Object of Intensive Search

San Francisco, March 31—(AP) —An unidentified submarine reported off the northern California coast was the object Thursday night of the United States' most intensive sub hunt in this area since the end of the war.

Vice-Admiral George D. Murray, commander of the Western Sea Frontier, ordered search planes and the only immediately-available destroyer in San Francisco Bay on the hunt. It centred off Trinidad harbor, about 280 miles north of San Francisco and some 70 miles south of the California-Oregon border.

A navy flier and the skipper of a fishing boat reported sighting the sub outside the three-mile limit from the coast. Vessels of other countries have the right to sail outside that limit, but the navy customarily searches when it credits reports of unidentified subs near coastal waters.

GOLD BRAID OCCASION FOR FRANCO

An occasion for display of uniforms, gold braid and medals by General Francisco Franco, left, was the arrival of Brazilian Ambassador Rubens Ferrira de Mello. He is the first ambassador appointed by the Brazilian government since 1946 and Franco arranged a special ceremony to mark the event to show his desire for recognition by other western countries.

Author Warns Wives Against Dangers of Monotony in Marriage

Paris, March 31—(Reuters)—French author Andre Maurois warns wives against the dangers of monotony in marriage.

Broadcasting the seventh of his "eight lessons on love" over the Paris radio, Maurois said monotony could drive even the most perfect husband to folly.

His advice to retain just that touch of "coquette" would serve a double purpose, he said. It would keep the husband interested — and induce him to hand out that modicum of "loving words" which kept wives young.

But if things did go wrong and a wife found that her man had been unfaithful, Maurois suggested forgiveness on the basis of the knowledge that "the strongest man is weak before a bold woman."

In love, he said, "tout comprendre c'est tout pardonner"—to understand all is to forgive all.

Snakeblood Highballs Popular in Japan

Tokyo, March 31—(AP)—The latest thing for that run-down, old-age feeling is a snakeblood highball.

"Many prominent Japanese including legislators, government officials, novelists, poets, actresses and geishas are regular customers," a snakeblood salesman said today.

Here's how you mix the drink:

Take one live snake (gingerly, son), hand it by its tail and puncture the bile near the heart. With a gentle massaging motion, squeeze the blood into a glass. Add fruit juice or whatever garnish with snake heart and liver, and serve.

Customers under 40 years are urged to limit themselves to one snake-bill a month, those between 40 and 55 may have six and those over 60 may gorge as many as 20 snorts.

Mother Guilty Killing Daughter At House Party

Rimouski, Que., March 31 — (CP)— Mrs. Elise Dube today was sentenced to be hanged July 7 for the jealousy murder of her "favorite" daughter, Irene, 17.

The 45-year-old woman was found guilty by an all-male jury Thursday night of the shotgun killing of the girl as the climax of an all-night drinking party in her Matane-sur-Mer home last April 3.

A French-speaking jury deliberated 70 minutes before returning the verdict of murder while the black-haired woman stood near collapse in the prisoner's box.

The verdict came at the close of a two-day trial in this lower St. Lawrence River town, 40 miles from Matane-sur-Mer where the woman lived with two of her daughters Irene, 17, and Anita, 19.

The shooting occurred April 5 in the woman's two-room frame house at the height of a 24-hour dancing drinking party during which the woman and her two daughters entertained six men. She had been separated from her husband for seven years.

Choice of Three Verdicts

As the trial drew to a close Thursday night Mrs. Justice Edge told the jury they had a choice of three verdicts, murder, manslaughter or acquittal, the woman shouted hysterically:

"Irene, come and get your mother."

The woman denied quarrelling with her daughter Irene during the party.

"I was very tired. I had taken a lot of liquor and the young people in my house refused to leave," she said.

She said she could remember nothing of the shooting. Her first knowledge of her daughter's death came in a visit from a priest to her cell at Matane, She told the court.

Witnesses Describe Shooting

During the trial witnesses described the party and the shooting.

Anita, the other daughter of Mrs. Dube, testified she was in the attic with a man when she heard the sound of a gun shot. She said they both raced downstairs and found Irene lying in a pool of blood in the kitchen.

Roland Fortin, another man in the house, testified Mrs. Dube threatened her daughters for "going with boys without getting paid."

Jurors Weep As Accused Tells Story of Death

Iowa City, Ia., March 31. (AP) —Jurors, with some of the jurors wept, Robert E. Bednasek told of a "lovers' kiss", which ended in the violent death of the pretty co-ed he is accused of strangling.

He said it was a nightmarish accident, so horrible that he could not recall its full details until he underwent "truth serum" treatment just before his trial began March 14.

A hushed courtroom heard the 24-year-old University of Iowa Senior's taut-voiced story of Margaret Anne (Gee-Gee) Jackson's death in a campus men's rooming house last Dec. 11.

Bednasek said she gasped and fell after they playfully put their hands on each other's throat moments after they had kissed. He said he tried to revive her and then ran to the police for help when life seemed to be ebbing from her.

The State contends Bednasek deliberately strangled the 20-year-old student in a fit of jealousy because she was "drifting away" from him.

On the witness stand, Bednasek flatly denied the prosecution's contentions. He said he and Gee Gee were completely in love when they returned to his rooming house for a nightcap after attending a winter formal dance at his fraternity.

French Actress Warned of Fate If She Continues

Paris, March 31 (Reuters) — Illiane Ernoult, young French actress who took over the role of "Miss Blandish" at Grand Guignol Theatre here after the disappearance of 22-year-old Nicole Riche, has been warned she will "suffer the same fate" unless she withdraws.

Sacha Terride, who plays the part of the inspector in the French version of "no orchids for Miss Blandish" said several warnings to this effect had been passed to him on the telephone. Mlle. Ernoult's mother received two similar warnings.

Several police inspectors were in the Grand Guignol Theatre Thursday night while the actress was being kidnapped and mauled by gangsters on stage — her first performance.

Police were continuing their inquiries into the disappearance of Mlle. Riche, who vanished wearing a fur coat over flimsy underwear —between the second and third acts of the play.

A strange young man had sent a note to the dressing room of the "Miss Blandish" saying: "I want to see you urgently about your mother"

Earlier she had received three threatening letters telling her to give up the part of "Miss Blandish" because it was "immoral."

Mother Arrives To be With Son In Hospital

Detroit, March 31 — (CP) — The Detroit Red Wings' injured Cordie Howe was recovering today with the help of encouragement from his mother.

Mrs. A. C. Howe of Saskatoon, mother of the star Red Wing forward, came here by plane.

She walked unannounced into her son's room at Harper Hospital Thursday, surprising him.

"Ma, mom, what are you doing here?" Howe said.

Afterwards, Mrs. Howe said Gordie told her he was feeling "much better" although his head still ached.

Mrs. Howe flew here with a daughter, Mrs. Gladys Lyell.

Thus it turned out to be a family reunion for Howe's birthday anniversary today. He became 22.

Howe suffered serious injuries in the Red Wings' Stanley Cup semi-final opener with the Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night and he underwent brain surgery.

Doctors said he was "recovering nicely." The team physician, Dr. C. L. Tomlu, expressed confidence that Howe would continue his hockey career next season.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Why Do Good Men Suffer?

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the most difficult problems with which the mind of man has ever wrestled is that of the suffering of good men.

Every religion in the world has taught, in one way or another, the doctrine that if you are good you will escape suffering. But the honest man knows, this is not true.

All about us there are those individuals who have lived exemplary lives, and yet they suffer exquisite tortures. In every community there are to be found those agnostic people whose lives have been upright and honest and who, in the closing years of their existence, are burdened with grief.

The Early Christian Martyrs

This problem was forced upon the thinking of the early Christian Church by the martyrdoms which so many of its leaders suffered.

To begin with, Jesus of Nazareth, the founder of the movement, suffered the most painful and humiliating death the Roman empire could meet out to offenders.

According to the tradition which is reasonably well substantiated every one of the twelve disciples, save one, met death in some violent form as a result of his Christian profession.

The record is incomplete, but there seems to be good reason to believe that the apostle Paul, the great champion of love as the way of life, met death at the hands of the Roman empire.

And the number of martyrs among the plain and common people whose names have been lost to history is enormous. No more impressive effort has been put down to us than those first centuries than the willingness of the Christians to die for their faith.

Those who died because they called Jesus their Master had to have some better explanation than some future marble shaft or memorial church. And those who suffer today have to have something very real to support their courage and their convictions.

The tiny little Epistle of First Peter makes an attempt to answer this problem for the Christians, by saying that if they will follow their Lord's suffering they will also be permitted to share His glory and ultimate triumph. This undoubtedly had the effect of strengthening the inmost hearts of many a hard pressed sufferer.

Another Answer

In the Book of Revelation, written by a prisoner who had been incarcerated because of his Christian preaching, offers another solution. It declares that there is a war on in this world between the forces of good and the forces of evil, and that the ultimate victory rests with the powers that are allied with Christ.

The Sunday School Lesson for April 2: "The Church Suffering and Triumphant." Matthew 24:1-14; 1 Peter 4:12-19; Revelation 7:9-17.

On every battle field there are casualties, but when the victory has been won the wounded have a major share of the honor and the overwhelming joy of the triumph will be theirs.

The Message of Revelation

It was a part of the Christians who were suffering martyrdom at the hands of Rome to believe that in the minority. Rome and Rome's executioners seemed to be everywhere; the people of The Way were so pitifully out-numbered.

But they had an ally whose power was inexhaustible. The ultimate victory was with him. Nothing could defeat him in the long run. Those who surrendered to Rome were eventually to find themselves on the losing side.

In every generation, and under the most trying circumstances, Christians need to be reminded from time to time that our God is not through. His victory will be our victory.

Delete Provision To Up Assessment Chain Property

Toronto, March 31 (CP)— The Ontario Legislature committee on municipal law Thur. voted 21 to 10 to delete from a bill amending the assessment act a provision that would increase the assessment rate of chain stores from 25 to 50 percent of the property value.

The committee approved the rest of the bill, including a clause reducing the assessment rate of wholesale merchants from 75 to 50 percent.

Consideration of the bill was adjourned Monday when the committee chairman cast the deciding vote to hold the bill over until Thursday.

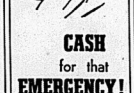
H. A. Stewart (P.C.-Kingston) made the motion that the clause be deleted. He was supported by Progressive Conservative and Liberal members of the committee. C.C.F. and Labor Progressive voted against the motion.

Argue Bill Discriminatory

Chain stores, whose assessment is considerably higher than independent merchants argued that the bill was discriminatory. Those in favor of the bill argued that it placed the tax burden on those best able to pay it.

Ellen Fairclaw, representing Ontario wholesalers, said in no other province were wholesalers so unfairly taxed.

William Dennison (CCF-Toronto St. David) said that because chain stores tended to reduce the number of stores in a municipality they should pay a proportionately higher tax.



"If this is discrimination then the whole income tax schedule is discrimination," he said.

The committee also approved an amendment to the municipal act allowing teachers to be members of municipal councils, It also extends from 14 to 28 days the period in which objections may be filed to an order of the municipal board for annexation or amalgamation

Soil Conditions Generally Good As Farmers Prepare To Seed

By the Canadian Press

With seeding operations due to start within a few weeks, soon still covers much Canadian farmland and is expected to play a major role in 1950 crop prospects.

Soil conditions are generally good, a Canadian Press survey shows. Late snow gets much credit for this. In the west, the snow not only provided much-needed moisture, but also protected the soil from heavy frost damage.

Ontario and Quebec farmers feared that lack of snow during the early part of the winter would leave the soil too dry. But late heavy falls have changed the picture.

May Be Late

British Columbia farmers, hard hit by unusually severe winter conditions, report considerable snow and the strong possibility that seeding will be late. Seventy per cent of B.C.'s 2,500,000-bushel wheat crop is earmarked for the rich Peace River country. Total acreage of wheat, oats and barley may run from 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 bushels.

Alberta farmers plan to devote more land to wheat than last year's 7,600,000 acres. If spring is late, some land will be used for summer fallow. Acreage sown to oats will likely equal last year's 2,500,000 and barley is again expected to fill 2,000,000 acres. Some 100,000 acres of new land is expected to be broken.

Wheat Acreage Cut

Ideal seeding conditions exist in most sections of Saskatchewan except for an area in the northern part of the province where deep frost penetration is expected to cut 500,000 acres from last year's 315,737,000 wheat acreage.

A good reserve of soil moisture in Manitoba at the start of winter has been supplemented by heavy snow which is expected to keep the land good until seeding. Farmers plan about the same amount of wheat as last year but flax, barley and oats acreages are expected to be up.

Conditions are normal throughout Ontario. Farmers intend to start seeding 200,000,000 bushels of grain—an increase of 25,000,000 over 1949—about mid-April.

Hay and pasture crops will be reduced due to a drought during the late summer and fall of 1949. Eastern and northern Ontario farmers plan to increase corn acreage; hay and silage again will be important crops.

Turnip Crop Heavier

A prospect of low prices is causing a cut in Ontario tobacco planting but turnip growers hope to take advantage of increases in both domestic and export possibilities.

Potato seeding in Quebec is expected to be down 20 to 30 per cent from 1949's 160,000 acres because much of last year's 12,800,000-bushel crop was unsold. Tobacco growers will cut their acreage a drastic 50 per cent owing to poor market prospects.

Nova Scotia farmers, thanks to a plentiful year-round rainfall plan the usual crops of 400,000 to 430,000 acres of hay and clover, 60,000 to 70,000 of oats and 20,000 to 23,000 of potatoes.

Potato Crop Down

In New Brunswick acreage of potatoes, the province's major cash crop—a $20,000 industry—is expected to be down.

Prince Edward Island, famed for potatoes, likely will seed a smaller potato crop this year than last.

In Newfoundland, where farming is a minor industry, acreage sown will be unchanged. The crop consists chiefly of such vegetables as potatoes, turnips, and carrots

RUSSIANS APPEAR

Hong Kong, March 30 — (AP) — The China Mail said today Russian troops — men and women — are beginning to appear in Shanghai. There have been numerous reports that Russian military personnel have come into the large cities recently. Some have said the Russians are running anti-aircraft guns, directing coastal defences and advising the Chinese communist army. None of these reports can be confirmed here.

Church Sees Extension Need In Suburbs

Toronto, March 31 (CP) — Expansion of home missions work is "the immediate task" confronting the United Church of Canada, Rev. Dr. W. S. Godfrey of Sackville, N.B. said Thursday.

Dr. Godfrey, superintendent of Home Missions for the church's Maritime conference, said in an address prepared for delivery to the annual meeting of the United Church Board of Home Missions:

"The question today is not 'can we conquer other countries for Christ?' but rather is 'can we hold our own country?'"

The meeting, which started Wednesday and continues until tomorrow, also heard a report from Rev. Dr. R. T. Richards, London, Ont., field superintendent for Southern Ontario.

Establishment of committees to assist Missions work was suggested by Dr. Richards.

"There is need especially in each of our urban centres of some kind of committee or council composed of ministers and interested laymen, who will assume responsibility for initiating and developing new work and for the raising of money to carry forward extension work in their respective rapidly-growing suburban areas," he said.

In his own area, there are four Indian Missions which require full time service on the part of the superintendent, which takes most of his time. At still another reserve, a teacher in the Indian school gives part-time service to the church.

Extra Blankets Issued Patients As Coal Scarce

Timmins, Mar. 31 —(CP) —The Timmins office of a coal distributing firm reported today that American coal is on its way to Hearst, where the public school has been closed for lack of heat and extra blankets have been issued in the hospital.

He said jammed railways in the United States have held up the shipment since the end of the coal strike.

St. Paul's Hospital in Hearst, where 55 patients are shivering under extra blankets, borrowed one carload of coal destined for Spruce Falls Power and Paper Co., at Kapuskasing.

It was reported to have provided a certain amount of heat for the hospital but was too fine to work satisfactorily.

SENT FLOWERS

There was death and fire in the city last night. While flames ravaged the large wiremen's Store on Front Street, the graveside of a Belleville entry in the Central Ontario Baseball League died suddenly at a sparsely attended meeting in Memorial Arena. And there were but few mourners in attendance.

Yep, that's it. Senior, or COBL baseball in this man's city, "ain't" this year, and unless a different attitude takes hold of the city and others who have the power in their hands, there will not be any kind of baseball of the calibre that should be played in a thriving miniature metropolis of near 10,000 souls, at any time.

Some sixteen people turned out at the meeting, two of them working press and radio. The rest were players and interested personages.

Eddie Schriber in the absence of Orliff Lloyd made a brilliant effort to bring some order out of the apparent basketball chaos apparent in the city, if attendance at the meeting is a criterion.

There was spirited discussion but nothing came of it and with the meeting "putting its head against a cement wall" the idea was abandoned.

One thing was definitely apparent. The business men of this city and baseball interests who could and would underwrite a good baseball team in this city, will not throw their money down a one-way drain until some action and co-operation on the part of the city powers-that-be is taken.

Several angles were discussed, but the whole simmered down to what is stated in the preceding paragraph.

It appears that baseball of the type that this city should have and which fandom would appreciate is not possible here and which fandom would appreciate is not possible here and which fandom would appreciate is not possible here

Million Fans Will Witness Race Saturday

Putney, Surrey, Eng., March 31 —(CP)—Britain's biggest free sport show, the Oxford-Cambridge boat race, is set for Saturday and if the weather's good close to 1,000,000 fans will line up along the 4¼-mile course along the banks of the Thames.

The vast majority of these rowing addicts are not university students or graduates, but the event never fails to stir up wild partisan enthusiasm among the public and this year is no exception.

This yea; rowing experts and the betting fraternity agree that the "Light Blues" — Cambridge —should win. They've gone a shade faster in practice trials and figure as 1-3 favorites. But predicting a winner of the tricky, twisting course is always a perilous business.

The course has two 90-degree right-hand bends and one 180- degree lefthand bend, and a crew which "steals the water" at one of these crucial points can upset all form charts.

The race has been held off-and-on since 1829. The "Dark Blues" of Oxford have won 43 renewals and Cambridge 31. Once, in 1877, the crews finished in a dead-heat and the same thing nearly happened last year when Cambridge just got up in time to nip Oxford after trailing all through the race.

TOSSED 50 FEET TO DEATH

Barrie, March 30. (CP)—Douglas Coutts, 18, of Alliston died in hospital today of injuries suffered Wednesday night when he was tossed 50 feet from his automobile after it skidded on the highway at Shelly, five miles south of here.

Two passengers in the car also were injured, Bud Walsh of Alliston was taken to hospital with severe leg injuries, and Joe Zaniak was treated for cuts.

Kitchener Team Will Play Final In Fort Wayne

Kitchener, March 31—(CP)— Officials of the Kitchener-Legionnaires said Thursday they have completed arrangements to play their oft-postponed international Congress Baseball final in Fort Wayne, Ind., early in May.

The Legionnaires will play a seven-game series with Fort Wayne, opening May 7. They will leave by train immediately after their opening game of the intercounty senior baseball season here May 6.

Fort Wayne is guaranteeing the Canadian Club $1,500 and a 25-per-cent share in the net gate, officials said. There will be a special pool of which the winning team will get 60 per cent and the loser 40 per cent.

Each team will be allowed to name 18 players for the series, the names to be submitted to the Congress secretary by April 26.

Carl Voyles Coach, Manager Hamilton Team

Hamilton, March 31 — (CP) — Carl Voyles of New York, a top-ranking United States football man, Thursday night was named coach and general manager of the new Hamilton Tiger-Cat Football Club.

The appointment was announced by President Ralph Cooper of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union senior club. Voyles' name has been mentioned as a possibility since his club's bow came into the loop.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By BOB MCALEER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 31 — (CP) — Are the ruling fathers of Canadian football too bound up with tradition or does their resentment to the future "Americanizing" of the game extend to fighting the advent of the platoon system of substitution—used by most United States teams, college and professional?

Jack (London Free Press) Parks Comments on the action of the Senior Intercollegiate Athletic Union in turning down a suggested rule change which would permit college football clubs to dress 30 players instead of the 24 now allowed.

"We aren't too surprised," says Parks, "for it usually takes up to 10 years to get this august body to make a change."

Jack thinks that the present number of players allowed is dangerous by "forcing injured players to take their place in the line-up when actually they should be in the dressing room."

What about the second bests, those kids who are good ball players but not quite as good as the guys who grace the headlines? "By keeping a team down to 24 eligible men," Parks added, many good prospects are cut from a squad because there isn't room for them."

Bad Refereeing

Most of the amateur hockey leagues this season have been complaining about the quality of the officiating. In the trouble, lack of ability or lack of commanding personality?

Harry (Sarnia Canadian Observer) Tompkins is of the opinion that referees in the International Amateur Hockey League are minus many things they should have—The bristling authority of English bulldogs and the impartiality of travelling salesmen plus the wisdom of King Solomon."

But coming down to fundamentals, the trouble, Harry says, "lies in lack of command."

"I look to lay him out," said the Rock without even cracking a smile.

The rough, tough New Yorker and the handsome, 22-year-old Janiro are scheduled to go 10 rounds. It's even money that Rocky stops Tony and 1 to 3 that he wins.

Despite the big odds favoring the 28-year-old Graziano, a large crowd of around 16,000 is anticipated for the Rock's homecoming in the palace of sock.

The tousle-haired former middleweight champion last appeared in the Garden March 29, 1946, when he knocked out Marty Servo in two rounds.

Rocky has shown only once in his home state since his suspension troubles started some three years ago. He stopped Charlie Fusari in the 10th and last round at the polo grounds last September.

Rocky Graziano To Meet Janiro In the Garden

New York, March 31—(AP)— Rocky Graziano returns to the Madison Square Garden ring tonight for the first time in four years. And the former middleweight champion aims to celebrate the occasion by knocking out Tony Janiro.

Gamblers Moving Into Playoffs Says Paper

Toronto, March 31—(CP)—The Telegram said Thursday that gamblers are moving in on the 1950 Stanley Cup playoffs.

In a newspage story, the paper said:

"This morning (Thursday) they tried one of those dodges calculated to sway the odds by making phony telephone calls to the sports department of the evening papers. Checking sports writers caught up with the fake before it got too far."

The story added that a man representing himself as Ted Kennedy, captain of Toronto Maple Leafs, telephoned the paper's sports department and said that an injured knee would keep him out of Thursday night's Toronto-Detroit game in Detroit. A check by the papers' staff writers in Detroit revealed that Kennedy had placed no calls.

Letter to the Sports Editor

The Sports Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville.

TELL ME THE OLD, OLD STORY

The one thing which appears to be certain about the future of Belleville is that it is doomed to become the most dismal sporting city in the history of man.

What other city can claim the proud record at the close of the winter season that it operated approximately six thriving pool-hall licenses and seven beverage rooms, and not a single, solitary outdoor hockey rink. For a city of 25,000 it is a pretty shabby record.

Now tile ball season is coming on, and so far as one can judge, the record will be just as poor. I believe you were present at a meeting of would-be ball players held yesterday evening, where a completely negative picture for the ball season was presented. Nopanee with 3,500 people will present apparently two teams, which will practise and play in a Nopanee park. Apparently at Belleville will have no teams, not because players are lacking and not because sponsors are lacking, but for the very neat reason that there is no adequate place to practise ball and develop ball players.

Is it not time that our City Council spent one evening taking a long, hard look at the playground setup in Belleville? If they did, they would discover:

(1) That hockey rinks and ball parks are not developed and maintained by passing the buck to some board or committee lacking both the power and the finance to do a job.

(2) Our young lads can't even throw a baseball on city school grounds or do a little infield practise. It is forbidden, and if they try, a policeman will appear to shoo them off the field. This does not produce ball players.

(3) The so-called "Fair Grounds" — is a Fair Grounds for horses, rodeos or anything that comes, and Marty Marion would look like a dub on the infield. Yet this is the only place in Belleville for either the practise or play of baseball. A team without practise plays bad ball and bad ball does not attract crowds or make revenue for the sponsors, ball park or city.

(4) An adequate baseball program would provide for a permanent park at the Alemite site which the city now owns, with proper stands and a fence enclosed park. It would provide also for four practice fields, side by side, at the Fair Grounds with batting cages, pitcher's mounds and reasonably good infields. What the Canadian National Railways Association field would provide out of kindness would also help. All this, and nothing less is necessary to develop and maintain ball in Belleville.

(5) If the above adequate facilities were provided, sponsorship would provide the money for ball teams, big and small, with no hope of profit—and this is 'found' money so far as the city is concerned, because it is not going to work and it is not going to be available unless there is some reasonable chance of success which, of course, there is not at the present.

(6) The expense involved would be self-liquidating, because baseball properly presented in a decent park draws crowds in Belleville, and crowds pay money.

The one thing that Council will discover, as stated above, is that nothing can be gained by passing the buck, and that Council has got to take the responsibility upon itself of providing proper facilities for sports in Belleville.

Connie Mack Needs Capable Hurler for A's

By JACK HAND

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 31 — (AP) — Pitcher Joe Coleman's arm trouble and lack of a capable left fielder are serious threats to Connie Mack's dream of a golden jubilee year pennant.

Loss of a regular starter like Coleman, even on a temporary basis, could ruin the Philadelphia A's excellent pitching staff. The load might be too heavy for Toronto-born Dick Fowler, Lou Brissie and Alex Kellner to carry.

Pitching and an airtight infield formed the basis for Mack's early optimism. With his "big four" pitching staff and his neat inner defense, the agile old gentleman could afford to overlook his left field problem and lack of home-run power. Now things are different.

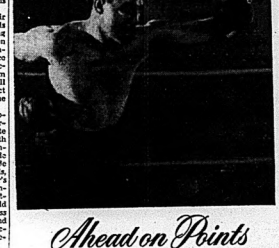
Coleman (13-14) complained of an injury last season. Doctors do not say he is liable to Coleman's right shoulder. Many close to the A's believe he will not be ready for the opener.

Mack, celebrating his 50th year as a manager at the age of 67, has moved little Bobby Shantz (not-much-left) into the starting line. Much will depend on his ability to come through.

Fowler (15-11) has been slow coming along, much behind last spring. Kellner (20-12) had arm trouble early. Now he says he's all right. Brissie (16-11) looked his old self in his last outing.

There is a chance that Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., may be able to come back, so far he reports no pain from his sore arm in test runs.

Bob Cooper, a 19-game winning Buffalo Grad, probably will add relief work, helping Ed (Speed) Klieman and Carl Scheib.



Barney McCosky may be the answer to the gaping hole in left field. Barney is working himself into shape slowly after a serious back operation.

Sam Chapman in centre and Elmer Valo form two thirds of the outfield.

The infield is Mack's pride and joy. Ferris Fain is on first, Pete Suder on second, Eddie Joost at short and Dillinger, the $100,000 beauty, on third. Dillinger batted a round .224 last season with the Browns.

BAN INDISCRIMINATE TOOTING OF WHISTLES

Palmerston, March 31.—(CP)— Council Wednesday night banned indiscriminate tooting of locomotive whistles in this C.N.R. subdivision town. Engineers will have to find another way to tell their wives they can start cooking supper.

Run of Sap Has Been Light

Picton — The run of sap has been light so far this season, according to owners of sugar bushes in this district. The reason is said to be lack of frost at night and the unseasonable weather earlier. The syrup is in demand at $4 and $4.50 per gallon, and little is being offered on the open market, as producers first look after regular customers.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No bidding system tips you off to the exact split of opponent's cards. That is, not in any one deal. But there is a good general rule that tells you what to expect in a majority of cases.

There is a percentage table of probable expectancy. It tells the most probable division of outstanding cards. It tells what to expect most often in each of the opponent hands.

This table is not something just discovered. It has been known for hundreds of years. It applied to the game of whist, granddaddy of later games such as bridge, auction, contract.

The original Edmond Hoyle had the table in his book more than two centuries ago. To noticeable difference in the figures can be seen in tables published by modern authors.

The table states that so many cards will divide so and so in so many times out of 100. Another amount of unseen cards will split so and so in so many times out of 100.

There is no reason why you should cram all these figures. No need is there to clutter up your brain with the different numbers and percentages. There is a better way of knowing.

One Horse Sense rule saves all the trouble of learning the big table of figures. Here it is: An even number will divide unequally; an odd number as equally as possible.

Look at this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠4 2	♠A Q
♥K 6 2	♥A 3 4 3
♦A K 6 4	♦Q 9 2
♣A K 8 5	♣Q 9 4 2

How do you expect opponent clubs to be divided? They have five, an odd number. Equally as possible, expect them three in one hand and two in the other.

How do you expect opponent diamonds to be split? They have six, an even number. Unequally, expect them four and two in their hands.

You don't always find what you expect.

an old age pension.

Evans is the son of a Welsh immigrant who came to the United States in 1877.

"My father did not become a citizen until two months after my 21st birthday," Evans explained. " . . . that made it necessary for me to take out citizenship papers. I thought the matter had been taken care of."

Evans, who has voted in every U.S. election since 1892 except one, has applied for citizenship.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 31 (AP) — Ann Sheridan is enlarging her home, but not to accommodate a husband. She lives alone and (she says) likes it.

She's altered her San Fernando Valley home, adding about 15 feet to each room, she says. Being a collector of things—particularly perfume, antique chairs and French lingerie — she needed more space. She also added a swimming pool and bath house. She and her companion, Martha Bunch, will move back into the home next month.

Despite her long romance with publicist Steve Hannagan, Ann has no marriage plans. Said she: "I tried it twice (with Edward Norris and George Brent). I'm happy the way I am. I'll think it over very carefully before I try it again."

Theory of Failure

Director Alfred Hitchcock has a theory on why "Stromboli" failed to win critical acclaim.

"Don't forget that Rossellini was working most of the time with English dialogue," he observed. "Being an Italian, he cannot understand the American idiom. Lines that sounded dramatic and stirring in Italian might seem silly when translated into English.

"I recall many years ago I made pictures simultaneously in English and German. The English versions were okay, but the German ones were flops. Even though I thought I understood German, I had no grasp of the nuances of the language."

Capsule Review

"Cheaper by the Dozen" (TCF) is a cure for the box-office blues. Following the best-selling book, it presents a warming account of a large American family. The plot is actually a string of incidents which contain enough humor and heart to engross any audience. After playing antipoy roles, Clifton Webb changes pace with a hearty portrait of the father. Myrna Loy and Jeanne Crain perform understandingly as the mother and daughter.

BRIG.-GEN. FANET DIES

Montreal, March 31. (CP)—Word was received Thursday of the death in England of Brig.-Gen. A. E. Panet, a graduate of the Royal Military College at Kingston, who had a long and distinguished career with the British Army. Survivors include two brothers—Maj.-Gen. E. De B. Panet of Montreal, and C. L. Panet, Ottawa.

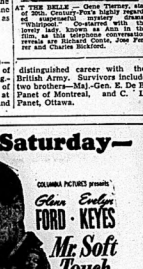
AT THE McCARTHY — Worlds apart—Denis Post and Beatty Byron portray a gambler and a social service worker in Columbia's "My Son Thomas," dramatic hit at the McCarthy Theatre.



AT THE CAPITOL — Cowboy star, Johnny Mack Brown is after desperadoes in Monogram's exciting western film, "Hidden Danger." Starting today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre, Trenton, the show will also include "The Blue Grass of Kentucky," in Glorious Color. Both hits are first showings. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL — Ralph Morgan co-starred with Bill Williams and Jane Nigh in the Monogram drama, "Blue Grass of Kentucky," now at the Trenton theatre today and Saturday, screens one of his thoroughbreds, the same one that won the Golden Derby." Both hits are first city showings. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

AT THE McCARTHY — Glenn Ford and Evelyn Keyes are co-starred in Columbia's "Mr. Soft Touch," which opens today at the McCarthy Theatre for a two-day run. Also on the program is "Kazan," James Oliver Curwood's story of the frozen wilds.

AT THE BELLE — Gene Tierney, star of 20th Century-Fox hit "Whirlpool," co-starring Richard Conte and Jose Ferrer, opens today at the Belle Theatre, Belleville. Also on the program is "Belle," a romantic adventure comedy starring Richard Conte, Joan Fontaine and Charles Bickford.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

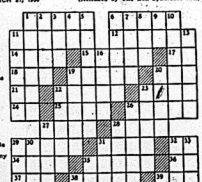
Pop was reading his paper and ma was reading hers, saying, here is a strange letter that some woman wrote in to Dr. Lorius Lid-for his advice and counsel on one of the most unusual letters I ever saw in his column. It seems, this woman is equally in love with 2 men at the same time and she hardly knows what to do about it, ma said.

Is that so very unusual? pop said, and ma said, Well yes, because one of the men is her husband. She sines herself "Tormented" ma said.

He's probably not her real name, pop said, and ma said, Well naturely. My my, the emotional tyrists and terns that women get themselves involved in. There's hardly ever a letter from a man, she said.

Then was one yesterday, didn't you see it? pop said, and ma said, I dont recall, tell me what it was about and I'll let you know.

It was a very intristing problem, pop said. It seems this chap has been married to the same woman for years and years, and he's quite contented and has not the slightest hankering for a change. Three other women have been making violent passes at him, a bewty contest winner, a model and a toe dancer, all vying for his attentions, and yet he's simply satisfied with the face figure and personality that he married so long ago. The letter rude sutch an impression on me that I still remember the name sined to it. It was William P. Potts, pop said.



Being himself, and ma said, Oh, I see now how it was one of your cocken bull stories, but it's very sweet of you just the same, William, and I assure you that if the conditions were reversed, I'd write the same kind of a letter.

Meening she felt the same about him.

LAUGHS SELF TO DEATH

Cleckheaton, Yorkshire, England, March 30 — (Reuters)—A man laughed himself to death here after inhaling naphalene fumes. Derek Haley and Allen Downend were pouring naphalene into a 40-gallon drum in a back garden air raid shelter, half full of water. They became intoxicated by the fumes. Downend collapsed laughing into the water and was drowned.

Sunday Sports Bill Approved By Legislature

Toronto, Ont., March 31, (CP) — Despite the Ontario Sunday Sports bill were approved by the legislature Thursday after four C.C.F. amendments were voted down.

The bill allows sports to be played on Sunday in municipalities where a majority of those eligible to vote in municipal elections express their approval in a plebiscite. The sports may be played only between the hours of 1:30 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. Municipalities may designate in by-laws which sports may be played. A plebiscite may be held on the petition of 10 per cent of those eligible to vote. Sunday sport may be voted out of a community by the same terms.

Attorney-General Porter amended the bill to make it clear that the hours during which sport may be played will be daylight time where a community adopts that system.

Reid Scott (CCF—Toronto Beaches), moved that Sunday Sports plebiscites be taken on the basis of the provincial voters list rather than the municipal one. He said thousands of young people, who live in single rooms were not eligible to vote in municipal elections.

William Dennison (CCF-Toronto St. David) said the wording of the plebiscite refers only to "public games and sports" and does not differentiate between amateur and professional or commercial sports. He moved that the wording be amended to allow municipalities to list the type sports they were considering.

T. H. Isley (CCF—Waterloo South) moved that municipal votes on Sunday sport should not be allowed at intervals of less than two years.

All the C.C.F. amendments were defeated without a recorded vote.

G. B. Ellis, (C.C.F.—Essex North) asked during committee stage on the Sunday Sports Bill if the act would allow theatres to be open on Sunday. He quoted a dictionary definition of sport which included "amusement or pastime".

Mr. Porter said the meaning of the words as used in the act was the same as used in the Lord's Day Act and did not include theatres.

DEATHS SHOW INCREASE

Chicago, March 31 — (AP) — There were 4,350 persons killed in automobile accidents in the United States during the first two months of 1950, an increase of six per cent over the same period last year.

NOTICE TO TRUCKERS

For the next few weeks, local truckers and others engaged in hauling over County Roads will be required to observe HALF-LOADING REGULATIONS to prevent unnecessary damage during the defrosting and break-up period.

By your co-operation you will not only earn the good will of the general motoring public, but also that of the County Tax Payer. You will also benefit yourselves directly by minimizing the damage, which in turn will hasten the date when you can again practice full loading.

N. Electrics Head 'Stogies' 7-0 Egg In Major 'A' Loop

The lone "duck-egg" registered in the Major "A" Bowling League fiesta at the Bowl-O-Drome last night was that presented to the Central Cigar "Stogies" by the Northern Electric team. The "Stogies" dropped a 7-0 decision to the plant keglers.

Belleville Golf grabbed high scoring honors rolling 3,434 to defeat Callaghan's Ice 5-2. Moore's Chiselers took a 5-2 decision from Lawn Bowlers while Tobe's County Gardens turned back Electronics by a similar score.

Art Stewart of Callaghan Ice had high individual score of 823. His games were 283, 332 and 258.

Also rolling good scores were: Harry Ridley 742, Joe Legault 727, John Ronsky 726, Jack Bennett 719, Ted Greenfield 713, Al Hinton 712, Joe Kirkwood 711, Cec Hardwick 709, Charlie Marriott 687, Ron Saylor, 674, Larry Hopkins 673, Jim Semark, 671, Bill Hitchon 663, Les Lennox 662 and Walt Moore 650.

The results:—

Belleville Golf 5	3434
Callaghan Ice 2	3248
Northern Electric 7	3296
Hinton Cigar 0	2718
Moore's Chiselers 5	3115

Says University Attendance Will Never Recede

Hamilton, March 31. (CP)—E. C. Fox, new chancellor of McMaster University, said today that a financial crisis, developing for years, now has fallen upon Canadian Universities. Failure to solve it adequately will spell disaster in less than a generation, he said.

In an address prepared for delivery at a special convocation at which he was installed as chancellor—he is the first to hold the position since the offices of chancellor and president were separated—he said:

"That the state should be vitally interested in the financial problems of universities will surely be approved by all. State funds appropriated to undergraduate training would much more usefully serve humanity than in the case with some appropriations currently being made in other directions."

The chancellor predicted that university attendance will never recede to the enrolments of the years before the Second World War. More and more young people were aware of the advantages of the trained mind.

As his first official act, Chancellor Fox conferred honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws on Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University; Kenneth W. Taylor, assistant deputy minister of finance; and A. H. Gordon, president in 1946 of the American Association of Physicians.

CLAWS EXPENDABLE

Jack, Jill Reunited In Park at Victoria B.C.

Victoria, March 31. (CP)—Jill has her Jack and all Victoria breathes easier.

Jill, the royal swan, left her home and husband Jack in Beacon Hill Park two weeks ago because a female interloper, dubbed Jezebel, was breaking up her domestic life.

For the two weeks, she cruised just off shore in the harbor, although not a salt water lover, trailed by newspaper reporters and photographers and scads of Victorians.

Thursday afternoon, she came a bit too close to shore.

While 200 spectators cheered wildly, reporter Trev Collins of the Victoria Colonist jumped into the water and arose with Jill in his arms.

Jill was taken back to the park. Jack dropped Jezebel the moment he saw Jill back.

Three-Year Girl Saves Sister From Wringer

Aurora, Ont., March 31. (CP)—A 3-year-old girl was credited with saving her baby sister from possible loss of an arm yesterday when the infant was caught in the wringer of a washing machine.

Sharon Foote, attracted by the screams of Jo Anne, aged 1, ran into the kitchen of their Yonge Street home and found the infant's arm being pulled into the wringer. Sharon pulled the plug which supplies the machine with power and called an upstairs tenant.

Dr. C. Rose said Jo Anne's arm would have been torn off if her sister had not stopped the machine.
